Jackets! They Play Important Role in the Fashion Picture

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ACCORDING to fashion's say-so, you must be smartly jacketed everywhere you go Your play suits, your daytime ensembles, evening dresses and afternoon frocks are all supposed to have complementary jackets, with a few "extras" to be held in readiness to report for duty at the beck and call of time and occasion. So no matter how many jackets you have they will be none too many to include in a fashionable wardrobe.

In a program of interchangeable jackets the secret's out, as to how to go victoriously through the mid-season stretch between summer and actual fall with "flying colors" so far as keeping a well-dressed appearance is concerned. Every woman wants to maintain a refreshing up-to-the-moment look in summer hangover apparel until autumn styles are set. This is quite a "trick" in the art of dressing. Interchangeable jackets that flaunt "the latest" in styling details is an answer.

With the thought in mind that the attractiveness of the jacket fashions pictured might inspire you in a sewing spree venture, we are especially calling your attention to the several pen and ink sketches, selected because the numbers are really very easy to make You can buy up such pretty remnants at this time of year, so reasonable and with the investment of a little time and effort you will find yourself the happy possessor of jackets that, ingeniously interchanged, will set new tempo for your frocks in keeping with every move of fashion

Referring to the pen-and-ink sketches, the ones at top to right and left, are of the casual type for town and travel wear. For these remnants of tweed will work up to good advantage and if you want to give them a "last word" touch, embroider a big scroll monogram somewhere about them—on pocket or sleeve or some other strategic point

Outstanding on the season's program is the sleeveless long-torso jacket, known as the jerkin. It is the schoolgirl's idol and adored by sportswomen The jerkin sketched at lower right, is easy to make, easy to wear! Use bright corduroy or suede cloth. Jerkin patterns are available anywhere they sell patterns.

Coolie coats, the popular choice for evening wear, are ever so easy to make for they require little or no fitting. The "coolie" sketched at lower left, is a "perfect little treasure" The material used in this instance is prettily embroidered in quaint little posies Handsome brocade or metal cloth yields beautifully to the coolie treatment Women of discriminating taste love coolie wraps made of fine wool or silk crepe in subtle pastel greens, violet shades, or Chinese reds. The newest thing is to embellish them with a restricted amount of sequin or bead embroidery. Note the model in the lower oval inset. In this instance the sheer crepe is in a soft stone blue, the embroidery done in silver threads and beadwork

Sun-Hat and Bag

Here is a practical sun-hat and bag that should interest beach strollers who want to protect their complexion from burning sun rays. The large sun hat worn so appealingly by the young lady as she poses in the picture at the top acts as a perfect "freckle fender."

In the pose below you see how this huge brim folds to pancake size so as to fit into the outer pocket of a made-to-match rubber-lined beach bag. This hat has a navy blue brim with red and white striped crown and the color combination is repeated in the bag.

Accent Is on Luxury Blouse Type for Fall

The blouse program as mapped out for fall and winter will use much luxurious fabric. Pastel metal cloth made up in classic simplicity is one of the happy outlooks Matching the pastel of the metal weave with crepe in identical tone presents endless possibilities for achieving charming effect In some instances a bit of the crepe used for the skirt is repeated in stylizing accents on the metal blouse.

Wide use will be made of deep-toned satins and they will be made up similar to the manner suggested above for metal weaves. Silk jersey is also a favored medium. Used in vivid reds, greens or blues to wear with black suits, the new jersey blouses are stunning.

Drastic Changes Seen In New Fall Silhouette

Here are changes you will find as the new silhouettes make their debut this fall. There will be very few if any set-in sleeves. The trend is to deep armhole effects in dolman sleeves, cut all in one with the bodice or blouse top. Bulk above the waistline and slimming of skirts is noted.

Everything is being done to accent lower waistlines, especially with inset belts. Beltless dresses are very new in style stressing sophisticated simplicity.

There will be hosts of pleated fashions that emerge from long-torso lines with pleats manipulated to retain slenderized lines.

Chiffon House Coats

Torrid days call for cool apparel, a need which is filled in very lovely house coats made of pastel chiffons. You can bring the summer to a very happy conclusion wearing one of the very lovely chiffon creations.

Star Dust STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

IT LOOKS as if heroes of the sports world would come into their own on the motion picture screen with a vengeance in the near future. Columbia's already begun production on "Harmon of Michigan," with Tom Harmon himself appearing in the title role. Republic has signed Billy Conn, of the squared circle, to star in one picture. It will be "Kid Tinsel," based on the novel of that name by Octavus Roy Cohen.

Tom Harmon

And David Selznick and Metro want to bring us a picture based on the life of the great Lou Gehrig of the baseball diamond That one would be a little tougher assignment, of course—imagine finding someone who'd be acceptable as Lou!

While we're on the subject of hero portrayal, Gary Cooper does a remarkably good job in "Sergeant York" The picture is one of those that you'll have to see, unless you want to sit by and suffer forever after while your friends tell you how good it was.

—:—

Most of the sequences of "Glamour Boy" show backstage scenes on the Paramount lot, so if you want to see what the inside of a motion picture studio really looks like, check this Jackie Cooper-Susanna Foster picture as one that you want to be sure to see. For one sequence, in a producer's office, Walter Abel and Jackie Cooper are doing a scene. Framed on the office wall are portraits of Madeleine Carroll, Dorothy Lamour, Claudette Colbert, Mary Martin and Paulette Goddard.

Susanna Foster

"You seem to be nervous, Jackie," Abel commented. "What's the matter?"

"Who wouldn't be nervous doing a scene with all those big stars watching?" Jackie demanded.

Deanna Durbin certainly is growing up; she's inherited a story that was originally bought for Margaret Sullavan. It's called "They Live Alone," and the Durbin role is that of a girl reporter who lives in New York. At present she's finishing "Almost an Angel," with Charles Laughton. The new picture postpones three others that were scheduled for her, so Universal must think it's good.

"Navy Blue and Gold" was characterized by the nation's critics as one of the finest service films ever made; naval officers have said that it is the most authentic story of Annapolis ever presented on the screen. So Metro is reissuing it, and we'll all have another chance to see James Stewart as he looked when he was a movie actor instead of a soldier.

Herbert Marshall has joined the all-star cast of the new Joan Crawford picture, "When Ladies Meet," which already included Greer Garson and Robert Taylor. Even before he joined it, Metro was announcing this as one of the most formidable star combinations of many months.

—*—

Richard Denning was Anne Shirley's West Pointer husband in "West Point Widow"; then he was Susan Hayward's brother-in-law in "Adam Had Four Sons." Paramount thinks so much of him that he's slated now to be Dorothy Lamour's leading man in "Her Jungle Mate." He's a white youth reared in the African jungle, according to the movie story (in reality he's just a home boy from Los Angeles,) and is brought to America by a circus promoter as a rival to Miss Lamour, who's also been discovered in the wilds.

The members of 18 national fraternities voted Ann Sheridan their sweetheart, but she's a lot more excited over the fact that she has been given the most important role in her career. It's in "Whistling in the Dark." Red Skelton, the comedian, has his first starring role in this one.

—*—

ODDS AND ENDS—Bob Burns will star in "The Wizard of Arkansas"—he'll be a rural sage, fairly bursting with homely wisdom . . . Columbia has acquired world rights to "Five Men," one of the most expensive British pictures ever made—Leslie Howard, Laurence Olivier and Raymond Massey are in the cast . . . For some reason Columbia seems to be impressed by the fact that its Edgar Buchanan used to be dentist; in their publicity he's always referred to as the dentist-actor . . . 20th Century-Fox hopes that "Swamp Water" will give Anne Baxter and Dana Andrews a boost toward stardom . . . Bessie Love returns to acting in the English "Atlantic Ferry."

Drafting Bills

Many bills presented in the senate and the house of representatives are not written by the congressmen or the congressional committee whose names they bear, but by one or more of the 10 lawyers in the office of the legislative counsel, an organization set up more than 20 years ago for this purpose and which costs the government about $75,000 a year.

FLIES ARE WORST NOW UNTIL FALL SEASON

Flies constitute their greatest menance to livestock and humans alike during the period from mid-August until fall, according to Harold Gunderson, Iowa State College extension entomologist He asserts that every control measure known should be used to combat these pests during the remainder of the summer

Special attention should be given to livestock particularly dairy cattle, where a bad fly season cuts the profits most noticeably, is pointed out The most effective control consists of spraying destruction of fly breeding places (chiefly manure piles) and trapping

Although many commercial sprays for ridding cattle of flies are available an economical and efficient spray can be mixed at home, Gunderson says Such a spray may be prepared by mixing 1 pint of kerosene-base pyrethrum extract with 19 pints of mineral seal oil or oil of similar viscosity Next, add 1 pint of steam-distilled pine oil and stir the ingredients thoroughly

These ingredients usually can be obtained through wholesale druggists or through dealers in insecticides. Gunderson says, and local druggists can order them if they do not already have them in stock

THE MENANCING DRIVER

Safety Commissioner Karl Fischer has a theory that the most dangerous driver is not the drunken man at the wheel who is usually too helpless to drive. Fischer has been making a study to overcome the menance which liquor puts into road driving, and believes that the real danger is from the fellow with a few shots under his belt who becomes reckless In other words the fellow who has taken a few drinks is inclined to overestimate his control, step on the gas, and wind up in an accident

Fischer may have his own opinions on the matter, but just the same we would hate to face either a thoroughly soaked drunk, or a man with only a few drinks, coming down the road in a car. We fail to agree with Fischer that one degree of drunkedness is any better than the other

FEDERAL TAXES JUMP - - UP

Federal taxes collected in Iowa jumped over seven millions of dollars during the fiscal year ended on June 30 They were that much higher than in the 1939-40 fiscal year Federal taxes from this state topped the thirty-two million mark. They will keep jumping as long as Iowa is prosperous

Some day they will reach such heights that they will dwarf the dimishing federal handouts which must cease as the burden of federal debt grows

PICNICS SITES SHOULD BE CLEANED UP

Arrange a day's outing and along goes the picnic basket replete with good food and drink, the consuming of which comes off in grand style and everybody has a great time

Comes the packing up and making ready for home and here is where nature, the highway department and the sight-seeing public start to groan. Too often the picnic cleaning up leaves an unsightly mess of cans, paper, boxes, and food scraps to bear witness that here rested and passed through a party of careless and thoughtless people There are some who ride through the country and toss out bottles, cans and even garbage along the road from their car You wonder what type of citizens these with so little consideration for the rights and the respect of others. We complain of unsightly billboards, object to signs obstructing the view, suggest cutting weeds that are dangerous to safe driving, make efforts to have lights at busy intersections. This is all for the public good But to keep the countryside clean and attractive is for the enjoyment of all of us and it is necessary for the public welfare too

Do your part· clean up after a picnic and leave the grounds clean for the next party.

Weed Seeds Live Long

According to Iowa State College botanists, the average life of 33 varieties of weed seeds in the soil is about 28 years. Shortest-lived of the 33 is quack grass, which is viable for 4 years in the soil Horse nettle is considered viable for 11 years and all of the other 31 are considered viable for 20 years or more. Water pepper, black mustard, evening primrose and purslane seed all live for more than 50 years in the soil.

FRIGHTENED

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunerberg of Clarksville were "first on the scene" of a hanging. Mrs. Williams who was driving a car, became so startled that the vehicle almost went out of control when she saw what was apparently a man hanging from the crossbeams of a bridge. The victim, a dummy, is now in the hands of the sheriff and rides with him wherever he goes, probably as a mascot.

Iowa produces nearly half of the timothy seed raised in the United States.

Success of Blood Plasma In Transfusion Announced

Dr. Sidney O. Levinson of Chicago explained recently to members of the American Medical association at a pathology and physiology meeting how blood serum or blood plasma may be used instead of a regular blood transfusion in emergency cases where delay caused by the typing of the patient's blood might prove fatal. The serum and the plasma, constituting as they do the liquid content of the blood without the cells, may be given to any patient regardless of what type his blood may be.

Reporting on experimental studies made by Dr. Frank E. Rubovits Jr, Dr. Heinrich Necheles and himself, Dr. Levinson said that of 47 patients treated with the serum or plasma, all of them benefited by the injections and some made "dramatic recoveries"

Sixteen of the patients, he said, were suffering from shock and hemorrhage, a common condition after a Caesarian operation, and it was the prepared blood serum, which can be kept on hand for long periods of time, which helped them in their eventual recovery Other cases, he said, were suffering from plain shock, burns or hypoproteinemia, a low protein content in the blood, and although some of them would have recuperated without the injections, the serum was of great aid in their recovery

Dr. Levinson said that only one of his patients had any reaction to the injection, and that was confined to local pain and swelling.

At the same session Dr. Elmer L. De Gowin and Dr Robert C Hardin of Iowa City, Iowa, reported on the effects of using preserved blood in regular transfusions They have performed 2,423 blood transfusions, 295 of which used fresh blood, and Dr. De Gowin said that no reactions were encountered from preserved blood which have not occurred from the use of fresh blood The most common reaction, he said, was chills and fever, which occurred in 2 per cent of the cases during or immediately after the transfusion.

Use Airplanes to Locate Center of Old Civilization

How the modern airplane has taken man on a flight into time—going back 6,000 years in one or two hours—is related by Dr Erich F Schmidt, of the University of Chicago's Oriental institute Dr. Schmidt made many such flights in Iran, where he was field director of an archeological expedition Through aerial observation, he explained, it was possible to find rich areas never before penetrated—centers of ancient civilization

"From the air," declared Dr Schmidt, "we have been able to follow routes followed thousands of years ago by caravans. We have found mounds covering ancient cities Some of these places would have required weeks or months to locate by an overland route They were found in a few hours by air"

In one venture, Dr. Schmidt said, aerial archeologists flew for 2½ hours to find the route of an ancient overland caravan It took three weeks of overland tracking to follow this route after it was discovered by air, but it led to a sanctuary of the Assyrian empire period of about 800 B C As a result there were uncovered many valuable objects relating to the period

"The exploration of this place," said Dr Schmidt, "gave a remarkable picture of the mixture in this remote place of the sophisticated Assyrian and the rough mountain cultures."

Arsenic From Tobacco

Dr. Edwin E Barksdale of Danville, Va, advises persons unusually sensitive to arsenic not to smoke. Some persons, he reports, develop itching and inflammation of the skin if they absorb any appreciable amount of arsenic After studying several persons afflicted in this way, he discovered they got their arsenic from tobacco, and could recommend no cure except to stop smoking The arsenic in tobacco comes from the arsenate of lead with which farmers spray the growing plant to prevent horn worms from destroying it, Dr. Barksdale reported No other insecticide serves the farmer's purpose so well, he said, because the arsenate of lead has the property of adhering to the tobacco leaf. There is no known way of removing the arsenate of lead during the curing or manufacturing processes, he added. But only the hypersensitive and allergic suffer

Traffic Nerves

What makes a person a "Jekyl and Hyde" once he sits in the driver's seat of an automobile? In other words why do persons, who are normal, kind and pleasant on most occasions become regular "Hydes" when they sit behind the wheel of an automobile?

Dr. George H Mount, a psychologist, recently made "at-the-wheel" tests of drivers' reactions using various gauges and apparatus and has reached the conclusion that "jitters" incidental to motor car operation is caused by the sudden shocks plus irritation that increases as traffic thickens. The sudden shocks arise from failure to make a signal, sudden cutting in front of driver, failure to pick up enough speed in an emergency and the sudden swerving necessary to avoid a pedestrian

SELECT A GOOD IRON

Take a little time to select a good iron and you'll save yourself time for many an ironing to come. A light iron works just as well as a heavy one and is much easier to handle. Narrow points, beveled edges and apered sides make it easier to get around buttons, and to smooth out pleats and gathers. Rounded back corners help prevent wrinkling in backward sweeps of the iron.

Wattage depends somewhat on the construction, but an iron should have about 800 watts The ironing surface should be flat, smooth and finished in a non-corrosive metal, such as chrominum. Nickel plate may tarnish, and thin plating will peel off

See that the handle is comfortable for your hand and far enough from the metal to prevent burns. Although a temperature control adds to the original cost, it may reduce ironing cost by saving electricity By preventing overheating and keeping temperature uniform it may prolong the life of the element and eliminate scorching

Look for the Underwriters' Laboratories bands on the cords. They will tell you whether or not the cord is suitable to use with a heating appliance Read the guarantee seal, label and store in a cupboard

Apple butters have long been family favorites since they're so especially nice for children's lunches or snacks when they come in from playing or a hurry-up batch of filled cookies. Thick and delicately spicy, apple butter fills the bill and uses much less sugar than jams and jellies.

Apple Butter.

(Makes 6 pints)
4 quarts cooked and sieved apples
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
6 cups sugar
2 cups cider vinegar

Combine apples, 2 cups sugar, and spices; cook until thick Add remaining sugar and vinegar. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal immediately. This may also be cooked in a pressure cooker or in the oven to prevent sticking.

Since some fruits do not convert into jelly easily, a commercial pectin is usually employed to make the fruit jell properly. Often fruits which jell easily, that is, those which have sufficient pectin in themselves are used in combination with fruits which do not. Crabapples, unripe grapes, currants, gooseberries, cranberries, quinces, huckleberries, and blackberries jell well. If enough of them are not used in the combination, better use the pectin and play safe.

Here's a bright and quivery jelly which you'll like to have on hand for fair weather or foul. It's a grand accompaniment for chicken or hot breads:

Gooseberry and Raspberry Jelly.

(Makes 11 medium glasses)
1 quart ripe gooseberries
½ cup water
1 quart red raspberries
6½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

Crush and grind thoroughly the gooseberries, add water, bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, for 10 minutes. Crush thoroughly the raspberries and combine with gooseberries. Place in jelly bag and squeeze out juice. This should make about 4½ cups juice. If there is a slight shortage of juice add small amount of water to the pulp and squeeze again. Put juice into a 5 to 6-quart saucepan. Place over a hot fire, add fruit pectin, mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Pour in the sugar. Let boil hard for a half a minute Remove from fire, skim, and pour into jelly glasses Add hot paraffin immediately.

Conserves ought to have a place of honor on the canning shelf for there's nothing quite so yummy as these sweet, jamlike mixtures of several fruits delightfully enhanced by nutmeats and raisins. Serve them forth on relish trays or as garnish on meat platters and they'll make a delicacy of the most humble meal.

Harlequin Conserve.

(Makes 15 6-ounce glasses)
25 ripe peaches
10 red plums
1 fresh pineapple
1 pound white grapes
1 orange
Sugar
¾ pound walnuts or pecans

Wash fruits thoroughly. Prepare peaches, plums, and pineapple, cut in small pieces Halve grapes and remove seeds. Slice whole orange very thin. Cook fruits slowly over low heat until soft. Measure, add ¾ cup sugar for each cup of fruit. Cook over slow heat for 20 minutes, then add nuts. Cook slowly, stirring occasionally until thick and clear, about 1½ hours. Seal in hot sterilized glasses.

PETER ENCOURAGES SUFFERING CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—I Peter 4 12-19 5 6-11
GOLDEN TEXT—If any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God on this behalf —I Peter 4:16

"Sweet are the uses of adversity" —so says the poet, and it is true that God is able to make even the sufferings of man a source of blessing and an occasion for joy, "if a man suffer as a Christian" (I Pet 4 16) In a world where sorrow and suffering have been heaped high by man's inhumanity to man, it is indeed appropriate that we think of the encouragement which God's Word gives to those who are in distress

There are many helpful Scripture passages on this point, those before us today being from the writings of Peter to the Jews of the dispersion Scattered abroad and no more under the guiding and protecting hand of Paul, Luke and the others, they were undergoing severe persecution for Christ's sake Some were apparently disturbed by their trials and Peter tells them that persecution should bring

I. No Surprise (4 12)

We ought to expect trials in this world, yes, severe fiery trials. Such things are common to all mankind, and the Christian should not expect to escape To them, such trials are real tests of their faith, an opportunity to show to the unbelieving world that God is able to deliver those who put their trust in Him!

To be forewarned is to be forearmed "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial"

II. No Shame (4 13-16).

There are two senses in which the Christian is to be unashamed in the midst of suffering In the first instance, he is not to be ashamed of the trial itself if he bears it for Christ's sake, for he is thus sharing Christ's sufferings. We cannot share in his substitutionary and sacrificial suffering on Calvary, but we can stand with Him who was indeed "a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief" (Isa 53 3). In the second place, he is not to do anything which would justify others in making him suffer. It is a disgrace, a shame which injures the cause of Christ, when a believer has to suffer because he has broken the law, or because he is "a busybody (R V "meddler") in other men's matters" If you pry into others' affairs, expect to have your fingers stepped on, and don't expect God to deliver you out of it or honor you in that kind of suffering

III. No Escape (4 17-19).

If the righteous find the difficulties and temptations in their way to be like fiery trials, if those who have the blessed presence of Christ to cheer and to guide them find it difficult at times to make their way through sorrow and sadness, what will the unbeliever do? Does he think that he shall escape? Surely not—and there is yet that day ahead when the believer shall enter into eternal peace, where sorrow and suffering shall be no more. Where will the unbeliever be in that day?

IV. No Worry (5 6, 7).

"Put care into Christ's bag," said George Herbert. "Treat your cares as you treat your sins. Hand them over to Jesus one by one as they occur, commit them to Him" (F. B. Meyer) He really cares about you—believe it and act upon it.

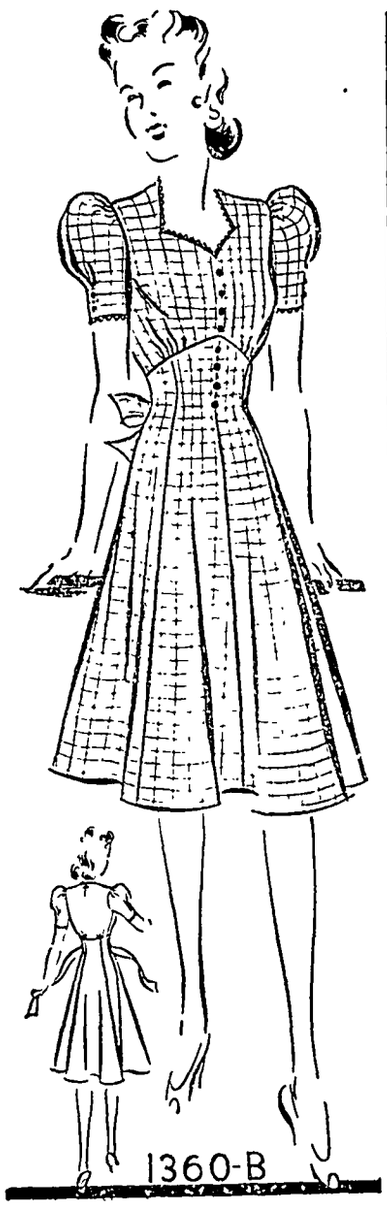
The cure for all worry is right there, but even as it is true that the meek shall "inherit the earth" (Matt 5 5), so it is true that only the humble are ready to cast their cares on the Lord "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble . Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up" (James 4 6, 10).

V. No Wavering (5 8-11)

"Steady, perfected and established in Christ, strengthened by His grace, sure of the eternal call, and with the eye of faith on the glory to come, such is the man who is able and ready to successfully meet the devil when like a roaring lion, he seeks to disturb and devour God's people

Satan is busy in our day Dr Wilbur M Smith says "It is admitted everywhere by outstanding Christian leaders, in every sphere of life today, that there has never been a time, at least in our generation, when the temptations of Satan have been so fierce, so frequent, so constant, as just now. What Satan wants to do is to destroy the testimony of God's people, to take them out of places of power and influence for the gospel, to rob them of that joy, and victory, and power, by which, through their labors, others will be brought to confess the Lord Jesus Christ Christian people today who are conscious of being fiercely assailed by evil ought not to be alarmed, but should realize that this experience of theirs is general, everywhere, of true believers, and that there is sufficient grace for every need in such dreadful times as these."

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE



HERE'S one of those very satisfying everyday dresses that's decidedly out of the ordinary in charm and practicality. The lines are really as good as those of your favorite afternoon dress. The skirt sweeps, from a high, small waistline, to a flare that ensures working comfort and looks pretty besides. You can draw the waistline in as slim as you please, by means of the back-tied sash belt—and adjust it to give yourself plenty of leeway for reaching, stretching, sweeping, dusting and so on. This design (No 1360-B) is simple to make and it really is necessary to a busy day

"My dear, I never imagined you would marry the man you did," said Gladys.

"Neither did I, my dear," replied her friend. "I disliked his ways, but I adored his means."

That's Her Count

"Bobby, how old is your sister?"

"Twenty-five"

"Twenty-five? She told me she was just twenty"

"Oh, I expect that's because she was five before she learned to count"

KIMBALL'S LEATHER STORE REMODELED PAST WEEK

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimball were busy the past week re-arranging the fixtures and changing the interior of their Leather Store.

A partion has been placed across the main store room to provide a separte room for harness and other items, while the counter and shoe repair machinery has been rearranged to provide more room in the front part of the store.

The change improves the appearance of the store and also makes repair work more convenient.

U. S. Navy Needs Men For Aviation Ground Work

KLEMME MAN IN BUSINESS HERE 22 YEARS

Last week Thursday, August 14, E. F. Jacobs rounded out twenty-two years of business in Klemme.

Mr. Jacobs came to Klemme on August 14, 1919 from Garner after being discharged from the army and purchased the hardware business from John and George Gruetzmacher.

Ed gained his first experience in the hardware business by working for several years at the E. S Viken hardware store in Garner Later he worked for the Farmers Elevator Company until the war came along and he enlisted. Ed. had a rather ticklish job in the army, that of trucking around high explosives over rather rough terrain in Texas.

Since coming here Mr. Jacobs has built up the hardware business from a rather small affair to one of the finest and best hardware stores to be found anywhere in North Iowa.

VETERINARY CLINICS TREATED 17,364 HEAD

Iowa State's two veterinary clinics cared for a total of 17,364 animals last year, according to Dr. C. H. Covault, director of Veterinary Clinics at Iowa State.

The hospital clinic, known as the Strange Memorial Clinic, has facilities and services available to deliver their animals there.

The ambulatory clinic provides veterinary services for farmers at the farm, eliminating the moving of the animals to the hospital

Hogs led the list of last year's patients with a total of 6,195 Dogs were next with 4,143; horses fourth with 1,023; sheep fifth with 836, and 233 cats were treated. One hundred and two animals fell into the miscellaneous classifcation This group included canaries, rabbits, monkeys, skunks, groundhogs, chickens, etc.

"These clinics provide a double service," Dr. Covault said, "because they offer sound, practical experience for our students and they provide Iowans with an economical professional veterinary service."

COTTONWOOD TREES MAY PROVIDE LUMBER

Farmers who are expanding in an attempt to do their part in the defense program are experiencing some difficulty in obtaining lumber, according to Guy R. Ramsay, Iowa State College Extension Forester, who advises them to look to their cotoonwood trees as a possible source of lumber.

"Cottonwood lumber is very satisfactory in hog houses, machine sheds and chicken houses, the type of buildings needed by farmers at the present time," he said. "In these rough buildings cottonwood, which ranks with the best of woods in strength, is satisfactory and inexpensive."

Treat For Pos's

Ramsey said that these trees, when grown along the fence of a permanent pasture or other open spots, will produce long straight trunks of good clear wood.

Untreated cottonwood is not too good a source or posts, he said, but when boiled in creosote or given a zinc chloride treatment the posts have been known to last as long as 25 years. The zinc chloride treatment, or "tire tube method," is adaptable only to fresh cut wood, Ramsey warned. When zinc chloride is applied to one end of a freshly cut post the cells of the wood absorb and pass on the chemical, thoroughly impregnating the entire post with the zinc chloride, an excellent preservative.

Shortage Later

The shortage of lumber will probably be more acutely felt by farmers later on than at the present time.

NAVY OFFERS YOUNG MEN EXPERT TRAINING

Fifty Other Trade Jobs And Vocations Offered Now In Navy

An announcement was made in Washington, D. C., this week that the U. S. Navy will need more men who desire basic training for aviation ground work. To supply this need, schools have been established at four separate Naval air stations to give instructions in the work of aviation metalsmith, aviation machinist's mate, aviation ordnanceman and aviation radioman Locations of these schools are Jacksonville, Florida; Norfolk, Virginia; Pensacola, Florida; and San Diego, California.

Information points out that these schools are open to recruits who have the aptitude and qualify for this schooling on the completion of their recruit training period and before their assignment to sea duty. These aviation ground work schools are called Class "A" Schools, Group IV, because they give basic instruction and are the 4th group of trade schools to open to recruits, the others being Group I, electrical and ordnance; Group II communication and clerical, and Group III, machinists metalworkers or aviation ordnancemen.

The aviation metalsmith course gives special instruction in the properties of metals, heat-treatment of metals, cutting, forging, and in those phases of welding and brazing essential to aviation. Aviation machinist's mate training covers bench, vice and floor work necessary to the machinist and instruction in the use of power tools. Seamen who are interested in this work will also obtain practical experience in the operation, care and repair of aviation engines used in the Navy and will learn to assemble and disassemble such engines as well as learn to install them in planes and check all the phases of operation such as carburetion, timing and lubrication.

Aviation ordnance training consists of instruction in the use and maintenance of machine-guns and other weapons used in Naval aircraft. This course includes a study of boresighting guns, synchronizing gun fire wth propellers in motion, mounting and effective use of guns The recruit entering this course of instruction also will learn the use of gun cameras, and the rigging and release of high-speel targets for practice.

Aviation radiomen receive general radio training in addition to those phases of radio peculiar to aircraft.

In addition to the technical job training outlined above, there are nearly fifty trade jobs and vocations for which a patriotic young man can receive training if he joins Uncle Sam's new "Two-Ocean" Navy

Write to the Navy Editor of the Klemme Times and receive a book telling all about the Navy, or fill in the coupon in Navy ad and mail or bring to The Klemme Times.

IMPLEMENT STORE INSTALLS NEW FIXTURES

The office and display room at the Northern Implement Store has undergone extensive remodeling.

The display room and office has been completely changed. Shelving and parts bins have been installed, the office partioned off by a low wall, new dispaly tables and bins installed and other conveniences are noted.

HELLO, FOLKS!

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Janssen, who live on a farm southwest of Klemme, are the parents of a baby boy born to them on August 10th. They also have a little girl in their family.

Raid-Shelters Foil Jap Bombs In War Capital

Chinese Take to the Hills Around Chungking For Safety.

By GERALD WILSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK CITY.—Attempts to bomb Chungking out of existence become more hopeless with every bombing, showing that, as a national capital, Chungking can endure indefinitely, according to Mr. Ronald Rees, secretary of the National Christian council, who recently arrived in New York from China. Chungking was the last stop in a six-weeks' trip made by Mr. Rees throughout China in the interest of work and relief projects being financed by American churches through United China Relief.

According to Mr. Rees, residents of Chungking are 16 times safer today from air-raids than they were two years ago, and there had been a drastic decline in air-raid casualties until the recent accident that caused several hundred deaths from suffocation inside an underground shelter.

"This accident does not detract from Chungking's effective air-raid precautions, its alarm system and its shelters, which make Chungking the safest war capital in the world," said Mr. Rees.

"When Japan first struck at Chungking in May, 1939, the city had very little defending air force, and few anti-aircraft guns or air-raid shelters. In May and June of that year, over 4,000 people were killed.

Thousands in Caves.

"During the first breathing spell, 7,000 stone cutters of Chungking got busy with dynamite and crowbars, and blasted hundreds of roomy shelters from the sides of the sandstone hill on which Chungking sits. Today, the steep sides of the hill are honeycombed with underground shelters, and most of Chungking's population can be accommodated inside them. Some of the tunnels house several thousand people."

Here is the picture of China's war-time capital as given by Mr. Rees:

When the Chinese government moved in during 1938, Chungking was a quiet, picturesque, almost medieval village, without electric power development, without railroad connections with the rest of China, and with no modern highways. Today, by contrast, Chungking is a beehive of activity, the dynamo that directs all the human and mechanical energy that is developing free China. A large part of the relief work for Free China is directed from the war-time capital. Chungking has become the center of a network of highways fanning out to all parts of China, and the center of air transportation connecting with Europe, and with the Western world via Hongkong.

The Chinese capital's most publicized air link with the Western world is its Hongkong-Chungking service, maintained daily by two companies: the Chinese National Aviation corporation and Eurasia Both planes leave Hongkong secretly, shortly after midnight, so as to fly undetected over Japanese-held territory. The CNAC line continues beyond Chungking to Kunming and on to Rangoon. Another airline runs from Chungking through Chengtu and Lanchow, on to Russia and Germany. Chungking's airport has been built on a small island in the Yangtze river.

The now famous Burma Road, which connects with two highways leading from the south into Chungking, is only one road link now used to take medical and military supplies into China. Others are the Marco Polo road, running from Chungking northward to the Trans-Siberian railhead at Udinsk; and the Northwest route from Chungking to Sergiopol on the Trans-Siberian railroad.

Population Increases.

Chungking proper is spread out on a promontory of solid rock between pine hills and valleys, with rivers on two sides: the Yangtze and the Chialing. Since the war has closed the Yangtze to Shanghai, both rivers are filled with small steamers, launches, junks and sampans, many of which did yeoman service in transporting dismantled machinery from Hankow and the industrial coastal regions before the Japanese advance. Because of the war, the normal population of 100,000 has been swelled by refugees, government officials, and war workers.

Some of the most vital industries have taken up their quarters inside the cave dugouts, so that they will not be forced to discontinue operations during air raids One of these is the publishing plant of Ta Kung Pao, China's leading newspaper, which has moved five times since the war drove it from its original home in Tientsin.

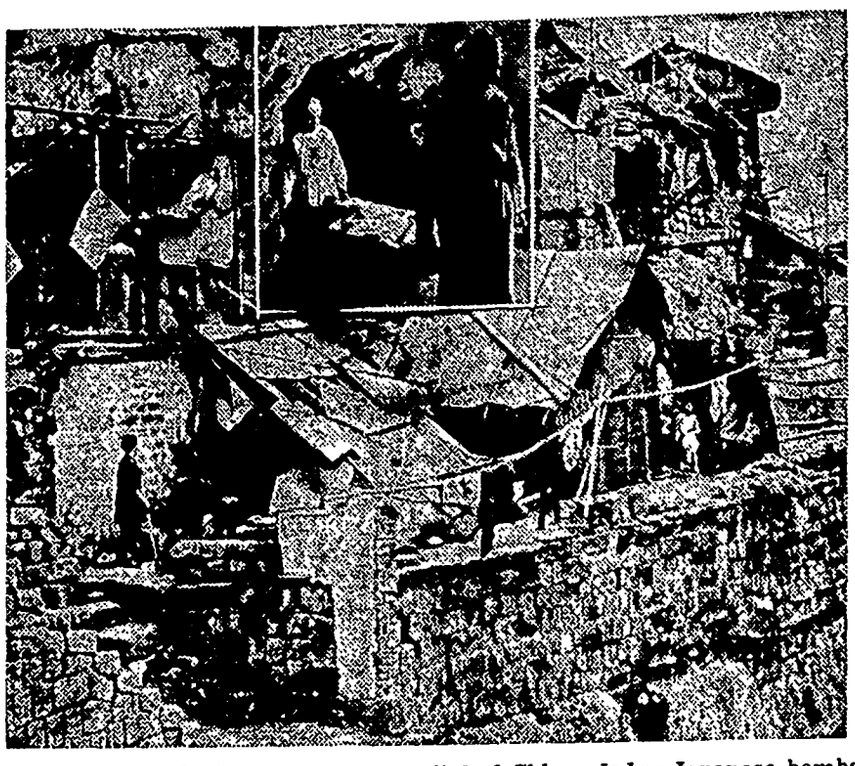
On clear days during the "bombing season," which lasts from mid-May to October, the Japanese bombers usually come between 9 a. m. and 1 p. m., and both business men and housewives have accommodated their lives to the raids. Most government offices are open at night. School begins at 6 a. m., and banks are opened at 7 a. m. Housewives complete all their marketing and housework before the air raid, so that they can "eat rice" immediately after the all-clear.

China Rebuilds as Japs Destroy



Residents of Chungking, war capital of China, dodge Japanese bombs daily and crudely rebuild their homes between raids, using bamboo poles for walls and straw mats for roofs. Above, inset shows native doctors carrying a war stricken victim into one of the underground hospitals, blasted out of solid rock in the hills about Chungking. This one has 20 cave-rooms, joined by tunnels and equipped with operating room, research laboratory, wards and kitchen. Medical equipment and drugs are being sent there from the United China Relief campaign fund, now being collected in this country.

German-Americans Form Organization To Oppose Hitler

NEW YORK.—Formation of the "Loyal Americans of German Descent," a militant pro-democracy, anti-Nazi organization to act as center of practical guidance "for the 10,000,000 Americans of German descent, on whom the Nazis have been working for the past eight years," has been announced. The organization has directors, sponsors and charter members in 18 states

Headed by Robert F. Wagner Jr., state assemblyman of New York, as president, and Dr. George N Shuster, president of Hunter college, as chairman of the board, the organization has secured the support of nationally known political, management and labor leaders.

The "Loyal Americans of German Descent" stated: "Every American, whether native born, naturalized or prospective citizen, must take a clear-cut stand today. Any sympathy with Nazi-Germany is completely irreconcilable with Americanism. Through forthright action, if necessary by the ultimate sacrifice of life, we shall meet the challenge with which destiny confronts us in the shape of Hitler and his henchmen.

"We consider it our duty to meet the Nazis wherever they may have enjoyed even partial success among the 10,000,000 Americans of German extraction. The misled must be guided back to the American way of life from which they have strayed through ignorance, misinformation or lack of guidance. We shall convince them that their own well-being, this country and democracy are worth a fight to the finish.

"We challenge Adolf Hitler's claim that the 10,000,000 Americans of German descent are bound by ties of blood to follow him as leader. We warn our fellow citizens not to be deceived by clever Hitler agents, alien or native, or by anybody else who, blindly or willingly plays into Hitler's hands.

Ideals Stated.

"We urge every loyal American of German descent—citizens and prospective citizens—to join us in notifying Adolf Hitler, his agents and the world at large. that Hitler is dead wrong; that men and women of German descent in America despise the slavery and tyranny and inhumanity which his terror imposed on the German people; that we are ready to fight for freedom and independence here and everywhere; that side by side with all our fellow citizens of many origins we shall uphold American unity by proclaiming our unalterable faith in democracy; that we shall not be fooled by traitors of Quisling or whatever stripe; that far from finding us a stepping stone into America, Hitler's followers shall founder against the rock of our opposition!"

Directors of the organization include. Karl Brandt, economist, Food Research institute, Stanford university, Calif , Gotthilf P Bronisch, executive vice president, New York; Elisabeth Christman, secretary-treasurer, National Women's Trade Union league, Washington, D. C.; Carl Holderman, regional director, Textile Workers union (C. I. O.), Newark, N. J.; Clara Leiser, writer, New York; Mrs. William Allan Neilson, Falls Village, Conn.; F. Expect 1941 Record Farm Crop

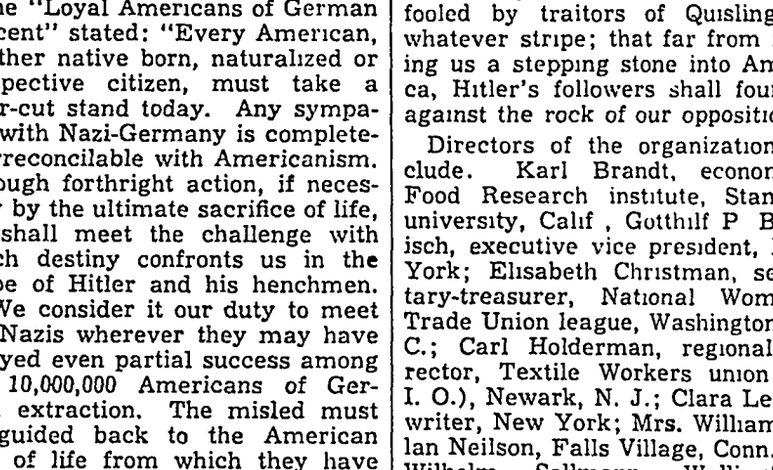
LaSalle Map of Business Conditions



Major factors in present and expected farm prosperity are climbing food prices and a big harvest in prospect. Purchasing power increases as wheels again hum busily in factories over the nation.

By L. G. ELLIOTT
President La Salle Extension University.

CHICAGO—The upward trend in farm income continues, with prices now averaging higher than any time since 1930, except for a short period of 1937. The growing season to date has been very good for nearly all crops, and if the weather continues favorable, the harvest this year is expected to be the largest on record.

Markets for farm products are becoming better each month as the greatly increased industrial production of both military supplies and consumer goods has made pay rolls larger and has added to the purchasing power of workers in the cities. The total income is the largest in history, and still rising.

In addition to having their income increased by the greatly improved domestic market, farmers are also benefited by the government agricultural programs which are constantly being expanded and made more effective These programs include payments for co-operation in soil conservation and control of acreage planted to major crops, higher loans on basic products, and government buying for relief purposes as well as under the lease-lend program. Government payments are about the same as last year, and account for a little over 6 per cent of the total cash income received by farmers.

A new ruling of the U. S. department of agriculture governing excess acreage tax on wheat makes it possible for farmers to avoid the 49-cents-per-bushel tax on wheat grown in excess of their 1941 marketing quotas. The department has announced that farmers who have exceeded their 1941 quotas may seed less than their 1942 acreage allotments, and secure permission to sell their 1941 excess acreage without penalty. Farmers are urged to produce more dairy products, pork, beef, fruits, vegetables, tomatoes and beans.

FOOD FOR BRITAIN

In the headlines, lend-lease aid to Britain is chiefly a story of planes, tanks, ships, guns and munitions. But these dramatic war supplies are only one part of the picture.

An equally vital, though little known, phase of this gigantic program is food.

Today, practically every ship leaving U. S. shores for embattled England carries stocks of food as part of its cargo. Also significant is the fact that this steady flow of food shipments differs markedly from those of World war days.

Then the foodstuffs were in bulk form—boatloads of grain and fresh meats. But now, with British and Allied shipping suffering terrible destruction, there aren't enough bottoms to transport both bulky armaments and bulky food across the hazardous Atlantic.

Since the cargo space for bulky armaments cannot be reduced, and with the British food situation becoming acute, food is being shipped in concentrated and dehydrated form. Thus it is carried in the same ships with arms and munitions, taking up relatively little space.

The extent of these shipments and what they meant to the American farmer is shown graphically by the following list of lend-lease food purchases in a very recent seven-week period:

American cheese, 20,483,175 pounds; corn starch, 35,820,000 pounds; frozen eggs, 36,648,630 pounds; dried eggs, 4,458,650 pounds; canned fish, 1,083,052 cases; dehydrated soup, 4,400,000 pounds; soy beans, 9,070,000 pounds; dried beans, 40,770,000 pounds; corn sugar, 5,696,000 pounds; enzymes, 3,360 pounds; dried apricots, 9,986,000 pounds; honey, 3,557,300 pounds; enriched flour, 399,000 pounds; concentrated orange juice, 92,302 gallons, vitamin A, 2,547,183 units, vitamin B1, 3,965 kilograms; peanut butter, 1,762,000 pounds; lard, 28,162,720 pounds.

Note—Management of the lend-lease food program is under the Surplus Marketing administration, aided by the U. S. public health service, the British ministry of health and the Anglo-American food purchasing committee.

FREEZING CHINESE FUNDS

There was one unwritten chapter in the story of American freezing of funds of those two Oriental neighbors, Japan and China.

It was published that the funds of friendly China were frozen as well as the funds of unfriendly Japan. But unpublished was the fact that China for four months had been asking the state department to freeze its funds, but the state department had refused.

China's request was quite unusual, for most nations object strenuously to having their funds frozen. For instance, Switzerland, hearing that she would be included with Germany when Hitler's funds were frozen, argued for weeks.

But in the case of China, many of her funds are in the hands of big Chinese merchants and bankers in Shanghai, who for business reasons are playing with the Japanese. And they have been draining Chinese currency from the country.

So Roosevelt's special Chinese emissary, Lauchlin Currie, was requested by Chiang Kai-shek to ask Secretary of State Hull to freeze Chinese funds. This would have hamstrung the pro-Japanese Chinese.

However, Secretary Hull refused. Twice Chiang Kai-shek made the request, but both times it was refused. In fact the state department even denied that such a request was made, presumably on the ground that it came not through diplomatic channels, but through Mr. Currie who is only a White House secretary.

Finally, however, when Japanese funds were frozen, Chiang Kai-shek got his request fulfilled. But it took Japanese aggression in the South Pacific to do it.

BOOTLEG GASOLINE

The days of bootlegging from Canada may be coming back again. In this case, however, the bootlegging will be gasoline, not alcohol.

Canada has imposed a ban on sale of gasoline between 7 p. m. and 7 a. m on weekdays, and all day Sunday. But this restriction does not apply to Americans.

Now comes the proposal of Oil Administrator Ickes to impose a similar ban on gasoline sales in eastern states Result would be that a motorist would be unable to buy gasoline in Buffalo or Detroit, but could cross the river and buy it in Canada.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Administrationites are quietly throwing their weight behind the candidacy of Francis Miller, militant New Dealer, for the Virginia legislature. Miller is being opposed by the Old Guard machine led by Sen. Harry Byrd.

To out-of-town friends who call on him, President Roosevelt is presenting copies of "America," absorbing booklet written by David Cushman Doyle. The President says he considers the booklet the best summation of the American creed he has ever read.

Crochet and Knit Items Lead Chic Back-to-School Wardrobes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HURRY up, girls, and get out your crochet hooks (your knitting needles, if you are a knitter) and crochet and crochet (or knit) for all you are worth. If you are still away on a vacation, don't let that stop you but keep on crocheting! If you are home and tingling with enthusiasm to begin planning your back-to-school wardrobe, fashion puts it up to you to "improve each shining hour" by making up a collection of clever crochet or knit fancies. You'll be surprised when you begin to compare notes with your campus chums, what a host of saucy hand-crochet and knitted "pretties" they have brought along.

Of course you will be wanting to show that you are just as fashion-wise as any of your dormitory sisters, that's why we are picturing a group of crochet and knit items, so that you can "get busy" and accumulate quite a collection to flaunt before the admiring eyes of your companions by the time "school begins."

Especially in millinery, crochet steps blithely into the fashion picture this fall. Whether you like a flattering brim or a saucy pompadour "beanie" your new headpiece will be smarter if it is hand-crocheted. The girl that comes to the first class-meet in the new semester, hatted in a nifty sailor like the one shown above to the left in the group will create a sensation. It is made of boilfast mercerized cotton, is washable and believe it or not, costs merely a few cents for the material. Here's a style tip—crochet yourself a sailor like this one, in a strikingly new fall color to wear with your smart town and travel suit.

A hat that has "lots of style" is shown above to the right. Use the simple single crochet stitch and you can speed along like lightning on row after row. Bright Mexican colors in pearl cotton lend an authentic air to this gay toreador hat inspired by the type worn in the bull ring.

You'll be wanting several gay back-on-the-head pompadour calots, to round out your collection of campus millinery, and miracle of miracles'—with the aid of your trusty crochet hook you can whip up one in a jiffy exactly like the cunning model centered above in the picture. The cost for material is too insignificant to count.

Where can any college girl find anything more striking, more dramatic in the way of a chic headpiece than the picturesque stocking cap worn by the white-jacketed girl standing to the right in the foreground' Here is a type that will lay siege to any fair collegiate's heart. Make it in animated multi-color crochet cottons and wear it with the nonchalance of a gay senorita as you trek along in the campus style parade.

Of course a knitted sweater in red, white and blue will become a necessary luxury in college and be sure to add a matching hat. As shown here to the left, the sweater is white and made of a very special knitting woolen, soft and caressing to the touch. Go to your nearest fancy-work shop or department store and ask for the newest in yarns. If you finish your sweater of red and blue crochet edges as pictured you will win the hearts of soldier boy friends galore.

Be on the lookout for the new wool dresses that have hand-crochet revers, pockets, vestees, sleeves, and even appliques of crocheted flowers. These crochet-plus-fabric dresses have become fashion's pet hobby for fall and winter

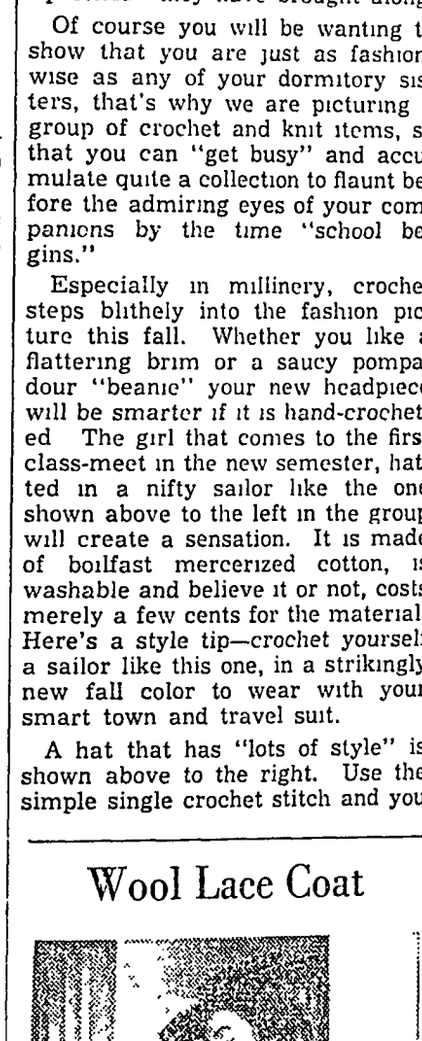
Wool Lace Coat



Here we have the ideal medium for the early autumn coat . . . It will be well worth while to look up black wool lace, that is so fabric-like it can be styled and manipulated like most any material. Armand Scardapane designs the striking coat pictured here, of handsome black wool lace.

The new fall coats definitely reflect the cape influence. This model heralds a coming vogue in the cape and wool fabriclike lace.

Silhouette Changes Considered Drastic

When you attend various fashion shows designed to open the fall program of dress, go with an open mind and be prepared to see startling changes You may have been going serenely along with the thought that you have a perfectly good suit or coat that you can wear again this season, but when you see the new "lines" you will find suddenly, you have changed your mind

There is a decidedly new order of things in the fashion world in the way of easy lines that stress a supple blouse movement above the midriff. Sleeves have undergone a transformation stressing dolman effects and even when sleeves are set into their deep armholes they give the impression of dolman sleeves However the appearance of broad shoulders is maintained through a gentle rounding off that depends on especially contrived shoulder pads, to hold a firm flattering line

Skirt interest is running high. Fullness is adroitly introduced to convey the idea of slenderness and the new tiered effects are making conversation throughout fashion realms. Watch peplums and tunics for they play a star role in this season's styling technique, with pleated skirts also very much in evidence.

Bright Green Veils

Huge white or black hats be-veiled in a green mist are ever so chic for summer. If you want to give your flowery toque or sailor hat extra fillip, enswathe it with a veil that is as green as the fresh green of early spring verdure.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Oscar:

I have not slept hardly a wink since reading about American forces being in Iceland and I wish you would not say like you did in your last letter that the boys sent there are lucky because it is so hot in American draft camps in summer. I would not like it if you were in Iceland of all places and how can you say Iceland is not so bad when all you know is what you have seen in the travelogues at the movie houses

It is all very well to say that the climate is not so terrible and that it is not at all like the North Pole but when you are in the Arctic zone you are in the Arctic zone and your father says that Iceland is awful and is the place where Peary and Dr. Cook had all that trouble and where Admiral Byrd is always getting stuck in the ice floes

Our groceryman who used to be a sailor says your father is wrong and has got his geography all mixed up He says he was in Iceland and that he has seen it a lot colder in this country but if it is so good why did he only make short stops there?

I looked it up in a book at the free public library which was quite a job as every book on Iceland was either out or was being read in the reference room and I had to wait all day in line with a lot of America mothers who are as worried as I am about the place.

It is even farther away than I suspected. I never paid much attention to Iceland but I always had an idea it was just off the North American coast near Labrador. Why, Oscar, it is even farther away than Greenland which is so far away it is not on any map we ever had in our house.

It looks so close to the British Isles on the map that it almost seems like it got accidentally detached in a storm, and a yellow line with the words Arctic Circle printed in red letters goes right through the top of it in case anybody is in any doubt.

The atlas says it is a volcanic platoo covered by glaciers in the northern part and pastures and meadows in the south but it would be just your luck to get sent to the northern part and it must be terrible to be where there are volcanoes and glaciers all mixed in together. You would never know what underwear to put on.

Your father and I hope you stay right where you are so please do not talk about wanting to go to Iceland any more. I am sending you the things you asked for and will write more soon.

With all my love,

Mother.

Dear ma—Just a line to let you know I dropped the idea of trying to get switched to a Iceland division on account it is too hot in this country just now. Do not worry. You are wrong about Iceland and so is pop. This time of year it has flowers and farm crops and even heat waves and before Americans have been there much it will have Miss America contests.

Even should I ever get sent there I have just read that its principal export is cod liver oil witch you half been telling me was good for me all my life. The camp atlas says its best crop is potatoes witch is alone enough to keep me from wanting to go there. I never seen so many potatoes since I got into the army and I have personally peeled all but two or three quarts of 'em. I wood want no part in saving any country which had more of them.

So do not worry. Tell pop he must of slept all through his geografy classes at school. Lots of love.

Oscar.

A draftee contributor who is stationed at one of the hottest camps in the country, heard of the occupation of Iceland with envy. "The lucky stiffs!" he cried when told U. S. troops were there. "They must of had inflooence!"

"Iceland?" he was heard to remark later. "That's the place that used to be on the gingerale hour."

To casual visitors to America who listen to the radio it must seem that America is a land which has but three major worries: Scalp irritation, intestinal irregularities and diet.

Famous Romance

The romance of Paolo and Francesca da Rimini in Thirteenth-century Italy has been the subject of more famous music, literature and paintings than any other true love story, says Collier's. Operas include one by Debussey; symphonic poems include one by Tchaikovsky; poems include those by Dante and Leigh Hunt; paintings include those by Dore, Watts, Rossetti and Cabanel; and plays include those by d'Annunzio, Pellico, Echegaray and Maeterlinck.

WHEREAS there now is in the hands of the treasurer of Hancock County, Iowa, the sum of $3 000 00 credited to the Emergency Fund thereof, and

WHEREAS an emergency has arisen which requires the expenditure of $3 000 00 said emergency being of the following character unusual demands on the State Insane Fund and

WHEREAS the revenue in the State Insane Fund is insufficient to meet its estimated actual and necessary expenses for the current fiscal year and the emergency referred to therefore be it

RESOLVED by the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County Iowa, that $3,000 00 of the funds in the Emergency Fund be transferred permanently to the State Insane Fund of said municipality, subject to the approval of the State Comptroller, to be expended in accordance with the provisions of Section 373 of the Code, and

The county auditor of said municipality, upon receipt of approval of the state comptroller, is directed to correct his books accordingly and to notify the treasurer of the transfer, accompanying the notification with a copy of this resolution and the record of its adoption

Penn Eckels, chairman
Fred C. Missal, county auditor

The foregoing resolution was adopted by the board of supervisors of Hancock county, Iowa, at an adjourned meeting of the same on the 4th day of August, A. D 1941.

The vote thereon was as follows:

Ayes, G. E. Klipping, F. J. Schoun and Penn Eckels. Nays, none.

On motion and second the board adjourned to August 18, 1941 at 9 o'clock a. m.

Attest:
FRED C. MISSAL, County Auditor
PENN ECKELS, Chairman

Brain Tumor Detected With Electric 'Brain'

An electrical "brain" that analyzes the human brain—determining whether the owner is mentally ill and the nature of the illness, and detecting the presence and defining the location of a brain tumor—recently attracted the attention of doctors at the scientific exhibition of the American Medical association in Seattle.

The device, technically known as an electro-encephalograph, was exhibited by its designers, Dr. Frederic A. Gibbs, W. G. Lennox and A. M. Grass of the Boston City hospital.

The electrical brain detects and records the waves that are generated by millions of tiny "dynamos" in the human brain, sorts them out according to wave length and energy and draws a spectrum of them so that the scientists can analyze the contents of a brain.

Discovery of the method of analysis was announced a year ago by the Boston City hospital scientists and since they have studied thousands of brains, ill and normal, and have discovered that the principal peak in the spectrum curve gives an index of the mental state of the individual Schizophrenia, the disease of split personality, has a principal wave frequency of 10 per second, and the epileptic, when a shock is approaching, moves the principal wave frequency to 9 per second.

The normal person, Dr. Gibbs explained, has a brain wave spectrum ranging from 1 to 50 waves per second, with the greater amounts of energy in the lower frequencies. When abnormal conditions arise the energy shifts from the higher to the lower frequencies.

"The brain can be likened to a great electrical network into which a great many powerhouses are conducting electricity, each one at a different frequency. Some of them are up to great strength and others die down. We can't see the powerhouses, but by measuring the voltage of each frequency we can tell at which powerhouse there has been some change in activity and, perhaps, what caused it.

One of the most frequent instructions a sailor in Uncle Sam's Navy receives is the command, "Write to your parents often, at least once a week."

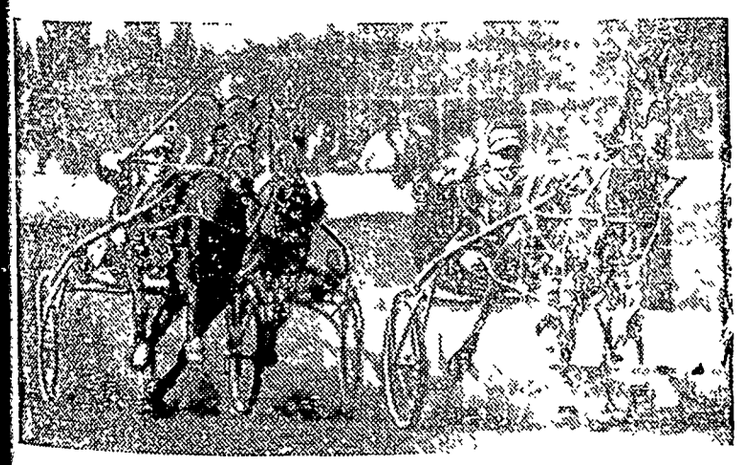
Rodeo Returns as Major Iowa State Fair Event

Des Moines, Ia , Special: A double entertainment program, embracing both rodeo and horse races, will feature three days of the 1941 Iowa State Fair—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, August 25, 26, 27, officials announced today. The rodeo returns as a state fair headliner to augment the afternoon harness and running race programs, and to provide the largest afternoon entertainment bill the fair has yet offered Rodeo events will include bronc riding, bulldogging trick and fancy riding and roping, steer riding, and other western sports Other afternoon features at this year's State Fair, from Aug 22 through Aug. 29 will include auto races, thrill day programs, and a complete open air circus daily.

Races and Rodeo Provide Double State Fair Feature



Des Moines, Ia., Special: Taking a hint from the movies, Iowa State Fair officials announced today that they would offer a "double feature" entertainment schedule on threo afternoons of this year's exposition—August 25, 26, and 27. In addition to the regular harness and running races usually headlined on these days, the fair will also feature a rodeo on the same three afternoons. "We are going to offer the public twice as much for their money as we have ever given before", Secretary L. B. Cunningham said today. "And if the experiment proves successful, 'double features' may become a permanent part of our afternoon programs" Nearly 200 trotters, pacers, and runners are entered for the horse racing classics, and more than fifty riders, ropers and bulldoggers are already listed in the rodeo events.

Soil Particles Graded By Novel 'Wind' Gadget

When dust storms of 1934 and 1936 darkened the sky from the Southwest to the Atlantic ocean the grit that settled at Cincinnati was finer than the particles dropped at Kansas City, and dust deposits at Washington, New York and Boston were progressively finer. A modification of what happens in a "duster" is the basis of a new device for grading soil particles developed in the soil conservation service laboratory at the California Institute of Technology.

When the laboratory staff needed soil particles sorted accurately according to size it developed a simple machine that creates a gentle "duster." The machine drops assorted sizes of sand or silt particles in suitable drawers, the coarser bits nearest the feeding hopper and the finer particles at a distance. For the most accurate sorting the staff members run the dried sand or silt through twice, first in a rough sifting by a slow breeze and second a resorting of fairly uniform material in a brisker but still mild draft.

The sorting machine is a bell-mouthed wind tunnel about 15 feet long with a grating as a floor to let the sorted material drop into the collecting drawers below. A small electric fan draws air through the tunnel at not more than 2½ feet a second, less than two miles an hour

Dry sand and silt is fed in a thin sheet from a hopper on top of the tunnel. Larger particles drop almost vertically. The finer the sand or silt particles the farther they are carried by the breeze. Particles of equal size drop at equal distances from the feeding apparatus. Walls of the tunnel are made as smooth as possible to prevent eddies, but there is some difference in the air action near the walls, so the drawers have partitions at each end and this material is rejected. What drops in the central compartment is graded more accurately than is possible with fine sieves. The machine will handle from 60 to 100 pounds an hour.

13th Century Mummies Found in Arizona Cave

Three perfectly preserved mummies, complete with the feathered robes and trappings in which they were interred during the Thirteenth century, have been discovered in northern Arizona by University of Arizona scientists.

Headed by Dr. Emil Haury of the university staff, a party made the discovery in virtually unexplored regions of the northeastern section of the state while searching for evidence and remnants of the great Pueblo culture of 700 years ago.

The mummies were found in a holy shrine called the Painted Cave, apparently a place of worship for the Pueblo tribesmen.

The bodies—one of a woman and two of children—were wrapped in robes of turkey feathers and ornately colored blankets.

Despite the fact that the mummies were almost seven centuries old, Dr Haury said some of the feathered robes "were almost perfectly preserved " One, he said, still was soft and silky to touch.

The walls of the cave were covered with designs and drawings representing Indian conceptions of their gods and real-life scenes of contemporary life Dr. Haury said the Pueblos painted the pictures with their fingers, using a paint made of desert plants and roots.

The mummies were surrounded by bowls of corn, other food and jars which apparently once contained water, interred to help them on their long journey to the "happy hunting ground."

Oysters' Protection

In 1375, King Edward III of England forbade the collecting or removing from their beds of young oysters in any month of the year except May. His edict also prohibited the collecting of full-grown oysters from May to September. Both of these regulations represent the earliest known law ordering such protection, and were presumably due to biological experiences which indicated even in those early days the necessity for conservation of natural resources, says Dr. Fritz Haas of the Chicago Field museum. Furthermore, the measures taken were in accordance with the dictates of modern science, and thus the proper ones to achieve the purposes sought.

When Roll Was Called

Two years ago citizens of Granger, Wash., organized "the finest volunteer fire department in central Washington" and named Darwin Davis as assistant chief. But now they're considering all sorts of dire action against Davis because he spoiled the chance the department had awaited for two years. For 24 months members of the department drilled faithfully, waiting for the day they could show their prowess in a real fire. It finally came and when the fire alarm rang the members turned out in force—all except Davis. Not waiting for their assistant chief, the volunteer firemen dashed to the scene.

Sprinting Pig

Perhaps looking forward to the day when a fleet foot might save him from the slaughter house, a baby pig at Wilton, N. H., tries his luck at outdistancing automobiles The pig races a car going in one direction, but reverses its track when it meets one traveling the other way.

WHO WAS THE JOKE ON

While digging a pond for Bob Larimer at Charlton, Roberts Co scoop came upon a sharp outline of a grave Whose was it, was it the grave of a murdered man, the questions were asked Many appeared on the scene, including the sheriff, to help solve the mystery The wood was examined around the so-called "grave", but when water was found, then things really began to happen. Luther Keller a nearby neighbor solved the deep, dark secret--"Shucks, boys, that's a good spring I helped box in 48 years ago." Now there is a good spring on the farm again, and perhaps Larimer will still have his pond

HUGE TEETH.

Two large teeth have been found on the Rudy Petotnik place near Boone One of them weighs about 8 pounds and is about a foot long It is not known whether the teeth may have belonged to some prehistoric beast living in this part of the country or whether they had been deposited by some glacier Another object, resembling a tooth was found by Frank Mains near Elkader. The tooth found by Main weighs about five pounds and the measurements are 18 by 20 inches

GRANDPARENTS.

Mr and Mrs Vern Crosby of Clarkvilles received two telegrams in one day last week One announced the birth of a grandson at the home of one daughter, another announced the arrival of a granddaughter at another daughter's The sisters live some 500 miles apart in California.

STARTING CAREER

Dwayne Rupe, Bloomfield, may be starting on a career as a steeplejack Recently he climbed the 75-foot pole on the grade school lot and released the flag stuck at the top.

GOOD LUCK SIGN.

A number of years ago a Shenandoah resident purchased an Indian blanket with a good luck sign on it Recently she has had the blanket spread out on her porch. It caused considerable commet, as the sign very much resembles the German swastiki. However, it is the old Indian good luck sign, and the blanket is probably older than Hilter himself.

Nutrition in Foodstuffs Is Subject of Research

With the second unit of the new federal nutritions laboratory at Cornell university in Ithaca, N. Y., now under construction, one of the most comprehensive research projects destined to step up the nutritional values of foodstuffs and improve human well-being will be started this year.

An appropriation has been made available for three laboratories and greenhouses on the campus. In these experimental buildings the department of agriculture will center investigations extending throughout the nation.

Prof. L. A. Maynard, head of the department of animal nutrition at Cornell and long recognized as one of the outstanding authorities in the research fields, has been appointed director of the laboratory. He will work in conjunction with Dr. E. C. Auchter, chief of the federal bureau of plant industry.

The research program will attempt to inject a new note into the production of foodstuffs for animals and man. One of the early steps will be a survey of mineral resources in the soils of the United States—not the minerals that are used as precious metals of industrial materials—but the vital elements that human beings must get from foods, which in turn obtain them from the soil.

One of the objectives of the program is to determine the exact amount of the mineral necessary for the improvement of the plant life, and consequently the animal.

Livingstone Memorial

A marble slab on the tomb of David Livingstone, the explorer, bears the following inscription:

"Brought by faithful hands over land and sea, here rests David Livingstone, Missionary, Traveler, Philanthropist. Born March 19, at Blantyre, Lanarkshire. Died May 4, 1873, at Chitambo's Village, Ilala. For thirty years his life was spent in an unwearied effort to evangelize the native races, to explore the undiscovered secrets and abolish the desolating slave trade of central Africa, where with his last words he wrote: 'All I can say in my solitude is, May Heaven's rich blessing come down on every one—American, English or Turk—who will help to heal this open sore of the world.'"

History of Wrought Iron

Wrought-iron hardware continues to find a place in the modern home. First used in the East in Colonial homes, the earlier designs were wrought by English craftsmen. As a result, hinges, door handles, and other metal which went into the home reflected the English tradition. In Florida and the Southwest the Spanish influence was noticeable, and wrought-iron designs had different characteristics. Either of these Colonial designs may be used in modern homes where they harmonize with English or Spanish precedent. The two types should not be confused by the home owner. When properly related, wrought-iron hardware adds interesting detail to the home.

College Clothes Auction

If a Radcliffe college of Cambridge, Mass., student has to watch her pennies, she can outfit herself at a cost of 63 cents. Miss Rose Yarmudian, director of the school's lost and found department, reports that at a recent auction students bought a hat for 10 cents, a dress for a quarter, a pair of stockings for eight cents, shoes for 15 cents and gloves for five cents. For another dollar the lost and found department supplied them with an evening wrap and bag, a regular pocketbook, a sports outfit, a raincoat and overshoes. Three times a year an auction is held of all things lost on the campus and not claimed.

Paul Bunyan Enthusiast Tells of 'Double Winter'

An old-timer, who likes to spin yarns of the great Paul Bunyan, sat in the back room of a store in Bemidji, Minn.

A severe cold wave, driving down from the Arctic, had dropped the temperature to 30 degrees below zero.

"Bathin' weather," the old-timer sneered.

He cocked his feet on the stove rail and inquired:

"Ever hear about Paul Bunyan and the Year-of-the-Two-Winters?"

And then, over the crackle of the fire, he told of a winter so cold that the snow turned blue.

The tale is only one of many that compose the legend of the mythical Paul Bunyan.

According to old timers:

Bunyan built Lake Huron as a corral for milk whales when he learned whales were mammals.

He started the Mississippi river by emptying a pan of dishwater.

He built a fire under a lake in which he had dumped a carload of peas and a herd of oxen, and made pea soup for his logging crew. (He brought a paddle-wheel steamer from New Orleans to cruise around the lake and stir the soup.)

He brought the Swedes to Minnesota after selling the state to the king of Sweden.

And went through the longest, coldest winter ever heard of.

It was so cold the snow turned blue, and it grew progressively colder until next fall, when winter set in again.

Loggers in Paul Bunyan's day grew beards to protect their faces, and the beards grew to tremendous lengths.

"Some of the boys had the ends of 'em knitted into socks," the old-timer said.

A low-lying cloud bank was swiftly converted into a mountain of solid ice. That was the first of the glaciers.

The mercury in Bunyan's thermometer dropped so low it was three years climbing back to zero. Snow fell so heavily that Paul had to dig down to find the forests, and loggers were lowered on ropes to fell the trees.

"It was so cold," the old-timer said, "the wind froze up in sheets."

Bunyan then had it sawed and stored in chunks for summer.

U. S. Has 'Brain Jitters,' Says Mental Specialist

One out of every ten persons in the United States either has been, is or will be at least slightly unbalanced mentally, in the opinion of Dr. F. H. Zimmerman, veteran superintendent of the Colorado State Hospital for Insane.

The fast pace of modern life and mental strain during a decade of economic depression has given the nation "brain jitters," Dr. Zimmerman declared.

Dr. Zimmerman blamed "the efficiency of modern medicine" for part of the upswing in insanity.

"Life expectancy has been increased in this country from 40 years to a new world high of 60 years," he said. "Insanity is more frequent as humanity grows older."

Latest national statistics, Dr. Zimmerman said, show that the pace of life in the nation's capital apparently is hardest on the mind. The national average of persons confined in state mental hospitals, he said, is 288 for 100,000. Washington, D. C., tops the nation with 849 for 100,000 and West Virginia, near-by, is lowest with 168.

Intelligence or Looks?

Being intelligent is fine for the co-ed who wants to get good grades, but it won't help her get her man, according to tests in popularity conducted by psychology students at Arizona State college. Instead, the tests revealed, she should develop herself in the art of entertainment if she expects to gain a man's affections. The tests, conducted in a class of more than 50 students, showed that ability to entertain was the most sought-for trait not only in women but in men as well. Dr. John J. Harton, head of the psychology department, said the most amazing part of the survey was not that ability in entertainment was found to be the most desirable quality but that intelligence was ranked as the least important trait in the list of eight. As far as men were concerned, a woman's physical appearance was an all-important factor.

Another Arizona 'Ghost' City

Clemenceau, Arizona's last hope for rebirth as an important center of the nation's copper industry recently vanished and the community appears destined to join the ranks of Arizona's "ghost" cities. The decision that seemingly spelled ultimate abandonment of this mining community was told in a few brief words—that the $5,000,000 copper smelter would be dismantled. Clemenceau sprang into existence when the price of copper shot upward in 1917. Around the smelter chimney, a moderately thriving community grew up.

When times were good, the population included more than 1,000 workers.

Two years ago the plant was ordered shut down and since that time, many of the workers have refused to leave, existing the best they could and awaiting the signal that would start the furnaces again.

Fire-Fighting Chemical Used in Killing Insects

Methyl bromide, sometimes used as a fire extinguisher, is proving even more useful as an insect "extinguisher" or fumigant, as it will in many cases kill insects without injuring the plants upon which the insects are feeding.

Entomologists of the United States department of agriculture are working with this fumigant to determine the time and temperature most effective for treatment to kill insects without injury to plants.

Methyl bromide is used—in control of the Japanese beetle—in the fumigation of fruits and vegetables from within quarantined areas. It also has been found particularly useful for treating potted plants and nursery stock which may be infested with the larvae of this insect. After treatment the plants can be shipped outside the quarantined area without danger of spreading the pest. A few species of plants are injured by this treatment; others may be stimulated to more rapid growth.

Methyl bromide is useful and economical in sterilizing soil, as 2½ ounces of the gas costing about a dime will kill all the larvae of certain species of insects in a cubic yard of soil.

Experience with sweetpotatoes infested with the sweetpotato weevil shows one of the peculiarities of the gas in its effect on living plants. When sweetpotatoes are treated direct from storage in the winter they may break down into watery, worthless masses. But if allowed to warm up gradually for a few days and then treated with gas at high temperatures the potatoes endure a fairly high concentration of gas, and when bedded to produce planting stock they yield more draws or sprouts for planting than the untreated roots.

Innocent Suspects Freed After Lie Detector Tests

Lie detector tests were recently described as of primary importance to innocent persons, as well as extremely valuable in the disclosure of those with guilty consciences.

Detective-Lieut. Harold Mulbar, lie detector expert for the state police in Michigan, revealed that the polygraph tests last year cleared half of the suspects who submitted to them.

"Of 222 suspects, 111 were cleared, 98 were found to indicate deception, 49 made confessions and the other 13 were of a mentality which could not be tested adequately," he said.

Mulbar confirmed an International City Managers' association report that the lie detector is an economical device. He estimated that it eliminated $25,000 worth of police investigation in 1938.

The association report declared that lie detectors are standard police equipment now in 15 cities, seven states including Michigan and the federal bureau of identification.

In Evanston, Ill., and Wichita, Kan., all applicants for police jobs must take the tests. In East Cleveland, tests are given all applicants for civil service positions.

Kodiak Doubles Population

While most cities in the United States of America are shedding bitter tears because the recent census did not show any, or but little increase in their population, the little town of Kodiak, in western Alaska doubled its population. But the increase has produced an embarrassing obstacle to future expansion, according to W. J. Erskine, president of the Kodiak Chamber of Commerce. It seems that most of the land adjoining present city limits is owned by squatters who won't give up their property. Kodiak is probably one of the busiest towns in the North American continent because of the hundreds of workers employed on the construction of the United States naval base.

Loaded Guns

Firearms are the third most important cause of male mortalities. Deaths due to cleaning guns or careless handling of loaded guns cause 1.2 deaths per 1,000,000 male persons but only 0.2 per 1,000,000 females.

IN WRONG PLACE

A large bull snake was really making itself feel right at home in the Emmett Noland home nearby Madrid. Mrs. Noland discovered the snake wrapped around the pot and pans in her kitchen. No delay was even thought of in calling the men folks to get it out.

WATERMELONS

Watermelons were scattered hither and yon when the truck driven by Harvey O'Riley tipped over near Hampton. The truck was loaded with melons.

CHICKENS EXCELLENT TO STORE IN LOCKERS

Farmers with cold storage locker facilities who find themselves with poultry flocks to cull can kill more than two birds with one stone—or anything else at hand and provide a tasty addition to their meat supply for the coming winter, according to the Iowa State College Poultry Husbandry Department and Prof. Fred J. Beard, of the Animal Husbanlry Department at Iowa State.

Chickens can be cleaned and frozen as a unit, thereby saving costs of cutting and treating usually given pork and beef. These chickens, when cleaned and frozen, store conveniently and provide the average family with a welcome change of diet, particularly during the winter. At current market prices they are also less expensive than are either of the other meats.

Both old and young flocks can be culled and the birds which are undesirable for egg-producing purposes can be killed, frozen and stored to advantage. Young birds are more desirable but the old ones will provide a good source of meat after freezing and storing in a locker.

ACCIDENTS GALORE.

Titonka residents met with all sorts of accidents last week end. Mrs. John Pink was knocked down by a pig, breaking two ribs. Pauline Adamson tripped and fell on a railroad tie, cutting her chin. Ronnie Young stepped on a hoe. Dean Kuchenreuther was struck by a stray stone, brushing his finger. Mrs. John Falk, Sr., fell against a table wrenching her back. Larry Bacon walked against a belt of an electric driven motor, causing face cuts and a brushed hand. John Clemans, 2 years old, was burned on his lower lip and part of his chin when investigating a pan of cookes just taken from the oven. Mrs. Doris Saathoff came in contact with a hornet when opening a door and was stung on the thumb.

STARTING YOUNG

If Jerry Longfellow, the 2 months-old son of Mr and Mrs Carl Longfellow near Conway keeps climbing, it's hard to tell what heights he will reach. He was brought down by his father from the top of a 40 foot windmill last week.

If you decide on hamburgers some night for your open grill stove try them this way: Add 15 per cent suet to your regular meat. Press the uncooked hamburger into thin flat cakes between waxed paper. Put two cakes together with a filling made from finely chopped raw onion mixed with steak sauce and rich prepared mustard, pressing the edges of the cakes firmly together. Broil quickly on both sides. Serve on large, toasted buns which have been buttered.

Here are two variations you may wish to follow if you serve baked beans often:

Maple Beans—Substitute ½ cup maple syrup or three tablespoons maple sugar for brown sugar and molasses.

Baked Beans with Sausage—Arrange parboiled beans and uncooked sausage in alternate layers; substitute 1 can tomato soup for molasses and part of water.

Boiled Campfire Coffee.
(1 quart)

4 heaping tablespoons coffee
4 cups boiling water
1 egg

Combine the coffee and egg in the pot and mix thoroughly. Pour in water and bring slowly to a full boil, stirring coffee down in a warm place for 3 to 5 minutes. Use ¼ cup cold water to settle grounds.

Easy to make but easier to take is this cocoa cake made with sour cream. Even if you want to serve it with the richer ice creams you won't feel too stuffed with it because it is light textured and feathery. If there is no sour cream to be had sweet milk can be substituted, but use it with 2 teaspoons of baking powder instead of the soda.

Sour Cream Cocoa Cake.
(Makes 2 9-inch layers)

½ cup cocoa
¾ cup boiling water
½ cup shortening
2 cups sugar
2 cups sifted cake flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sour cream
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 egg whites

Mix cocoa in boiling water and stir until smooth. Cool. Cream shortening and sugar together until light, then add cocoa. Sift the dry ingredients and add alternately with cream to the first mixture. Beat until smooth after each addition. Add vanilla then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour batter into pans lined with wax paper, and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) 30 minutes. Put together with Chocolate Icing.

2 cups confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons butter
2 ounces melted chocolate
Milk to moisten
Vanilla

Cream butter and sugar, add melted chocolate, milk, and vanilla and beat until smooth. Spread between layers and over cake.

Refrigerator Cookies.

1 cup butter
2 cups brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup oven popped rice cereal
3 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder

Cream butter; add sugar gradually and beat until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Stir in cereal. Sift flour with baking powder and work into first mixture, a small amount at a time. Knead and shape into rolls about 1½ inches in diameter; wrap in waxed paper, covering ends so that dough will not dry out. Store in refrigerator until firm. Cut into thin slices and bake on ungreased cookie sheet in moderately hot oven (425 degrees) about 10 minutes.

The Yoo-hoo incident between Lieut.-General Lear and troops training in Tennessee has aroused national controversy. Many take the side of the General, claiming that discipline is more important than the soldiers' sore feet (from marching 15 miles in a 97 degree heat as punishment for flirting with some girl golfers) . . . On the other hand, many think the punishment too severe. The following story is offered to show that not all officers are starchy.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE WRITER OF HEBREWS EXPLAINS THE NEW COVENANT

LESSON TEXT—Hebrews 9.11-22.
GOLDEN TEXT—Being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him.—Hebrews 5.9.

The infinite superiority of the Lord Jesus Christ, in both person and work, is a theme which the writer of Hebrews presented to encourage Hebrew Christians who were suffering much for their faith (Heb. 10:32) and were being tempted to turn back to Judaism (Heb. 2·1; 3:12). His purpose was not only to stem the tide of unbelief and discouragement, but to urge them to go on to better things (6·1-3) because of the better covenant under which they had come as believers in Christ.

The portion of the chapter before us deals with the heart of the matter in presenting the sacrifice of Christ as being superior to all the sacrifices of the Old Testament. The verses are somewhat difficult to outline, but the following, adapted in a measure from Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas, will be helpful.

I. The Ministry of Christ—a Better Ministry (vv. 11-14).

Every act of worship calls for a sanctuary and a worshiper. Under the old covenant the Jews were familiar with the tabernacle into which their priests went daily, and the holy of holies into which the high priest went once a year with the blood of goats and bulls; but now under the new covenant they had

1 A Better Priest and Sanctuary (v. 11).

No longer do we need the mediating priesthood of a fellow man set apart for that office, for Christ Himself has become a High Priest and is the "one mediator between God and men" (I Tim. 2 5), yet He is not one "who cannot be touched with the feelings of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4·15).

2. A Better Sacrifice and Blessing (v 12).

The blood of Christ, the perfect and final sacrifice for sin, resulted in a once-for-all solution of the sin problem and provided the blessing of eternal redemption.

3. A Better Result (vv. 13, 14).

The sacrifices of the Mosaic ritual had an outward result. They "removed ceremonial disabilities, they restored the unclean to fellowship, they kept the chosen people in covenant relation with God." They "did sanctify and cleanse the flesh; how much more the blood of Christ" (Moorehead). His sacrifice gave spiritual cleansing, the cleansing of the "conscience from dead works to serve the living God" (v. 14).

II. The Ministry of Christ—an Efficacious Ministry (vv. 15-22).

This ministry of our High Priest, Christ, is well characterized by the word "efficacious," which means "having the effective energy to produce an effect" He came into the world "to save sinners" (I Tim. 1.15), and He did it. We note

1. The Power of the New Ministry (v. 15).

The surrender of Christ even unto death gives validity and efficacy to the new covenant. "All the transgressions of the old covenant had been treasured up; the death of Christ gave satisfaction to all that that covenant could claim, and brought release. So the Mediator of the new covenant begins an entirely new economy, with sin put away by the sacrifice of Himself, and an open path to the beginning of a new life in the favor and power of God" (Andrew Murray).

2. The Guarantee of the New Ministry (vv. 16, 17).

Speaking of our redemption as an eternal inheritance (v. 15) naturally leads to the thought that a testament or will does not become effective until the death of the testator. God has "blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world" (Eph. 1:3, 4). He has bequeathed all that to us, and the bequest is made certain by His death That means that not only our salvation, but "everything we have had, even our temporal mercies, are a part of those purchased and bequeathed blessings; everything is sanctified by the precious death of our Lord Jesus Christ.

3 The Confirmation of the New Ministry (vv 18-22).

The shedding of blood on Calvary's tree for the remission of sin was not a new or strange thing. The proof for that is given by referring to all of the old covenant procedure for the cleansing of the sinner How was it brought about? Through blood. In that Old Testament covenant it was the blood of goats and bulls, not sufficient to perfectly cleanse the spirit of man nor give him once-for-all remission, but nonetheless a type of the better sacrifice of the Lamb of God.

Then "let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering (for he is faithful that promised.)" (Heb. 10:23).

MADE LONG TRIP TO FIND SOLDIER SON NOT AT CAMP

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Back returned last Wednesday from a trip to Boise, Idaho, where they went expecting to visit their son, Graydon at an army camp near there.

When they reached camp they were informed that Graydon had been sent the day before to Kansas City, Mo, where he is now attending a special school to receive training in aeronautics. Graydon, who is enlisted in the regular army has been advanced.

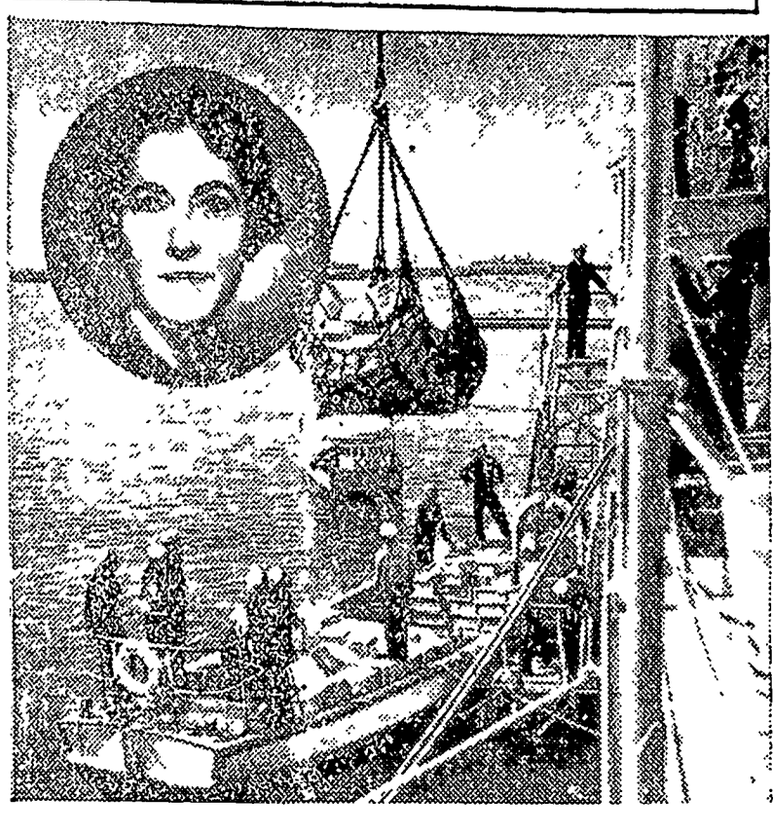
However, while Mr. and Mrs. Back were at the Boise camp they were entertained by officers and two Klemme young men, Franklin Buseman and Bob Hartzell.

Graydon had notifiel his parents of his transfer, but they were already on the road to Boise and could not be located. Graydon expects to come home this weekend for a visit over Labor Day.

KLEMME GIRL GIVEN DIPLOMA AT TEACHERS COLLEGE

Mrs. Arthur Wellemeyer and daughter, Ruth, attended the commencement exercises at Iowa State Teachers College at Cedar Falls last Thursday. Miss Nora Wellemeyer received a diploma for having completed the two-year course of study.

UNCLE SAM'S SAILORS GO MARKETING



"When Uncle Sam's sailors go marketing, they always return with a full market bag," says Dr. Mary de Garmo Bryan (pictured in insert). Dr. Bryan should know for she is chairman of a committee of more than twenty of the country's outstanding food experts who have been appointed to create a new official Navy cook book.

Dr. Bryan's committee has spent more than six months testing recipes for Uncle Sam's Navymen on large groups of civilian athletes and assures us that the United States bluejackets are already the best-fed sailors in the world.

Recruits in both the Navy and the Naval Reserve also are offered opportunities to receive free training to become expert cooks and bakers. "There is always a demand for good Navy-trained cooks and bakers in civilian life," said Dr. Bryan. "In New York City, for example, the usual wage for an expert cook or baker is $40 to $50 a week and $75 is the average weekly salary for chefs at the better hotels and restaurants. In addition to training in cooking and baking, the U. S. Navy and Naval Reserve offer training opportunities in nearly fifty other different skilled trades and vocations. Any patriotic and ambitious young man who wants to serve his country and build his future should look into the opportunities offered for service in our new "Two-Ocean" Navy.

DUCK SEASON IN IOWA TO OPEN OCTOBER 16

WASHINGTON: Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes Thursday announced the 1941 rules for the hunting of migratory game birds, including 60-day duck seasons and a daily bag limit of 10 ducks.

Changes in the rules removed canvasback and ruddy ducks from the species that are limited to 3 in the daily bag, prohibited the use of cattle, horses and mules as blinds.

Other new rules closed the season on Wilson's snipes (Jack-snipes) increased the blue-goose bag limit to six a day if no other geese are taken.

The 60-day waterfowl season begins in Iowa October 16.

AUTO RACES FIRST DAY OF NORTH IOWA FAIR

Rodeo Will Be Held Two Days And Nights, Next Week

MASON CITY—Brimming with fun and action, five days and nights of balanced entertainment features will be touched off at Mason City Saturday afternoon when Jimmie Lynch's famed Death Dodgers usher in the 1941 North Iowa Fair.

With a spanking new thriller, the "Aerial Dive Bomb Crash," heading up their bag of motor car stunt tricks, the Lynch dare-devils are scheduled to put stock sedans through 15 different feats of recklessness.

Ernie Young's new 1941 musical revue, a sparkling open air stage extravaganza with a cast of 75, will be the principal night show attraction on Saturday night. It will be produced in five brilliant ensembles and augmented by circus and hippodrome acts. The revue will be repeated Sunday and Labor Day.

Emory Collins, Iowa's own famous dirt track auto racing champion, tops a star-spangled field of racing aces slated to be seen in action Sunday and Labor Day afternoons. His opposition in the first CSRA-sanctioned contests ever held here include Sam Hoffman, Eddie Nicholson, Eddie Zalucki, Frankie Lipto and many others.

Rodeo Two Days

North Iowa's first contest rodeo in many years gets top billing for Tuesday and Wednesday, with afternoon and night programs scheduled. Produced by Clyde S. Miller, noted rodeo impresario, more than 50 cowgirls and cowboys will compete for cash and glory. Over 250 head of range stock, including a herd of Brahma steers from interior Mexico, will be used in calf roping, steer wrestling, bull riding, fancy roping and broncho busting contests.

The nation's largest motorized carnival organization, a veritable portable amusement park, will occupy the midway under Sol's Liberty Shows. Nearly 50 shows and riding devices will be on parade.

FARMERS CAR DAMAGED BY HIT AND RUN DRIVER

Roy Fleming, farmer living east of Klemme, had his car damaged here last Wednesday night.

Fleming parked his car, a new Chevrolet, in front of the Lewis residence on Main Street and then went with friends to a nearby town.

People living in the neighborhood heard a crash at about 12.30 p. m. and upon investigation found that Fleming's car had been struck and that the driver was nowhere to be seen and had evidently fled after striking the Fleming car, which was struck with such force that it was turned completely around and pushed into the Lewis yard. The rear left fender was smashed and the wheel damaged.

Authorities are investigating the accident and endeavoring to locate the hit and run driver.

TRIP TO ROCKIES ENJOYED BY KLEMME FOLKS

Mrs. Bertha Schlei and son, Dale accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Irving Haupt, have returned from a two weeks vacation trip to the Rocky Mountains.

Points of interest on the trip included visiting Estes Park where they crossed the Continental Divide.

Returning to Denver they visited Look Out Mountain and Buffalo Bill's Grave and Museum, and the Municipal airport.

Driving to Colorado Springs the Garden of the Gods was visited as well as the Seven Falls and Will Roger's Shrine to the Sun on Cheyenne Mountain.

While in Colorado they spent some time near Wray on their aunt's large cattle ranch.

On the homeward journey they drove eastward through the grazing country of Colorado and Kansas. Stopping at Wichita they visited the capitol building, Capper's Publications and the WIBW broadcasting station.

They returned to Iowa through Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, St. Joe Missouri and southern Iowa.

Men in the Navy are paid twice a month, on the 5th and the 20th.

Statue of Liberty Becomes Mecca For Freedom-Loving U. S. Citizens

Conceived more than 65 years ago by Auguste Bartholdi, a French sculptor, and victim of German oppression then, the Statue of Liberty, above, was a gift of the French nation to this country. In a world threatened with the loss of the very ideals the famous figure stands for, the people are making Bedloe's island, more and more their national shrine, as they visit there by the tens of thousands.

By DON G. SANDRA
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK. — Visitors to the Statue of Liberty, declared a recent news item, are running about 60 per cent ahead of last year, and all indications point to a record attendance of more than a half a million for 1941.

Inquiry among gentlemen who analyze statistics showed that the colossus of Bedloe's island currently lures more people than such sights like Radio City, the Brooklyn bridge, or the Hall of Fame. In this 165th year of United States independence, the monument to Liberty probably ranks as the world's foremost tourist attraction.

All the day the tide of pilgrims flows back and forth across the mile and a half stretch of New York bay that separates Bedloe's island from the body of Manhattan. Children and teachers, mothers and infants, honeymooners, vacationists and sightseers — all ages, colors, nationalities, religions. Everybody curious to see and touch this malachite green copper-coated Goddess, the embodiment of a human longing handed down from ancient times.

Why are they bent on visiting the shrine of Liberty? Many reasons reduce to this: In 1941 the liberties of every American—man, woman, and child—are at stake. The pilgrims see this hollow figure of copper as a dynamic symbol of 1941's sanguinary struggle to preserve the freedoms born of the French Revolution, the American Revolution, and the numerous New world revolts against oppression by foreign regimes.

The Goddess of Liberty also personifies a new meaning; it was thrust upon her by President Roosevelt when he envisioned a world granting all men the Four Freedoms: freedom from want, freedom of religion, freedom from fear, and freedom from hunger.

Interest in the pilgrims increased as I mingled among them on the steamer Ossining, which plies between Battery park and Bedloe's island.

All eyes fix on the Goddess, whose dimensions expand as the Ossining draws near. And from the children arises a murmur of "Ahs" upon discovering how huge the Goddess really is. The torch outstretched stabs a cloud; the folds of her garment show up as weather-beaten waves

Erected in 1885.

Elderly folk who, perhaps, had witnessed the erection of Liberty, in 1885, recall for the benefit of those who care to listen such dimensions as, height above sea level, 300 feet, the length of Liberty's arm, 40 feet; the length of her index finger, 8 feet, the length of her nose, 4½ feet, the width of her eye, 2½ feet, the thickness of her waist, 35 feet, etc.

On close inspection you can see the riveted joints of wrinkled copper sheets which form the outer skin. The interior steel structure braces the Goddess against wind pressure and provides support for an elevator shaft and several corkscrew staircases.

Pilgrims enter the foundation through an opening in the thick blocks of granite, and for a few cents they travel by elevator to the top of the stone pedestal. To ascend beyond that point they climb 161 steps up the narrow staircase which lands them inside the skull of Liberty. Above her brow, Liberty's diadem consists of windows through which one can see the map of New York harbor.

In the foreground is Governor's island, covered with army barracks and supply depots. Away to the left, lies the Battery, with dozens of skyscrapers crowded together. Directly ahead lies Brooklyn, most populous borough in the city of New York; and off to the right are the Narrows, the bottleneck for all large vessels entering or leaving New York harbor.

European Refugees.

From the Narrows, the visitor arriving by boat gets his first full glimpse of Liberty. Here tens of thousands of immigrants and refugees driven from lands of oppression first set their eyes on that serene, majestic face at the gateway of the New world civilization.

Here is where the sculptor Auguste Bartholdi, driven from his Alsatian home by the Germans, conceived an epic tribute to liberty; and he saw on Bedloe's island the logical site for a colossal allegorical statue, a Goddess of Liberty, released from imprisoning chains and holding aloft her torch of enlightenment at the gateway to a free civilization. It is said that Bartholdi modeled Liberty after his own mother.

For millions who sailed past the Narrows, the Goddess spelled a new dawn, especially on remembering that the monument is a gift from the people of France to the people of the United States and commemorates the alliance of the two nations in achieving the independence of the United States of America.

Survey Suggests Study to Balance American's Diet

MINNEAPOLIS.—"Family health defense" classes should be set up immediately in public and vocational schools, to teach the American wife and mother how to keep the family healthfully fed in spite of rising food prices and possible scarcities, warns a current study of the food price situation.

"Bottled" vitamins are not a substitute for a balanced diet of healthful foods, in spite of their specific values, and there is a real hazard to public health if the layman gets exaggerated ideas of what they will accomplish, the study states. Injecting these products into common staples such as white flour can correct certain important deficiencies, but such measures can do only one part of the job.

With food prices on the rise, and a growing need to share our food supplies with other nations, moderate and low-income families are liable to be badly pinched on their food budgets before the emergency is over, the study warns. The usual mistake made in such circumstances is to substitute with too large a proportion of starchy foods, which are cheaper and give a feeling of fullness. This error can have widespread ill effects on health, as the British have already learned.

Simple, non-technical instruction in common food values is needed, so the American housewife can learn quickly how to substitute without cheating her family of food elements absolutely necessary to maintain health. This, the study says, means instruction that does not bewilder her with complicated tables of calories, "international units," alphabetical lists of vitamins, and milligrams of minerals—but instead deals in pounds and cupfuls and teaspoonfuls—in terms and ingredients with which she is accustomed to work.

Meats, eggs and dairy products, known as the animal protein group, and the fresh fruit and vegetable group are the sections of the menu which suffer most when the food budget is pinched. Though starchy foods are relatively cheap, and have a large and necessary place in the diet, they cannot take the place of the other essential groups too, however much they are fortified with added vitamins and minerals. The whole alphabet of vitamins, the study cautions, cannot offset a lack of proteins—the stuff from which the body is rebuilt. And proteins are getting more expensive.

Therefore the American housewife needs immediate training, this study by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company continues, in wise choice of those cheaper foods which are often fully equal to more expensive articles in actual food value. Also she needs training in the tasty preparation of those cheaper foods so the family will accept them.

Cheaper cuts of meat, and some of the animal organs—hearts, livers, kidneys, etc.—furnish just as much protein, and oftentimes more of the valuable fats, while the hearts, livers, etc., also furnish extra vitamins and minerals not found so richly in many expensive cuts of meat. Powdered milk and evaporated milk are relatively low cost sources of animal protein for body-building.

Whole wheat flour, and potatoes with the skins on are examples of inexpensive foods that are rich in food value.

Pays $80 for $1

Genevieve Paulson, 15, holds aloft a check for $1 as E. J. Morrissey of Valeria, Iowa, auctions it off to Lynn Grant of Melrose, Conn., at $80, for the benefit of the U.S.O. The check represented the two-billionth dollar loaned to farmers by the nation's production credits associations. The benefit auction was suggested by M. Paulson, father of Genevieve.

Correct Labels on Cans Will Assist U. S. Housewives

NEW YORK —The day of universal grade labeling—when the American housewife can buy canned goods with absolute certainty as to quality and value—is just around the corner.

In an experiment to run throughout this year, grocers in co-operation with the National Consumer-Retailers council, are offering canned fruits and vegetables graded A and B according to standards set up by the Agricultural Marketing service of the U. S. department of agriculture.

Informative labels on the canned goods will explain the meaning of the different grades, and the specifications which the product met to merit its grade designation; also type and style of the product, and number of servings in the can.

Lo! The Poor Sausage

WAUPUN, WIS.—The famous, but poor cousins of the meat family, those two processed farm "moos," Bologna and Sausage, visited their prison relatives once too often, at the state prison here. 900 inmates folded their arms and refused to associate with the "main dish ballons." They sulked at the thought of lunching on the innocent little links and slabs. They demanded and received, of Warden John C. Burke, a better and more varied menu.

FAR EAST POKER GAME

For perspective on the present South Pacific tug-of-war between Japan and Britain, it is well to remember that for years Thailand, then known as Siam, was a pawn in the power game of the bigger nations of the Pacific.

In this game the United States had a hand. For years, American financial advisers have been attached to the Thailand throne, one of them having been Francis Sayre, son-in-law of Woodrow Wilson, now high commissioner of the Philippines.

He wooed Thailand on many occasions, including the ornate reception given the former king of Siam, who as "Supreme Arbiter of the Ebb and Flow of the Tide, Brother of the Moon, Half Brother of the Sun and Keeper of the Twenty-four Golden Umbrellas," came to Washington in the days of Herbert Hoover and was regally entertained.

The British were even more interested in the Siamese. British advisers for a time ran the kingdom's government, trained its army, supplied the one or two ships for its navy.

But half a dozen years ago the Japanese began preaching the doctrine of Asia for the yellow man, and Siam for the Siamese. That was how the name came to be changed to Thailand, a nationalistic token of home rule.

Reason for Japan's interest in this small country was not nationalism, but the fact that a slender finger of land, about as wide as the Isthmus of Panama, called the Isthmus of Kra, is controlled by Thailand. A canal through this isthmus, connecting the Indian ocean and the Gulf of Siam, would give a new short route from the Pacific to India, render Singapore impotent, and cut three days from the trip between Indo-China and Burma.

Such a canal would leave Singapore's giant guns and expensive naval bases guarding an out-of-date sea highway, almost as unimportant as the Straits of Magellan after the Panama canal was built.

That is one reason the British are ready to fight to keep the Japanese out of Thailand.

BRITISH INVASION PLANS

First British plan for an invasion of the continent (since the start of the Russian-Nazi conflict) was a landing in Holland. This, it was figured, would get sympathetic support from the Dutch; would create a second front requiring Hitler to divert part of his troops and airplanes from the Russian front.

The original British idea was to have the United States co-operate in a landing force. This, however, scarcely got beyond the informal suggestion stage. It was immediately and emphatically vetoed, first, for political reasons; second, because Roosevelt did not have the power to send troops abroad; third, because of the scarcity of shipping to transport and supply an American army overseas.

Since then, none of the proposals for creating a second European front has contemplated any American participation.

The second idea discussed was a British attempt through Spain and Portugal. This also scarcely got beyond the discussion stage, because it was figured, first, that the German army probably could take over Spain by the time British troops began to land; second, that even if a foothold could be obtained, a march across the Pyrenees to France would be too difficult.

The only part which the United States might have played in such a plan was to send food ships with which to help win over the Spanish population

Norway Heavily Fortified.

Since then another plan for possible British invasion of Norway has been discussed. However, this also is difficult. The Nazis now have 10 divisions in Norway; more important, they have been working feverishly with characteristic German thoroughness to fortify Norwegian ports and possible invasion points.

The chief factor holding back the British, however, has been their lack of armored equipment. Although the British army is about 2,000,000 strong, only about 750,000 men are fully armed with modern equipment. And the most serious defect in their equipment is the lack of tanks.

Vast numbers of tanks were lost by the British at Dunquerque, a loss which has not yet been replenished. And no invasion of the continent could be successful without a powerful tank force.

Also, despite the strength of the Nazi army on the Russian front, a total of 47 well-equipped German divisions are stationed in western Europe. This is approximately 700,000 men.

Recent discussion of British aid to Russia has turned to the Near East and a British move from the Gulf of Persia, through Iran to the Russian oil fields of the Caucasus. These oil fields are one of the chief goals of the Nazi army, and once Hitler succeeds in taking the Ukraine, it would be relatively easy for him to cut off this supply.

JUST RESTING

The Glutton

"Ladies and gentlemen," shouted the street performer, "in a few moments I will astonish you by eating coal, stones, and nails. I will also swallow a sword after which I will come around with the hat, trusting to get enough for a crust of bread."

"What!" came a voice from the crowd. "Still hungry?"

Tough Game

"You are in a state!" said the sparrow to his battered friend. "How did you lose all those feathers?"

"Well, I was flying pretty low, swooping up and down, when suddenly I got mixed up in a game of badminton."

Fall Social Calendar Demands Smart Clothes for the Matron

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE time is not too far away now when you daughters of the household will engage in the exciting experience of getting off to school in the fall, with a wardrobe tuned to your exact needs and whims. Only please remember you are not the only heroines holding the spotlight in fashion realms. You have rivals, yes indeed!

We are not telling who but here is a tip. Keep an eye on modern mothers, matrons and women in general, who are so importantly carrying on in club work and in social activities that tend to "keep the home fires burning" while college faring daughters are away from home.

Fashion is catering to the costume needs of women with whom "life begins at forty." With unbounded zest and enthusiasm inspired by an ever-increasing appreciation of the tremendous influence smart clothes have, they are achieving new chic and poise. It's no secret or myth or fairy tale that women who "go places" and "do things" in this busy world of ours have gone utterly modern in matter of dressing glamorously. So look to your laurels Miss Teen-age, Miss Debutante and Miss College girl, you will have to step lively to keep up with queen-mother's fashion pace!

One of the fashion gestures that will serve mothers and matrons well who happen to be limited to a restricted budget, is to select a simple basic dress, smart in lines, made of good material and styled with the thought of complementing this one gown with flattering interchangeable accessories. These have a magic way of glorifying their appearance. Chic jewelry, feminizing and lovely lingerie neckwear touches, can do wonders in transforming the entire aspect of your costume. And don't forget flowers! Be sure to wear flowers for that refreshing accent of youthful charm that is always so endearing.

To the right in the illustration "somebody's mother" presents a lovely "picture" as she graciously presides at the initial autumn meeting of her favorite club She is clad in the simplest sort of a gown made of fine sheer black wool to which frilly white lingerie accent lends endless charm In the lovely quaint Victorian bouquet of carnations, violets and stephanotis which she carries so caressingly in her lovely hands, one immediately senses the gallantry of friend husband or a devoted son who, perhaps being out of town, wired to the nearest florist for the prettiest bouquet fancy might picture. Just as an afterthought this dainty bouquet may be a tribute of admiration to their leader from various club members.

The lady seated goes in for ultra modern fashion as you can readily see in her swank gown of handsome black wool ribbed crepe. This together with her chic English sailor so piquantly veiled, goes to show how very smartly one can dress in all-black. Notice the low-cut V-neckline, a stylizing detail that was popular this summer and will continue good form right through the fall. The patriotic corsage she is wearing is of blue cornflowers, fragrant red roses and white carnation petals.

Glittering satin is scheduled for a big play this fall. A satin dress is a good "buy" for it not only gives marvelous wear, but it has that air of dressiness that tunes in with social environs. The lady in the top oval has on a satin frock which is intriguingly shirred about bodice and sleeves She wears a tiara of salmon pink gladiolas Evidently the lady in the oval below to the right has a yen for pastel colorings. Her eyelet-embroidered dress in soft blue crepe is really lovely. She adds to the glamour by dramatizing her well-groomed hair with a cluster of rosebuds and hyacinths.

Jeweled Bow Knots

There is going to be a big play made on unique buttons and jewel fastenings of every description this fall and winter. Note the tailored jacket of chalk white crepe shown here. Its sleeves, yoke and front panel are cut in one, a characteristic feature of the newer fashions

The five crystal and enamel bow-knot fastenings herald intriguing gadgets to be used like buttons.

Rich Browns for New Autumn Wear

There is considerable emphasis on handsome browns for fall. The dresses in initial showings are mostly of rayon crepes and jerseys. These are simply styled so far as "lines" are concerned but have interesting surface treatment in stitching, self-fabric appliques and quilted decoration.

The dressier afternoon models often combine fabric with lace dyed to match or with velvet or satin.

In keeping with the trend to browns, touches of embroidery appear in bronze sequins and metal threads, also favor is expressed for mink fur. Milliners are making up smart little mink hats with matching neckpieces.

Fringes Take On New Importance in Style

Fringed dinner gowns appear in scores of individual treatments. Afternoon dresses too take on accents of fringe. The originality and versatility expressed in trimming with fringe is most interesting.

There is every sort of arrangement from narrow fringe placed row and row in tiers covering the entire skirt to long swinging panels of fringe extending in one continuous line from waist to hem. Fringe also is worked in interlaced manner to give the new drop-shoulder line and to form pockets and girdle effects with long streaming ends to add grace.

THE "Bahama Passage" troupe won't soon forget that picture. They journeyed to Nassau and began work in the middle of May at Salt Cay, a desolate island nearby. After that they worked on other islands, in caves and finally some of them worked under water. Edward Griffith, producer and director, hied himself to a submerged wreck and went down in a diving bell to officiate while scenes were made of Madeleine Carroll and Stirling Hayden (we're assured that they didn't use doubles!) diving down 18 feet to the ocean floor.

Shooting the under-water scenes was no small task; it took more than a day to set up the heavy Technicolor camera inside the diving bell.

Fourteen-year-old Stanley Clements has already retired twice. A Major Bowes discovery, he landed an engagement with a theater manager in Chicago; homesickness ended it, and he went home to New York. A few days later he returned to Chicago—and a strep infection sent him home once more. Then he landed in the movies—in "Tall, Dark and Handsome," "Accent on Love" and now in Metro's "Down in San Diego." He's won his success in "toughie" roles, but he still has to fight against homesickness!

With "The Reluctant Dragon" released at last, Walt Disney has his next full-length feature production practically completed. It's "Dumbo of the Circus," and stars a baby elephant who becomes the world's greatest circus performer because he can fly. It set a record—the entire picture was wound up in a year and a half, instead of the usual two and one-half to three years devoted to previous full-length Disney pictures.

Have you been listening to Guy Lombardo's new Saturday evening program? He and his Royal Canadians have won no end of popularity contests, so probably you've had them on your list of broadcasts that you want to hear since they began this series on August 2. Guy plans to introduce at least one new number weekly which he expects to be "the hit of tomorrow."

While Paramount's testing to find the right actress for the role of "Maria" in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," Ernest Hemingway, the author, cabled from Cuba that he's found the perfect solution. She's a Russian-Spanish girl who looks exactly like the heroine.

If Raymond Massey didn't look so much like Abraham Lincoln he wouldn't have to wear a false nose. He wears it in the new DeMille picture, "Reap the Wild Wind." He plays a deep-dyed villain, but he wears the same kind of clothes he's worn when he played Lincoln, and all of us have grown accustomed to thinking of Lincoln when we see him in clothes like that. So—he's wearing a pointed extension on his nose, to make him look properly sinister.

The announcement that Frank Capra and Robert Riskin, his writing partner, would handle the screen version of "Arsenic and Old Lace" for Warner Bros. assured the public that the picture will be a good one. The sum of $175,000 was paid for the motion picture rights to this very successful and hilarious stage success, in which Boris Karloff returned to the stage.

Remember Singin' Sam? You should, though he's one of radio's most unpublicized stars. He's been on the air for 14 years, and his recorded programs are heard on more stations than any other program in America. In fact, it's estimated that he has more listeners than Jack Benny—about 8,000,000 a day, the year round; his "Refreshment Time" is heard over 227 stations daily.

ODDS AND ENDS—Gene Autrey's signed to appear in the autumn at the two biggest rodeos—in New York and in Boston . . . Al Pearce and his gang, who return to the air waves in October, will be starred in a feature film by Republic Studios. John Garfield violently objected to appearing in "New Orleans Blues," but made up with the studio when he was assigned to "Bridges Are Built at Night" . . Richard Arlen's starring in a series of three aviation pictures for Paramount release . . And Chester Morris in three mysteries . . . Maureen O'Sullivan and Johnny Weismuller are housekeeping in a tree again, for their new "Tarzan" picture.

LOWE BROTHERS HIGH STANDARD PRIMER makes the complete painting job last longer because it holds and seals due to controlled penetration. It minimizes the danger of peeling, scaling and cracking. Being practically non-absorbent it affords "tooth" or "grip" for the following coat. It seals all surfaces and is ideal—

FOR BOTH NEW WORK AND REPAINTING

1. It "holds fast" and seals the various surfaces to be painted—both new work and repainting.
2. Controlled penetration defeats absorption and makes a perfect foundation for finish coat.
3. None of the oil in the second coat is absorbed by High Standard Primer.
4. There is no weakening of the oil film.
5. The danger of paint failure is minimized.

Mr and Mrs Fred Luecke and Mr and Mrs. Louise Benne and 2 sons, Wilbert and Harold, returned last Thursday to their home in St Louis, Missuori after a visit of about a week here and in Minnesota. Mr and Mrs. Luecke were visiting at the Herman Paul home and with other relatives in this community.

Mr and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson drove to Northwood last Thursday evening to attend a banquet and meeting of the Hawkeye Press Club Publishers were there from five counties. Earl Hall of the Mason City Globe Gazette was the speaker and told about his trip to South America and of conditions there

Mr and Mrs. John Howe and daughter, Ethelyn, Mrs. George Oakly and son, Stanley of Marion and Mrs. Lyle Stokesbary of Port Orchard, Washington, were guests at the C. M. Stokesbary home Saturday. Mrs. Lyle Stokesbary and Miss Ethelyn Howe remained over the week end and left Tuesday for Washington They were accompanied by Marvin Stokesbary

A threshing settle-up meeting was held at the Carl Pearson home Thursday evening. Those present were. Mr. and Mrs. Wm Waddingham, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Waddingham, Mr and Mrs. Leon Gilpin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kramer and family, and Mr and Mrs. Harry Boelman.

The whole truth, at last, about Barnum's biggest fake? After 70 years of silence, the son of a stone cutter reveals how his father chiseled "The Petrified Man," known all over the world as the Cardiff Giant, out of a block of gypsum Read his account of how the famous freak was "born" in a Chicago barn, as told in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American

RELIC.

A plow originally owned by Mr Van Steinburg was found on the farm he owned near Gilmore City Mr. Van Steinburg moved to the farm in the seventies and the plow was used by him in turning under the virgin prairie at that time The original plow handles and wheel are gone, but the plow itself and the plow-beam are originals.

ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs B. A Pannkuk celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary at their home in Titonka recently The number 12 appears to be their lucky number His birthday is July 12, Mrs Pankuk's is Sept 12, their wedding date is August 12, they have 12 children and 12 great-grandchildren

CORN.

If all the corn on the Chris Stokesberry farm near Maquoketa had as many ears as the stalk he recently displayed, he wouldn't have to go far to pick a bushel. Stokesberry displayed a stalk of corn containing 15 ears.

FISHERMAN.

Leo Logan, state conservation officer,, proved that he can catch fish as well as law violators. "Kidded" as to his ability as a fisherman by a group of Waverly men, Logan demonstrated that he can fish by bringing in two nice bass within a half an hour.

VACATION.

Few schools still hold a "corn picking vacation" popular many years ago. However, the rural one near Hudson began its school term this year August 11, in order that the pupils might have several day off during the "corn picking vacation".

DEDICATED

Services dedicating a plaque for the site of the Old Church Tree, where first church services west of the Des Moines river in Iowa were held by settlers, were held recently The first services, according to "Memories of Frontier Iowa", by George C Duffield, were held in August, 1837, under the giant elm in what is now Van Buren county. The plaque was placed on a large boulder weighing 4,125 pounds

FIRE.

A wash mop leaning against the Dan Ryan home at Parkersburg was the cause of some damage. The mop became ignited by the sun's rays and charred two weather boards through to the inner framework while several others were scorched and blackened.

Poetess.

Mrs Esther May Iliff, Clarion, has the honor of having two of her poems included in "The Book of Modern Poetry, 1941" The volume contains the work of little-known authors as well as that of writers who have had poems frequently printed in magazines and books

EXPLOSION.

Explosions in the basement caused the J C Cowan home in Waukon to be blown off its foundation and the interior burned. Ralph Anderson, Frank Regan and Mr Cowan were seriously injured House and vihtually all the furniture are beyoid repair.

TIMELY.

Titonka believes in keeping up with the times. To advertise a recent celebration- -annual Indian Day, the town obtained the services of an airplane pilot to drop handbills over neighboring towns.

NO CATCH.

Mrs Mary Caldwell, Chariton, claims she has a TNT explosion to thank for straightening out a "catch" in her back Six months ago Mrs Caldwell tossed a board aside wrenching her back For 5 weeks she was unable to get into bed and her back was still stiff but much better During blasting by an auto salvage company, one detonation so startled her that on throwing back her arms she felt her "back go into place" Mrs Caldwell is now free from pain and is as active as she was six months ago

MARKINGS.

At a dance sponsored by the American Legion in Sumner patrons desiring to pass in and out of the dance hall were marked on the back of the right hand with invisible ink The ink produces a bright glow when a special light is used and remains luminous under the light for several hours, even after repeated washings with soap and water This method eliminated all possibility of "crashers" to the dance

SWIMMER.

Jane Anderson, five- year- old daughter of Mr. and Mrs .George Anderson of Greene, does not need to wait until she is older to become a famous swimmer. Jane swam the Shell Rock river near Greene, a distance of more than 100 yards one day last week. Among her other accomplishments she can tread water for 30 seconds, float motionless, dive to the bottom in 25-feet of water and return, surface dive into water six or eight feet deep, and return to the surface with heavy objects.

FUN.

Roy Wuenecke of near Waukon had a thrilling as well as evenful evening when he drove his pick-up truck through two rows of set trees so close that only an expert with a narrow-gauge car could get through the narrow places. A few flower beds and hedges were the next victims of the wild ride In another place he skinned some popular trees which were in a single row. However, this was mild so he started a hand operated power tractor in a neighboring hayfield, cutting a few swaths hay in the moonlight. The next day came the reckoning, the owner of the the flower beds, the lawn and the barked trees complained Tre authorities had a name for it---reckless driving.

Years ago, we traveled by train, and young folks going away to School, or ving home to find employment, would y a large trunk in which to pack their thing and other belongings.

But today, we travel by automobile and instead of the large roomy trunk, use "Hand Trunks." These are something like an extra large suit case, with a ndle on each end and a handle on the side. ey may be placed in the rear compartent of your auto, or piled up on the back at. The traveling public finds the Hand unk more convenient than a large trunk.

either Mary Ann or cup cake tins in slow oven 45 minutes. Cool before filling.

Cream Custard Filling.

¾ cup sugar
⅓ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
2 cups milk, scalded
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine dry ingredients with slightly beaten egg yolks; stir in enough hot milk to make a thin paste. Then add paste to remaining milk and cook over boiling water 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Cook 10 minutes longer. Cool and add vanilla.

If you top with fresh cherries be sure they're sweet enough. Then garnish with whipped cream. Frozen berries need only be thawed and more sugar added if required.

If you want to make a sponge cake base and use just berries, then plan a lovely surprise so no one will even suspect they're getting a berry dessert. Make a sponge cake using a regular 9 or 10 inch cake pan. When the cake is still warm cut a round circle in the middle of the cake about an inch from the edge. Lift this out carefully keeping it whole. Into the hollow put in sugared berries or peaches or bananas mixed with sweetened whipped cream. Replace the cake top, wrap carefully in a slightly damp towel and chill for 3 to 4 hours. Garnish before serving with whipped cream or sprinkle with powdered sugar. They'll come back often for this one.

For luscious, shortcake puddings, there's nothing like a juicy cobbler. Here's a recipe made for large quantity, excellent if you're planning a church supper:

Cobbler.
(Cherry, Blueberry or Peach)

5 quarts fruit
2 quarts juice
Biscuit dough
5 cups sugar with cherries or berries
2½ cups sugar with peaches

Pour fruit and juice into square cake pans. Add sugar and mix lightly. Cover with biscuit dough (approximately ¼-inch thick) made in proportions of 1½ quarts flour, 2¼ cups milk, 1 tablespoon salt, 4 tablespoons baking powder and ½ cup shortening. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees F., from 30 to 40 minutes. Serve hot with cream.

A light, easy-to-make dessert is the best one with which to bring a hearty supper to a close. With raspberries at their brightest and juiciest, this combination with a graham cracker crust and frothy meringue will really be hard to resist.

Red Raspberry Fluffs.
(Serves 6-8)

Mix and press in a square pan: 1½ cups rolled graham crackers, ¼ cup melted butter, 2 tablespoons sugar, and a dash of cinnamon. Cover that with a meringue made of 4 egg whites stiffly beaten and ½ cup of sugar folded in the whites carefully.

Bake this in a slow (300 degrees) oven for 20 minutes. Cool. Spread with 2 cups of sweetened red raspberries and whipped cream.

Asparagus With Browned Butter and Crumb Sauce.

Asparagus, tender and green, should be cooked gently so as not to lose its color. It cooks quicker when stalks are tied in bunches. Stand them up in boiling water in a deep narrow pan. The steam will cook the tips while the water bubbles around the stalks.

Instead of serving plain butter, try browning it for a change, seasoning it and then adding a teaspoonful of fine bread crumbs. Have this piping hot and pour it over the asparagus just before serving.

JOHN URGES CHRISTIAN LOVE

LESSON TEXT—I John 3 13-18, 4:7-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.—I John 3 18

Love is a word so abused in modern speech that one almost hesitates to use it, and yet it stands for the very finest in all human relationships, and presents to us the very essence of the nature of God. We do well to redefine the meaning of love in our Sunday school classes this next Sunday. Love is not that sentimental, "wishy-washy" feeling which prompts the writing of emotional ballads, which are (like the supposed love of which they speak) "here today and gone tomorrow." Nor is it that lustful thing which now parades itself shamelessly as love, when it is nothing but animal passion. Nor is it that weak thing which totalitarian dictators make it out to be when they declare that to attain, a people must hate, not love.

"Love is a desire for and delight in the welfare of another." It reaches out to all mankind, coming from God and being manifested in the gift of His Son as our Saviour. It is stronger than any earthly bonds. It is able to bear unbelievable burdens; yes, because He loved us Christ bore the sins of the whole world on Calvary. It expresses itself in courtesy, in high standards of life, and in sacrifice. Love is, as Henry Drummond put it, "the greatest thing in the world." Read I Corinthians 13 for Paul's exalted description of love.

Our lesson reveals two important facts about love—

I. Love Is an Evidence of Regeneration (I John 3:13-18).

There are two groups of people, the saved and the unsaved. The unsaved in Scripture are designated as "the world," meaning, not the physical world, but the world of unregenerate men who are against our God and His Christ. The saved are those who have come to God in Christ, who love Him and are in the center of His love. That love is, according to John, an evidence that we know God. There is an interesting contrast here.

1. The World Hates and Kills (vv. 13-15).

Today the wicked heart of man apart from Christ is revealed in the tragic events which have embroiled the whole world in conflict.

The point is that we as Christians should not be surprised if that kind of a world hates us. In fact, we should be troubled if it does not hate us, for if our Christianity means anything, it must be utterly distasteful to a world driven by hatred and the lust for blood.

2. The Christian Loves and Gives (vv. 14, 16-18).

The mark of a Christian is love for God and love for the brethren. That love demonstrates its genuineness by giving freely to meet the need of a brother, just as God freely gave His Son for our redemption. (cf. James 2:14-17).

The background of such an attitude is a proper understanding of our relationship to God, and an appreciation of His nature.

II. The Very Nature of God Is Love (I John 4:7-21).

God not only loves, but He is love.

1. God Is Love (vv. 7, 8).

"Love is the very essence of His moral nature. He is the source of all love" (R. A. Torrey). Only the one who knows God as love knows Him at all.

There is much thoughtless and meaningless talk about the love of God, as though it meant that He is careless about enforcing His divine law, that somehow He will overlook and excuse careless and wicked living. The fact is that the love of God has no real meaning unless it is understood in the light of the cross, for

2. God's Love Is Manifested in Christ (vv. 9-16).

He was sent as the giver of eternal life, the propitiation for our sins, our Saviour, and thus as the highest and deepest expression of God's love. Faith in Christ (v. 15) puts the believer in the very center of the love of God. Precious hiding place!

3. Love Casts Out Fear (vv. 17-19).

Fellowship is impossible in an atmosphere of fear, but love rules fear out. In Christ we realize that God first loved us, and then our hearts go out to Him in a warmth of devotion which brings us so close to Him that all fear is gone. The result of such fellowship with God follows, for

4. He Who Loves God Loves His Brother (vv. 20, 21).

If a man loves God, he will obey Him, and His command, which to the Christian is, "Love your brother." That is "the first and great commandment" (Matt. 22:36-40; Deut. 6:5; Luke 10:25-28). There is no use in our talking about loving God if we have no love for the brethren, for in doing so we make God testify against us that we are liars (v. 20).

Life for Elevator Boy Has Its Ups and Downs

He was an elevator boy in one of the big department stores, and he hated to be asked needless questions.

On this particular day a fussy old lady entered his lift. After riding up several floors, she opened a conversation.

"Don't you ever feel sick, going up and down in this lift all day?"

"Yes, ma'am," said the boy.

"Is it the motion going up?"

"No, ma'am."

"Is it the motion going down?"

"No, ma'am."

"Is it the stopping that does it?"

"No, ma'am."

"Then what is it?"

"Answering questions, ma'am."

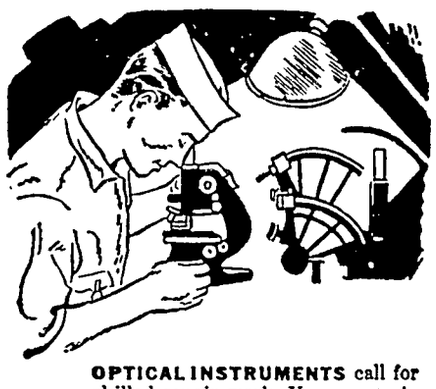
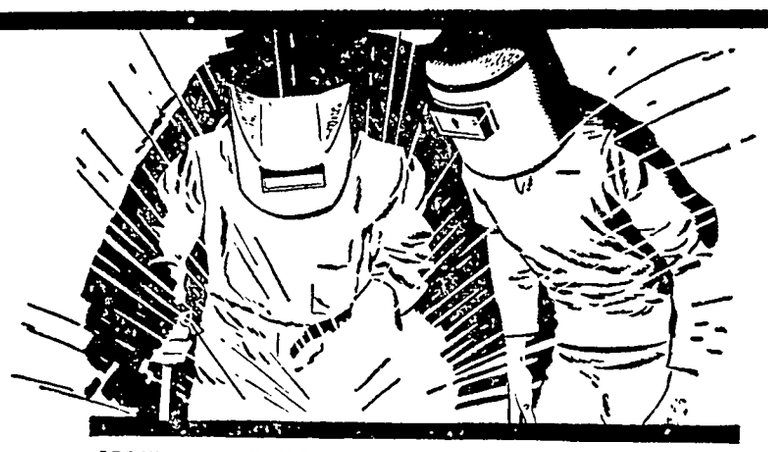
NAVY WEATHER MAN. Interested in this unique, fast-growing field? Navy training is second to none.

Get Set for Life with Navy training

EXPERT METALSMITHS teach bluejackets how to operate beading machine. Soon they'll be experts, too.



OPTICAL INSTRUMENTS call for skilled repair work. You can train in the Navy for this big-pay field.



ARC WELDERS AT WORK. Some of the best electric arc welders in the country are Navy-trained. This is but one of the 45 trades you can learn. When you learn in the Navy, in later life you're always in demand.

EXPERTS IN RADIO do interesting work. In civil life the pay is high. Let the Navy teach you radio work.

DO YOU KNOW that in every trade, profession and business there are successful men—men who earn five, ten and even twenty thousand dollars a year—who will tell you that they owe their success largely to the training they received in the United States Navy?

There are three good reasons for this. First, Navy service develops the essential qualities of leadership, efficiency and accuracy which are the backbone of success in or out of the Navy.

Second, you can't beat Navy instruction. The American Navy is the finest in the world, and that means every individual—whether he is radioman, electrician, machinist or cook—must be tops in his line. Third, the Navy makes men. Healthful sports, good food, expert medical and dental care will build you up physically to the rugged health that is typical of Navy men.

EARN NAVY PAY WHILE YOU LEARN

Instruction in many fields today runs into hundreds and sometimes even thousands of dollars. The Navy will not only give you this instruction free, but will give you regular Navy pay while you are learning! And remember this:

NAVY TRAINED IS TRAINED RIGHT!

When the Navy says you are a Diesel expert, you are a first-class Diesel expert. When you get a Navy rating as a radioman, you are as good a radioman as they come—and probably a bit better. That's why Navy men are in such big demand by civilian employers. For example, see how Navy training helped the men shown at the left below.

There wouldn't be room in this paper to list the thousands of men that Navy training helped to get set for life. Remember, you have even better opportunities today!

LOOK WHAT THE U. S. NAVY OFFERS YOU

FREE TRAINING worth $1500. 45 trades and vocations to choose from.

GOOD PAY with regular increases. You may earn up to $126 a month.

EACH YEAR you are entitled to a generous vacation period, with full pay.

GOOD FOOD and plenty of it.

FREE CLOTHING. A complete outfit of clothing when you first enlist. (Over $100 worth.)

FREE MEDICAL CARE, including regular dental attention.

FINEST SPORTS and entertainment any man could ask for.

TRAVEL, ADVENTURE, THRILLS—You can't beat the Navy for them!

BECOME AN OFFICER. Many can work for an appointment to the Naval Academy or the Annapolis of the Air at Pensacola.

FUTURE SUCCESS. It's easy for Navy trained men to get good-paying jobs in civil life.

LIBERAL RETIREMENT-PAY.

READ HOW NAVY TRAINING HELPED THESE MEN SUCCEED

PRESIDENT of the Sperry Gyroscope Co., T. A. Morgan as a young man enlisted in the U. S. Navy. As an Electrician's Mate he specialized in ships' compasses. When he left the Navy he joined the Sperry Gyroscope Co., manufacturers of marine instruments, where his Navy experience helped him climb rapidly to the top.

GENERAL MANAGER, retired, of Fore River Plant, Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation. As a Chief Machinist in the Navy, Harry E. Gould had to know a ship from stem to stern. He left the Navy, went into shipbuilding, where his Navy training proved invaluable. He claims: "Navy training was a tremendous asset to me."

PLANT ENGINEER Robert B. Kellogg, of the Potomac Electric Power Co., Washington, D C., started in the Navy as a gunner's mate. He rose to the rank of Lieutenant. In civil life today, in charge of some of the country's most modern power plants, he says: "I consider my Navy engineering experience as the most valuable in my career."

PAT O'BRIEN, Movie Star, served in the U. S. Navy as a seaman. He studied at the Signal and Gunner's Mate Schools. Like many stars of stage and screen, his first performances were before an audience of sailors. Today he says: "My Navy training gave me the background for some of my biggest hits."

"NAVY INTELLIGENCE"

Is it necessary to be a high school graduate in order to enlist in the Navy?

No. Navy enlistees need not be high school graduates All applicants will be given an examination containing approximately 100 questions A grade of 50 per cent or better on this examination is sufficiently high to pass the Navy educational standards However, a high school education will be valuable to the seaman during his Navy enlistment

If I enlist in the Navy will I be sent to a Navy Trade School?

All new recruits are sent to one of four Naval Training Stations and after a training period they may take examinations for entrance into Navy Trade Schools. Those recruits who pass their examinations with sufficiently high grades are sent to Navy Trade Schools before assignment to the fleet While attending these schools they will receive regular Navy pay and free schooling valued at $1500

What is the greatest possible pay I can expect to earn during my first term of enlistment?

It is possible to earn as much as $126 a month by the end of your first term of enlistment, and remember that your clothing, lodging, medical and dental care are all supplied free.

After I have served my term of enlistment, what benefits do I get for re-enlistment?

Depending on your rate and length of service, you can get a cash bonus up to $300 plus 30 days leave with pay.

What does the term "ash can" mean in the Navy?

An "ash can" is a slang term applied to the depth charge used to combat submarines. The average "ash can" is a container filled with approximately 300 pounds of T.N T. and can be dropped overboard from a ship and so controlled as to explode at depths ranging from 36 to 300 feet These are generally carried by the fast ships in the fleet, as a boat dropping a charge regulated to explode at 70 feet depth must move away from the explosion area at a speed of 25 knots or more. These "ash cans" are either rolled off the stern or shot from "y-guns" which hurl one right and one left simultaneously.

KENNETH SCHAEFER WRITES EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Hebron, Ill, 8-28-'41

Dear Mr Jorgenson

Uncle Ed. Schaefer (I think) sent us a copy of the August 20 edition of the Klemme Times, and I want to thank you and compliment you on the very fine front page article on my father, Elias P Schaefer, and my uncle, Charles Gruetzmacher

This was a very fine tribute to a couple of old time pioneers, and very well written up.

I looked through the rest of the paper and was surprised to learn that Klemme has such a live little paper with such a good display of advertising for such a small town. It surely speaks well for your town.

If you ever get near Hebron be sure to drop in on us.

Yours,
Kenneth K. Schaefer.

CHARLES F. KERAUS DIED SATURDAY NIGHT AFTER MONTHS OF ILLNESS

Funeral Services Held At Methodist Church, Burial At Garner

Charles Frank Keraus died at his home in Klemme Saturday evening, August 30th, after being ill and bedfast for over a year Mr. Keraus had reached the age of 83 years, 9 months and 7 days.

Mr and Mrs Keraus have resided in Klemme for the past twenty-five years or more. Until a few years ago they spent the summers at their cottage at Clear Lake, as Mr Keraus was an ardent fisherman and loved to be out of doors.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist Church at 2.00 o'clock conducted by the Wellemeyer Funeral Service. The church services were in charge of Dr Wm. Zabilka, pastor, assisted by Rev. Marian Hotchkiss of Crystal Lake who gave the address.

Burial was at Garner on the family lot in Concord Cemetery and Mr. Keraus was carried to his final resting place by his friends and neighbors· Paul Grange of Mason City; Fred Kluckhohn, Dr. D P Anderson, Cecil Bridges, J. N Day and Lloyd Lau.

The obituary which was read at the services, is printed at the bottom of this page.

W. S. C. S. MEETS THIS WEEK THUSDAY AFTERNOON

The W. S. C. S. will meet this week Thursday, Sept. 4th at 2:00 o'clock with Mrs. Henry Busse as Leader, and Devotions in charge of Mrs. Frank Ward.

Hostesses are Mrs. C. A. Larsen, Mrs. L. Ridder, Mrs. L. Neuberger and Miss Minnie Lenz.

NOT RECOMMENDED

Fall planting of roses is not recommended in Iowa.

Roses planted now have a very high winter mortality, says L. C. Grove, extension horticulturist at Iowa State College.

"We do recommend that gardners order their hybrid tea roses this time of year and then bury them in 2 feet of soil," Grove said. "In this way they can bring them through the winter one hundred per cent."

Roses wintered this way can be dug out of the trench in early spring and planted.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of expressing our sincere thanks to all who assisted us in our bereavement; for the sympathy and flowers, and for the food brought in and the help provided.

Mrs. C. F. Keraus and family.

Obituary Of Charles Frank Keraus

Charles F Keraus was born Nov. 22, 1857 at a City, Iowa, the second of a family of four dren born to his parents, Joseph and Anna raus, who were natives of Bohemia and e members of the Catholic Church. His her was a baker by trade.

Charles F Keraus spent his boyhood days a farm near Tama, Iowa where he com- ted his common school education. He learn- farming by working on different farms. As young man he took up a claim near Wa- eney, Kansas and operated a cattle ranch nine years, pasturing his cattle on the free nge of government-owned prairie. It was re he met Antonia P. Prochaska and they re married March 30, 1885. He was then 27 ars old. Four years later they sold out and me to Hampton, Iowa with their two small ildren, Rose and William, making the trip fifteen days in a covered wagon and cook- their meals in the open

They farmed near Hampton for three years d moved to Garner to operate the State eet Hotel for 5 years, when they moved to farm near Latimer. In 1901 they purchased farm near Hayfield which they operated e years when they retired and moved to emme.

While farming in Iowa he always owned a threshing machine and threshed every fall. He was happy when doing this work Mr. Keraus was temperate in his habits and was a peace loving neighbor He was a charter member of the Woodman Lodge at Latimer, and attended the Methodist Church.

Mr and Mrs Keraus were the parents of eight children, four died in infancy and four survive.

Mr Keraus was in poor health for many months and the end came quietly Saturday night, August 30, 1941 He reached the age of 83 years, 9 months and 7 days

Mr Keraus was fond of flowers, especially roses, and the mound of flowers which covers his bier contains a large red rose for each year of his life

He leaves besides his wife, four children· Rose (Mrs Tom Mitchell, Swea City), Wm C. Klemme, Jess, Aberdeen, S Dak; Bessie (Mrs C G. Waterman, Klemme) Five grand children Marian Waterman, Klemme; Verle Keraus, Garner, Janice Keraus, Aberdeen, S. Dak, Otho Keraus and Regnald Keraus both at Camp Claiborne, La. Build Huge Plants and Power Dams to Supply 2 Billion Pounds Aluminum for U. S. Defense

William Knudsen, director-general of OPM estimates the U. S. will need an annual production of 1,600 million pounds of aluminum for national defense. Map shows where bulk will be produced. Plants indicated by pouring ladle symbol, Nos. 1 to 5 are now producing at combined rate of 635 million pounds, by middle of 1942 will reach 720 million. Plant 6 produces 40 million pounds, and Plant 7 (nearing completion) 60 million. Proposed government plants will produce in millions of pounds when completed: (8) 150, (9) 100, (10) 100, (11) 90, (12) 70, (13) 60 and (14) 30. Part of Canada (15) production has been contracted for by United States.

Special to Western Newspaper Union

WASHINGTON, D. C.—What has been happening throughout the United States during the last few weeks would have constituted a phenomenon anywhere but in a democracy.

From Sauk Center to gay Broadway a fellow could take his girl to the swellest dance in town with no more capital than a couple of battered pots and pans. In Oklahoma City, solid citizens drove downtown to hurl their skittles and double boilers at a target painted on the posterior of an effigy Hitler, then let them lie there for Uncle Sam to pick up. In Harrison, N. Y., a dog bit a girl scout soliciting old aluminum from house to house; he was a German police dog, of course. Gypsy Rose Lee, exhibiting rare form (sic), contributed a pan dance. And more than 1,000,000 Americans did their bit in the drive to collect scrap aluminum for national defense.

In a few short months the threat of Hitlerism had brought the light, silvery metal off the kitchen ranges of the nation and dumped it all over the front page. For just as World War I has been described as a war of steel, World War II was rapidly developing into a war of aluminum.

World War I was a static and surface affair, fought from fixed positions. World War II is characterized by lightning-like movements of highly mechanized fighting forces. Airplanes and tanks rule the land, while airplanes and swift, modern battle fleets fight the Battle of the Atlantic.

Eighty to 90 per cent of today's military airplane is aluminum, for alloys of the metal, as strong as structural steel, are only one-third as heavy. Modern tanks use the aluminum for gun platforms, interior fittings and wherever else it can be employed efficiently to save weight and gain maneuverability. Today's battleship uses more than a million pounds—several times as much as the whole city of New York rounded up in the pot-and-pan drive.

Restricted Use.

This explains why you can no longer obtain aluminum for egg poachers, for refrigerator trays, for streamlined trains, hair curlers, bridge girders or chewing gum wrappers. Gone to defend its country, aluminum is needed in quantities the like of which peacetime America never imagined, much less consumed.

The United States' annual military requirements of aluminum when the defense program gets into full production, have been estimated at from 1,200,000,000 pounds to 2,000,000,000 pounds a year and up. Suppose we take 1,600,000,000 pounds—the estimate of William Knudsen, director-general of OPM—as a fair average That is twice as much aluminum as the entire world produced only five years ago. It is roughly equal to the entire world production of 1940, notwithstanding the gigantic war machines that were built. In terms more familiar to all of us, it is more than twice as much aluminum as this country has consumed in all its history for cooking utensils and electric refrigerators combined.

What is being done to meet this challenge? A great deal—some of it by private enterprise, some of it by the government, some by the two working together.

The Aluminum Company of America—"Alcoa"—since it was the only producer of virgin (new) aluminum in the United States until this year, was first to get under way with defense expansion. What it has done is summed up in the recent report of the house military affairs committee on defense progress:

Aluminum Price Decline.

"In 1938 this company finished the year with an inventory of a stock of aluminum equal to the normal requirements for a year. As of the date of April 3, 1939, congress had authorized the navy to build 3,000 planes and the army 6,000. Such a program required no expansion of production facilities, inasmuch as a year's supply of the metal was on hand. However, late in 1938 this company inaugurated a program with additions since made to it calling for the capital expenditure of over $200,000,000. Instead of an increase in the price of aluminum, as there has been in practically all strategic and critical materials, in some instances as high as 200 per cent, there has been a decline in the price of approximately 14 per cent. All the testimony given before this committee was to the effect that the Aluminum Company of America had given 100 per cent co-operation, had not only used its own money for expansion, but of its own initiative took steps to treble its production." Alcoa by July, 1942, will be producing 725,000,000 pounds annually.

Seven New Plants.

Aided by RFC loans totaling some $35,000,000, the Reynolds Metals company, long a fabricator of aluminum, this year entered the business of making the metal. At Listerhill, Ala., one of its two plants is already in operation, and at Longview, Wash., another is nearing completion. Together they will make 100,000,000 pounds a year.

OPM is reported to have recommended to the war department the construction of seven new government plants. According to the reports, these would be run by private companies, three by Alcoa, one by Bohn Aluminum and Brass corporation, one by Union Carbide and Carbon, and one by the Olin corporation. These plants would add 600,000,000 pounds a year. The Metals Reserve company, a government corporation, has contracted with the Aluminum Company of Canada to obtain about 750,000,000 pounds, 187,000,000 to be delivered during 1942-1944.

Secondary, or reclaimed, aluminum (for the metal can in some ways be used over and over again) will add further tonnage The pots and pans collected in the recent drive, for instance, cannot be used for making bombers but they might be remelted and used to make army field kitchen equipment or to "quiet" steel, thus freeing other aluminum for airplanes The steel industry, which burns up one-half pound to five or six pounds of aluminum in the making of each ton of steel, may well consume 100,000,000 pounds next year

Aluminum, paradoxically, is the most plentiful of all the metallic elements known to man It is in the clay under our feet, in the rocks high on a nearby hill, in the water we swim in and often in the very food we eat

Aluminum is never found in the native state, as iron, copper and gold are, it is always locked tight in chemical combination with other elements Napoleon III, awake to the advantage of light aluminum cavalry equipment would give him over his enemies, offered a fortune to the French scientist who could find a cheap way of producing the metal, which then cost $545 a pound But it was not until 1886 that an American youth Charles Martin Hall, unlocked the secret and paved the way for aluminum at its present price of 17 cents

Hall's process is still the basis of the aluminum industry makes use of an electrolytic furnace. This large rectangular pot is filled with cryolite, the "stone like ice," found only in far-off Greenland, but manufactured synthetically in large quantities here. Powerful electric current is introduced into the cryolite, passes through it, heating it to a molten mass, and leaves through the lining of the pot. A white substance like powdered sugar, called alumina (which is merely aluminum chemically combined with oxygen), is dissolved in the molten cryolite. The electric current decomposes the alumina, the oxygen passing off as gas and the then molten aluminum, heavier than the cryolite, sinking to the bottom of the pot. The aluminum is then tapped into ladles and poured into ingot at intervals.

Before the Hall process can be employed many complicated operations must be performed to obtain the alumina. It may be recovered from a number of materials, but it is obtained economically only from bauxite, a mineral which looks sometimes like clay and sometimes like rock and occurs in many combinations of colors Roughly, four pounds of highgrade bauxite will make two pounds of alumina, which will then make one pound of aluminum. 12 kilowatt hours of electricity are required to make a single pound of aluminum

USDA Develops 150 New Designs in Cotton Hosiery

WASHINGTON —The U. S department of agriculture has announced that more than 150 different cotton stocking designs are now available to the hosiery industry as a result of investigation by the bureau of home economics Several of these designs are in production and more will be soon, now that cotton is expected to be increasingly important.

In an effort to reduce mounting cotton surplus, and in anticipation of a possible shut-off in silk supplies because of the international situation, congress three years ago appropriated funds to the department of agriculture for investigating the use of cotton for women's hosiery.

David H. Young, textile technologist for the department has developed full-fashioned cotton hosiery designs for every occasion. These vary from cotton-web mesh for evening wear to plain knits in various weights for sports' wear and around the house and garden.

TANK BUILDING PROGRAM

There was a good reason why Lord Beaverbrook, dynamic minister of supply, listed tanks as the No. 1 objective of his visit to the U. S. He flew over largely to try to persuade our army chiefs to lend-lease him the major share of our growing output.

There is sharp division in the army over this. Armored unit commanders have been champing at the bit for the tanks now beginning to roll off assembly lines. They need the equipment not only to train their men and officers but to keep up morale—which sags when modern war machines are missing or simulated.

Buck privates to generals have griped over being forced to "play at soldiering." This was one of the main causes for the strong sentiment among citizen soldiers against extension of their year's service. They could raise no enthusiasm for continuing to train without equipment.

On the other hand, the general staff believes that it is far more vital to the immediate security of the U. S. to let our tanks and other armament help hold off the Nazis 3,000 miles from our shores.

The strategists contend that a U. S. tank is performing infinitely more valuable service knocking out Nazis on the torrid deserts of North Africa, or the bloody steppes of Russia, than using up oil in a training camp in Texas. They favor sending most of our new tanks to Britain for the present, and Beaverbrook's mission is to clinch that argument.

British Need.

The British need for tanks, particularly for the latest type, 32-ton medium tanks, is extremely urgent.

It was lack of these that caused the rout in Greece and prevents the British from taking the offensive in Libya and on the continent. Also, without medium tanks the British would be in desperate straits should Hitler make his feared overland move into Spain and Portugal, across the Strait of Gibraltar and down the Atlantic coast of French West Africa to Dakar.

Thanks to the U. S, the British are well supplied with light 12-ton tanks. So far they have received about 500, together with spare parts.

These light tanks have given a good account of themselves. They are superior to similar German and Italian types. But mounting only 50-caliber guns and lightly armored, they are no match, as Greece and Libya have proved, for medium Axis tanks.

STEEL SHOWDOWN

The OPM and the steel industry finally have taken drastic steps to regulate supplies and increase capacity, but it took all kinds of nagging by the government to get them to do it.

One of the most spectacular of these nagging sessions took place in the OPM board room recently and was attended by Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel, Tom Girdler of Republic, Ernest Weir of Weirton, Irving Olds, new head of U. S. Steel, together with Ed Stettinius, the old head, Leon Henderson; Knudsen; and representatives from the army, navy and maritime commission

The steel manufacturers immediately put the government representatives on the defensive with the question "Well, what do you want us to do? Cut off all steel to the consumer?"

Price Administrator Henderson replied that such a curtailment would be disastrous, that steel to the consumer could not be cut off right away. Other government representatives hemmed and hawed. So did the ship-builders. The meeting got nowhere.

Finally Admiral Emory Land, relative of ex-Colonel Lindbergh, but no believer in his views, got up. Land, chairman of the maritime commission, is a close friend of Bethlehem's Eugene Grace. But looking at Grace and the other steel manufacturers, the admiral gave them a dressing down he might have given to his own sailors.

"I've been listening to you for two hours," he said, "and I'm fed up with it I don't know what the fault is, or whose fault it is. But I do know that the shipyards are four to six weeks behind because they haven't got steel. And I also know that if you fellows want to, you can correct that shortage.

"You've been talking about expanding your plants. Now if you mean business, instead of talking about it—expand."

Next day the steel manufacturers announced their plan to build new factories and expand production.

CAPITAL CHAFF

White House press secretary Steve Early kept it to himself, but privately he was sore at the bungling of Churchill-Roosevelt press relations. If they had left it to him, the result would have been different.

American editors resented the fact that first news of the meeting broke in London. A lot of other Americans resented the idea that news about their own President had to come via the British censor. Roosevelt himself, not the British, was to blame.

Private Performance

"And is there any instrument you can play?" asked the hostess who was pressing a guest to entertain the party.

"Not away from home," he replied.

"That's strange. What do you play at home?"

The guest sighed deeply as he answered:

"Second fiddle!"

As a Beginner

Two cavalry recruits were having a chat.

"Talking about riding," said one, "I once saw a chap in a circus who jumped on a horse's back, slipped underneath, caught hold of its tail, and finished up on its neck."

"So what?" retorted the other. "I did all that in my first riding lesson!"

Her Prospect

Father—Isn't it time you were entertaining the prospect of matrimony?

Daughter—Not quite, Dad. He won't be here until eight o'clock.

And Half Wrong

"Jane says she thinks I'm a great wit."

"Well, she's half right, anyway."

Some Satisfaction

"Would you be happy if you had all the money you wanted?"

"I'd be happy if I had all the money my creditors wanted."

Internal Use

"And how did you find the bath salts, madam?" asked the druggist.

"Well, they taste very nice," said the shopper, "but I don't think they have the same effect as a real bath."

½ cup milk
½ cup butter

Mix dry ingredients, sift twice, work in butter, add milk slowly and toss on floured board Divide into two parts, roll to a desired thickness and bake in hot oven (400 degrees) for 12 minutes or until done. Use a buttered baking pan for baking. Split biscuit when done and spread with butter

Peel and slice fresh peaches fine (or pulp them), sprinkle with sugar to taste, let stand in refrigerator to chill When ready to serve, place peaches between or on top or both, top the whole with whipped cream

Jellied Waldorf Salad.

1 package lemon gelatin
1¾ cups hot water
1 cup diced tart apple
¼ cup diced pineapple
¼ cup diced celery
¼ cup chopped nuts or cherries
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Dissolve the gelatin in the hot water and add the salt and lemon juice. Chill till the mixture begins to thicken and stir in the fruit and all other ingredients. Pour into molds and chill and serve.

Chicken Filling.

1 cup ground chicken meat
½ cup ground almonds
2 to 4 tablespoons celery, chopped
Lemon juice
Salad dressing to moisten (cooked, french or mayonnaise)
Salt

Mix meat, celery and almonds Season to taste with salt and lemon juice and add enough dressing to give a spreading consistency

Shrimp and Cucumber Filling.

1½ cups fresh cooked or canned hrimp
1 nedium-sized cucumber
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup mayonnaise
Paprika

Chop shrimps to paste; peel, remove seeds from cucumber and chop very finely, squeezing out excess water. Combine with shrimps, seasonings and mayonnaise Chill and spread between slices of bread, cut in fancy shapes

To accompany these good-tasting, clever sandwiches, you'll undoubtedly want to serve a cool, refreshing beverage. Why not try

Coffee Frappe.

2 cups strong freshly brewed coffee
¼ cup cream
¼ cup powdered sugar
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 egg white

Place all ingredients and some cracked ice into a beverage shaker and shake well; or beat all ingredients together with egg beater and let stand in refrigerator to chill.

Egg Nog.

⅛ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 to 2 teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup cold milk

Beat salt, egg and sugar Add milk and vanilla, beating thoroughly; pour into tall glass and dust with nutmeg. Yield: 1 large serving.

Variations: two tablespoons chocolate syrup; 1 tablespoon malted milk —top with whipped cream

Sometimes on a Sunday or holiday afternoon there comes a lull which a bit of refreshment seems to fill perfectly. For that I would suggest assorted sandwiches, cool drinks, jellied Waldorf salad, and peach shortcake. All of these recipes have the little added flavoring that make them company fare.

LEAVES from Uncle Sam's Notebook

(WNU Service) by HARRIET MAY WILSON

A Refuge for the Birds

A great many cogent arguments may be cited in favor of building bird refuges. Aside from their aesthetic values, of which no one can fail to be aware, the birds are so useful economically that they deserve protection and care at the hands of all men

FARM REFUGES

More than any other group of citizens, perhaps, farmers should be concerned about the protection of the birds, since the welfare of crops and the commercial success of the farm are very closely tied up with the numbers and kinds of birds to be found in a given locality As evidence of the value of birds to farmers—if such evidence is necessary—it may be said that ornithologists report that the alfalfa weevil has 50 different bird enemies, the chinch bug 29, the cotton-boll weevil, 66, cutworms, 98, leaf hoppers, 175, white grubs, 95; wireworms, 205, and so on, through a long list of the most serious insect pests One shudders to think what would happen to all our crops if all birds should suddenly go on strike! Figures, carefully and conservatively computed, indicate that the value of bird services in the United States is $350,000,000 annually. This, however, is only about one-fourth of the estimated yearly damage wrought by insects The logical conclusion is that it would pay us all—growers and consumers as well—to direct a large-scale effort toward increasing and protecting our bird populations

The most successful bird refuges established on farms have been those maintained by co-operation between the farmer—or a group of farmers—and a state game commission, a school, an Audubon society, or some similar organization Such co-operation permits of a distribution of labor, the landowners serving as wardens and the school or society furnishing and placing bird houses, posters, feeding stations, and the like

Now that American forests have been cut away to such appalling extent, there is a definite "housing shortage" among the birds that live in tree holes and cavities. Once they could find ready nesting space in fallen and decaying trees, now it is imperative that nest boxes be provided for them Some of our most valuable bird friends such as the nuthatches, bluebirds, chickadees, house wrens and tree swallows are among these hole-inhabiting birds

PROVIDING FOOD

In order to attract nesting birds, it is advisable to plant—or to spare, if they are already growing in the woodlot—occasional growths of June berries, mulberries, chokecherries, pin cherries, cranberries and wild currants. But it is in the winter that the birds are most in need of help in the matter of food supplies Feeding places should be prepared by building low hutches or erecting wigwam-like shocks of grain or corn sheaves, open to the southward, under which food may be scattered Such food may consist of suet, pork rinds, various grains, or bones with some shreds of meat attached.

PLANTING THE ROADSIDES

Since the advent of the automobile, America has made tremendous strides in roadbuilding and it is now possible to ride in comfort in almost any part of the United States. Nevertheless, these miles of highway would be immeasurably more attractive if they were planted to shade trees, nut-bearing trees, and to ornamental shrubs. Such planting would go a long way toward providing attractive shelter for economically valuable birds, and, if it included some of the many shrubs which hold their berries all winter, might also furnish winter food for the birds. As a recent government bulletin suggests "If clumps of shrubs were formed of kinds furnishing the birds food, if more of them were placed along various rights-of-way, if the hedges were allowed to bear fruit, and fence poles and possibly even telegraph poles furnished with bird houses, thousands of birds could live where very few do now" Community parkings, parks, fair grounds, picnic grounds, school and college grounds, cemeteries, golf courses, and all manner of public grounds should be pressed into service in this economically important and aesthetically important project of protecting and increasing the bird population

For further information, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D C., asking for Farmers Bulletin No. 1644.

WOODPECKER FAMILY

Of these birds, so valuable to the farmer and orchardist because of their constant attack upon wood-boring insects, there are 24 species in the United States From one-third to two-thirds of the food of several of these species consists of the larvae of wood-boring insects Moreover, the yellow-hammers are notable destroyers of ants, one of these birds being known to have taken at least 5,000 ants at a single meal. The N. S. has laws designed to protect this valuable helper of growers.

Grand Coulee World's Number One Dam

Grand Coulee, biggest dam in the world, is now in action The Columbia river, which has been dammed, is one of the swiftest and fiercest in the world, and to curb it a barrier has been erected which is three-quarters of a mile long and 500 feet high.

The result will be a lake 151 miles long, the irrigation of 1,200,000 acres of land, and sufficient electric power to supply an area five times the size of England.

Boulder dam, which harnesses the Colorado river, with all its collateral works, was completed in 1935. It is thrown across a terrific gorge called Black Canyon, which is 2,000 feet wide, and the lake behind it is 115 miles long and took three years to fill.

So tremendous is the weight of water in this lake that geologists have suggested that it may cause a bending in the crust of the planet.

Habits of Salmon

A group of Pacific salmon, or king salmon, that inhabits the Northern Pacific waters, dies after the breeding season (July to December) is over, says Pathfinder. These salmon never return to the sea

Other types of salmon, however, return to the sea after spawning, and remain there until the next breeding season. All salmon live partly in the sea and partly in fresh water, breeding in the latter. They ascend rivers and tributary streams to spawn.

On A Trip To The Northwest

(By Novella Bredbenner)

KLEMME YOUNG LADY DESCRIBES TRIP TO THE NORTHWEST COAST

Miss Novella Bredbenner, in the following article, gives a graphic description of the scenic Northwest as the result of a 6,000 mile trip recently made with Mr and Mrs John Chambers, and Mrs. Martha Bredbenner Following is the story as told by Novella Bredbenner

Mr and Mrs John Chambers, Mother and I started from Klemme at 5 00 a m Tuesday, July 15th. Our first interesting stop was at the Corn Palace in Mitchell, South Dakota. The crops in South Dakota looked much better than in previous years, for they had more rain than usual Late Tuesday afternoon we entered the Bad Lands at Cedar Pass and enjoyed the drive through the beautiful natural formations found in the Bad Lands. Having driven 600 miles we spent the first night in a tourist cabin in Rapid City, S Dak.

Early Wednesday morning we started through the Black Hills About 6 00 a m we stopped at the Strato Bowl from which the famous stratosphere balloon flight was made several years ago We were at Mt Rushmore about 7 00 a m, just when the workmen were being hoisted up in cable boxes to begin their work on the stone faces of the four presidents The workmen looked about the size of huge flies as they moved around on the stone faces After leaving Mt Rushmore we drove over the pigtail bridges up to Iron Mountain, visited the Game Lodge in Custer State Park where Pres. Coolidge spent the summer of 1927, went through the Needles Drive, and stopped at Sylvan Lake. We ate dinner near Stockade Lake and then left the Black Hills.

Just after we entered Wyoming we saw the Devil's Tower National Monument in the distance It was rather hot as we drove through the northern part of Wyoming We stopped at a tourist home in Sheridan, Wyo about 7 45 that night All of the cabin camps were filled, for the Sheridan Rodeo was being held July 15, 16 and 17 We drove out to the rodeo grounds in the evening to see the Indians from the nearby reservations do their Indian dances.

After leaving Sheridan, Wyo Thursday morning we began crossing the Big Horn Mountains about 7 00 o'clock and reached the summit about 7 45 a m Coming down the west side of the Big Horns through Shell Canyon was a very lovely mountain drive We stopped in a park in Cody, Wyo, to eat our picnic dinner and saw the Buffalo Bill Monument there After leaving Cody we entered the Shoshone Canyon and saw the Shoshone dam and lake The drive through the rock formations in Shoshone Canyon was a beautiful one, too

It was raining as we went in the East entrance of Yellowstone National Park about 2 30 Thursday afternoon, but the rain did not last long We went over Sylvan Pass, which has an elevation of 8,559 ft., and drove along Yellowstone Lake to Fishing Bridge We then visited the upper and lower Yellowstone Falls and the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone River About 7 15 p m we went to the Grizzly Bear Feeding Grounds and heard the ranger lecture about the bears as they came out of the woods up to the feeding grounds That night we stayed in cabins at the Lake Lodge and discovered that nights in Yellowstone can certainly be cold

Friday morning we drove along the shore of Yellowstone Lake to the West Thumb and then to the Upper Geyser Basin We watched Old Faithful and several other geysers erupt and then visietd the springs and geysers in the Midway and Lower Geyser Basins We enjoyed meeting several bears along the road and seeing deer and elk in the woods Next we stopped at Obsidian Cliffs, the cliffs that are formed of black lava glass, and then at Mammoth Hot Springs We left Yellowstone Park at 4 45 p m going out the North Entrance by way of Gardiner, Montana After crossing Bozeman Pass and Gallatin Pass, passes over which Sacajawea led Lewis and Clark in 1806 we arrived at Bozeman, Montana where we spent the night

Saturday morning we left Bozeman about 6 15 a m and drove through the Gallatin Valley which is a very good farming district At Three Forks we saw where the Madison, Gallatin, and Jefferson Rivers unite to form the Missouri River We stopped at Helena, Montana and went through the State Capitol.

Our highway, No 10, followed the old Mullan Road which was built from 1855-1862 to connect historic Fort Benton and Fort Walla Walla. The mountain drive through Lolo National Forest and Cabinet National Forest was lovely and very interesting, for the highway, river, and railroads were all in the same narrow valley On one side of us was the Milwaukee railroad, and on the other side was the Clark Fork River, the Northern Pacific railroad and the Great Northern railroad. We saw one long train on the Milwaukee track that had three electric engines pulling it. At 4:30 p. m we went over Lookout Pass in the Bitterroot Mountains and crossed the state line into Idaho. We then drove through the lead, silver, gold zinc and copper mining districts around Wallace, Kellogg and Smelterville. At Kellogg we changed from 6:30 p. m. Rocky Mountain time to 5 30 p. m. Pacific time. Near Coer d' Alene we came into a region where we saw many lumber mills. We crossed the state line into Washington about 6 45 p. m. and stayed in a cabin near Spokane, Washington that night

Sunday morning after leaving Spokanne, we drove through a rich wheat district on our way to Grand Coulee dam. We arrived at Grand Coulee about 10 00 a m. and attended church at Mason City Community Church, Mason City, Washington Mason City is an all electric city that was built for the workmen on the dam and is to be dismantled after the completion of the dam.

We met Thelma Chambers and her aunt, Miss Ava Chambers, at Mason City at noon Thelma had spent the summer with her aunt, who lives in Seattle In the afternoon we viewed Grand Coulee dam which is a magnificent structure The dam is 4,300 feet long and 550 feet high, and there is enough concrete buried under the water to construct both the Boulder and Bonneville dams. Behind the dam a storage reservoir 151 miles long will be formed from which 1,200,000 acres of land are to be irrigated

We left Grand Coulee Dam about 4 00 p m. and drove through an area that will all be filled with water when the dam is completed. For about 50 miles we drove thru the beautifully colored rock walls of the Grand Coulee We stopped near Coulee City to see Dry Falls, a ledge over which the waters of the Columbia once ran but now is dry It is 3½ miles from bank to bank and was equal to 40 Niagras. Next we stopped at Soap Lake, a famous medicinal lake, and then at the Gingko Petrified Forest near Vantage, Wash Sunday night we stayed at Ellensburg, Wash

Monday morning we drove to Yakima, a rich fruit district There we bought some apricots peaches, and plum that had just been picked from the trees.

At 9 00 a m we entered Mt Ranier National Park and drove through fog part of the way up to Sunrise Lodge. It was a cloudy day so we could not see the top of Mt Ranier, but we did see some of the glaciers and snow near the base of the mountain Thelma and I found a patch of snow near us and had a snowball fight. We left Mt Ranier just after dinner Near Goldendale, Wash we had a very good view of Mt Adams and Mt Hood, both snow-covered peaks The area around Goldendale was a dry farming area with much wheat being raised We could see huge wheat fields across the Columbia River in Oregon, too At Maryhill we stopped to see the Stonehedge built by Samuel Hill in memory of the soldiers and sailors of Klickitat county We then followed the beautiful Evergreen hiway along the Columbia River to North Bonneville, Wash, where we stayed overnight.

Early Tuesday morning, July 22 we went to see the Bonneville dam We were especially interested in the fish ladders, built to enable the salmon to continue to migrate upstream We also stopped to see Beacon Rock, the second largest volcanic rock in the world.

At Vancouver, Wash, we saw and picked up some apples from the oldest apple tree in the Northwest, the tree having been planted in 1826 We then crossed the Columbia River to Portland, Oregon, and mother and I went on to Hubbard, Oregon to visit mother's sister, Mrs Steve Day, and family. They live on a farm in the Willamette Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and Thelma accompanied Ava Chambers on a trip to some of the Pacific Ocean beaches At Oysterville they enjoyed eating fresh oysters that they prepared themselves. They then visited Snoqualmie National Forest where Wayne, their son, had worked before going to Alaska. They also spent several days at Ava Chambers' home in Seattle

During our week's visit at the Steve Day home, we enjoyed a picnic dinner at Taft Beach on the Pacific ocean Another day we went to Silver Creek Falls state park where we hiked about 4 miles thru the park to see the many lovely falls there. We also visited Wilhoit Springs, a health resort. Mother and I especially enjoyed becoming acquainted with the Day children, whom we had never seen before

On Tuesday, July 29th, Mother and I met Mr and Mrs. Chambers and Thelma in Portland to begin our homeward trip The drive along the Columbia River Highway was very beautiful. After leaving Crown Point, in 10 miles of travel we passed eleven lovely waterfalls, the highest being Multnomah Falls which is 620 feet high. We stopped at Bonneville dam again, this time on the Oregon side of the river, to see the power plant and the locks. At Ohlo Falls we saw the falls and rapids in the Columbia River where the Indians have the right to spear salmon. At Umatilla our highway (30) branched off Columbia River The highway follows the Old Oregon Trail a large part of the way. Near Pendleton we saw some very good wheat fields About 7:30 p. m. we stopped in Baker, Oregon and stayed overnight there.

The next morning at Huntington, Oregon, we changed from Pacific time to Mountain time We crossed the Snake River at Ontario, Oregon and then entered the state of Idaho at 9:00 a. m. We stopped at Boise, Idaho to see the State Capitol and then enjoyed eating dinner at the famous "Mechanicafe." No waitresses are needed, for the food passes by you on electrical moving trays and you just help yourself In the Hagerman Valley in Idaho we saw numerous waterfalls gushing from the walls of the Snake River Canyon Their source is unknown, but they are supposed to be outlets of Lost River. We saw some very good farm crops in this irrigated section of Idaho

Early Thursday morning we left Burley, Idaho and began our trip over a section of desert land. Near Strevell, Idaho we crossed the state line into Utah. Near Brigham, Utah, we drove through a fruit-raising area. About 10 30 a. m. we arrived in Salt Lake City and went to Temple Square where we saw the Great Mormon Tabernacle and the Mormon Temple. At noon we attended the organ recital in the Tabernacle. In the afternoon we visited the Utah State Capitol, the cemetery where Brigham Young is buried, and the Saltair bathing beach on the Great Salt Lake We left Salt Lake at 6 30 p. m and drove to Springville where we stayed overnight.

Thursday we left Springville and went hrough a number of small and old Mormon towns. We saw many homes built of adobe brick Near Dividend and Eureka in the Tintic Valley we saw many tin mines Our next stop was at Delta where the Chambers lived 17 years ago We stayed there until Sunday visiting with their friends Delta is in an irrigation district and alfalfa seed is the principle crop. We learned much about irrigation while we were there

We left Delta Sunday afternoon and drove through desert wasteland and some irrigated land We stopped at Yuba Dam, the big earth dam that makes possible the supply of water that irrigates the Delta area.

We began crossing he Wasatch Mountains and the light from the setting sun on the red-colored rock walls made this ride over Soldiers Summatt (elevation 7,454 feet) a very lovely one We stopped overnight at Price, Utah and leaving there next morning we began a 140 mile drive through desertland, but enjoyed the ride for the lovely Book Cliffs were always to the east of us

We crossed he Colorado state line and went on to Grand Junction to visit Mr and Mrs Harley Newlin for several days. Mrs Newlin is a sister of Mr Chambers That afternoon we enjoyed driving out to the fruit district near Palisade and picking ripe apricots, peaches and cherries from the trees

Tuesday we drove over the very winding Serpentine Trail to the top of Pinion Mesa to enjoy a picnic dinner with friends who live on the top of the mountain Later we visited Miracle Rock, a balanced rock weighing 12,000 tons and balancing on a point 3 feet thick We also drove along the Rim Rock Road through the beautifully colored red sandstone formations in the Colorado National Monument

Wednesday we followed the Land's End Road with its 218 switchback curves to the top of Grand Mesa, the largest flat-topped mountain in the world On each Fourth of July the Grand Mesa auto race is held on this curving road Grand Mesa is two miles above sea level and contains 34,000 acres dotted with over 200 lakes It rained very hard as we came down from Grand Mesa and some of the curves in the road became rather slippery.

Early Thursday morning we left Grand Junction The rock walls of the Colorado River Canyon near Glenwood Springs were very beautifully colored

We crossed the Continenatl Divide at Tennessee Pass which has an elevation of 10,424 feet We continued driving through the Rocky Mountains and reached the top of Loveland Pass, which has an elevation of 11,992 feet This was high above the timberline and snow covered most of the peaks As we started down Loveland Pass it began to rain and rained hard all the way down We drove thru Silver Plume, Georgetown and Idaho Springs, all mining towns. In Denver we drove past the U S. Mint and Civic Buildings and visited the state Capitol. We left the mountains at Denver and traveled through a section of farm and grazing land.

We spent the night at Julesburg and crossed into Nebraska Friday morning At North Platt we changed from Mountain to Central time.

We encountered our first really hot weather as we drove across the state of Nebraska We crossed the Missouri River and came into Sioux City, Iowa, late Friday afternoon We arrived home in Klemme Friday night after having had a very enjoyable 6,000 mile trip

NEW OPENING

Tom Duff of Reinbeck had just 20 days to go before completing a non-accident record for which he was to be rewarded, when the semi-truck he had parked changed the record for him. Duff neglected setting the brakes and the truck started down an incline crashing through the wall of the school garage building.. The wall now has a hole about five-foot square but the truck was damaged very little

There are 9,891 miles of steam and electric railways in Iowa.

Around Iowa

SNOW BALLS!

A snow ball fight in Iowa in August is something very unusual. Last wek Lyle Stunkard took several bushels of frost from his cooler at Clear Lake and local boys took advantage of the "snow" for a fight

HAPPY!

F. G. Fillmore of Delta is "happy over the whole thing" though his car was somewhat damaged when he was struck by a truck driven by Earl Montgomery of Millersburg. Montgomery had applied the brakes on his truck causing it to swing to the left as Fillmore attempted to pass him at a railroad crossing. If Fillmore's car had not been stopped at the time he would have been hit by the passing train, as he had not heard the train whistle.

LETTER

A year ago, Rosalie Alley of Glenwood placed her name and address in a bottle and tossed it into the Missouri river She recently received a letter from a boy at Nodaway, Mo, who found her name in the bottle that had floated some 100 miles.

TOE

Alfred Grimm of North English severed the little toe on his right foot with a spade he was using in digging a post hole.

THRESHERMEN

E C Tanke of Millersburg has retired as a thresherman after 50 years. In the 50 years he has operated horse power, steam and tractor machines, doing every knd of work around a threshing rig.

PATRIOTIC

Morning glories on the Newton Robuck place in Knoxville are living up to the patriotic theme Flowers on the same trellis and blooming at the same time are red, white and blue in color

HONESTY PAYS

Donald and Charles Hughes and Charles Metcalf, Jr., Anamosa youths, found a sack containing several dollars in dimes, nickels, and pennies near a local store They turned the money over to the owner who divided the money among the three boys

SAVED BROTHER

Six-year-old Fritz Nekola of near Tama saved his 22-months old brother from drowning last week. The baby fell into a 25-gallon barrel of water and was pulled out safely by his older brother before help arrived.

BEES

Irving McShane of Waukon scooped a swarm of bees that had settled on the fender of a car parked on the Waukon streets into a pasteboard box before they had permanently settled.

BASEBALL FAN

Although she has never seen a baseball game, Mrs. Mary McDermott, 89, of Toronto is a zealous baseball fan. She listens daily to radio broadcasts of games and she knows nearly all National League players by name.

FIFTY-THREE YEARS LATER

On July 23, 1888 several lots in Ackley were sold to John Ubbens by Nantje Tiddens. Fifty-three years later the deed to the transaction was recorded at the Hardin county court house.

Pan-fry plain cheese sandwiches in a little butter. Let them brown lightly, first on one side, then on the other. Serve hot, with sliced tomatoes on leaf lettuce.

Mix together crushed mint, powdered sugar, crushed ice and icy cold orange and grapefruit juice for a cooling summer beverage.

About 28 per cent of all farms with occupied dwellings had electricity in 1940. Wide regional differences prevailed between different sections of the United States. Rhode Island boasted 98 per cent, as compared to 7.7 per cent for South Dakota.

Six hundred thousand American farms, with their 10 or more milking cows, produced 45 per cent of all milk produced, although they have but one-third of all the dairy cows.

Imports of beef cattle by the United States in 1940 were down 16 per cent, and canned beef imports declined 29 per cent, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Here's a quick lunch dish Split cooked frankfurters and fill with cooked macaroni and cheese. Then spread mustard over the top and place a slice of cheese over all and brown in the oven

For that warm dish to go with a cool salad on a warm day, dip sandwiches into egg and milk mixture, as for French toast Pan-fry in butter Serve with a knife and fork

Try this! Take a quarter of a slice of pineapple, place on top of cube of cheese, and wrap a slice of bacon around the combination Secure the bacon with toothpicks and brown in the oven

IN ITS latest film, entitled "Peace — by Adolf Hitler," the March of Time presents a thought-filling review of recent history. Documented with exclusive pictures taken from inside Nazi-dominated Europe, it traces the conquests marking Hitler's rise to power, and shows how, after taking over each of the 14 conquered countries, he declared Germany's territorial ambitions fulfilled.

George J. Schaefer, president of RKO Radio, has announced the result of a poll of theater audiences made by the Audience Research Institute and sponsored by his company. For a year audiences throughout the country were questioned, and it was found that stars who make three pictures a year gain 9 per cent in marquee value; those who make one a year average a 17 per cent loss, two-picture stars lose 11 per cent. It should be a warning to those who limit their screen appearances to avoid paying the higher surtaxes of the upper income brackets.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

REVELATION: A MESSAGE TO PERSECUTED CHURCHES

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 1-3.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.—Revelation 2 10.

The Revelation is so little known that we need part of our first lesson for an introduction to the book. The fact that this is a "revelation" which God gave to Jesus Christ, "to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass" (1:1), should make us all eager to study it. But it is significant that there is a promise of special blessing to those who do read (1 3), and a solemn warning against tampering with the book (22 18, 19) Quite evidently God places great importance on the reading and study of this book. Can we do less?

The book is not easy to interpret, and men have differed greatly as to its meaning There are four general schools of interpretation: (1) The preterist, which puts it all in the past. Since many of its predictions have not yet taken place, this view seems untenable. (2) The idealist, which regards the book as being entirely symbolical of spiritual principles There is truth to this view, but it does not cover the historical events mentioned in the Revelation which are yet to take place in the world. (3) The historicist, which regards the book as mainly an outline of church history. This too fails to account for prophecies yet unfulfilled (4) The futurist (which seems to be the best view); namely, that chapters two and three, while relating to actual churches then in existence, also outline the entire history of the church, and that the remainder of the book relates to future events This is the interpretation which is largely held by conservative Bible teachers.

A brief outline of the Revelation is found (1.19) in the book itself.

1. "The things which thou hast seen" (John's vision)—chapter 1.
2. "The things which are" (the seven churches)—chapters 2 and 3.
3. "The things which shall be" (the six sevens, namely, seals, trumpets, personages, vials, dooms, and new things)—chapters 4 to 22

Our lesson portion brings before us two of the seven churches of Asia—Ephesus and Smyrna—with their lessons for our day.

I. The Ephesus Church—Active but Cold, and Facing Judgment (2 1-7).

Following the salutation and the glorious vision of the Son of man (do not fail to read it, Rev. 1.9-18), John the apostle, who was the one to whom the vision came, is directed to write to the church at Ephesus, addressing it through "the angel" of the church. We do not know who he was, but since the word means "messenger," it may refer to a leading officer or elder.

The picture of the church at Ephesus was a very beautiful one. It was an active church, not afraid to work, patient under trial, commendably impatient with sin and worldliness It was not afraid to exercise discipline, to discredit false apostles, and to stand against the evil works of the worldly-minded. There would seem that there could be nothing more said for a church, but there was a vital note lacking In activity they were perfect, but they had departed from their first love

What is meant by leaving their first love? "First love is the abandonment of all for a love that has abandoned all . . . The church at Ephesus was still a remarkable church, but it lacked the element of that enthusiasm, which in the eyes of the calculating worldling, is imprudent. There are some people who imagine that this lack of enthusiasm is an advantage. May God have mercy on such. I pray the day may never come when the heroisms and enthusiasms of first love shall cease" (G. Campbell Morgan)

Repentance was called for, or God said He would extinguish the light of that church. The lesson for us is that cold orthodoxy will kill a church.

II. The Smyrna Church—Poor but Faithful, and Facing Persecution (2.8-11)

This is one of the two churches of the seven for which there is no word of rebuke, Philadelphia being the other. It was a poverty-stricken church humanly speaking, but rich in the sight of God Such a church may be more useful to God and more precious to Him than a large church which is cold and indifferent.

What does He have to promise this church? Persecution. We who follow Him upon whom men spat, who was so buffeted and despised, yes, even crucified—shall we be surprised if a hostile world persecutes us?

Note that the Lord knew all about their sufferings, both present and future He was with them and would continue to be with them, so they had no occasion to fear. Then at the end of their suffering there would be the crown of life.

Wasn't Asking for Trouble That Early in the Morning

Two travelers had just met One was doing most of the talking

"Yes," he said, "I arrived home one morning after midnight and, as I opened the door, I saw a stranger kissing my wife. I closed the door softly and hurried downstairs At 1 a. m. I came back. I opened the door softly—and there was the stranger, still kissing my wife. So I went downstairs again At 1:15—"

"Just a minute," interrupted the other man. "Why did you keep galloping downstairs? Why didn't you walk right into the room?"

"What?" cried the talkative man "And have my wife catch me coming home at that hour?"

If you have any doubt about what to give a man in any of the nation's military or naval services, send a carton of cigarettes or a pound tin of smoking tobacco. Tobacco rates first as a gift with them. And when you check up, actual sales records show that in Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard service stores (where the men buy their own) Camels outsell all other cigarettes It is well-known that Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco is the "National Joy Smoke" Local tobacco dealers are now featuring Camel cartons and pound tins of Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco as number one gifts for men in Uncle Sam's services.—Adv.

Unemployment is declining in the United States During the past 12 months about 4.2 million workers have b en added to the nation's payr lls. Taking this increase into account, the Department of Labor estimates there are less than 4 5 million people unemployed in the U S this summer, including the workers on WPA and other emergency projects.

Our Prices Are Lower

The Tire Situation

AS WE SEE IT . . .

The Huge Defense Program has created a great demand for rubber and this no doubt will curtail the civilian supply of tires We look for a substantial rise in the price of tires very soon, so if you need Tires, better get them now, before they rise.

BESIDES . . .

- WITH SCHOOL here your tires ought to be in good shape to prevent accidents. Smooth tires are dangerous, and so are blowoats.

A woman who was too "Scotch" to subscribe for The Klemme Times sent her small son to borrow the copy taken by her neighbor down the road. In his haste the boy ran over a five dollar stand of bees, and in ten minutes looked like a warty dill pickle. His frantic yells were heard by his father, who ran to his assistance, failing to notice a barbed wire fence, ran into it, breaking it down, and cutting a handful of flesh from the southeast corner of his anatomy, ruining his pants and the doctor soaked him five dollars for some fancy sewing. The old cow took advantage of the hole in the fence and got into the neighbors corn field. The neighbor collected two dollars damage and the cow died from over eating and the veterinarian got three dollars on the deal.

Hearing all the racket the mother ran out and upset a four gallon can of cream into a basket of thoroughbred kittens, drowning the whole bunch. In her hurry she dropped and broke beyond repair a new set of false teeth that cost forty dollars. The baby, who was left alone, crawled through the spilled cream into the parlor, ruining a new fifty-five dollar rug.

During the excitement, the daughter ran away with the hired man, taking with them the family car; the dog broke loose and broke up eleven setting hens; and the calves got out and chewed up two bed sheets and the tails off four fine shirts on the clothes line.

"Please Don't Hurt My Little Girl"

DEAR DRIVER:

Last Monday my daughter, who is seven years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves Her cocker spaniel, whose name is "Scoot," sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved "goodbye" and started off to the halls of learning

At night she talks about school. She tells about the girl who sits in front of her —the girl with yellow curls—and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces She tells me about her teacher who has eyes in the back of her head—and about the trees in the school yard—and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talk about a lot of things—tremendously vital, unimportant things; then she will study spelling, reading and arithmetic . . . and then to bed.

Soon she will be sound asleep, with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm. You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut, or her head gets bumped, I can fix it . . . but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she is in YOUR hands.

She's a nice kid She can run like a deer and darts about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time—I have to work to pay for her clothes and education. So, please help me to look after her Please drive carefully, please drive slowly past the schools and intersections—and please remember that children DO run from behind parked cars.

Please, don't hurt my little girl.

YOUR NEIGHBOR.

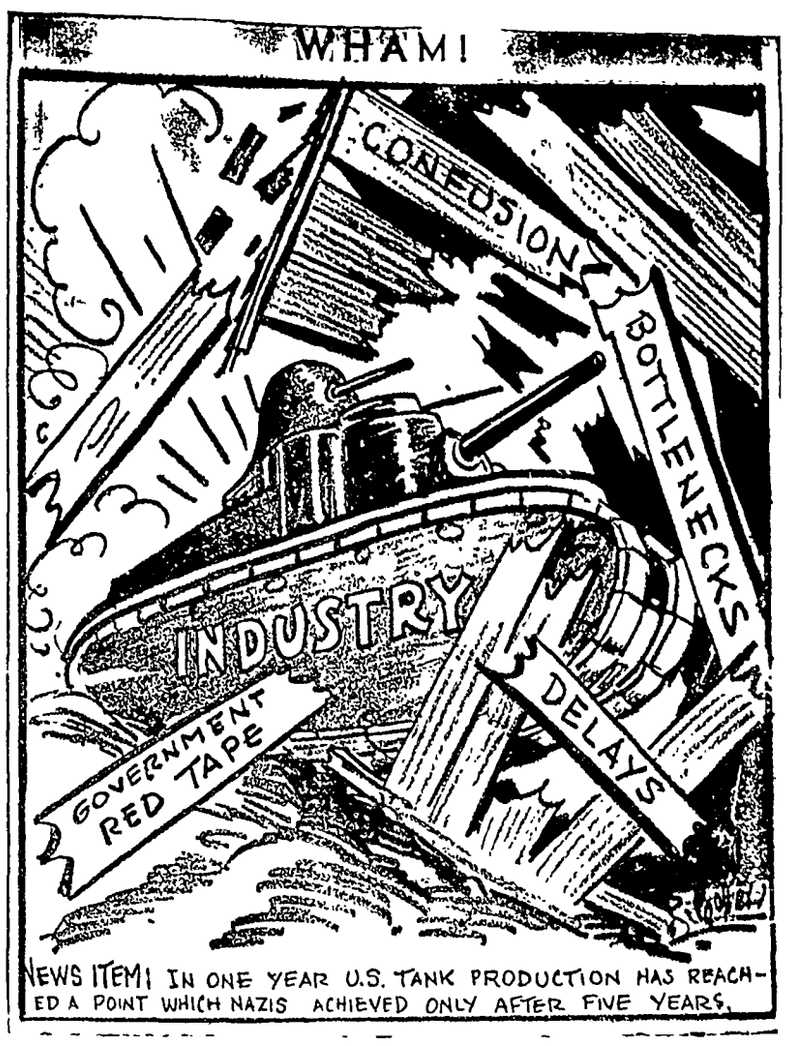
KLEMME MOUSE TRAPS GO TO SOUTH AFRICA

Ed Thompson, manager of the Run Way Trap Company of Klemme, shipped 2,500 mouse traps to South Africa the fore part of the week.

Half of the consignment went to Cape Town; one-fourth to Algo Bay and the balance to Port Elizabeth. The traps were shipped to J. W. Jaegger, Inc, an importing firm.

The local traps have in the past been shipped to Egypt and South America.



New Installment Rules Are Now In Effect

U. S. OFFICIALS EXPECT BUT LITTLE DISLOCATION FROM MILD REGULATIONS

WASHINGTON, America's banks and stores opened Tuesday, Sept 2nd for the first day of real business under government rules restricting easy time payments

The federal reserve board's installment credit regulations went into effect Monday, Sept 1 last week, but the Labor Day holiday delayed the full effect of the order until Tuesday Business places are now well lined up with the new regulations

How much the rules may curtail business, no one could guess in Washington. However, federal reserve officials indicated that they looked for no great dislocation, because they believed the regulations to be mild.

What the board did was to fix minimum down payments and a maximum time to pay the balance on a selected list of consumer articles Improvement loans on real estate and cash loans under $1,000 also are limited

On each of the specified consumer articles and the small cash loans, the time limit on repayment will be 18 months

The down payment minimums follow

Thirty-three and one-third per cent on automobiles, airplanes, power boats, boat motors, motorcycles; 20 per cent on mechanical refrigerators, washing machines, ironers, suction cleaners, cooking stoves and ranges; heating stoves and space heaters.

Also 20 per cent on radios and musical instruments made principally of metal, room air-coolers, sewing machines and electric dishwashers.

Fifteen per cent on furnaces (including oil burners, gas conversion burners and stokers to be installed in furnaces), water heaters, water pumps, plumbing and sanitary fixtures, home air conditioning systems, attic ventilating fans; 10 per cent on furniture, pianos and electric organs.

Numerous exemptions were made for farmers, students, and persons needing to get emergency loans for medical, dental, hospital or funeral expenses.

POULTRYMEN ARE ASKED TO PRODUCE EXPORT EGGS

Many Iowa poultrymen are now somewhat puzzled at suddenly being asked to join a drive to produce eggs to supply a large-scale export demand which never seemed to exist before, according to A. D Oderkirk, Iowa State College extension marketing specialist. However, he says the reason becomes quite clear after a little study of the situation

Foreign trade has not been important to the American poultry industry because most countries are on a domestic basis due to widespread poultry production. Great Britain and Germany, however, have long been heavy importers of eggs. This is because of their large populations and large consumption in comparison to their relative production.

Britain's Requirements

Oderkirk reports that in 1938 Great Britain imported about 60 per cent of the world's egg trade Germany accounted for about 27 per cent.

England's demand for American eggs, however, has not been great because she was well supplied from nearby countries The Netherlands and Poland sent her about 60 per cent of their total egg production before the war and Denmark exported more than 70 per cent of her eggs to Great Britain.

Now that these supplies have been cut off by the war and flocks are depleted because of lack of grains, England would be faced with an accute shortage of this vital food were it not for the United States and Canada.

Because dried and frozen eggs can be transported most economically and handled most satisfactorily, the export demand for these rather than shell eggs is expected to evidence the greatest increase, Oderkirk says.

There are 565 daily and weekly news publications in Iowa.

WHOOPING COUGH INCREASES IN IOWA SAYS HEALTH DEPARTMENT

With whooping cough cases being reported more frequently than in any period during the past ten years, the Iowa State Department of Health today reiterated earlier pleas for public cooperation in fighting the diease.

"The only source of whooping cough is another case of whooping cough," the department said, "and isolation must be universally practiced to prevent spread The original case may appear mild, but it is infectious and menances others."

Case reporting, according to the department, has been running far above the nine year average for 1931-1940 during the past three months and appears to be continuing during the current month

Reports this year show an increase from 152 cases in June to 203 in August. For July there were 199. The nine year average for these months, beginning with June, gave 105, 108, and 86 cases respectively During the first week of September approximately 20 additional case reports had been received.

The department warned that the infectious agent of whooping cough is transmitted by droplets expelled in coughing, sneezing or speaking.

"The discharges from the nose and throat are dangerous," it was added "Children should be taught not to put things in their mouths which have been contaminated by saliva from other persons Eating utensils which have been used by patients should be disinfected."

The first symptoms of this disease are those of "an ordinary head cold," inflamation of the eyes and bronchial cough, and "this is the time when the disease is most likely to be communicated to others," the department pointed out.

Children who have whooping cough must not attend school or public gatherings and must not be allowed to come in contact with other children while the home is placarded.

METHODIST CIRCLES WILL MEET SEPTEMBER 18

Circles No 1 and 2 will meet at the home of Mrs C. C. Kilgore.

Circle No. 3 will meet at the home of Mrs. J. A. Chambers.

Circle No. 4 will meet at the home of Mrs. P.W Johnson.

All of the above meetings are Thursday afternoon, Sept. 18.

MASONIC LODGE MEETS THURSDAY EVE

The regular September meeting of Bethel Lodge No. 319, A. F. & A. M. will be held at Garner on Thursday evening of this week at 7.30 o'clock.

All Masons of Klemme and vicinity are invited. Lunch will be served after the meeting.

For a luscious salad, combine orange and grapefruit slices with slices of ripe bananas and top the combination with a scoop of lemon ice.

HANCOCK HOMEMAKERS PLAN NUTRITION STUDY

Open Meeting Will Preface Definite Nutrition Project, Says Miss Eleanor Eyestone

Hancock County women's defense project, to conserve food and use it to the best advantage in feeding their families adequately, will open September 9 at the home of Mrs Clarence Jurgenson with a meeting to which every homemaker in the community will be invited, according to Eleanor Eyestone, County Home Demonstration Agent

Similar meetings will also be held in other communities: September 10, Madison Center Schoolhouse; September 11 at the home of Mrs F. H. Greiman; September 17, place to be announced later; September 1, I. O. O. F. Hall, Britt.

Rural women all over the state decided on improvement of their families' nutrition as a contribution to America's strength and welfare. As a result, the nutrion study will be presented in every county in Iowa

The first meetings, which will open at 1.30 p. m., will be semi-social. Miss Eyestone will discuss a plan for the year's food requirements for the average family. She will particularly emphasize fall storage of fruits and vegetables to supplement the supply of canned and frozen foods already on hand. Latest methods, such as waxing, will be presented, as well as pit, cave and basement storage.

Storage of green tomatoes that will provide ripe tomatoes in the home basement when snow flies, will be discussed, also canning of fall tarden odds and ends for soup mixtures.

A tea and social time will follow the educational part of the meeting.

MYSTERY FIRE

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Study New Plan For Interstate Trade Barriers

WASHINGTON.—Interstate trade barriers are being lowered. Many state legislatures this year prevented the raising of new economic barriers to trade between the states, and some legislatures pulled down old barriers. Action was principally in the South, where Kentucky is now the only state having a maximum trucking load limit of only 18,000 pounds, gross weight. Elsewhere the load limit has been raised to 30,000 pounds or more.

Texas had a law requiring that the net loads on trucks could not exceed 7,000 pounds if the truck was to go past a railroad station. The load could be 14,000 pounds if the truck was going only to the nearest railroad. This law has been repealed, and the load limit raised to 38,000 pounds, gross weight . . . Alabama raised the load limit from 20,000 to 30,000 pounds.

Tennessee had a 10 cent tax on margarine. Now the tax applies only to margarine made of foreign oils . . . Mississippi has repealed its tax on retailers of margarine in that state . . . In New England, the states have initiated uniform rules on the movement of cattle with respect to Bang's disease . . . The story everywhere reveals a trend against trade barriers since the U. S. department of agriculture began its campaign against these barriers two years ago.

A special report issued by the bureau of agricultural economics in 1939—Barriers to Internal Trade in Farm Products—called attention to the rapid growth of discriminatory laws and regulations which have the effect of interstate tariffs and embargoes. The report showed that such laws and regulations are interfering seriously with the free movement and sale of farm products, raising the cost of marketing, increasing prices of food and clothing to the consumer, and lowering the consumption of these products.

Serious Trade Barriers.

Studies by a number of federal and state agencies have confirmed the bureau's findings, and have brought to light the existence of many serious trade barriers which were not covered in the bureau's report. At the 1939 sessions of the state legislatures many proposed additions to state barriers were blocked. This year—in 1941—when more than 40 state legislatures met, additional barriers were blocked or torn down.

"The removal of interstate trade barriers has become an important national issue," according to F. V. Waugh of the bureau of agricultural economics. "Farmers, dealers and consumers throughout the country want to see our marketing laws and regulations overhauled in such a way as to permit free trade without sacrificing any of the legitimate purposes of regulations. These legitimate purposes include the protection of public health, the prevention of the spread of insect pests and diseases, and the protection of highways from excessive damage."

Threaten Defense Program.

Mr. Waugh says, "There are some practical possibilities for eliminating the worst of the trade barriers in agriculture State commissioners of agriculture with whom some of these possibilities were discussed last December were very interested. Many of the state commissioners of agriculture believe that if federal and state officials could agree on a program there would be a real possibility of getting the necessary federal and state legislation this year. Also, that inasmuch as trade barriers represent an obvious threat to our defense program, now is an opportune time to push legislation for freer interstate trade."

Until about 25 years ago, nonuniform grades for farm products presented many serious trade barrier problems. For example, wheat which had been inspected and certified as to grade in the producing state might not be acceptable in markets outside the state. Potatoes rated as No. 1 grade in one market might be called No. 2 in another market and sold there at a discount. During the past 25 years this situation has been improved greatly through a program developed and carried out jointly by the federal and state departments of agriculture.

This program has accomplished two things: (1) It has brought about gradually more and more uniformity in the standards and grades used throughout the country; (2) It has provided an inspection service whose certificates of quality are accepted as passports in interstate commerce. A certificate showing that a carload of potatoes has been inspected and is up to the U. S. No. 1 standard is now accepted in any part of the country as an indication of the actual quality.

This standardization and certification service has virtually eliminated trade barriers that once existed because of differences in grading requirements and in inspection techniques for some of the principal agricultural products. Mr. Waugh suggests a similar program of federal-state co-operation to deal with other aspects of trade barriers.

Federal studies have shown that sanitary laws and regulations have set up a number of monopolistic and discriminatory trade barriers which restrict milk and cream sheds . . . prices to consumers, raise costs to producers, and arbitrarily deny many dairymen the opportunity to sell their products in the most profitable market. There seem to be two basic troubles with milk inspection at the present time: (1) Lack of uniformity in sanitary requirements; (2) the refusal of cities and states to accept outside inspections. These are the same problems which have been met rather successfully in the case of grading.

Mr. Waugh says that "greater uniformity is needed in sanitary requirements."

Japanese War Birds Wing Towards China

The Nipponese bombers in the air, as shown in the above picture, location not given, are outward bound on a raid over Chinese positions, held by troops of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, according to Japanese military authorities. Hundreds of ships similar to the one shown in this fleet are reported being flown into new bases, by the Japs, for possible use in French Indo-China territory. Here, it is believed, is the section the little brown men will use as a springboard for possible attack on Singapore and the Dutch East Indies.

Japanese Empire Exports Little—Imports Heavily

The Japanese empire comprises four principal islands, the combined area of which, 147,701 square miles, is less than that of California. The northern-most, Hokkaido, is about the same size as Maine. The main island, Honshu, is larger in square miles than Minnesota. The southern-most island of the main group, Kyushu, is somewhat larger than the combined areas of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticutt. Shikoku, which encloses the Inland sea, is not as large as New Jersey.

Including Taiwan (Formosa), Chosen (Korea), Kwantung Leased Territory, Bokoto (Pescadores) and the Mandated islands, the Japanese empire occupies an area of 260,704 square miles, slightly smaller than the state of Texas.

Population of the Japanese empire in 1940 numbered 105,226,101 persons, of which 73,114,308 persons were inhabitants of Japan Proper. Largest centers of population are on the main island, Honshu. The capital, Tokyo, which is also the business and financial center of the country, is second to New York as the world's largest city, with a population in 1940 of 6,778,804 persons. (Prior to the exodus during the war, London's estimated population was in excess of 8,000,000 however.

Second largest city in Japan is the commercial and industrial city of Osaka, with a population of 3,252,340 persons. Nagoya is the third largest city with a population of 1,328,084 persons. Kyoto, the capital of Japan prior to 1868, has a population of 1,089,729, and the port cities of Kobe and Yokohama have 967,234 and 968,091 persons respectively.

Japan is mountainous, with most of the land suitable only for forestry. Only about 16 per cent of the total area of Japan Proper is arable. More than half of arable lands are devoted to rice production, and more than half of the value of farm produce is represented by this cereal. Approximately 2,000,000 out of 5,500,000 farms in Japan engage in sericultural activities. It is estimated that some 18,000,000 persons derive all or part of their incomes from the silk industry. Fishing, in which Japan occupies first rank among the nations of the world, is likewise important as an occupation, and as a source of food supply.

Although 50 per cent of the Japanese people still earn their livelihood from the soil, Japan has become a highly industrialized country. Abundant available water power is utilized to operate hydro-electric plants. The cotton textile, silk, rayon, woolen, metal, machinery, shipbuilding, chemical, electrical, and pottery industries of Japan rank high among those of the great manufacturing nations of the world.

Foreign Trade.

Only in a few products, such as silk, aquatic goods, camphor, does Japan occupy a unique position as a world supplier. For the most part, Japan has risen as an export nation and as an industrial power by the fabrication of goods from foreign supplies of raw materials. Raw cotton from the United States, British India, Egypt and other sources, carried to Japan, has been re-exported as cotton piece goods Wood pulp imports make possible Japan's rayon industry. Wool from Australia, and rubber from British Malaya and Netherlands East Indies also are essential raw material imports for Japanese industries.

Since July, 1937, no detailed data have been published in Japan on imports of mineral oils, ores and metals, fire arms, automobiles, explosives, certain chemicals, and certain classes of machinery. Since September, 1940, the publication of all detailed trade figures in Japan has been discontinued For the first nine months of 1940 principal Japanese imports by value were: raw cotton, 396,487,000 yen, oils, fats, waxes, and manufactures thereof (principally mineral oils), 237,308,000 yen; beans and peas, 86,499,000 yen; coal, 85,543,000 yen; sheep's wool, 85,320,000 yen; salt, 49,057,000 yen; and pulp for artificial silk, 41,421,000 yen.

Four Flights Up

Rex, the cat, shown in the upper right section, has reached the top of a four-story clothes pole, and appears more comfortable than the ASPCA man who is trying to rescue the feline, while the neighborhood gives vocal encouragement. The incident, which took place in New York city, had a happy ending. Rex was saved by a special noosing gadget in the hands of the ASPCA official and still has all his nine lives.

Farm Lands Sell Briskly as War Creates Demand

MINNEAPOLIS.—Farms are selling faster than at any time since the depression—selling to tenant farmers who can't find satisfactory land available for rent; selling to factory workers who want to raise part of their food; selling to inflation-minded business men and harried investors; and to city families who want a cushiony retirement spot in case of personal or national economic troubles.

Few present farmer-owners are adding to their acreage now because the combination of the draft and industrial labor demand is making it difficult for them to get enough help to operate the acres they already own. Therefore unimproved farm land generally has not shown the run-up in sales enjoyed by farms complete with buildings, according to this study by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

Improvement in sales of farms is nation-wide; over three-fourths of the farm realty agencies reporting in the survey, with sales offices in 32 agricultural states, report sales definitely increased compared with preceding years, with more all-cash deals, with adequate down payments easier to get, and with dealings active in the better class farms, instead of being largely confined to distress properties as in past years, the study finds.

Says the vice president of a New York farm realty company with sales agencies from coast to coast: "April, May, June and July of this year gave us the largest number of sales we have had during any like period in the past nine years. Approximately 30 per cent of the sales we are making are cash on delivery of deed.

"A great many people want to purchase fairly good properties that may be operated by a tenant or manager, with the idea that later on they may use this farm property as a so-called 'security home.'"

A Florida farm realty concern states, "We note that many city people who never thought of owning a farm are becoming interested."

From a Baltimore real estate firm: "We are literally flooded with inquiries for small farms and small country properties, and we find the supply to be scarce."

UNFINISHED STORIES

What has become of the Emperor's brother, Prince Chichibu? His failure to appear at the Empire's 2600th mythological anniversary of the founding of the Sun Goddess' country aroused queries. What will become of Japan's puppet Emperor of Manchuria, Henry Pu Yi, who rides a bicycle and plays tennis under "protection"? Not having an heir, the Japanese somehow will put the skids under him to favor his Manchu brother, whom militarists married off to a Japanese girl. How will the Japanese handle their puppet Wang Ching Wei at Nanking? Japanese guards surround him for two purposes: Keep enemy hand grenades from being tossed at him and keep him from running away. His wife, notorious in Chinese politics, stays in Shanghai selling government jobs and opium licenses.

Japan faces economic ruin. Her Manchurian market depended on soy bean cake exports to Europe. That business is finished. No more silk market means Japan's second great agriculture upset and farm problem—rice and its shortage is No. 1. Next problem is shortage of fish which is Japan's staple. Mining the island kingdom's waters to keep out Russian submarines from Vladivostok will restrict tens of thousands of tiny fishing junks.

The Japanese are always kidding themselves and their people. One inventor claims sardines will produce an oil convertible to gasoline. But first they need the sardines In quantities prohibitive. Another Japanese announced Tokyo is protected from air attacks by the use of fishing nets strung over the city, suspended by balloons—the net catches the blitz bombs. Actually, Tokyo has but one bomb proof shelter, for the emperor and his family.

Lieut. Commander Walter Winchell, you are in the navy now on reserve service. If you have time, check with fellow officers why the State Department forced the navy's hand and permitted two Japanese spies to be released and why others remain here with diplomatic immunity, including one who is in hiding in Washington? How many American missionaries remain in Japanese prisons in Korea? Why not trade them for Japanese spies in this country?

PRIVATE PURKEY WRITES HIS GIRL-FRIEND

Dear Nellie—

This is just to explain again that I am awful sorry about getting mixed up and sending to President Roosevelt the love letter I meant for you, and sending you the protest witch I wrote for the President on account of a appeal from Senator Wheeler and witch I wish I had of ignored in the first place. Everybody has apologized in this matter now, including the Secretary of War and me.

Do not worry about what Mr. Roosevelt will think about getting a letter from me addressed to "Darling Nellie" and signed with two rows of kisses as he will know it was a error, and even if he did not know this he wood be glad to get a letter from anybody these days that just expressed affeckshun and not a lot of complaining. You say I never should of wrote no letter in response to the Wheeler postcard and I admit it, but I was just in a writing mood that day.

Well I wish I could see you oftener Nellie dear and if I ever get out of here I will marry you like I said but you can forget all that stuff about a little house in the country becuz after all the walking I have done all I want after this is a flat right near a subway or a block from the office so I will never have to do much on foot again for the rest of my life. You here a lot of talk about this being a mechanical war but you can't tell this to me with my feet in the shape they are in. It is no more a mechanical war so far as I can see than the Revolutionary War and my part in it is done just the same as at Valley Forge, except at Valley Forge the grounds was harder and there was not so many potatus to peel.

What I wood give to be back in civilyun life where people still get a vacation in August! If you had of told me last summer I wood spend this summer without no vacation I wood of said you was crazy. In a army you get twice as much work in the vacation season as any other time and if you ain't come to a boil by noon you ain't rated as in perfect shape. If a jeep looks cool and dry all the officers get together and discuss whether to give him some new injections, change his diet, put him in the guardhouse or work him harder, and the last always wins.

There has been a lot of rain lately and I do not know witch is the worser, summer mud or spring and autumn mud, but I gess summer mud is more exciting as there are more turtles and snakes in it. Whoever said there was few snakes in America was nuts. I even found one in my bunk. In some of the mud I have been doing manoovers in lately I wood not be serprised to come up with a wild duck in my shoes. I got everything else in 'em, but my dogs is so numb they don't feel nothing no more.

Well, this is not much of a letter to you Nellie so I will close now just to say you are in my mind always even in the heat of mimic battle and that even at night when I am nursing my feet witch are so sore I ache all over I think of you dear.

With oceans of love,
Oscar.

AUTO CUT

That fanfared OPM cut of 26½ per cent in auto production drew no cheers from war department chiefs. To them it was a big disappointment.

First of all the cut looks a lot bigger than it actually is. For one thing the OPM carefully did not reveal in its hoopla press releases was the fact that even with this curtailment auto production still will be 10 per cent greater than in 1938 and 1939.

In other words, notwithstanding the increasing shortage of strategic raw materials, such as steel, rubber, alloys and other metals, auto production is to continue at levels higher than in the peaceful years of '38 and '39.

Another reason for the army gloom was that it wanted an immediate cut of at least 50 per cent.

For months war department heads pleaded and argued with OPM moguls for drastic curtailment, on the ground that the material going into pleasure cars are desperately needed for planes, tanks, ships, guns and other vital armaments But for months the OPM masterminds did absolutely nothing

Finally, in July, scrappy OPACS Director Leon Henderson, who has seen eye-to-eye with the army on this issue from the start, took the bull by the horns and "ordered" a 50 per cent slash.

OPM's reaction was to hit the ceiling. It refused to accept the ruling And while OPM battled behind the scenes with OPACS, autos continued to roll off assembly lines in record-breaking numbers. However, Henderson's bare-knuckling finally took effect. The 26½ per cent cut is a little less than half of what the army and Henderson wanted, but it is 6½ per cent more than OPM's original figure.

TANKS FOR BRITAIN

Some time ago the Merry-Go-Round revealed that a chief objective of Lord Beaverbrook's visit was to get more tanks—tanks for Iran; tanks for Egypt, tanks eventually for an invasion of the continent. Beaverbrook particularly wanted the new powerful 32 tonners that soon will roll off the Chrysler assembly line at the rate of 450 a month.

It can now be revealed that the British supply minister will not go home empty handed He will take back with him very cheering assurances regarding the division of these tanks between the U. S. and British armed forces. But that isn't the end of his tank problem.

Allotting tanks to the British in this country is one thing, but delivering them across the Atlantic is another.

In fact, the problem of transporting large numbers of 32-ton tanks is the toughest shipping problem maritime experts have faced since the magnetic mine, which ravaged shipping until the de-magnetizing devices were evolved.

In a nutshell here is the problem: For every shipload of light 12 ton tanks sent to England or Africa, the same ship plus nearly three-fourths of another ship would be required to transport the same number of 32-ton tanks. In other words, they are bigger. Translated into specific figures—that 26-ship convoy which landed 560 light tanks at Alexandria three months ago would have had to consist of 44 vessels to carry the same number of medium tanks.

With shipping scarcer than hen's teeth, a difference of 18 ships is an extremely important factor. Also, the necessity of traveling in slow convoys further reduces the amount of shipping available. Some experts estimated this reduction as high as 50 per cent. In addition the British sometimes take an excessively long time to unload cargoes.

So the tank problem thus also becomes an acute shipping problem. One bright spot in the situation is the great reduction in ship losses in the last 60 days since the extension of the U. S. neutrality patrols. But the basic problem of securing more cargo bottoms still remains.

Note: Since January 1, U. S. shipyards have turned out a total of 56 cargo vessels.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Army officers are singing the praises of 20th Century-Fox's Darryl Zanuck and many movie moguls for their big job in filming 100 reels of army training films. This was the first time training films have ever been taken, and Hollywood did them for 40 per cent of what it would have cost Hollywood itself to do the job. In other words, the army only had to pay union labor and cost of film, Hollywood supplying the studios, production, overhead and everything else.

The Washington Diplomatic corps is goggle-eyed over Mrs. Warren Pierson's new book, "The Good Neighbor Murder." Her husband is head of the Export-Import Bank which loans millions to the Good Neighbors.

Dr. I. Lubin, brilliant White House defense expert, is the most "officed" official in Washington. He has an office in the White House, another in the labor department as head of the bureau of labor statistics, a third in the labor division of OPM, and a fourth in the treasury as an adviser to Secretary Morgenthau.

SHORT STORY

Promise Kept

By KARL GRAYSON

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service)

YOUTH disillusioned is tragedy. Austin Temple had been disillusioned. He thought about it bitterly, slumping down in the seat of the train that was carrying him back to Seabrook.

Two weeks ago Austin, just out of college, ambitious to become a great advertising man, had submitted some of his best copy to a famous New York agency. Three days later he had visited the agency offices and talked with Mr. McDonald, the manager.

Mr. McDonald chewed a long and fat cigar and pivoted back and forth in his swivel chair. "Why, yes," he said, 'we liked your copy in here, Temple First rate, it was. I guess we can take you on all right. How would fifty a week do for a starter?"

"Fine," Austin said eagerly.

"When would you want me to start?"

"Why, not right away. Things are pretty slack now Suppose you drop in in a couple of weeks? Let you know then."

"Why that'll be great! A two weeks rest won't hurt me, I guess. I worked pretty hard last year at school. Hoped I'd get a chance like this."

And so Austin rushed out home and told the folks the good news,

But the things he and Della talked about were more or less private.

and spent that evening at Della Colton's house. But the things he and Della talked about were more or less private

Two weeks later, completely rested up, eager, enthusiastic, filled with boyish aspirations, Austin journeyed again to the agency offices, and asked for Mr McDonald.

"He's busy just now. Won't you sit down and wait?"

"Oh, sure. Glad to."

Austin waited an hour. Finally he got into Mr. McDonald's office. Mr. McDonald looked up impatiently from his desk. "Well?"

"Here I am again, Mr. McDonald. All rested up and eager to get going."

"Get going at what?"

"Why, that job you promised me —writing copy."

"Promised you?" Mr. McDonald's eyes grew black. "Say, look here, young man, I'm not in the habit of making idle promises. I do have a hazy recollection of you coming in here. Wanted a job, didn't you? Well, we're filled up. And now—I'm pretty busy."

Austin's jaw dropped. "But—"

"Filled up, son. Some other day, perhaps." Mr. McDonald pressed a button on his desk . . .

Austin was roused from his bitter thoughts by a slap on the shoulder. He looked up It was George Morrill, grinning, leaning over his seat.

"Hello, Austin. Been looking for you. We're running a charity racket next month. Wondered if we could shake you down for ten bucks and get you to work with us?"

Austin's laugh was rather disconcerting, but he said: "Sure. Make it fifteen. I like charity rackets."

"Good! Fine!" George got out a notebook and jotted something into it. "Thanks, Austin." He passed on, disappeared into the car ahead.

Austin looked after him and grinned sourly. Great stuff, this promising without the least intention of fulfilling the promise. He rather liked the idea. McDonald wasn't the only person who could play the game. Made you feel important.

Austin stared glumly out of the window, became conscious that somebody had sat down beside him and was staring at his profile He turned irritably. It was Judge Olney.

Austin interrupted his thoughts to note that the judge was watching him gravely. Judge Olney had helped to put Austin through college.

"Didn't get that advertising job, eh?" the magistrate asked abruptly. "Turned you down without excuses?"

In spite of himself Austin grinned at the old man's power of discernment "That's the story," he said, "in a nutshell."

"No," said the judge, "that's only part of the story. The rest is that you've lost your faith in mankind."

Austin stared. "Have I?" he asked. Then: "I guess you would, I guess anyone would, under the circumstances."

"Well, if a man were a coward he would. If he were a poor loser he would. That licks him right from the start."

"You're wrong there, Judge. Kidding folks along gets you places. Look at Mr. McDonald."

"Never heard of him," Judge Olney said. "And I've never heard of anyone else who's lost faith in mankind. They never make a name." He turned to face Austin squarely. "Losing your faith, Austin, handicaps a man from the start. He can't concentrate or do his best work when he's wondering whether or not he can trust men to whom he's given responsible jobs. That's what the world needs, Austin, men who won't be licked, men who can fill responsible positions because they have faith.

"Suppose," he went on, "suppose I didn't trust men with whom I came in contact daily? Suppose you were brought before me at the bar of justice, charged with a serious crime? Would you rather know that I had faith in you, or would you like to believe I thought you a liar?

"Austin, if you let this thing lick you, you're done for. If you're not going to be a responsible person, others are not going to invest you with responsible jobs. Think it over, son Perhaps you've reached your crossroads."

Judge Olney got up and rocked up the aisle. Austin stared glumly from the window once more. It was all right, he thought, for Judge Olney to talk like that. He'd made his start and got somewhere. He could afford to preach.

Of course, that stuff about being brought before the bar of justice sounded good. May be something to it But being a criminal and kidding folks along were two different things But were they? Well, anyway Austin didn't plan on becoming a criminal

Too bad there weren't more men like Judge Olney, though. Fewer promises and more truths. Well, some day maybe he'd be a big shot and could act like McDonald. Maybe Seemed a long ways off, though. Long hill to climb.

The train jerked to a stop and Austin realized suddenly they had reached Seabrook. Conscious of a little pang at facing the folks and Della, he followed other passengers up the aisle and swung to the platform. George Morrill jostled against him, and Austin grasped George's arm. "Say," he said, "I might as well give you that fifteen now, while I have it." Austin reached into his pocket and produced the money. Minus the fifteen his roll of bills was pretty slim.

"Why, thanks, Austin. That's fine of you. Lots of these birds promise all outdoors, and then forget all about it."

Austin grinned and swung away. As he walked up the street toward home, he began to whistle.

Large Appetite Normal For Teen Age Youngsters

Youngsters, as they reach their teens, often develop an extraordinary capacity for food. Many a puzzled mother has said, "I don't know where he puts it!"

It is important for parents to realize that, in the majority of cases, such an appetite is normal and should be encouraged. One important exception, of course, is the child who shows a tendency to obesity—and in such a case a doctor should be consulted.

During the teen age, a normal child is exceptionally active. Each year he is adding two or three inches to his height and as much as 10 pounds or more to his weight. Therefore, a youngster has to eat a large amount. Too little food, or the wrong kind, can hinder normal development at this time just as truly as in infancy.

Your doctor will tell you that an adolescent child's activities can be as strenuous as a manual laborer's —sometimes requiring from 50 to 75 per cent more food than is needed by the average adult. That's why it may be perfectly proper for Junior to tuck away lots more dinner than his office-working Dad!

Three generous meals a day should include milk, cereals, vegetables, fruits, meat, and eggs—all so necessary for growth and good health. Furthermore, these meals should include wholesome desserts to satisfy the "sweet tooth" that boys and girls usually develop.

This doesn't mean, of course, that the youngster should be free to gobble anything at any time. Simple, sensible snacks may be given to the child at appropriate times if they do not affect the child's appetite at regular meals. Good, satisfying foods like milk, bread and butter, and fruits are usually easy to keep on hand for the hungry young one.

In between times—right after school, for instance, but not too close to the next regular meal—such wholesome foods tend to discourage round-the-clock "nibbling."

They Learn Early

In Japan, girls only four years old frequently carry younger brothers and sisters strapped to their backs while at play. Their training is started when they begin to walk, by having dolls in this position for several hours daily.

One Too Many

Young Alec was watching a house painter at work. Presently he asked:

"How many coats of paint do you give a door?"

"Two, my boy," was the reply.

"Then if you give it three coats," said the lad brightly, "it would be an over-coat?"

"No, my lad," retorted the painter grimly, "it would be a waste coat."

The big difference between human and vegetable life is that in vegetation the sap rises.

"Yes, it's his job. He is a blacksmith."

Why Tell It?

It was a very wet night when Jones knocked at the door of his friend Watts.

"Hallo!" exclaimed Watts. "I'm glad to see you. Come in!"

"I don't think I dare," Jones protested. "My feet are very dirty."

"That doesn't matter. Just keep your boots on."

No Wonder

"My father lost money on everything my brother makes."

"What does your brother make?"

"Mistakes."

Another's Pattern

One of the most unfortunate phases of specialization in modern industry is the one of the initiative faculty. There are millions of people in this country who never really think, never act on their own responsibility. They do not have to. They are simply cogs in vast machines. They follow the pattern marked out for them. They never try to make one.

The Tire Situation

AS WE SEE IT . . .

The Huge Defense Program has created a great demand for rubber and this no doubt will curtail the civilian supply of tires We look for a substantial rise in the price of tires very soon, so if you need Tires, better get them now, before they rise.

BESIDES . . .

- WITH SCHOOL here your tires ought to be in good shape to prevent accidents. Smooth tires are dangerous, and so are blowouts.

After the Weeds and Brush Now!

rly attention to weeds and brush along the public highways should be given. High road intersections and corners are especially hazardous to traffic, and MUST BE CUT ilure to attend to the weeds makes it practically impossible for the county to open many narrow roads which were heavily drifted with snow last winter If you want your road traffic in the winter months, you must co-operate by clearing roadways of weeds and ring the summer.

eeds on county roads and along fence lines must be mowed by the owners of adjoining the owners or persons in possession or control of any land in the county fail to comply law the weed commissioners are required to have the weeds cut at the expense of the owner or operator. Cost of the destruction of the weeds, cost of serving notices, and er expense shall be assessed against the land.

our local weed commissioner will give personal attention to any complaints from he public regarding weeds on the highways not cut which are a hazard to the ublic safety.

You Are Starting a First-Class Headache

When You Read a Newspaper In Bad Light...

Eyestrain is a serious thing that can lead to headaches, fatigue and even nervous indigestion. Good light is something every family can afford.

The new I. E. S. reading lamps, designed by scientists to protect eyesight, can be purchased at our store at amazingly low prices. And there are many different kinds of clever "adapters" that change old lamps and fixtures into the modern, up to date sight-saving kind.

Don't risk eyestrain for yourself or your family another day. Stop in and see the new ways to better light for better sight. And remember, current to provide good light costs only a few cents a night.

cloves, ripened and mellowed in heavy syrup, fills menu demands beautifully.

Pickled Fruit.
(Makes 5 to 6 pints)

2 cups vinegar
5 cups brown sugar
or
2½ cups each, brown and white sugar
2 tablespoons whole cloves
2 sticks cinnamon
4 quarts peaches, pears, or crabapples

Cook sugar, vinegar, spices 20 minutes. Select firm fruit, remove the thin skins from pears and peaches, if using them, but do not pare crabapples, rather leave them with skins on. Drop in fruits, few at a time, and cook until tender. Pack in hot sterilized jars, adding syrup within a half inch of the top. Seal and store in a cool, dry place.

Concord grapes, deep purple, velvety, and plump with juice are one of autumn's favorite fruits. They lend themselves nicely to jelly, either by themselves or in combination with other fruits. As conserves, too, they will help you make menu magic.

Concord Grape Jelly.
(Makes 11 medium glasses)

3 pounds ripe Concord grapes
½ cup water
7½ cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

Stem the grapes and crush them thoroughly. Add the water, bring to a boil, cover, simmer 10 minutes Place fruit in jelly bag and squeeze out juice (about 4 cups). Place sugar and fruit juice in large saucepan, mix, and bring to a boil over a very hot fire. Add pectin, stirring constantly, bring to a full rolling boil. Boil hard ½ minute Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly into glasses. Paraffin at once.

Grape Conserve.
(Makes 10 12-ounce glasses)

7 pounds Concord grapes
Sugar
2 pounds seedless white grapes
4 oranges, sliced thin
1 pound broken walnut meats
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Stem the grapes; wash and mash slightly. Cook slowly until juice is free, about 15 minutes. Force through a sieve to remove seeds. Measure pulp. To every 4 cups pulp, add 3 cups sugar. Add white grapes, orange slices, cinnamon and nutmeg. Cook to the jelly stage. Remove from heat; add nutmeats. Seal in hot, sterilized glasses.

Putting up a batch of tomato catsup offers pleasure in more ways than one. You enjoy the lusty, spicy odor of the cooking, and the fragrance seems to permeate the house for days. You'll enjoy seeing the jars of rich red fruit on the shelves, and then again you'll like tartness of the relish as part of your meals.

Tomato Catsup.
(Makes 5 to 6 pints)

4 quarts of tomatoes, quartered
2 large onions, chopped
2 cups granulated sugar
2 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons whole allspice
½ tablespoon whole cinnamon
2 tablespoons whole cloves
1 teaspoon whole black pepper
2 tablespoons paprika
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Simmer tomatoes, onions, sugar, and vinegar 2 hours. Tie the allspice, pepper, cinnamon and cloves in a bag and add with the remaining ingredients, and continue cooking for another hour. Remove the bag of spices and force the vegetables through a sieve. Reheat to bubbling hot and pack in hot, sterile jars.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SAMUEL GOLDWYN has a sure-thing combination in Bette Davis and Director William Wyler, who've just done "The Little Foxes" for him. They were responsible for "Jezebel," which won the second Academy Award for Bette, though a lot of people thought she'd given better performances in other pictures. They also did "The Letter," a hit film.

Bette Davis

Bette is working now in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and likes it because it's legitimate comedy; the comedy she did with James Cagney, "The Bride Came C. O. D.," wasn't so much to her liking, because it was slapstick stuff.

And RKO, which releases "The Little Foxes," may have a sure thing on its hands in Terry Frost. He is the last of the three men who played "Killer Mears" in the stage version of "The Last Mile." Producer Bert Gilroy picked him for a part in Tim Holt's "Cyclone on Horseback," in which Frost will make his film debut after a wait of 11 years

And—the other two men who played "Killer Mears" were Spencer Tracy and Clark Gable—and it was Gilroy who picked Gable for his first film, "Painted Desert." So, if good things come in threes, Terry Frost is headed straight for stardom.

A matrimonial expert, who's been asking American wives "What has Charles Boyer that your husband doesn't have?" maintains that 70 per cent of the country's married women are in love with male stars. One thing he's got is a beautiful and charming wife.

It's on again, off again with John Garfield and Warner Brothers. As previously reported here, he refused to do "New Orleans Blues," was suspended, and Richard Whorf, the very talented actor who has appeared so often on the stage with Lunt and Fontanne, replaced him. Garfield was assigned to "Bridges Are Built at Night," and all seemed well.

John Garfield

But it wasn't, and now he's been suspended again, and again Whorf has replaced him. Seems to be becoming a habit. Maybe Garfield has forgotten the rumpuses Bette Davis and James Cagney had with the same studio—and that both of them went back to work at the same old stand when the fuss was finally settled.

Guy Lombardo has been having a lot of fun with those lyricized commercials, superimposed over a musical background, and radio audiences like them so much that he's decided to make them a regular feature of his Saturday evening programs.

Tom Hanlon, announcer on Gene Autrey's CBS Sunday program, "Melody Ranch," figures that he's on his way up, in motion pictures. He recently played a scene with Greta Garbo and Melvyn Douglas at the Metro studio. He did a commercial announcement which they were supposed to hear over the radio during an important sequence. But—he worked just out of camera range on the set with the Swedish star.

Red Skelton has already arrived at the top, if reports of what preview audiences thought of "Whistling in the Dark" are a prophecy. Seems he's going to give Bob Hope a run for Hope's laurels, and make all of us laugh our heads off while so doing.

It looks as if September 15 would be Orson Welles day in Hollywood. On that date he inaugurates his new variety broadcasts as star, producer, director and author with the Mercury players, and also starts the cameras grinding on his next RKO picture, "The Magnificent Ambersons." Between times he'll probably do card tricks; he's just mastered seven new ones.

ODDS AND ENDS—That man Rochester, Jack Benny's "valet," is the high spot of the new Mary Martin picture "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" . . . Practically all newspaper critics have thrown bouquets at "The Stars Look Down" . . . Walt Disney and some of his staff will journey to South America to get ideas for cartoons suitable for that market . . Charles Laughton will star in "Out of Gas," a Tahiti tale by the "Mutiny on the Bounty" authors . Maureen O'Hara will have the lead opposite Tyrone Power in 20th Century-Fox's "Benjamin Blake" . . There's a National Society of Hardy Families, not related to Metro's.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for September 14

THE ETERNAL GOD, THE SOURCE OF HELP

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 7.9-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.—Revelation 4:8.

A look into the future is something that would interest most of us, and we have it in this lesson. We agree with Dr. Wilbur Smith that "this is an excellent opportunity to bring to the hearts of our pupils some of these divinely revealed truths which the world, in its mad rush today, so easily and tragically puts aside."

The portion of Revelation, chapter seven, which is before us comes immediately after a section dealing with Israel. The Church is not mentioned. The ones spoken of have come out of "the great tribulation" (as the Revised Version rightly translates it) and are evidently Gentiles who have come to believe in Christ during that time of unparalleled tribulation described in later chapters of this book.

Our lesson therefore deals with a specific time and a certain people in connection with an event yet to take place But we find in this passage the description of the experiences of those who, like Christians of our day, triumphed through their saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ We may therefore here learn something of the future blessedness of the redeemed.

I. Saved Forever and Ever (vv. 9-12).

Salvation is a reality, and we are never going to be more certain of it than when we, like this multitude, stand in God's presence to praise Him for what He has done in our lives. It is real. Praise God!

Notice that there was an unnumbered multitude from all nations. The good tidings at the time of Christ's birth were for all people (Luke 2:10), and some from all nations respond. Note too that the hosts of the Lord are greater than we might at first suppose.

These redeemed ones had immediate access to God's throne, offering their praise direct. They were clad in the white robes of God's own purity and bore in their hands the palms of victory. They, with the angels, the elders (possibly representing the Church already caught up into heaven), and the living creatures (not "beasts" as in A.V. They are divine beings of highest character), ascribed a seven-fold praise to God "forever and ever. Amen." It is a glorious picture of completed redemption.

II. Serving Day and Night (vv. 13-15a).

It should be observed that even those who came through the great tribulation did not look to their own deeds or faithfulness to save them. Their white robes of righteousness were washed in "the blood of the Lamb" (v. 14).

Now that they had reached eternity through peril, toil and pain, they would (according to many folks' idea of heaven) sit down for an eternal rest and retirement. Not at all—they found their joy in serving their blessed Lord "night and day"; that is, without any weakness or exhaustion, without any failures or defeat.

III. Satisfied Throughout Eternity (vv. 15b-17).

To be covered by the "tabernacle" of God (whatever it may mean) surely betokens the perfect and constant protection of His own presence. Everything destructive and disturbing will be gone. There will be no lack of any good thing needed to satisfy every desire. There will be no thirst unquenched and no hunger unsatisfied (see similar descriptive passage in Rev. 21:3, 4).

The redeemed are said to be under the tender care of the Good Shepherd Himself; the Lamb (our Redeemer) who is in the midst of God's throne shall lead them, not beside "the still waters" of the Twenty-third Psalm, but "unto living fountains of water." Thus in the beauty of figurative speech, we are assured that God's provision for His children, the redeemed in Christ Jesus, will perfectly satisfy every need of soul and spirit. There is no such satisfaction this side of eternity, but we shall find it there.

Then too, there is to be no sorrow. God Himself is the guarantee that there shall be nothing in that blessed land to cause anyone to shed a tear. Think what that means! Think of the weeping of boys and girls, men and women, who in this world of hatred, sin and suffering, shed bitter tears of pain or sorrow. Well, it were almost enough to know that heaven is a place where there shall be no tears.

Remember that the promises of joyous completed redemption for these, the Gentile believers of the great tribulation, will be for all God's children, for us who believe in Christ. Reader, will you not join us today if you are still an unbeliever? Take Christ now as your Saviour.

THIS is a dress you'll love for summer wear, because it buttons all the way down the front and may be put on and taken off like a coat. None of this tugging on over the head which you know is a bother on a very hot day. You can make it in fine silk crepes and it will be one of the smartest and most impressive frocks in your entire wardrobe. For this style is dignified by a very pretty collar arrangement — a ruffled edge collar to be worn under the dress revers, so that just the ruffling shows. Send for Pattern No. 1435-B at once, and make it your next new dress.

Make this dress in any pastel or dark colored crepe, or in a pin dot cotton or silk crepe. Then the contrast of a white ruffle around the collar will stand out prettily. If the dress is to be of a printed crepe the ruffle might be of Irish crochet or Valenciennes lace; if it is a plain color the ruffle may be of organdy or net.

FAMOUS ALL-BRAN MUFFINS. EASY TO MAKE. DELICIOUS!

They really are the most delicious muffins that ever melted a pat of butter! Made with crisp, toasted shreds of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, they have a texture and flavor that have made them famous all over America.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN MUFFINS

2 tablespoons shortening	¾ cup milk
¼ cup sugar	1 cup flour
1 egg	½ teaspoon salt
1 cup All-Bran	2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and sugar, add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk, let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder, add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 6 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2¼ inches in diameter.

Try these delicious muffins for dinner tonight or for tomorrow morning's breakfast. They're not only good to eat; they're mighty good for you as well. For several of these muffins will add materially to your daily supply of what physicians call "bulk" in the diet, and thus help combat the common kind of constipation that is due to lack of this dietary essential Eat ALL-BRAN every day (either as a cereal or in muffins), drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation due to lack of "bulk" ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

What Foch Told General Who Couldn't Hold Line

There is a fine story being told of Marshal Foch.

One day during the last war when the position of things was critical and further retreat would have endangered the whole line, one of his divisional generals sent him a message saying that he could not continue to hold a certain line of trenches which had become untenable.

In reply, the marshal sent him this message:

"If you cannot hold on, you must advance."

It is a great motto for life, and the power to advance in such circumstances is where the great test comes.

You are hereby notified that on September 3, 1941, Kenneth Zwald et al filed a petition requesting that lateral No. 1 of D. D. No. 6 be changed from an open ditch to a tile drain, averaging in size from 12 to 24 inches.

You are further notified that C. F. Merten was appointed Engineer on September 3, 1941, to make a report and did on the same date file his report and does recommend that the improvement petitioned for by Kenneth Zwald et al be made as prayed.

Said report is now on file and may be amended at any time before final action is taken thereon by the Board of Supervisors, and the 20th day of October, 1941, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M. is the date set for a hearing thereon. Said hearing to be held at the Courthouse in Garner, Iowa.

All objections to said improvement as set out in the petition and recommended in the report of the Engineer, and all claims for damages must be in writing and must be filed in the office of the county auditor at or before the time set for the hearing thereon.

The foregoing notice published by order of the Board of Supervisors in accordance with sections 7440 and 7441, Code of Iowa, 1939, and amendments thereto.

Please take notice and govern yourselves accordingly.

Witness my hand and official seal this 6th day of September, 1941.

"Please Don't Hurt My Little Girl"

DEAR DRIVER

Last Monday my daughter, who is seven years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves Her cocker spaniel, whose name is "Scoot," sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved "goodbye" and started off to the halls of learning.

At night she talks about school. She tells about the girl who sits in front of her —the girl with yellow curls—and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She tells me about her teacher who has eyes in the back of her head—and about the trees in the school yard—and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talk about a lot of things—tremendously vital, unimportant things; then she will study spelling, reading and arithmetic . and then to bed.

Soon she will be sound asleep, with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm. You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut, or her head gets bumped, I can fix it . but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she is in YOUR hands.

She's a nice kid She can run like a deer and darts about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time—I have to work to pay for her clothes and education So, please help me to look after her Please drive carefully, please drive slowly past the schools and intersections—and please remember that children DO run from behind parked cars.

Please, don't hurt my little girl.

YOUR NEIGHBOR.

COUNTY ANNUAL C. T. A. PICNIC HELD

The annual Cow Testing association picnic and tour was held on Wednesday, September 10th according to information received from Ralph Ruggeberg, supervisor

Judging of dairy cattle was held in the forenoon at the Hastings & Dethmers, C J Wille and the John Knoedler farms. John Love of Garner and Gordon Upmeyer, of Garner with Raymond Wille of Klemme and Loren Abele of Garner as alternates, were chosen to represent the association at the national judging contest at the Waterloo Dairy Cattle Congress.

The official placings were placed on the cattle by Floyd Arnold, Extension Dairyman of Iowa State College who was assisting with the picnic and tour, and County Agent Burlin B Hamer.

Farmers of Hancock County, as well as those throughout the United States, Townsend declared, have been placed in a key position in the national defense organization and now is the time for farmers to mobilize their production forces under the common banner of the national farm program.

County AAA chairmen throughout the country have also been designated as chairmen of county USDA defense boards. designed to coordinate the work of all government agricultural agencies toward accomplishing the common goal "Food For Defense" Mr Townsend urged every Hancock county farmer to keep these two thoughts in mind and go to the polls Friday to elect the men who he feels will do the best job of administering the farm program both in the interests of agriculture and national defense

State Tug O'War Champs

Corn Should Not Be Harvested Until Moisture Content Is Low

C H Van Vlack, Iowa State College Extension Agricultural Engineer, this week pointed out that Iowa farmers can do three things to increase net returns from their corn crops and to aid in the National Defense program The three suggestions recommended are

1. Withhold harvesting of crops until a low moisture content is reached
2. Handle the corn at picking and shelling in such a manner that trashy and foreign material is removed from the stored corn
3. Build a storage structure which provides drying facilities for new corn and protection against weather and rodents.

Harvesting

The greatest mistake during many seasons, Van Vlack points out, is harvesting corn before the moisture content has been reduced sufficiently for safe storage in a well-ventilated crib Recent tests indicate that corn loses moisture during the fall and winter months many times faster on the stalk in the field than it does in a crib. This is true, the specialist asserts, even if the crib is properly located and ventilated Facilities for testing moisture content of grain are available in most AAA offices and at many grain elevators.

From the long-range point of view, Van Vlack says that farmers may accomplish much in obtaining sound corn and low moisture content by choosing a well-adapted hybrid If the corn is to be picked by hand, care should be taken to remove the majority of husks, and machine picking should not be delayed once the corn is ready for the crib Rubber-tired wagons will reduce the amount of corn which is shelled, particularly if the ground is rough

Faulty elevators also may play a large part in corn waste unless precautions are taken. Elevators should be equipped with grating to screen out shelled corn and dirt, and the elevator spout should be so managed that shelled corn and silks are well distributed and not deposited together near the center of the crib

Shelling Operations

During shelling operations, silage forks should be used in handling the corn from the crib to the sheller, Van Vlack states. Such forks allow litter, shelled and broken kernels, and other foreign material to be sorted from the corn.

Van Vlack asserts that poor shelling is one of the main causes of insect damage in stored and shelled corn. He points out that if all farmers insisted that shelling be done clean so that all the chaff and cob and finely divided material were blown out of the corn, there would be much less trouble from insects in stored shelled corn. In most cases the insects are present in the ear corn when it is shelled, and due to poor shelling, they get into the storage with the shelled corn

Buildings for storing corn on the farm are important to the average Iowa farmer as vaults are to the banker, the specialist says. Corn should be stored in cribs which permit the greatest possible movement of air Adequate drying facilities for new corn demands a suitable location and proper ventilation.

FULLER RE-UNION HELD HERE SUNDAY

Fifty-eight people gathered at the C A Larsen home Sunday for the annual Fuller re-union The occasion was also the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Wm. Leach of Dows.

The visiting relatives brought well filled baskets of food for the noon dinner and two birthday cakes were brought by Mrs Leach's daughters, Mrs. Glen Bryan, Dows, and Mrs. Kenneth Rogers, Bradford

Mrs. Leach is an aunt of Mrs. C. A. Larsen, Mrs. Ben Katter and Mrs. R. W. Elder.

The nine justices that constituted the Supreme court at the time (Feb. 5, 1937) President Roosevelt first made his proposals for changing the high tribunal's organization. They are: left to right front row: Louis D. Brandeis, Willis Van Devanter, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, James C. McReynolds and George Sutherland. Back row, left to right: Owen J. Roberts, Pierce Butler, Harlan F. Stone and Benjamin N. Cardozo.

By special arrangement with Collier's Weekly and Western Newspaper Union this newspaper presents in condensed form a series of four articles by President Roosevelt currently appearing in that magazine. The articles are taken from the President's newly written introductions to forthcoming volumes of his state papers. The first, condensed below, contains the President's own story of the fight for Supreme court reform.

THE FIGHT GOES ON
"The Constitution Prevails"

By Franklin D. Roosevelt

NOTABLE EVENT

A series of articles by the President of the United States is a notable event in journalism. Seldom has any newspaper had an opportunity to publish anything under the name of any President. While the present series of articles is of historical rather than of current moment, it is a notable contribution both to history and journalism. This newspaper publishes the articles without bias as to the opinions contained in them.

THIS was the year of the famous Supreme court fight—1937. This was the year which marked a definite turning point in the history of the United States. For, this was the year which was to determine whether the kind of government which the people of the United States had voted for in 1932, 1934, and 1936 was to be permitted by the Supreme court to function. If it had not been permitted to function as a democracy, it is my reasoned opinion that there would have been great danger that it might have been ultimately compelled to give way to some alien type of government—in the vain hope that the new form of government might be able to give the average men and women the protection and co-operative assistance which they had the right to expect.

For that reason I regard the effort initiated by the message on the Federal Judiciary of February 5, 1937, and the immediate results of it, as among the most important domestic achievements of my first two terms in office.

For two decades the Supreme court of the United States had been successfully thwarting the common will of the overwhelming majority of the American people; and had been diverting the functions and philosophy of government into channels which ran counter to the thought and objectives of progressive opinions throughout the modern civilized world . . .

The big choice before the American people in 1932 had been to determine whether they should continue the old type of administration or install a new one—definitely committed to the proposition that the federal government had not only the power, but the duty, to step in to meet with bold action the economic forces at play. The people had made their choice in 1932, and had emphasized it in 1934.

By the time of the election of 1936, however, it had become clear that this new concept of government and of its relation to economic and social problems was in danger of complete frustration. And the road ahead, for further, or even different, effective action to meet these problems, seemed to be completely blocked.

For a dead hand was being laid upon this whole program of progress—to stay it all. It was the hand of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The executive and legislative branches of the government had gone into action immediately in 1933. But they soon found that, athwart the path of progress along which they were moving, a majority of the Supreme Court of the United States was erecting a barrier which it was impossible to climb over, under or around True, not everything had been destroyed by judicial fiat. But the whole question of the power of the federal government to handle these problems in an effective, decisive way had been placed not only in doubt, but in positive jeopardy.

In the struggle between the political power of the people as expressed by their representatives and the economic power of private property, the Supreme court, in the generation preceding the spring of 1937, seemed almost invariably to lean toward the latter.

And the judicial process was being more and more frequently exercised by the court, to lay low the efforts of government to meet the pressing needs of the times in which it was functioning. In the first 70 years of our constitutional history, the court invalidated only two acts of the congress; in the next 70 years it nullified 58. Between 1920 and 1930 it declared 19 federal statutes unconstitutional. To climax this growth, the court in the three years beginning in October, 1933, set aside 12 statutes, five of which occurred in a single court year, October, 1935.

I have already discussed in the Introduction to the 1935 volume, the more important Supreme court cases involving New Deal legislation. Recapitulation will show how hopeless it looked, by the time I started the so-called Supreme court fight on February 5, 1937, that any really effective legislative program could withstand the assaults being made by the judicial branch of the government.

The first major blow had come in January, 1935. Our efforts to remove chaos from the third largest industry in the country—petroleum—were struck down. The oil-producing states had been unable individually to meet the problems which came from overproduction of oil, wasteful competition, and consequent bankruptcy prices. Only the national government could save the industry. It proceeded to try to do it. Pursuant to congressional statute, it prescribed quotas of oil for each oil-producing state, and permitted each state to prescribe fair quotas for each well within its boundaries. It then prohibited any interstate shipments of "hot oil," that is, oil produced in excess of these quotas. The states alone could themselves never have prevented these interstate shipments. The decision of the court, however, was that the statute was unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative power to the President.

This was the first time that a federal statute had ever been nullified on such a ground. But, unfortunately, it was not to be the last. This new doctrine—nowhere specifically mentioned in the Constitution—added much doubt and perplexity to framing all future legislation. Some delegation is, of course, necessary if government is to function at all. But neither from the words of the Constitution, nor from the mouth of the court, came any standards to fix the amount of delegation permissible.

The next decisions were on the question of the government's power to abrogate gold clauses in private and public contracts. These decisions, therefore, involved the entire control by the congress of the currency of the United States, and the whole gold and silver policy of the duly elected government. This policy was, to a great extent, the basis of the recovery program—the means used to bring order out of chaos in foreign exchange and domestic currency, and to remake the unfair debt structure then in existence. It can well be said that, in these decisions, the court was passing on the validity of the whole American economy, which had been accepted by the business and financial world almost universally since the enactment of the statute a year and a half earlier, and which was then in process of adaptation to the changing world economy.

The congressional action was sustained as to private contracts—but only by a five to four vote. It was held invalid as to public obligations; but by technical legalistic reasoning, the disastrous results of such a holding were avoided by a conclusion that no actual damage had been proved. Even as to this conclusion, four of the nine justices disagreed

By the slim margin of one human being, this very foundation of our recovery had been upheld. What a slim thread on which to hang the fate of a nation!

Then came, all in one day, May 27, 1935, a unanimous decision that the Frazier-Lemke act, designed to help farm mortgagors, was unconstitutional; a unanimous decision that the President could not remove a federal trade commissioner, although in an earlier case in 1926, the court had stated that the Executive could remove any officer he could appoint, even one with quasi-judicial powers; and a unanimous decision that the National Industrial Recovery act was unconstitutional.

This last decision was the most far-reaching. It again invoked the shadowy doctrine of unlawful delegation of powers to the Executive. If the court had stopped here, its job would have been done, and the damage would not have been wholly irreparable. But it went farther, and held that the statute and the code-making power under it were not a valid exercise of the power of the congress to regulate interstate commerce. This broad, sweeping assertion immediately cast a long shadow of doubt over everything which we had been doing, and were expecting to do, for the benefit of U. S. citizens, through the federal control of interstate commerce

This shadow of doubt became more definite and certain when the court, on January 6, 1936, by a vote of six to three, invalidated the agricultural adjustment program. The statute thus set aside had been enacted in 1933, and had been absolutely essential to the survival of agriculture in the panic of that year. The states alone were powerless by themselves to cope with the reduced farm income, with the prevailing bankruptcy prices for farm products with the burdensome surpluses and overproduction of farm commodities. If one state tried by itself, the adjoining state could nullify its efforts. Only the federal government could help—and in 1933 it did, almost immediately. The widespread, beneficial results of our farm program enacted to meet the agricultural crisis of 1933 are well-known now. Its benefits extended not alone to the farmer; they spread to all sections and to all groups throughout the land, by furnishing the farmers with purchasing power with which they could buy industrial products and manufactures of all kinds

But all this effort was destroyed The basis on which it was destroyed was even more disastrous in its implications than the immediate decision itself. It was apparently set aside on the chief ground, among others, that overproduction of farm commodities and all the dire results of such overproduction were not matters of general welfare but purely a local condition, of purely local concern to the respective states.

To remedy this condition, it was held, the congress could not pay farmers for voluntary crop limitation, under the general welfare clause of the Constitution—which by its terms would seem clearly to give the congress power to tax and spend for the general welfare The three dissenting justices characterized the majority opinion as a "tortured construction of the Constitution," and indicated how far reaching would be the effects of this kind of decision—a decision which was not based upon legal reasoning at all, but upon political and economic bias.

Army Wives May 'Blitzkrieg' Sea Base Home Builders

WASHINGTON — Army authorities here fidget nervously as they await first reports on how Mi-lady, meaning the Colonel's lady, takes to life in the garrisons of newly acquired Atlantic bases. Their flap pockets bulge with horseshoes, rabbit's foots, and other charm pieces and they piously cross their fingers and hope for the best.

Due to the fact that much standardization is essential and time a precious element, they have good grounds for apprehension, as it was not possible to consult with the wives of the officers before the O.K was given to the architects to proceed Officers responsible for the base construction work are bracing for the shock, when the women learn they will have no opportunity to comment on room arrangements, closets, decorating and other items so dear to their hearts

LUKE AND ELMER ON THAT SEA CONFERENCE

"What do you think of the eight point program?" asked Luke Twitchell of his brother Elmer.

"Well, Wilson needed 14," replied Elmer. "So you see Roosevelt took six strokes off Woodrow's game."

"And Roosevelt is playing over a much tougher course," said Luke, always the golfer.

"I'll say so," agreed Elmer. "They didn't have so many hidden greens in Wilson's time, the course didn't cover so much territory and there were fewer contestants."

"I suppose it ain't quite right to speak of a terrible war like this in terms of golf," sighed Luke.

"Why not?" snapped Elmer. "It has all the violence, bad manners, cheating and general brutality of the public links game, anyhow."

"Why meet on a battleship to frame a program for peace and brotherly love?" asked Luke, plainly puzzled.

"Dramatic suspense, color, mystery and all that," explained Elmer. "It ain't so much what you do or say in a crisis like this. It's how you put it over. That meeting had everything but sex appeal."

"All it needed was some John Powers' models," nodded Luke.

"It got across without 'em," insisted Elmer, "but I wonder they weren't used, at that. John Bull and Uncle Sam are out to fire the imagination of the world, kindle the enthusiasms of all friends of freedom and get their message into the mikes and onto the front pages everywhere. And this sea huddle did it."

"Whoever thought Churchill, number one man of the British empire, would leave London, fly to sea and hold a conference with the President of the United States in mid-ocean? And who ever thought the President of the United States could drop everything at Washington to go to sea for the same purpose?" asked Luke.

"It would even have been cut out of a movie script as too far-fetched," declared Elmer. "Get the picture! Roosevelt gets on his yacht and disappears in one of the big moments of history. His disappearance is so complete even the newsreel men can't find him. The suspense is terrific. Democrats everywhere begin to fear something has happened to him."

"And Republicans begin to fear something has not," put in Luke.

"Rumors of a conference with Churchill at sea are spread, but discredited as something that the hair tonic company would delete as incredible even if Gabriel Heatter put it in his radio broadcast," continued Elmer. "Nevertheless it turns out to be the real McCoy."

"Can you imagine the fit Hitler must have thrown when he turned aside from his Russian blitz in what he thought was one of his big moments and realized that Winston and Frankie had grabbed all the headlines?" asked Luke.

"He's still howling," said Elmer.

"What do you think of the eight points themselves?" asked Luke.

"I don't see much new," replied Elmer. "They're just Wilson's old model streamlined and with the fluid drive. But there was nothing wrong with the 14 points except that we forgot 'em too soon."

"Do you think the Roosevelt-Churchill eight points could have been improved?" asked Luke.

"I do," declared Elmer.

"By what?" asked Luke.

"By a ninth point," snapped Elmer. "A ninth point pledging Uncle Sam and John Bull not to go to sleep standing up in the middle of a bowling alley."

POLITICAL DYNAMITE

There was real political dynamite behind that letter President Roosevelt sent the Young Democrats convention in Louisville blasting Democratic isolationists as "obstructionists who are in the wrong party."

The scorching attack was a tip-off on undercover plans which may make next year's congressional elections the hottest in years.

Nothing has been said about it, but certain administration and Republican leaders have discussed uniting Democratic and Republican forces to oppose all congressional isolationists regardless of party label.

Under the proposed plan, Administration-G.O.P. backing would be thrown behind incumbent anti-isolationist congressmen whether they are Democrats or Republicans. Furthermore strong coalition candidates would be entered against isolationist congressmen seeking re-election.

One of the most significant things about the plan is that it has the hearty approval of Wendell Willkie.

Discussing it with a group of friends the G.O.P. standard bearer declared, "The people should have the opportunity in every senatorial and congressional election next year for a clear-cut expression of opinion on this all-important issue of foreign policy. This referendum should not be cluttered up with phony or inconsequential issues.

"In districts represented by isolationists we should put the strongest candidate in the field we can get, regardless of his party label or economic views. I'd like to see young men and women brought into this campaign. Let's get away from the old political hacks. Let's bring youth into this fight. It's theirs primarily and they should be in the lead in it.

"Personally, I am prepared to support anti-isolationist candidates regardless of their party affiliation or economic views. If they are right on the foreign issue, then I will be for them and will take the stump for them."

SMASHED PLANES

President Roosevelt didn't announce it, but there were two big reasons why Pan American Airways is taking over the ferrying of airplanes across the South Atlantic up the interior of Africa to the Near East.

One reason has since been published, the need of American warplanes to help the British in Iran and thus protect Russian oil fields in the Caucasus.

The other has not been published—namely that the British had been wrecking an extraordinarily large number of brand new planes in flying them across Africa.

As a matter of cold, unpleasant fact, the British have been losing about 20 per cent of the planes we have been giving them.

This was partly because the British did not use their own pilots, but Czech, French, Poles and Dutch. These aviators, sometimes too full of sloe gin, and sometimes not too well trained in the tough job of handling fast war planes, have succeeded in scattering the wrecks over the heart of Africa.

Furthermore, central Africa is one of the most uncharted and difficult flying areas in the world. The hop across the Atlantic has not caused the casualties. It is the remainder of the flight, from Freetown on the west African coast, up to Egypt.

This is why Roosevelt finally called upon Pan American Airways to take over the African hop. Its pilots have done a brilliant job of pioneering the jungles of the Amazon and the peaks of the Andes. And Roosevelt figured that if anyone could fly over Africa, Pan American could do it.

'AMERICA'S ANSWER'

The OPM is just releasing for wide distribution its first post promoting its drive for greater production.

Entitled "America's Answer—Production!" it is a masterpiece of power and drama. It pictures a brawny arm twisting a monkey wrench fastened to the letter "O" —shaped like a machine nut—in the word "prOduction."

The artist is Jean Karlu, as free a Frenchman as ever worked with one arm. He lost his right arm fighting for Democracy in the first World war and, until the fall of France, was doing an expert left-handed job painting posters for the French government.

Recently arrived in this country, Karlu wanted to continue his fight for a free France. He submitted his poster idea in sketch form and OPM officials snapped it up.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Taking a cue from the German Stuka dive bombers, U. S. army engineers have included a powerful siren in the midget M3 tanks. Its shrill shriek freezes green troops, and the army is counting on its scare power, at a 70-mile an hour speed, to make advance breaks through enemy lines.

Phil Baker in his new Broadway show said he will feature a song on how to have a good time in a parked car. The song is titled "Thanks for a lovely evening, Mr. Ickes."

Camp Cavalcade

SHADOWY figures in a cavalcade of American history—such are the men behind the names of the great army cantonments scattered all over the United States, where young Americans are learning to be soldiers in order to defend their country when the need arises.

If the deeds of a man who served brilliantly in three wars can inspire his fellow-Americans, then the men who are training at Camp Shelby, near Hattiesburg, Miss., have plenty of cause for inspiration. For it is named for Colonel Isaac Shelby, (1750-1826) born in Maryland but a settler in western Virginia at the outbreak of Lord Dumore's war in 1774. He fought in the historic Battle of Point Pleasant but he won his greatest fame during the Revolution as one of the leaders of the frontier riflemen who won the great victory over Major Ferguson's British at the Battle of King's Mountain. Moving to Kentucky after the Revolution, Shelby was one of the framers of the constitution of Kentucky and in May, 1782, was elected first governor of the new state. At the outbreak of the War of 1812 he led 4,000 volunteers to help Gen. W. H. Harrison fight the British and Indians in the Northwest and for his bravery at the Battle of the Thames he was given a gold medal by congress.

Isaac Shelby

Another Revolutionary war hero is immortalized in Camp Stewart near Hinesville, Ga.—Gen. Daniel Stewart, born near the site of the camp in 1761. He enlisted in the Patriot forces at the age of 15 and served under Marion and Sumter in South Carolina. Captured by the British, he escaped from a prison ship in Charleston harbor and immediately re-enlisted in the fight for freedom. After the Revolution he served in several Indian wars and rose to the rank of brigadier-general before his death in 1829.

Louisiana has two camps named for notables whose careers were closely associated with the history of that state. They are Camp Claiborne and Camp Livingston, both near Alexandria, La. William Charles Cole Claiborne (1775-1817) was a Virginian and a friend of Thomas Jefferson, who persuaded him to study law. He moved to Tennessee, where he became a member of the first Tennessee constitutional convention and was elected to congress. When the historic contest for the presidency between Jefferson and Aaron Burr was thrown into the house of representatives for a decision, Claiborne cast the deciding vote for his friend on the thirty-sixth ballot. Thereafter Jefferson appointed him territorial governor of Mississippi and in 1803 named him and General Wilkinson commissioners to receive Louisiana Territory from France. He became the first governor of the new Territory and finally United States senator but died before taking office.

W.C.C. Claiborne

Robert R. Livingston (1746-1813) was a native of New York, who was elected to the Continental congress and was a member of the committee appointed to draw up the Declaration of Independence. Elected chancellor of New York in 1777 and again in 1779, he, as the head of the government of that state, administered the oath of office to George Washington as first President of the United States. In 1801 Livingston, as United States minister to France, opened negotiations for the purchase from Napoleon of the territory beyond the Mississippi and two years later he and James Monroe signed the Louisiana Purchase treaty. He was associated with Robert Fulton in developing steam navigation and when he retired to private life it was to his estate, "Clermont," for which Fulton named his historic steamboat.

Origin of Army Titles

A captain commands a company and his title is derived from the Latin word for head, "caput." His second in command was his lieutenant, the man who held (tenant) the company in place (lieu) of his superior officer. Next came the sergeant, one who served (servir). Several companies together form a column commanded by a colonel (column). His second in command is a lieutenant-colonel and the third in command was originally a sergeant-major but is now a major.

TURKEY RANGES AND SANITATION

Four Important Points for Good Birds.

By GEORGE C. CRANDALL
(Assistant Poultry Husbandman, New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station.)

Sanitation on the turkey range is an important point in good management of growing poults. Here are four points vital to good range conditions. Check your turkey range now to see if it comes up to the desired standards.

First, the range area should not have been used by other poultry for at least two years. The land should not be contaminated by drainage water or poultry manure, and should be well drained and free from swampy areas.

Second, all feed hoppers should be so constructed as to exclude the droppings of the turkeys. The feed hoppers should be moved at least once a week to a clean place on the range. This helps to maintain good range conditions and avoids bare spots on the range.

Third, watering equipment should be so constructed or protected so that the dropping or foreign matter cannot contaminate the water. If the water equipment is stationary, wire platforms will keep the area around them dry and sanitary. Water pans or troughs should be scrubbed with a brush once daily. Disinfecting all water equipment at regular intervals is desirable. If the equipment is not stationary, it should be moved weekly to dry, clean places on the range.

Fourth, if the turkeys are allowed on open roosts on the range, this roosting area should be fenced separate from the range and so placed that the drainage from the roosting pens does not contaminate the range. The turkeys should be driven from the roosting area early in the morning and not allowed access to them until roosting time at night.

Tests With Homemade Paint Are Suggested

Many farmers are using a homemade paint of mortar coloring and used motor oil on barns and outbuildings. Some get good results, but others do not, says Howard M. Ellis, extension agricultural engineer. He suggests that some "experimenting" be done.

"Ordinarily," Ellis says, "from three-fourths to one pound of brick red mortar coloring will be required for each gallon of used oil. The blacker the oil, the more coloring it will require. Determine the proper mix as follows: Divide one pound of red mortar coloring into four parts. Mix in two parts (one-half pound) of the coloring, slowly, while the oil is being stirred. Paint a small section on the back of the building to be painted. Add another fourth of the mortar coloring to the original mixture and paint a second section beside the first. Repeat with the last fourth."

Allow the oil to penetrate the wood for a time, inspect and then decide which mix you desire.

Ellis says the homemade paint can be applied with an old orchard sprayer or with whitewash brushes. Mortar coloring is about six cents per pound at hardware stores. Crankcase drainings may be obtained free from some filling stations.

Advises Rest for Cows After Every Lactation

A dairy cow that is allowed a rest period after each lactation will produce from 5 to 10 per cent more milk annually than a cow that is milked continuously, says Dr. George E. Taylor, extension dairyman at the New Jersey college of agriculture, Rutgers university.

"There are several reasons why this is true," he says. "During peak production, cows secrete more nutriments than they are able to assimilate from the feed consumed, thus depleting the body reserve. By storing a reserve of fat and minerals, especially calcium and phosphorus, in the body before freshening they are able to maintain a higher level of production following calving. The udder also undergoes a change during the dry period, resulting in a recuperation of the glandular milk secreting tissue.

"Research workers have shown that production during the subsequent lactation increases with a lengthening of the dry period.

Handling Hay

A method of handling hay which is gaining in popularity with farmers, is what they call the automotive sweep or buck rake. These sweeps or rakes are mounted on tractors, old trucks, or old automobiles and are used to pick the hay up out of the windrow and transport it to the barn, baler, or stack. With a large increase in hay acreage during the last few years, many farmers find it necessary to change methods of handling hay.

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CAREY WILSON, producer of the Hardy Family pictures, was awarded a Master of Arts degree by the Colorado State College of Education recently, in recognition of his "artistic, creative and ethical contributions to the screen and because the Hardy pictures have made an outstanding contribution to clean, wholesome entertainment for the American people."

All of which is pretty impressive. But—right on the heels of all that, the National League of Decency cracked down on "Life Begins for Andy Hardy," the latest of the series, finding it objectionable for children!

Norma Shearer is back in Hollywood after a visit in New York, preparing for her first film since "Escape." It will be "We Were Dancing," based on a Noel Coward stage success, and Melvyn Douglas will be her romantic partner. He's now occupied with "The Twins," along with Greta Garbo and Constance Bennett—that's the one in which Garbo evidently does practically everything but walk a tight rope.

NORMA SHEARER

Lyle Moraine, who writes songs and works in pictures, was inspired by Bob Hope's "Caught in the Draft" to write "I've Been Drafted, Now I'm Drafting You," which Hope and Miss Lamour sang on the air. Moraine announced the other day on the "Louisiana Purchase" set that part of the title had been in the nature of a prophecy. He's set for a compulsory role in the army.

Dinah Shore, who sings "Yes My Darling Daughter" so effectively that it made her famous on the air, has had to defer her picture-making plans. She's been re-signed for the new Eddie Cantor program, which means that she'll remain in New York. Cantor is set to stay there; he's returning to the stage in the autumn in a musical comedy entitled "Banjo Eyes."

The Rudy Vallee program now has an impressively large production staff—six script writers and four song writers, to turn out the original music. All of which doesn't keep John Barrymore from ignoring the script and ad libbing occasionally.

Lana Turner's making it three in a row—three of Hollywood's most popular male stars. She did "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" with Spencer Tracy. Then came "Honky Tonk" with Clark Gable. Her next is "Johnny Eager," an underworld story, with Robert Taylor. That one sounds familiar — ex-convict, soured on the world, and society darling who falls in love with him.

As was expected, Ellen Drew lost no time after doing location scenes in Nevada for "The Remarkable Andrew" before marrying Sy Bartlett in the same state. Paramount lost no time in putting her into "Prison Widows," a story of the women who wait outside prison gates for their men to return to them. She's being currently seen on the country's screens in "The Parson of Panamint."

Mildred Coles was heartbroken a while ago when, after a week's shooting in "Scattergood Pulls the Strings," she came down with acute appendicitis and Susan Peters had to take over her role. Now she's happy; she's leading lady in "Scattergood Meets Broadway."

ODDS AND ENDS—Ann Sheridan will be in two Warner pictures at the same time for the next two months—"The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "King's Row" . . The Mutual chain will bring five championship boxing bouts to the air this late summer and fall . . Wade Hoyt never was afraid of anything when he played baseball—but now that he's broadcasting he's afraid of the word "particularly" . . Betty Harrison, Deanna Durbin's stand-in for five years, will appear on the screen for the first time in Deanna's "It Started With Adam" . . Tyrone Power won new laurels recently when he returned to the stage at an eastern little theater.

HANCOCK COUNTY HOME MAKERS STUDY DIETS

People in Hancock County are not as well fed as the large amounts of food available would indicate, Eleanor Eyestone, home demonstration agent, told homemakers in a series of five meetings conducted the second two weeks in September

Miss Eyestone suggested ways of planning the year's food supply to provide the following standard food requirements for each day

Milk, 1 quart for children and a pint for adults; 1 to 2 ounces of butter; at least one egg; serving of meat; two servings of whole cereals; two servings of fruits, one of them high in vitamin C; 2 vegtables, at least one raw or leafy; potatoes.

To meet this food plan home gardeners can store or freeze the equivalent of 260 quarts of fruit, 225 quarts of vegetables and 100 quarts of tomatoes and juice. This also will help release commercially canned foods for army use and for shipment abroad and may also help meet possible food scarcities and transportation difficulties in the future Better food management is also a means of increasing income

Tells How To Store Foods

Storage, the chief method of preserving certain fall vegetables, requires ventilation Simple methods were presented and from 33 to 40 degrees was given as the ideal storage temperature for root vegetables, cabbage and similar vegetables. If a ground pit is used put a variety of vegetables in several pits so that only one need to be opened at a time. Screening the opening prevents rodents from entering For proper ventilation an opening about a foot square is necessary for each 1,200 cubic feet of space

Miss Eyestone gave information on fall moving, plowing and fertilizing of the garden This discussion of the year's food plan precedes four series of nutrition training schools to be presented. Topics and months for the meeting series as described by Mrs. L. F. Weaver, county home project chairman are: Phase 1. Food Needs and how to meet them, in October. Phase 2. Methods in Food Preparation for standard products, in November and December. Phase 4. The Farm Family and the World Today, January and February.

Mrs. Weaver invited all homemakers of the county to participate, not only from a standpoint of improving their families' nutrition but also as a contribution to national defense. She urged community cooperation in such activities as school lunches, donation or exchange of surplus and helping to spread the latest nutrition knowledge.

This initial meeting, a semi-social affair, closed with refreshments.

ELECTRICITY

Robert Worrell of Postville was injured when 2,700 volts of electricity passed through his body while he was working on a pole. He was thrown to the ground but managed to get into his truck and drove two miles before collapsing. Worrell suffered severe burns on his left hand, arm and foot.

Gas, Chemicals Effective As Mosquito Exterminator

Walk out on the lawn on a moist day or saunter among the shrubs and, presto! you may stir up a blitzkrieg.

One hundred of the 150 varieties of the family culcidae—the hungry mosquito to you—will swarm to the attack You know the rest.

Hordes of them have been, are now and will continue to raise millions of welts on thousands of anatomies.

The best systems of defense against mosquito fleets have been outlined by W. E. Dickinson, Milwaukee, Wis., curator of lower zoology at the museum.

In a special communique he gave directions for gas and chemical warfare to prevent the enemy from winning on the garden party and picnic front.

"Spread small heaps of pyrethrum powder strategically over the field of action," his order reads. "Light the powder and gas the enemy. If you have no pyrethrum powder engage in chemical assault by spraying field of action with mixture of four ounces of creosol, one-third ounce of oil of mybrane and two quarts of kerosene."

In a second order he gives explicit rules for protecting the exposed flanks.

"Apply mixture of one ounce citronella, one ounce spirits of camphor and one-half ounce of oil of cedar, or mixture of equal parts of castor oil, alcohol and either oil of lavendar or oil of rose geranium."

In case of attack a third order decrees:

"Strike hard, smash the enemy."

Mercury Is Only Metal Common in Liquid Form

Did you ever accidentally break a thermometer and then try to pick up some of the heavy silvery droplets of mercury that had spilled out? They were liquid, yet they did not wet the table's surface. They scurried elusively about; they defied your efforts to seize them. No wonder the Romans christened that mysterious liquid argentum vivum and we today call it by the English translation of that same name—quicksilver.

Many people do not recognize mercury as a metal simply because it is a liquid, writes Harry M. Day in Nature magazine. It is a true metallic element, none the less—just as much a metal as tin, zinc or lead. The fact that we usually see it as a liquid means simply that its melting point happens to fall below our ordinary temperatures; it is, strictly speaking, a molten metal Professor Braune, at St. Petersburg, first succeeded in freezing it at 40 degrees below zero and recognized its true metallic properties. In its low melting point mercury is unique, and out of its uniqueness arise many of its uses and indispensable services to mankind.

What You Can Do

Neighbors, who are musically inclined, occasion the most disputes A New York judge, according to news commentator Helen Rowland, ruled with the wisdom of Portia that a man could keep his radio going night and day if he wished but that if one note crossed the air shaft into a neighboring apartment he could be charged with disturbing the peace.

People who know their rights may collect liberally upon this knowledge. A widow in the Bronx and her two daughters received $100,000 from a sheriff's jury in a slander action against a neighbor who had talked with such effect that a policeman engaged to one of the girls broke it off. A manager of a New Jersey country club, who had been charged by a member with forgery, was tried, acquitted, and then won a judgment of $20,000, for false arrest. The "haymaker" that an Omaha detective landed on the jaw of a robbery suspect proved a boomerang for a court awarded the man $1,213 damages for the physical pain and indignities he had suffered.

Perfect Teeth Family Revealed

Declared to be a case virtually unparalleled in dental history, a mother and daughter of Los Angeles were discovered to have perfect teeth, during an exposition of the Los Angeles Health Defense exposition, recently They are Mrs. Jessie Haden and her daughter, Marthe Haden. Mrs. Haden said that her son, Robert, also has perfect teeth.

Mrs Haden explained her molar perfection by stating that she has always eaten good food, plenty of vegetables, raw carrots and leafy dishes. "We drink raw milk at our house," she said. "Since I was a child, I have massaged my gums daily. As a youngster I chewed raw meat for the vitamin content—and perhaps that has something to do with it."

Real Causes of Divorce

Divorce laws and decrees seldom recite the real causes for divorce, according to some psychologists. Things are seldom brought out before the court are the differences in temperament, social background, education, life habits, philosophy of life, etc.

When psychologists bring out these real causes, the parties concerned often become reconciled. One noted psychologist states that no couple should ever seek a divorce without first seeking the advice of a psychologist trained in marriage counselling.

NEW COTTON STOCKINGS ARE ATTRACTIVE

New in the hosiery world are cotton stockings—not the familiar fuzzy, shapeless ones, but attractive, full-fashioned coton hose for street as well as kitchen wear.

Cotton hose are making their appearance most opportunely too—just when Iowa homemakers have been speculating about what the government's order freezing raw silk stocks will mean to the hosiery counter. Nylon, the leading synthetic hosiery fiber, is not yet produced in sufficient quantity to fill the gap.

Cotton lisle hose are expected to gain in importance in this situation, and some of them already are being made by manufacturers. The designs vary from cobweb mesh to plain knits and are suitable with both dress and work costumes The U S Bureau of Home Economics has for several years been working on improved cotton stockings, mostly with a view to utilizing the cotton surplus About 150 designs have been developed.

One of the greatest objections to old-style cotton hosiery was the lack of fit; so the Bureau has eliminated that problem. The stockings formerly were knit on a circular form and then boarded into shape Now they are full-fashioned in the same manner as silk stockings, with shaped legs, strong neat back seams, French double-woven heels, ring toes and cradle soles. The tops on many of them are two-way stretch and have run stops and reinforcemtnts.

The yarn is mercerized and gassed before being knit Mercerized yarn is stronger and has a higher luster than plain yarn, it absorbs perspiration better than unmercerized stockings and when moist, it dries faster The ends of the cotton fibers are made smoother by gassing

Several novelties have been developed — shaded effects, heavy mesh designs for sportswear, mesh toes and heels to go with open-toed sandals, delicate lacy weaves for afternoon costumes and just plain service weight for everyday Although cotton stockings are no more run-proof than any other, even a snag isn't a calamity because a run travels slowly in cotton yarn

The hose are being made of 2-ply yarns in numbers ranging from 60-2 to 160-2, and like spool cotton, the lower the number the coarser the thread And the higher the guage the less strain when the stocking is stretched sidewise in pulling it on.

Various finishing treatments to improve the elastic properties, water repellency and snag resistance are being investigated. The more elastic the more apt a stocking is to cling to the leg and not become "baggy" Water-repellent stockings resist spotting and are easier to wash than untreated ones.

With the promising possibilities in cotton hose, Iowa home-makers need have no cause for worry over going hoseless. If silk is not available, cottons will be "the style" in America

LONG SERVICE

At the beginning of the school term this fall, Miss Aletta Grant of Rolfe began her 34th year of teaching in the rural schools of Pocahontas county

RUNAWAY

A runaway car belonging to Miss Pauline Fry of Creston coasted down a slope in a Red Oak cemetery crashing through the iron fence. The car was badly damaged as it struck a tree head-on causing it to bounce upward where a limb pierced several holes in the top.

PIED PIPER

Bernnie Craig of Clarinda is a modern Pied Piper During one month he caught 54 rats in steel traps.

SURVIVORS

A large barn was destroyed and a corn crib badly damaged by fire with almost total loss of contents on the Frank DeBower farm near Norton's Corners Survivors of the ordeal were the family cat and her kittens, who although badly singed, were still alive after being buried in the debris for 9 hours.

Dress up salad plates with large celery stalks which have been filled with a mixture of cottage cheese, chopped chives and crumbled canned shrimp. Dust with paprika for color

TWO PURPOSES

Earl R. Roscoe of Denison is quite proud of an apple tree on his place. It bore apples and had blossoms on it at the same time this year. However, there were just two apples on the tree, much to Roscoe's disappointment.

CHEATED HOSPITAL

Edward Boeise of Postville was on his way to a hospital to have an apple core. lodged in his throat, removed, when a hard coughing spell brought the core "to the top."

GAS

An attendant at a Harlan oil station mistakenly opened a wrong valve while filling a tank wagon, with the result that 700 gallons of gasoline ran out on the ground The error was not discovered until it was noticed that the wagon had not filled although enough gasoline had passed through the pipes Firemen ditched the gas out of danger of fire.

HERMAN PAUL, Mgr. Klemme,

For Re-Sealing Your Corn This Year---

DO IT THE MOST ECONOMICAL WAY

. . . AND THE BEST WAY

● By building your bins out of LUMBER you have a building that can be used for many different purposes if the time comes that you do not need it for storage of corn. That is worth thinking over!

● We can PLAN YOUR BINS so that you can build with that purpose in mind A Machine Shed, a Garage or some other building can be built that way.

● Come in and let us talk it over. Using LUMBER is also the most economical!

"BLOSSOMS IN THE DUST" COMING TO AVERY

"Blossoms in the Dust" in technicolor and with marvelous production, cast and background, tells the story of Edna Gladney and her orphans' home, a home similar to that of Father Flanigan and his Boys Town

Greer Garson has the titular role in the picture, playing at the Avery Theatre at Garner, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday Sept 21-22-23 Walter Pidgeon is starred as Garson's husband who worships her. Felix Bressart tops the supporting cast as a kindly country doctor who takes up orphange work; Marsha Hunt as an orphan does fine work.

"Blossoms in the Dust" is a picture you must see by all means

ALAN LAU HAD BIRTHDAY SURPRISE PARTY

Mrs. Leonard Lau succesfully planned and carried out a birthday surprise party last Wednesday afternoon for her son Alan when she invited a number of children to help him celebrate his fith birthday.

Games were played but the big moment for all came when Alan's packages were opened and all had fun playing with the toys

Those present were Leonard Yahnke, Dick Dulme, Lois Ann Jacobs, Allan Neuberger Carol Ann Montgomery and Don Thieman.

GAVE PARTY

Mrs Jennings Anderson held an afternoon party at her home north of Klemme, Friday when she entertained relatives and friends

The ladies played Bingo which was greatly enjoyed

A nice lunch was served by the hostess

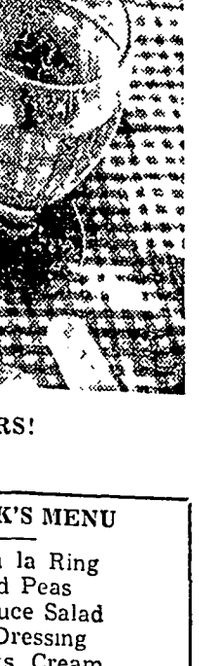
Rice Ring.

Cook 1 cup of rice in 8 cups of boiling salted water. Cook rice until tender and fluffy. Remove from boiling water and rinse well with cold water. Drain thoroughly.

1 cup parsley, chopped fine
1 onion
½ green pepper
1 cup whole milk
2 tablespoons any well-flavored cheese
4 eggs
Salt and pepper to taste

Beat egg yolks until thick, then add the milk, rice and other ingredients. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites last. Pour into a well-greased ring mold. Set in a pan of hot water and bake from 30 to 40 minutes in a 350 to 375-degree F. oven. Or you may want to add left-over meat or fish to your rice foundation. Try one or all—you'll find the combinations tempting.



Romantic Meat Pie.

(Serves 6)

A very nutritious kind of pie is this one, with crescent biscuits riding a sea of meat, vegetables and gravy. And it's an excellent way to serve left-over meat. Almost any of the thrift cuts can be used. You'll need:

4 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons green pepper
½ cup diced celery
1 cup diced cooked meat
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk or meat stock
½ cup diced cooked carrots

Slowly brown onions, pepper, celery and cooked meat in cooking fat, stirring often. Add flour slowly, stirring constantly until brown. Add remaining ingredients. Heat thoroughly. Pour into well-greased baking dish and cover with baking powder biscuits which have been cut in crescent shapes. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) about 15 minutes, or until biscuits are browned.

Why not try this sweet potato left-over which is sure to be a hit with either fish, fowl or meat: Mash the potatoes and shape into ½-inch cakes. Sprinkle with flour and brown quickly in hot fat. Then serve.

Sure, it's a big problem to figure ways of using assorted flakes and bits of yesterday's meal. But, don't eye them coldly—show them the heat again. Your family will love you for it!

Ham Souffle.

2 cups scalded milk
3 tablespoons butter or other fat
3 tablespoons flour
½ cup bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
Buttered bread crumbs
2 cups ground cooked ham
3 eggs
Grated cheese

Make a cream sauce of milk, fat, flour and salt. Add bread crumbs and cook 3 minutes. Add ham and egg yolks and carefully fold in whites beaten until stiff. Turn into well-greased baking pan or casserole, spread top with buttered crumbs and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake about 30 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Serve at once.

Meals that follow holiday feasts can be made beguiling by clever use of foods left from the feasts themselves.

Salvage leftovers from the relish tray, grind or chop them, moisten with a little salad dressing and out comes a brand new sandwich filler. Spread some between hot toasted rolls or bread slices at snack time.

'We're All Americans'

As a singer and commentator I ave had my say via radio to millions of Americans both at home and abroad From time to time I receive gracious invitations from editors to express myself as a reporter on topics of the day. I always welcome such opportunities and more so now, for I feel that not enough is being said on behalf of America for Americans

Not so long ago I introduced a new song of America titled "We're All Americans" which your editor thought should be the title of this column. The lyrics of this song which I made recently for Columbia Records, reads:

*We're all Americans,
We're proud to bear the name;
Our nation's fathers wove a flag
By the light of freedom's flame.
Now waving bravely overhead,
It tells us what to do,
We're all Americans,
All true blue

*Permission by Collwill Corp.

It is that flag which gave us our birthright It is that spirit which gave us our courage. It is that freedom which made our land a great democracy It is that something—faith perhaps—which is found in the following stories·

Youthful America

I'm thinking of a child, a little girl of 11. An average American girl, her name is Mary Esther Wheatley, from Hamburg, N Y. . . . Mary's daddy was an aviator. His was a hazardous job for he flew the untried planes . . . he was a test pilot. Making aviation safe for America was his vocation. One day, not long ago, he made his last flight for his ship crashed in San Diego bay. The heaviest heart in the world was Mary's, but slowly she recaptured the faith which had always made her brave and understanding. She wrote the following lines

They say my father died . . . he did not die,
Why just tonight I heard him fly—above my roof . .
They say he folded his wings at sea . . but daddy would have wanted me
To doubt these things. You can't fold wings
That for a lifetime have been spread to fly above a first child's head!

Tonight when all the world is still,
I'll lean upon my window sill,
And listen for you, Daddy Bill,
And though the whole world fails to note
A fast-approaching dying boat, with ghostly motors in his throat,
I'll hear it come, and I shall be
Proud . . . proud that you flew east to me . . .
On wings . . that no one else can see!

Americans at Home

Everyone is talking these days about our national defense effort; and hundreds of thousands of loyal Americans are figuring out ways, great and small, to help. Knoxville, Tenn, . . . has figured out one that seems to be a very substantial contribution. For several years, Knoxville was the first major city in the Tennessee valley to use electricity generated by the TVA. But now, instead of an unlimited use of electric lighting, the city has resorted again to flickering oil lights.

The Aluminum company's plants at Alcoa need all the power they can get. It is TVA power Since somebody has to conserve it, Knoxville has taken the lead in setting an example. Merchants are turning off their window display lights and signs at night. One store in the downtown section substituted oil lanterns in its display windows, and strung them around the store's marquee A florist has resorted to candles to light his windows A cafeteria also uses candles to light the restaurant for its Family Night

Under the impetus of these public demonstrations of power savings, more and more ideas for curtailing power have been originated A 25 per cent curtailment of consumption is the goal

A Foreigner Abroad in America

Last month hearts of all Americans were touched with great sorrow at the passing of Ignace Jan Paderewski A magnificent pianist, a supreme master of music, his technical skill was enhanced by his warm personality and generous nature.

Polish by birth and loyally working all his life for that land he loved, still Paderewski was an internationalist . a citizen of the world. Even when he was ill and weak, even when he no longer played the beautiful music that has delighted millions through the years, he gave his remaining strength toward the rehabilitation of his countrymen Always he was a leader among men. And yet he was a simple man . . speaking a simple language.

It is fitting that we here in America honor this man.

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

OVERCOMING THE ADVERSARY

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 12 7-12, 15 2-4
GOLDEN TEXT—And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony, and they loved not their lives unto the death —Revelation 12 11.

War! What a familiar word! Men are saying we should put an end to war We wish it were possible, but as long as sin rules in the hearts of men, there will be wars, in fact, our lesson tells us of a greater war which is to take place in the heavens. The devil is busy not only on earth, but in the heavenly places, and wherever he is there is war Only when Christ, the Prince of Peace, comes to reign will peace come to all the earth.

Our lesson presents three scenes: Conflict in heaven, rejoicing over victory there, and a victory on earth which brought joy in heaven.

I. War in Heaven (12.7-9).

A clear, succinct, and helpful word on these verses is quoted from Dr John R Bradbury

"The dispensational interpretation of this passage is that during the period of tribulation, which follows the rapture of the saints, as described in I Thessalonians 4·15-18, I Corinthians 15 51, 52, and other passages, there will be a war in heaven between Michael and his angels and the devil and his. Satan is not in hell now. It is wrong to teach that he is there. He is the prince of the power of the air. He rules the darkness of this world. He inspires wickedness in his domain and on earth Against these conditions the Christian is solemnly warned to prepare (Eph. 6 10-18). When we say that Satan is in heaven, we do not mean the heaven of the immediate presence of God The Bible speaks of different heavens and there is even a 'heaven of heavens' (I Kings 8 27).

"From whence come all the cross-currents of wickedness now sweeping over the world—many of them contrary to the wishes of the vast majority of the people? That there is a malevolent genius directing sinister operations to hinder and baffle God and to destroy mankind is easy to understand. Many people ask, 'Why does not God destroy him?' The answer to that is in this lesson. His hour is coming. He will be expelled from his domain by Michael and his angels. Then, because the people of this world have co-operated with Satan so willingly, he will be allowed to take refuge in the earth. He will come down (v. 12) in great wrath, 'because he knoweth that he hath but a short time.' "

II. Rejoicing in Heaven (12:10-12).

If we accept what seems to be the correct view; namely, that the woman of Revelation 12 1-5 is Israel, the nation in which the child (v. 5), who is Christ, was born, then it would appear that those who here rejoice in the victory over the dragon (Satan) would be the Jewish believers who will have come through great tribulation. At the same time it is quite appropriate to apply the truth of the passage to us who now find ourselves in conflict with Satanic powers.

The accuser does not hesitate to appear even in the presence of God to bring charges against us (see Job 1:6-12). But we need not fear him, for he is already judged (I John 16.11) and will (as we see in our lesson) one day be cast down to earth, and (as other Scripture reveals) will ultimately be cast into the lake of fire (Rev 20.10).

But he is here now, a supernatural (but not divine) being, plaguing us, tempting us, accusing us. What shall we do about it? As to his accusation, we know we have a just and loving God and also have an Advocate to plead our causes before Him (I John 2·2). For his present attacks, our lesson gives the secret of spiritual victory in verse 11.

III. Victory on Earth (Rev. 15: 2-4).

The scene of victorious rejoicing which we see here is evidently in heaven, but it is because of victory on earth. Here are those that have come through the horrible conditions described in Revelation 13, and have been victorious over the beast, in spite of his great powers.

They sing, that is the token of real victory, of a heart victory. Whatever loss they may have suffered, and whatever trials they may have gone through, they have "gotten the victory" (v. 2). They sing the song of Moses and the Lamb (cf. Exod 15 1-21 and Rev. 5:9-14).

It is right that the redeemed of the Lord should sing, glorifying the name of God (v. 4) and magnifying His great and marvelous works (v 3) Let us remind ourselves again that if we are Christians, we are on the victorious side. The glimpse into the heavens which we find in our lesson should give us the right perspective with which to view the troublesome experiences of life. God has a plan, and He will bring it to complete and victorious fruition in His own time and His own way.

USE OF SALT REDUCES POULTRY CANNIBALISM

The salt "cure" for cannibalism, or feather picking, in poultry has been found more effective than had been anticipated when the theory was introduced, according to W. R. Whitfield, Iowa State College extension poultry specialis.

This treatment consists of feeding a regular mash to which 4 additional pounds of salt have been added. The mash should contain from 18 to 20 per cent protein and should be given for a period of one week. Whitfield says the treatment may have to be repeated a few weeks later if the habit returns, but experience indicates that it rarely reappears the second time.

Poultrymen who notice birds picking feathers on the floor of the henhouse, or picking feathers from the backs or tails of other birds, are advised to use salt treatment immediately. Cannibalism is a vicious habit which gets worse if allowed to continue.

The specialist points out that the trouble also will increase in intensity when the birds get into the laying houses, and a higher percentage of pickouts will result when fall production of eggs begins, particularly if the birds are confined.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Smid and baby son of Glenwood, Minnesota came Saturday for a few day's visit with Mr. Smid's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Smid and other relatives in this community. Mr. Smid is in the painting business at Glenwood

Mr and Mrs. C. G. Waterman accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Dulmes drove to Mason City Friday afternoos to bring Miss Marian Waterman home for the week end. Miss Waterman is a sophomore in the Mason City Junior College this year.

C. C. Kilgore received several rolls of film from his son, "Pete" who is stationed at the army camp at Camp Wolters, Texas. The pictures were very good and of a variety taken around the camp and the surrounding countryside. The barracks are well constructed and neat and comfortable looking. The pictures of the country-side show the terrain to be thickly covered in places with scrub timber. Several of the pictures showed "Pete" in uniform and he looks strong and healthy.

A Beauty Secret Older Than Cleopatr

Your eyes were made for seeing outdoors in light hundreds of times brighter than the average homes use today. Indoor living, close-seeing tasks like reading and sewing will produce frown wrinkles in your forehead and fatigue lines around your eyes if the light's not right.

Fortuneately, modern inventions have provided the means of giving you the kind of light you need. For instance, scientists worked for several years to perfect the I. E. S. Lamps. You can buy them at our store and the price has come steadily down. Or see the clever new "adapters" that change old lamps and old fixtures into modern sight-protecting light sources.

Don't risk your beauty and health in bad light another day! Shop now for the light you need in your home to prevent eyestrain. Remember, good light costs only a few cents a night.

A Letter From "Major" Bowles

FORMER COACH TELLS OF ARMY MANEUVERS

The following letter was received by the Editor from Bodge" Bowles, former Klemme high school coach now with the army at Camp Claiborne

Bowles will probably shoot the Editor for printing this letter, but we are sure our readers will enjoy it so we will take a chance on Bowles blowing up the place Here 'tis

14 September 1941
Bivouac Area Near Oakdale Louisiana

Dear Jergies,

By golly I have misplaced your letter and don't remember where it was misplaced so if there was anything urgent or any questions in it I will probably have to pass them up this time

Well, we've passed thru another phrase of the war games, small Army manuevers, but hold your hat James we are in the midst of the big one and it is going to be a 'hum-dinger', against large air concentrations parachute troops, all sizes of tanks working in and behind our lines--this should make considerable bull' material when I get back to Iowa on a furlough? I hold the animal by the tail and when I get home I'll grab his horns and let 'er fly!!! 'xcuse me

Have done so little the past few days that I have forgotten about all I did know and that didn't take much effort you know Things progress just about as per-usual a battle is a battle and the movements are about the same---move up, attack or retreat etc

I got a nice letter from Barney the other day and I wrote him a big one right back. Got the Klemme paper last night, I still get it at Anti-Tank -- some day those guys are going to burn my mail up??? I hope their bark is louder than their bite

Here we are beginning to look forward for the movements to end but we don't know when. Everyone has an idea and the rumors that are circulated are enough to choke a cow---some of the boys believe them and write home about them, that's where you get all of those movement stories etc They believe anything, after they look around they'll see that just some cocky Luiet. is the originator of a story from the General????

Too bad the fish aren't biting, if you'd leave the bate in the boat and if you'd go down and swim around Ray I believe you'd catch more -- at least more suckers. The boys do some fishing down here in the streams, but none too good a luck as yet Best bet is to drop down to the gulf and do a bit of deep sea fishing -- if you have the $$$$$$$

The hospital accident of being burned was assimulated as is most everything else in the Army game. We have had 2 hurricane warning in the past week but they have missed us. the one last night was a reported 62 7 mph wind with 7-8 ins. of rain --- we'll get one some of these days and oh, how far will these pup-tents fly?? We usually, we have to I should say, camp in swampy areas and a good inch would stick us for a month

I gotta chuck off now, hope Jergie Jr got in a bit of a lick in rushing the Frosh and the 'Delts'. How's the situation?? Do you know of any likely candidates for the cannon-fodder kid??? How's Kline incorporated??? Hope not too busy

Bodge

We got the 'alert' signal last night on the battle, and our Regiment is really scattered, and how are we going to get rations to them is a good riddle to try to solve, tho they more than likely be drawing rations from the unit they are attached to One Company is with the 166th F. A. about 40 mile south of us, they are forming the rear guard for the V Corps. Another Company is protecting an air-port that is hide over here in the woods about five miles from us A third Company is scattered out over the 34th Div bivouac area guarding against parachute troops and the last Company out is on patrol duty on the roads -- soon Anti-Tank and a heavy or .50 cal. machine gun company will join the Destroyer Force, this D. F. is a new type of unit and is composed of 75s, 37s and .50 cal machine guns formed to stop and combat all tank threats, you'll hear a lot about this new unit in the U. S Army

We will be playing war games for about or for at least another week or 10 days. We will probably pull out of here shortly after noon today.

Adieu

COUNTY CORN PICKING CONTEST AT KANAWHA FARM

The Elmer Engstrom farm in Amsterdam township has been selected as the site of the 1941 Hancock County corn picking contest. Plans and arrangements for the event are being made cooperatively by the Kanawha Chamber of Commerct and the Hancock County Farm Bureau.

At the present time seven corn pickers have indicated their intentions to be contestants in this event. Accomodations at the farm will handle twelve contestants. Anyone interested in competing in this county-wide event should register at the Farm Bureau office in Garner immediately.

Various merchants of Kanawha are cooperating in supplying all the necessary equipment needed for the contest, October 17th.

MISS IRENE SUCKOW BRIDE OF ARNET WADDINGHAM

Will Reside In Klemme After Trip Through Minnesota

Irene Suckow, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Suckow of Klemme, and Arnet Waddingham, son of Mrs. Anna Waddingham of near Ventura, were united in marriage at The Little Brown Church near Nashua, Iowa, on Thursday morning, September 18th, 1941, at 10:30 o'clock, by the Rev. F. L. Hanscom, who used the double ring ceremony in performing the marriage rites

Miss Mildred Blumer acted as Bridesmaid, while Ardell Waddingham, brother of the Groom, was the Best Man

The Bride wore a Royal Blue dress and had a corsage of Talisman and Lester Hibbard roses.

The Bridesmaid wore a Navy Blue dress with white accessories. The Groom wore a Teal Blue suit and the Best Man also wore blue.

After the wedding ceremony the party returned to Klemme where a 5 30 o'clock wedding dinner was served at the John Suckow home.

Besides the wedding party, the guests were Mrs. Anna Waddingham and son, Curtis; Mr. and Mrs. John Suckow and family; Grandma Suckow, Grandma Schuldt, and Miss Mildred Thieman.

Mrs. D P. Anderson provided flowers from her garden for the table and baked the wedding cake and assisted with the meal, which was served by Dr. P. Anderson

The Bride attended the Klemme schools and graduated in 1939.

The Groom attended the rural schools and assisted his mother on the farm. He has been working in Klemme for the Northern Lumber Company the past few months.

Mr. and Mrs. Waddingham will make their home for the present at the Suckow residence

After the wedding dinner they left on a trip through Minnesota.

COUNTY AUXILIARY WILL MEET IN KLEMME

The Klemme Legion Auxiliary Unit will entertain the County Auxiliary at the Legion Hall here on Tuesday, September 30th. The meeting will begin at 2 30 o'clock.

F. D. Roosevelt Accepts 1936 Election Returns As Mandate to Continue Supreme Court Battle

By special arrangement with Collier's Weekly and Western Newspaper Union this newspaper presents in condensed form a series of articles by President Roosevelt currently appearing in that magazine.

THE FIGHT GOES ON

"The Constitution Prevails"—Part II

By Franklin D. Roosevelt

(Copyright, 1941, by Franklin D. Roosevelt and by the Crowell-Collier Publishing Co. Reproduction in whole or in part is forbidden.)

This is the second half of the President's own story of the fight for Supreme court reform. It is part of the newly written introduction series to a forthcoming volume of his State Papers.

IN NOVEMBER, 1936, came the presidential and congressional elections. It was a hard-fought campaign, in which the issue was joined without reserve, in which no punches were pulled. The issue was a single one—the New Deal, its objectives, its methods, its future proposals. The opposition pointed to the court as the only obstacle which had stood in our way. On the other hand, I made it clear that, if re-elected, I intended to continue to press harder and harder for our objectives, in order to carry out the will of the people. The spirit of the Democratic campaign was expressed in my speech at Madison Square Garden in New York City, on October 31, 1936 that for all our objectives—many of which had already been blocked by the Supreme court—we had "only just begun to fight."

The election returns of 1936 left little room for doubt as to whether the people of the United States wanted that fight to continue. Forty-six states out of the 48 voted for the New Deal. The popular vote for the New Deal was 27,500,000 votes—or a plurality of over 10,000,000 votes out of the 45,000,000 cast.

As I returned to Washington after election day, I knew that the great interests and the great newspapers which had opposed my re-election in 1936 by violently attacking the policies and objectives of the last four years, were all ready and set again to transfer the scene of battle from the legislative halls to the court room. Defeat at the polls would never deter them from seeking ultimate victory from the courts.

Dictatorships Growing.

In fact, many of the later New Deal measures were already even then working their way up to the Supreme court: the social security act, the national labor relations act, the public utility holding company act.

The problem was a simple one to state; but an almost impossible one to solve.

To stand still was to invite disaster. Across the seas, democracies had even then been yielding place to dictatorships, because they had proven too weak or too slow to fulfill the wants of their citizens. Social forces in our day gather headway with ever-increasing speed. It would have been dangerous to block too long the just and irresistible pressure of human needs.

Yet it was hard to read the opinion of the court on the Agricultural Adjustment act and say what we were going to be able to do for the farmer. Or the opinions outlawing the railroad retirement act, the bituminous coal act, the National Industrial Recovery act, the New York minimum wage act, and decide just what we could do in the future for the exploited laboring man and woman; or what we could do in the way of flood control and drouth control; or what we could do in all the other fields where we had promised progress—help for the blind and crippled, unemployment insurance and old age pensions, total abolition of child labor, protection against monopolies, building decent housing for the lowest income groups, slum eradication, cheaper electricity, intelligent handling of industrial disputes through collective bargaining, minimum wages—maximum hours.

The challenge of a third of a nation ill-clad, ill-housed, ill-nourished, was still with us; and we seemed to be without the necessary weapons to meet the challenge.

Court Blocks Progress.

The reactionary members of the court had apparently determined to remain on the bench as long as life continued—for the sole purpose of blocking any program of reform. This was nothing new in our national life. The same thing had happened in earlier days of our history; it had happened during President Wilson's administration. It was happening again. These men seemed to have a definite mission in life—to block our social and economic progress; and, dedicated to that mission, they clung to their places. Although it had become, on the average, the most aged court in our history, although six justices had passed the age of 70, not a single vacancy had occurred during my first term in office. The bench had been created almost entirely by appointments by conservative Presidents; and it was now continually passing economic and political judgments, almost month by month, on a liberal program of recovery and reform.

Time would not allow us to wait for vacancies. Things were happening, NOW!

That same element of time was also most important in considering the question of passing a constitutional amendment to meet the court crisis. I considered that remedy very carefully—and rejected it. The program of the New Deal involved the most controversial social questions in the last 75 years of our history. Tremendous interests were at stake—interests which would hesitate at nothing to gain their ends. It would only be necessary to prevent ratification in 13 states in order to block any proposed amendment to the Constitution. I knew how long it would take to get the approval of 36 states. I had seen the long year-after-year ordeal of the proposed child labor amendment, which involved opposition which was only picayune in comparison with the intrenched antagonism to the new social program. No! It would take years and years to get a constitutional amendment which would meet our difficulties. Time was too pressing for that.

The plan which I finally proposed provided for a continuous and recurrent addition of new blood, new vigor, new experience, and new outlook. For, under my plan, as soon as a judge reached the age of 70, a new judge would be appointed. The old judge could retire on full salary for life, if he wished. If he preferred not to retire, he might continue to remain on the bench; but he would be counterbalanced there by the new man who had had an active contact with life about him.

Time and again during the fight, I made it clear that my chief concern was with the objective—namely, a modernized judiciary that would look at modern problems through modern glasses. The exact kind of legislative method to accomplish the objective was not important. I was willing to accept any method proposed which would accomplish that ultimate objective — constitutionally and quickly. I received, however, no reasonable guarantee or assurance that some other definite method would obtain congressional approval. Rumors of compromise were plenty; but never a definite agreement or offer. Furthermore, it was clear that the opponents of the plan suggested by me would never be able to agree among themselves on a plan of their own. And the best legislative advice which I could get from the congressional leaders was that my own suggestion would ultimately be approved.

No Compromise Offered.

That is the reason why no so-called compromise was ever submitted by me to the congress; that is why it was necessary to persist in the plan originally proposed. Had any satisfactory compromise been definitely offered which would have been effective in attaining the objective, and which would have been capable of quick passage, it would have been accepted by me.

Events happened in the midst of the fight to becloud the chief issue. There was first, the retirement of Justice Van Devanter in June, 1937. Some have said that it was strategically timed; but of course that is incapable of proof at the present time. There came, then, the death of Senator Robinson, the senate Democratic leader of the members in favor of the plan.

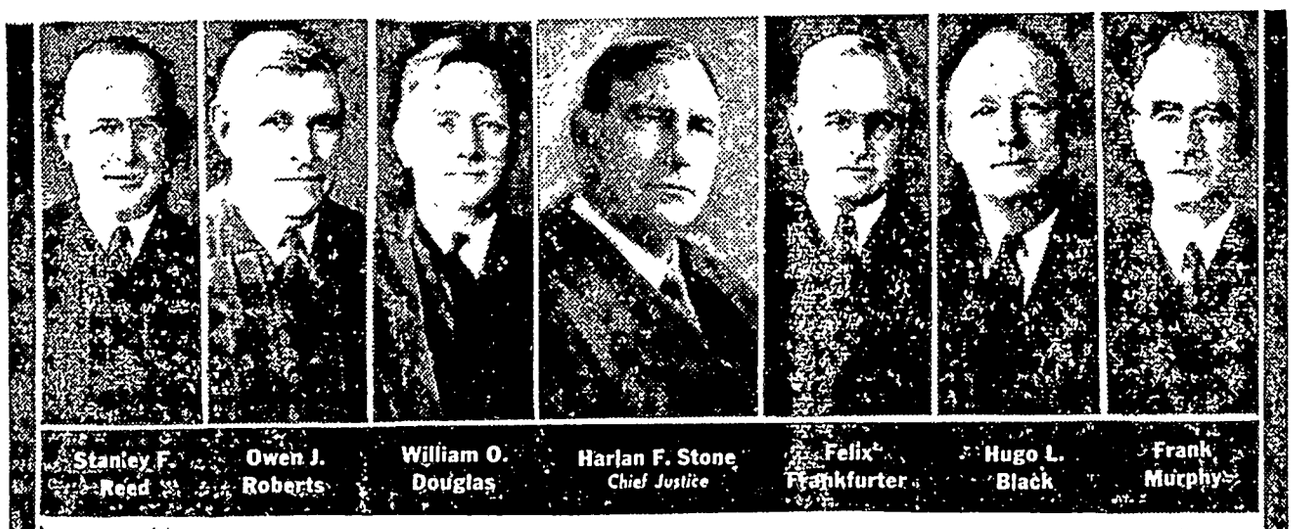
Supreme Court Yields.

But the startling fact which did more than anything else to bring about the defeat of the plan in the halls of the congress, was a clear-cut victory on the bench of the court for the objectives of the fight. The court yielded. The court changed. The court began to interpret the Constitution instead of torturing it. It was still the same court, with the same justices. No new appointments had been made. And yet, beginning shortly after the message of February 5, 1937, what a change!

Whether this change came as a result of the election returns of 1936, whether it came as a result of my message, whether it came as a result of public discussion during the course of the fight, or a combination of all these—those are important questions for the later historians of the period. These need not be discussed here.

On March 29, 1937, the court completely reversed itself on the constitutional power of a state to pass a minimum wage law for women. Just nine months after denying this power to the states, the court unequivocally decided, five to four, to uphold the power; and, in so many words, it expressly overruled its earlier contrary decisions and thus a new interpretation was placed on the doctrine of freedom of contract.

It was not until after the end of the judicial term in June, 1937, that a single vacancy on the court actually occurred. The about-face in the decisions of the court had come from the very same personnel that had been on the court since my first inauguration. The victory, therefore, cannot be attributed to the new justices. It was rather a realization by one or two members of the court that the court had exceeded its powers, that it had strayed away from the Constitution itself, and that the liberal minority of the court had been correct in its conclusions.



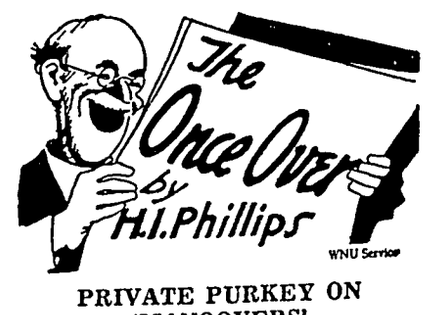
The nine Supreme Court Judges shown here constitute the present sitting members of the high U. S. tribunal, four and one-half years after the date Mr. Roosevelt first presented his plan for Supreme Court reform. During the intervening years, death and retirements took a hand in the bitter controversy, removing seven of the nine members, thus further aiding the President's hand, who replaced them with jurists more heavily clothed in liberalism, and with sympathies more in line with the progressive ideology doctrines of the New Deal.

United States Children Voice Tastes and Opinions in Poll

CHICAGO — The second nationwide poll of children, 8 to 13 years of age, conducted by William T Reed, candy manufacturer here, reveals some interesting, amusing and startling answers The questionnaire was mailed to youngsters in all sections of the country, whose parents' incomes represented all income brackets, to determine the tastes and opinions of the average 1941 child

One boy offered anything in the world to defeat Hitler, except, "My mom, dad and dog" Isolationists among the children were outnumbered 11 to 1

Nearest and dearest question, to the children no doubt, was the one relating to their favorite candy flavor Chocolate led with 22 per cent, butterscotch second with 16 per cent, followed by caramel, cherry, peppermint, orange, and vanilla



PRIVATE PURKEY ON 'MANOOVERS'

Dear Ma—

Well I am just back from another manoover with my outfit and I don't know whether we won or lost on account of there was a dispute between the umpires. One ruled that we was exterminated and the other came up with a decision that we was not even touched. It is all on account of the flag system witch I gess you never heard of so I will explane it to you ma.

Of coarse we do not shoot each other in these here war games but at the same time nobody can tell how the fight came out if it is all forgot as just a cross country outing. So a lot of flags is used to denote where we are and what happened. All we jeeps do is obey orders and we don't even know what the main idea is. But the observers and umpires who have the whole thing worked out on maps get a idea what wood of happened if it had been a actual battle. Here is where the flags come in.

An umpire waving a blue flag indercates that you are smack in the middle of an area witch is under artillery bombbardment and that it is a very unhealthy spot to stay in. If he has a yellow flag it is serposed to show that you are under machine gun fire and that if you go any further into it you wood be shot full of holes in a real war. Another colored flag means that we are advancing thru a heavy smoke screen and so on. I heard that in this last battle somebody got all mixed up on the flags and it still is a question witch got mixed up most the officers or the referees. Anyhow one official said the flags meant my division had walked right through a area witch the enemy was giving the works and that we was mostly all dead or wounded He said that in a real fight all of us wood have been legible to be buried as the Unknown Soldier. Another referee said nothing of the kind. He said he was a better judge of flags than the other fellow and that from what he saw we had been safe all the time except from more bunions.

Of coarse for all I know one of 'em is color blind but I do not care as long as the generals do not order the game played over again.

Believe me I am glad the summer is almost over as the weather seems twice as hot in a army as it does anywhere else and it seems to me I have spent the last four weeks in a dust cloud. I never knew there was so much dust in America It wood almost be a great break for me if I got lent to Iceland, except that I do not think I would like the long days up there.

Sergeant Mooney says the sun does not set at all in the summer in Iceland and that it is day time 24 hours. A 12-hour day is plenty for me, especially in the army. In a place where the sun does not go down I wood be afraid the bugler wood get all mixed up and start blowing me out of bed at midnight.

Well anyhow I am getting so used to tough brakes that nothing bothers me much no more, except when I do not get regular letters from you and Lillian and Doris and all the girls witch reminds me do you know where Lucretia Willeets has moved? All my letters to her come back.

Love, Oscar.

U. S. BASES IN AFRICA

The public doesn't generally know it, though Nazi agents do, but the United States is very quietly and efficiently building up a series of strategic bases along the coast of Africa to guard against a Nazi air putsch from Dakar to South America.

First of these bases will be airdromes at Freetown, in the British colony of Sierra Leone, now being developed by Pan American Airways on the airplane ferrying route to Egypt.

Second will be an important airdrome in Liberia, the Afro-American colony just south of Freetown. Equally important will be a submarine base in Liberia.

The Liberian airdrome is now being built in co-operation with the Firestone Rubber company.

Purpose of these bases is to take the place of the U. S. fleet in the South Atlantic. Long ago, U. S. naval strategists figured they could reduce materially the number of U. S. warships around Hawaii and California, if there were enough big bombing planes on the Pacific island bases to patrol the Pacific.

So now U. S. bombing planes operating from the African coast will do the same thing for the South Atlantic in order to guard against Nazi moves from Vichy-dominated Dakar.

The problem of shutting off a Nazi blitz in the South Atlantic is much harder than in the Pacific, due to one factor: distances in the Atlantic are about one-third less than those in the Pacific.

BAD EGGS

A member of the British air mission in Washington, back after a flying trip to England, has a report on food conditions that is a combination of humor and hard, unpalatable fact.

Regarding the food shortage in England he says that eggs in most places are unobtainable. The ration is one egg per person per week. Some millions of eggs shipped from the United States were all bad.

"Bacon and eggs" today is unknown in England. The nearest approach is bacon and "egg," and if the day you want it is not egg day, you have to be content with bacon and tomato instead.

Sugar is limited to half a lump per person per meal. At Claridge's, one sardine per person per day is the most sardines anyone can obtain. Next in scarcity at this swank London hostel is butter. At each meal, you get a vast dish in which you may be able to discern two little dabs, each smaller than a penny.

Fresh fruit is nearly non-existent. There are no oranges at all. The returning Britisher also reports that the general shortage of clothing results in sloppy dressing.

The report urges that England immediately import thousands of small home-canning machines to be used by housewives in preserving current crops of fruits, vegetables, rabbits, and meats of all sorts. He advocates "that the women of England be obliged to preserve food, instead of devoting themselves to the hopeless hip and tummy development that results from continual knitting."

OFFERS FARM FOR DEFENSE

John H. Perry, president of Western Newspaper Union, has offered his 2,500-acre farm in Owen county, Kentucky, to the Royal Canadian Air force as a pilot training center. The rest of his large estate has been offered to the U. S. government. "I am for national defense," said Perry, "and Uncle Sam can have my place, lock, stock and barrel."

ILLITERATE DRAFTEES

One of the uncomfortable facts disclosed by the selective service system is that thousands of young men in this great country of educational opportunity are unable to pass a simple test of reading and writing.

In a recent two-months period, May 15 to July 15, a total of 91,919 draftees were "excused" on account of illiteracy. Of these, 37,217 were white, and 54,702 were Negro.

The southern states have the heaviest percentages of illiteracy. In Louisiana, 4.8 per cent of the whites and 23.7 of the Negroes were rejected on this score. In Georgia and Florida, the percentage was only slightly less. Other states of high illiteracy are Virginia, Mississippi and North Carolina.

Partly to offer the benefits of education, partly to increase the number of men fit for military service, WPA is setting up a project to teach reading and writing to the rejectees.

Eddie Dowling, the star of "Time of Your Life" and other plays, is an intimate of the President. Not long ago Eddie brought some Broadway entertainers to amuse White House guests Among the stars was Giovanni, the delightful pickpocket . . . Giovanni, as almost any Broadwayfarer can assure you, is so good at his business—he can remove your vest without your suspecting it . . . At any rate, the President was vastly amused He suggested that Giovanni get the gun from a White House guard's holster But every time Giovanni approached the Secret Service man—the latter backed away, saying "Nh-nh Not me, please" When FDR later asked Dowling "Did he get that guard's gun yet?" Eddie explained how the guard was hep to matters and wouldn't be sociable "If you engaged him in conversation, Mr. President," suggested Eddie, "Giovanni would have his gun in four seconds!" . . "Do you know," whispered Mr. Roosevelt, "that even the President of the United States hasn't the authority to get that man away from that door?"

Secret service men have only one boss—congress.

Why Historians Go Wrong Dep't: After the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting at sea, one of the weekly news digests reported that FDR and Winston met for five days and not three days as reported almost every where.

A Washington colyumist told us that "five days" is wrong—"they met for three days" "How do you know?" we asked the colyumer. "You weren't there!" . "That's right," he said, "but I got that fact from a feller who happened to be on the trip—Averill Harriman!" . Back in New York we confronted the magazine man . . . "Why did you report it was five days," we asked, "when Averill Harriman who was there ought to know?" . "I don't know anything about Mr. Harriman's accuracy," was the reply, "but we got our info from one who was also on the trip—FDR's doctor!"

Fine Wale Corduroy Answers School Bell and Campus Call

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN the school bell peals forth its summons to classroom and campus environs over this land, corduroy will be one of the first to answer the call. Not the old-fashioned kind of corduroy, but an educated kind that has learned it must be fine to be smart, and lightweight and drapable, as well as long wearing.

School and college girls know this very new and modern corduroy as cordurella, while the male contingent call theirs cordurex The Latin students in the class will understand why It's just another instance how the girls have taken of late to copying boys' fashions for corduroy, which used to be almost exclusively a male fabric.

And now look at it! Now whole families go corduroy-clad these days from father, big brother to junior and from mother and big sister on down from the teen-age to the littlest daughter of the household. Not only have the girls taken over the fabric, but they've taken it in slacks and shirts and jackets that the boys wear, as well as in their own feminine dresses and suits

There's no end to the types and styles that are fashioned of corduroy. Take jackets, for example. Pets of the campus, are the convenient wear-with-everything jackets, of the fine lightweight modern corduroy, such as are shown, boy and girl fashion, at the top of the group illustrated. Though they go with any kind of campus clothes, men like them best with slacks of the same material, but often in different color, while the girls like free-striding skirts.

Varied types of jackets are available. There are plain, classic single-breasted buttoned styles, fly front closings with either buttons or slide fasteners, blazer types with the edges bound in contrast, cardigan styles, fitted jackets and loose jackets In fact, a jacket for every age and figure.

Skirts, too, are very versatile. The favorite is simplicity itself, cut bias with a center front seam and having plenty of room for free-striding. For variety, there are gored skirts, made with the ribs in the alternate gores running one gore horizontally and the next vertically. Dutch boy pockets give a swank look and a favored trimming trick is a line of contrasting color piping around the hem top.

Gay skirts to wear with sweaters are a "must have" in any college wardrobe. For the striking skirt worn by the girl reclining in the foreground of the illustration, cordurella is used in three contrasting colors, beige, brown and brick red, the usual order of things being reversed by putting the lightest tone at the bottom The jacket is beige.

To the right in the picture you see cordurella presented in a dressier mood, for this modern corduroy is really choice looking and makes up beautifully for afternoon wear. The western influence has scattered metal stud trimming over many costumes that never heard the word "cowboy." Witness this smartly tailored fly-front frock of cordurella. Gold studs decorate the belt and the pocket flaps in the manner of the most ornate cowboy trappings, yet the frock is far more suggestive of the luncheon table than of the corral

Jerkins or weskits are also making a place for themselves in cordurella school wardrobes The suits have many an interesting style detail, such as peplum jackets, weskit-type jackets, high skirt bands in peasant fashion, novel closings such as metal daggers instead of buttons Military touches are not missing either.

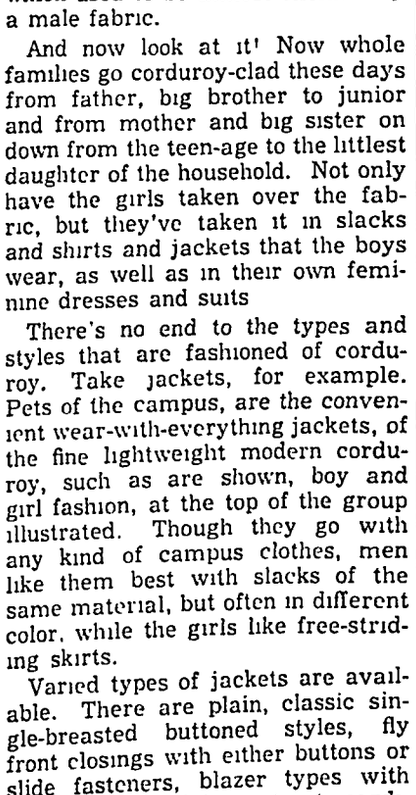
Corduroy Outfit



Corduroy is regarded as an outstanding current fabric success This clever outfit is enough to set the heart of any little fashion-wise daughter a-flutter with joy It is a classic shirt-type dress made of the new velvet-like ribbed cordurella. Durable and handsome, this fabric is making conversation because of its likable qualities Gold star buttons down the front and on the pockets add to the thrill of this jaunty costume The Scotch cap has matching gold stars

Knitted Accessories Is New Autumn Style

Add the fashion "touch that tells" to your tweeds and your plaids, your velveteens and your corduroys, with knitted accessories. It's considered smart style to match stocking cap, scarf and gloves that are either knitted or crocheted

Women are crocheting their hats also and trimming them in ruches of loopyarn. Wide brim felts with crochet bands or entire crochet crowns lean also to the new trend

Crochet handbags are enormous in size and are worked in ways to ensemble perfectly with the knitted details that complement the costume

Irish Crochet Lace and Fine Venise Trimming

At the lace counters you can get circular Irish crochet by the yard for collars and cuffs and trimming purposes The same is true in regard to handsome Venise laces The latter is also used in allover patterning for blouses to wear with afternoon suits, or to top party skirts of yards and yards of tulle

Quilted Velvets

Very handsome and very new looking are the coats and suits fashioned of quilted fabric, especially those in velvet and wool The girl going away to school will like keen delight in a quilted velveteen jacket to wear with her plaid skirt

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

LONG straight lines from shoulder to hem give this simple frock slenderizing lines. Furthermore, you nip in the waistline by means of side sashes which tie in back. It's a cool frock too, cut with short kimono sleeves. A neat, convenient pair of pockets fit nicely into the entire design. We call it the perfect frock for household wear. And a frock for maternity wear too, because of the expandable waistline.

King 'Tut'

King "Tut" was an Egyptian Pharaoh, known as Tutankhamun or Tutankhaten, who ascended the Egyptian throne about 1358 B. C. He ruled at Thebes, the old Egyptian capital and the site of his tomb, after a schism between two religious factions forced him out of the new capital at Akhetaten. Atenism, the cult of the sun's disk, espoused by his predecessor and father-in-law, was given up during his reign for a return to the old orthodox Egyptian worship. He is believed to have died about the age of 18 The curse of death laid upon anyone entering his tomb made him famous. Archeologists opened the tomb in 1923, and again in 1926.

Doctor Solves Mystery Of Missing Sweet Peas

An absent-minded woman had insisted upon being operated on for appendicitis

Some time after her recovery she asked her doctor if he would mind telling her what he had found in her appendix

"Well," said the doctor, "I may as well admit that yours was the most extraordinary case I have ever handled. I never found anything like it in an appendix before. You will hardly believe it, but I found several small hard seeds."

"Oh," said the woman, "that accounts for our having no sweet peas this year. I must have sown the pills."

A CYCLE OF HUMAN BETTERMENT

ADVERTISING gives you new ideas, and also makes them available to you at economical cost. As these new ideas become more accepted, prices go down. As prices go down, more persons enjoy new ideas. It is a cycle of human betterment, and it starts with the printed words of a newspaper advertisement.

GET READY FOR A FEW HARD JOLTS

The President has signed the new tax bill . . . and what a bill!

So Mr. Average American if you are going on a spending spree now is the time to let 'er fly before the first tax jolts hit on October 1st.

It's alright to tax golf clubs, playing cards and chewing gum, but we sure hate to have 'em lay it on fishing tackle, shot gun shells and red neckties!

Uncle Sam is spending the dough and someone has to pay the fiddler . . . and so you and I will pay five bucks for the privilge of operating a motor car The fisherman also gets hit for a "use tax" to shove a row boat around the lake The ladies playing bridge will pay a higher tax on cards.

Johnnie will be taxed extra for using the telephone to call his one and only Mom will pay more for electricity, cosmetics and furs.

There will be hundreds of other "hidden" taxes on nearly everything Mr Average American uses.

But, if it will 'stop Hitler" then America is willing to pay.

DOES MEANEST MAN LIVE IN KLEMME?

One day last week Ed. Thompson carried out rubbish to burn in the incinerator back of the Thada Store.

Just as Ed was about to touch a match to the waste paper, he heard a muffled noise which seemed to come from a paper box that was in the incinerator before he piled up more waste paper to burn.

Ed. investigated the cries and found six tiny kittens in the box.

Someone had placed the box of kittens in the incinerator to have them destroyed. No one but 'the world's meanest man" could have done that. Ed. saved the kittens from a fiery, agonizing death and ended their career in a humane manner.

A CASTING DEMONSTRATION FOR PRESS CLUB MEETING

Our readers may not appreciate this joke, but the men who gathered at Rockford last Thursday evening for a meeting of the Hawkeye Press Club got a chuckle out of a conversation between T J Farnan, publisher of the Clear Lake Mirror and Mrs. Reuben Moos, wife of the Nora Springs editor

Editors Moos and Jorgenson are about the only two fishing fans in the club and come in for more or less good-natured ribbing. So Mr Farnan, who was seated next to the lady from Nora Springs suggested to her that when a meeting is held at Nora Springs maybe a demonstration in "casting" could be put on the program.

Mrs Moos promptly replied, "No that would never do because our casting box smokes too much!"

Farnan was referring to a fisherman's fly casting, while Mrs. Moos thought he referred to the process of making newspaper cuts or "casts"

NATURE PUT ON THE "HIT" OF THE SEASON

North Iowans who happened to be out of doors last Thursday evening at somewhere around nine o'clock were treated to one of Mother Nature's most beautiful displays of Northern Lights seen in many years.

The lights were very brilliant and at times, colorful, resembling great search-light beams across the sky reaching as far as the south eastern horizon. At other times they appeared much like fireworks and bursting bombs.

The display lasted in its highest intensity for perhaps nearly one hour.

BEES AND DOG TANGLE; BEES WIN

Alvin Keeper is looking for a new dog as the brown Irish spaniel which he owned, came to an unhappy ending Sunday

Alvin's pet was tied out in the back yard when a commotion was heard.

A swarm of bees had landed on the dog and before they could be driven off, had severely stung the dog, which died from the effect of the unusual attack a few hours later.

It is a mystery why the bees attacked the dog which was tied and was not bothering anything.

MISSED STORM

Mr. and Mrs. John Elscott of near Kilduff visited a little longer than originally planned with their daughter and husband in Knoxville one day last week When they returned home they found their residence and farm buildings completely blown down and scattered by the storm.

SATISFIED

Mrs. Jennie Bitcon of Grinnell, had a sore throat one morning last week. A piece of dental bridgework came loose and lodged in her throat while she was sleeping The teeth were brought to the surface by a hard cough, and Mrs Bitcon is very happy that nothing more serious happened.

ALONE!

For the first time in their married life, Mr. and Mrs. Geo Butterfield, Sr., of Swea City, grandparents of grown grandchildren, are living alone Mrs. Butterfield commented: "We've never been alone a week in our married life and had never been alone in the house overnight until a few months ago.

ACTIVITIES

School is going along smoothly The outside activities are not being neglected In music everyone has had a tryout for the vocal groups and the glee clubs and mixed chorus have come a long way in learning some very interesting pieces The band and other instrumental groups are again practicing regularly

The baseball season was opened this year with a victory over Good Hill and a defeat by Kanawha

In girls hobby shop several of the girls are making scrapbooks and individual pins

With such a wide range of outside activities no one need suffer as the old saying says "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy"

The students all enjoyed their one day of vacation when the teachers had their institute at Mason City

The library file has been remodeled.

SENIOR NEWS

In American history we have started a new system of study called the project method This was introduced so that our instructor Mr Micklick could gain more response and interest

In American Literature we are studying short stories, which originated in the United States We also learned that it must contain four impressions to create an emotional effect The short story we are now reading is Rip Van Winkle by Washington Irving

In Physics we are covering the chapter Mechanics of Fluids

JUNIOR NEWS

After a day of vacation Miss Ott greeted us Friday morning with a test in English Literature

In American government we have been studying the Constitution of the United States

SOPHOMORE NEWS

Mr Micklick says that Algebra doesn't really take all the joy out of school as we've been told We hope to discover the truth soon So far the odds are against enjoying school

Grasshoppers!! Don't mention 'em to us We know grasshoppers frontwards, backwards, and upside-down Well, we're supposed to anyway We've even gotten so we can pick the things up.

Calvin is beginning to wonder if Mr Micklick meant what he said in assembly last week about chewing gum

Calvin's jaws seem to be getting out of practice

FRESHMAN NEWS

This week we changed teachers in Business Training In place of Mr Micklick, we have Mr Patterson We finished the part on food facts which is the proteins, fats, etc in the food We found pictures containing these things

Of course, we all felt happy over the one day vacation, Thursday, when the teachers had their institute.

SPORTS FLASHES

Kanawha Defeats Klemme 10-0

Kanawha defeated Klemme 10-0 behind the effective pitching of Lefty Berhow Klemme got only 1 hit off of Berhow, while Kanawha was nicking Kaduce and Brinkman for 10 hits.

MUSIC NEWS

The mixed chorus this year has 45 people in it We have been singing "Vanka'n Tanka," a Russian humorous Folk Song by A. Dargomisky Also "The Bluebirds," by S. Leontovick, "A Cradle Hymn" by F. Melius Christiansen ,and "Dedication" by Robert Franz.

The band numbering 35 have been swinging out with "An Old Dutch Garden" and "Star Dust."

Swaledale and Klemme bands have traded musical numbers for the winter Those we used last year, Swaledale is using and vice versa These pieces are "Bolero" by M Lake, "Princess of India" by K L King, and "Repasz Band" by H J Lincoln

Also on the list of new pieces is "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiving" by Johann Back. AND you should hear Mr Onerheim's composition' He is going to have a record made of it

GRADES 7 AND 8

We are beginning a new unit in science on Magnetism and Electricity Monday we plan to try making magnets of our own We also want to know what metals are best when used as magnets

In art class we tried cutting interesting figures and assembling them on our papers This helps us to judge proper balance

GRADES 5 AND 6

We finished the part of our unit "Safety" on safety in the home Next week we are going to study safety on the streets and highways

Thursday was vacation day for us The teachers went to a meeting at Mason City

Perfect spelling scores were earned by William, Darwin, Helen, Iris Isabelle and Marjorie

GRADES 3 AND 4

Willis Bock brought a turtle to school this week. We named it Snappy

Harley Barz was eight years old last Sunday He treated us to candy bars Tuesday afternoon.

Two fourth graders received perfect scores in spelling for the week They are Luella Priebe, and Dorance Baack Ruth Kimball, Jacqualea Steffens and Harley Barz had perfect scores in the 3rd grade

GRADES 1 AND 2

The first and second graders brought chestnuts to school and made them into rings

Larry brought a turtle and we have named it "Dopey."

Billy brought his gold fish to school They have been named 'Binkel, Pinkel and Ninkel."

Our workbooks came today and everybody is anxious to start using them

We are learning the names of the more common butterflies and Jimmy brought one to school to have it mounted

CIRCUMSTANCES REVERSED

Waldo Johnson, conservation officer with headquarters at Grinnell, could hardly believe his ears when a fisherman requested permission to return several large fish to the water. Homer Lippincott, the angler, had had such a successful fishing expedition that his family were tiring of eating fish. Homer still had a four-pound yellow and a two-pound blue catfish on hand kept alive in a tub of water, and he wanted to turn them loose in Arbor Lake The request was granted.

women confess to an extraordinary interest in rolls, bread and muffins Here's a bread which highlights a luncheon perfectly and whose orange flavor gives just the right touch of piquancy to the meal

Orange Honey Bread.
(Makes 1 loaf)

3 tablespoons shortening
1 cup honey
1 egg, well beaten
1½ tablespoons grated orange rind
2½ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¾ cup orange juice
¾ cup chopped walnuts.

Cream the shortening until light, then add honey gradually, and continue beating until well blended. Stir in the egg and the grated orange rind. Sift the dry ingredients together several times, then add them alternately with the orange juice. Stir in the walnuts. Pour the batter into a well-greased loaf pan and let stand 20 minutes before putting into oven. Bake in a slow (325-degree) oven for 1 hour or until well done when a toothpick comes out clean. If desired, ¾ cup of candied orange peel may be added to the batter to give additional flavor, or may be substituted for the nuts.

I shall pass lightly over the subject of salads. Ours today follow nearly the same pattern as recipes printed in old cookbooks But I would like to give you a recipe for a dressing. Used on a salad of hard-cooked eggs, lettuce, chopped onions and sliced radishes it's tops

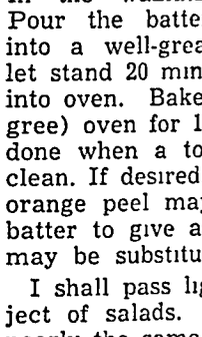
Rub the yolks of two hard-cooked eggs together with 1 tablespoon of cold water until smooth. To this add 2 tablespoons of salad oil and 1 teaspoon each of salt, powdered sugar and prepared mustard, and blend well. Finally, add 2 tablespoons each of plain and tarragon vinegar

And last, but not least, here's a recipe for ice cream Serve this with sliced fresh peaches topped with whipped cream.

Uncooked Custard Ice Cream.

½ cup sugar
2 eggs
1⅓ cups top milk
2 tablespoons sugar
Pinch of salt
½ pint whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Dissolve the ½ cup of sugar and the salt in the cold milk. Beat the egg white until stiff, add 2 tablespoons sugar and then beat in the egg yolks, one at a time Combine with the milk and fold in the whipped cream and vanilla. Pour into freezing trays and stir every 15 or 20 minutes until firm. This may also be made in a crank freezer, but the amount should be doubled for the ordinary size of freezer



If you desire to vary this recipe, here are suggestions

Maple Ice Cream—Add maple flavoring to taste in place of the vanilla, about 6 drops will be needed

Butterscotch — Substitute brown sugar for the ½ cup of white sugar

Chocolate—Melt two squares cake chocolate and add to custard mixture Four additional tablespoon sugar must be added as well

Peppermint — Peppermint flavoring, oil of peppermint and enough pink coloring to give the desired color are added

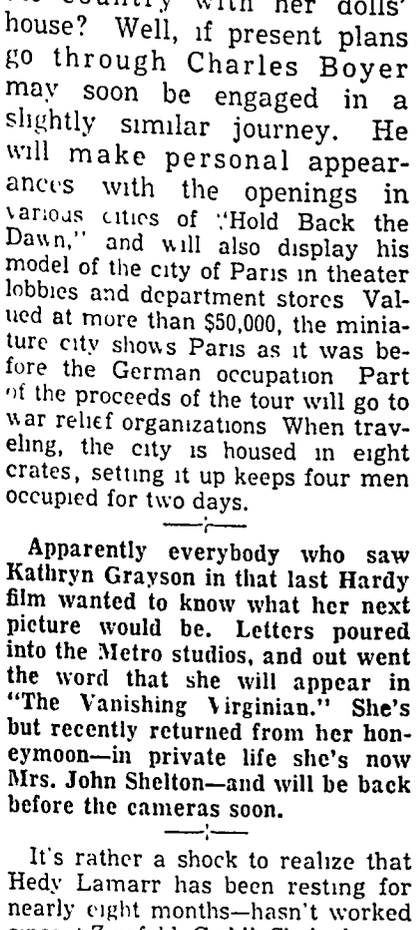
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

REMEMBER when Colleen Moore was trooping about the country with her dolls' house? Well, if present plans go through Charles Boyer may soon be engaged in a slightly similar journey. He will make personal appearances with the openings in various cities of "Hold Back the Dawn," and will also display his model of the city of Paris in theater lobbies and department stores Valued at more than $50,000, the miniature city shows Paris as it was before the German occupation Part of the proceeds of the tour will go to war relief organizations When traveling, the city is housed in eight crates, setting it up keeps four men occupied for two days.

Apparently everybody who saw Kathryn Grayson in that last Hardy film wanted to know what her next picture would be. Letters poured into the Metro studios, and out went the word that she will appear in "The Vanishing Virginian." She's but recently returned from her honeymoon—in private life she's now Mrs. John Shelton—and will be back before the cameras soon.

It's rather a shock to realize that Hedy Lamarr has been resting for nearly eight months—hasn't worked since "Ziegfeld Girl" She's beginning a new picture now, "H M. Pulham, Esq" based on the Marquand novel—it's difficult to see how either of the two leading feminine roles can be twisted around to fit her, but stranger things are happening in Hollywood all the time.



HEDY LAMARR

Maybe you'll be crazy about the latest Walt Disney, "The Reluctant Dragon" But a lot of us wish that Mr Disney would abandon these long features and stick to good short ones Both this one and "Fantasia" could be cut into several good shorts

In "Sullivan's Travels" you'll see a Veronica Lake who'll startle you—a boy hobo, apparently, in turtle-necked sweater, old cap, blue denim work trousers and a coat that's too large for her. Her daughter's birth interrupted her picture making for a while, but Paramount went right on making plans for her; she'll be starred next in "This Gun for Hire," in which she'll portray a magician who becomes involved with a munitions magnate in a mysterious murder. Which means that she'll have to take lessons in the art of magic.

Lewis Stone is taking time out from the "Judge Hardy" role, between the family chronicles, to play an army colonel in "Steel Cavalry," the new Wallace Beery picture. But he'll have to be careful not to do anything the Judge wouldn't do, or the fans will protest.

Charles Laughton (have you heard the new radio program, "Three Ring Time," starring him and Milton Berle?) would have been an inn keeper if Laughton, Sr, had had his way. He placed Charles at Claridge's, in London, to learn the hotel business And his son learned one valuable thing—how to impress a haughty waiter. "Just order water and a poached egg on toast," says he. Seems that it gets them down every time, especially if they've been urging champagne on you.

The children who attend New York city's public schools ought to find at least some of their lessons pretty enjoyable They'll be shown Warner Brothers' national defense and historical shorts as part of the curriculum.

ODDS AND ENDS—Raymond Gram Swing has just bought a 250 acre farm halfway up Putney mountain in Vermont . . . As a youngster Bob Hope used to do imitations of Charlie Chaplin at church socials . . . Paramount's "Air Raid" is a tale of adventure, love and murder during a practice blackout in an American city . . . Richard Whorf, who replaced John Garfield in Warner's "Bridges Built at Night," has been replaced by Craig Stevens . . . Andy Devine will join radio's Al Pearce and His Gang October 3rd . . . Columbia has given a new contract to Jinx Falkenburg, known as America's Number One model perhaps you saw her in "Two Latins."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 28

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

THE FULFILLMENT OF HISTORY: THE NEW JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 21 1-7, 10-12, 22-24

GOLDEN TEXT—He that overcometh shall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.—Revelation 21 7

A happy ending may not suit the fancy of modern writers of fiction, but it does suit God. He "who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will" (Eph 1.11) will see to it that redeemed man shall "be to the praise of his glory" (Eph. 1:12). The eternal, omnipotent God will bring the history of His dealings with mankind to a glorious ending. The last book of the Bible comes to its last pages where, after dealing with the final struggle of man with his enemy Satan (which has gone on since the entrance of sin into the world in the Garden of Eden), we find the glorious, God-given revelation of the "divine, final restoration of the universe, a picture of the home where we who love the Lord Jesus will forever dwell."

I. "The Tabernacle of God Is with Men" (vv 1-7)

Our God is always with His people, but there is a promise of the time when He shall "pitch His tent" (for thus we might translate the word "tabernacle") in their very midst and "be with them" in full and unhindered fellowship. This He once did for a time when "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us" (John 1 14), or literally "tabernacled among us" In the day of which our lesson speaks He will come to live permanently with His people

The blessings of His divine presence are beautifully described in verses 4 to 6 There will be no more tears, because every occasion for them is gone There will be no death, pain or sorrow, for the one who sits upon the throne will have made everything new.

Christianity does not evade the question of sorrow and suffering, but it does point to a glorious day when they will be done forever. What a precious promise!

II. "The Holy City . . . Having the Glory of God" (vv. 10-12).

The description of the holy city is differently interpreted, but perhaps the best one is that it will be in the form of a pyramid on a square base 1,500 miles in width and length (12,000 furlongs—v. 16), rising in terraces, and 1,500 miles high at the top.

The description of the city is glorious beyond words (read 21:1 through 22.7), but the crowning fact of all is that it has "the glory of God" His presence means more than all the glories of precious stones and of "pure gold, like unto clear glass." He is more than His gifts, and His presence is more glorious than all His mighty works

III. God the Almighty and the Lamb Are the Temple (vv. 22).

As long as we live under the present conditions of life, we cannot do without a place to meet to worship God and to receive spiritual help and strength—a temple. But when the redeemed are gathered in the Holy City they will have no need for a temple. The place of meeting with God "which now has to be delimited from the world, and set apart for God—yes, and held with determination and force of will against invading hosts—has there expanded to cover the whole area of human experience and activity. God's presence has no longer to be sought; it is known; it is felt, universal and all-pervading as the light of day" (C Anderson Scott).

IV. No Need of the Sun—the Glory of God Did Light It (vv. 23, 24).

The great need of man in this world is light. He rejoices in the sun as it sheds its lifegiving rays upon the earth. He does his work and finds his healthful recreation in the day. When darkness comes, he must have illumination, that he may read, study, work, or fellowship with others. From the flickering pine knot man went on to the candle, to the lamp; and now in most places he floods his city and its homes with the light of electricity But even so there is too much darkness in the world, and the men who love darkness rather than light (see John 3 19) are able to practice their evil deeds

In the New Jerusalem all will be light, for the One who is light (I John 1 5) and the source of all light, permits His glory to shine forth and "lighten it" Jesus, the Lamb, who is the light of the world (John 8:12), is the never failing lamp of the city.

In such light not only the nations of the earth, but their kings as well, will want to walk, doing honor with all their glory to the One who is all-glorious The verses which follow our lesson tell us that the gates of the city shall never be closed, but only that which is good and honorable shall enter in Nothing sinful, vile, or false shall come within its blessed portals

Benefits to Our Readers

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

PIONEER HI-BRED CORN COMPANY
IOWA

THANK YOU Iowa Farmers

September 25, 1941

You are making this the greatest year in Pioneer history. More farmers are ordering Pioneer hybrid seed corn this year and in larger quantities, than ever before.

Last spring, about one-half of all the farmers in Iowa planted some Pioneer.

This fall most of those who grew a crop of Pioneer are reordering. Thousands of farmers who did not plant Pioneer last spring are swinging to it now.

The average order now calls for about 17% more Pioneer corn than the average order last year.

On September 25, 1941, Iowa farmers had ordered more than twice as much Pioneer as on the same date last year.

Pioneer corn breeders and seed house workers greatly appreciate your confidence in them. They will deliver to you the best seed corn they know how to produce.

LOCAL MAN WARNS OF SHOE LEATHER SHORTAGE

Walter Kimball, local shoe repair man, reports that Northwest Shoe Repairmen's Association convention, recently held in Minneapolis, was seriously concerned with ways and means of combatting a threatened shoe leather shortage because of defense needs

Mr Kimball states that shoes use most of the world leather production, and that in 1940 Americans made and used up more than 450 milion pairs of shoes Normally, this wouldn't be anything to worry about but now, with government defense manufacture taking an increasing amount of leather, people should be urged, says Mr Kimball, to use their old shoes longer Many people throw shoes away when less than half their useful life is gone. If such shoes were kept in use through proper repairing, Uncle Sam could get the leather he urgently needs, and buyers of new shoes would not have to face the prospect of higher costs

Former Klemme Youth Married At Mason City Sunday

LA VONNE SORENSON BRIDE OF WILLIAM LEMKE

Missionary Alliance Tabernacle Scene Of Wedding

Miss LaVonne Lorenson, daughter of Rev and Mrs N K Lorenson, of Shevlin, Minn, became the bride of William Lemke, son of Mr and Mrs Wm H Lemke, who reside on their farm southwest of Klemme, at 2 30 o'clock at the Missionary Alliance Tabernacle at Mason City, Sunday, September 28 in the presence of a large group of relatives and friends The church was decorated with garden flowers and a white carpet down the aisle

Rev V. Gowdy, pastor of the church, sang "I Love You Truly," then as the pianist, Mrs Walter Williams, played Lohengrins Bridal Chorus the groom, followed by his best man, Warren Thompson, and the Rev Lorenson entered and took their places at the altar where they awaited the matron of honor, Mrs Warren Thompson, sister of the bride, and the bride. Immediately following the ceremony Rev and Mrs Gowdy sang "Living for Jesus.' The bridal party left the church as Rev and Mrs Gowdy sang 'Step by Step"

The bride wore a white satin gown made princess style, and her veil of tulle made with a long train was edged with lace and arranged in coronet style caught with pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a small Oxford Bible bound in white leather with a gardenia as a marker from which fell a shower of white stephanotis tied with white satin ribbons.

The matron of honor wore a pink taffeta floor length gown and carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses centered with a single white mum. She wore a wreath of pink and blue flowers in her hair.

MRS. WILLIAM LEMKE

HANCOCK COUNTY FARMERS ASKED TO INCREASE PRODUCTION FOR 1942

Townsend Tells Of Plans For Food Campaign In Hancock County

If agriculture is to make the full contribution to national defense, Hancock County farmers face the task of adjusting production of all essential commodities to the needs of this nation and to the needs of other nations resisting aggression, James M. Townsend, Hancock USDA Defense Board chairman, declared this week.

Commenting on the Chicago defense conference, which closed on Friday night, Mr Townsend said the national goals for agriculture in 1942 provide the basis for a complete program of balanced production, adjusted to the changing needs.

While the goals for this county have not been established yet, the general ou line for Iowa includes heavy increases in the marketing of hogs, beef and veal, increased production of milk, eggs, soybeans, fresh vegetables and farm gardens. Plantings of wheat will be reduced, and corn will be held at about the present level because of the larger carryover.

Greatest need for increased production, Mr. Townsend explained, lies in the field of dairy products. Given the whole-hearted cooperation of every dairy farmer and favorable milk market conditions, it is possible, he continued, to reach the recommended national goal of 125 billion pounds of milk.

Ask Increased Egg Production

Poultry products are also vital in the nation's diet, and during the next six or eight months there will be special need for good feeding and care to get increased production of eggs per hen. After that time greatly increased numbers of pullets will come into production.

Total production of meats in 1942 is expected to be the largest on record, about 21 billion pounds.

Production goals for Iowa were discussed further this week at Des Moines by the Iowa USDA Defense Board, Mr. Townsend said, and within the next few weeks Hancock Couny goals will be esabliished.

Three features will distinguish this "Food For Freedom" campaign in Hancock County. he continued. It is an "All-out" drive, involving not a few but almost all farm products; every farmer will be visited personally by AAA committeemen and helped to make a complete farm plan for 1942 that will contribute to national goals, and every USDA agency and cooperating organization is expected to participate, and each has its contribution to make.

All of the effort and planning involved in this campaign will be coordinated in the county USDA Defense Board, which will review and adjust established goals and check sign-up of farm plans for completeness and accuracy

Members of the USDA Defense Board in the county, in addition to Chairman Townsend, are. V. L. Hein representing the REA; Burlin Hamer representing the Extension Service; and Clem Hilyard of Corwith, the Production Credit Association.

Rising Barometer of Public Opinion Aids F.D.R. Battle Against Powerful Enemies

Roosevelt Refuses 'Catspaw' Role in 1933 Political Drama When Opposition Demands 'Rescue Party' Return Government Helm to Them.

By special arrangement with Collier's Weekly and Western Newspaper Union this newspaper presents in condensed form a series of articles by President Roosevelt currently appearing in that magazine. The articles are taken from the President's newly written introductions to forthcoming volumes of his state papers. This, the third article, contains the President's own story of the bitter battle to maintain and extend the gains of liberalism.

The Continuing Struggle for Liberalism

IT HAS frequently been said that eternal vigilance is necessary to preserve our liberties. It is equally true that eternal vigilance is necessary to keep democracies and their governments truly liberal. We in the United States have had first-hand experience with that truism since the end of 1933, when, for the first time, the full effects of our program of recovery and reform began to be felt. For, as soon as the clear action of the new administration in 1933 had started the wheels of industry turning, there came the demand from some sources to stop all of the reforms, and to let things begin again to run on as they had during the previous decade.

Of course, the people of the United States have always understood that the new administration never intended to be a mere rescue party—organized to save the economic system and turn it over to the small, powerful group which had formerly controlled it through their concentrated economic power. The government in 1933 was determined not only to save the system, but also to remove from it the abuses, evils, and widespread maladjustments which had brought it to the very brink of destruction. The government was determined that the system, thus preserved and reformed, should no longer be subject to the control of the handful of men and corporations that had dominated it in the false boom days before 1929.

To carry out that determination was to resist, from 1933 down to date, all the efforts of mighty forces—day by day, year by year. These forces had tremendous interests at stake — wealth, privilege, economic power, political power. Although few in number, they had the resources which enabled them to make the most noise, and to become the most vociferous in the press, over the radio, through newspaper and outdoor advertising, by floods of telegrams and letters to the congress, by employment of professional lobbyists—by all the many means of propaganda and public pressure which have been developed in recent years.

Opposition Strengthens Efforts.

In 1938 the efforts of this minority, consistent in its opposition since 1933, rose to new heights. They had tried stubbornly at the polls in 1936 to stop our program of reform. They had failed. They had tried in 1937 to stop it in the courts, where they had been so successful during 1935 and 1936. Here, too, they had failed. Therefore, through the years of 1937 and 1938, their activities to impede progress and to bring about a repeal or emasculation of the New Deal measures of reform were redoubled.

There were several reasons for this particular burst of effort this year. First, the Supreme court fight, although it had been finally successful in obtaining its objective, had been defeated in the congress. The enemies of liberal government tried to hail that loss of a single battle as a defeat of the entire progressive program of the administration. A strong "putsch" was organized to try to make it appear as though the representatives of the people in the congress had, by failing to pass the Supreme court bill, repudiated the principles and conduct of the New Deal.

Second, there had come a substantial business recession—commencing in the fall of 1937, and continuing through the first half of 1938. These same minority groups sought at once to take advantage of it by blaming it exclusively on the attitude and legislation of the government, claiming that the administration was "strangling business" and "ruining confidence," and preventing "full recovery."

Needing a preponderance of power to maintain liberalism in the front ranks of his own party councils and in the executive and legislative branches of the government itself, President Roosevelt took an active part in some of the primary elections of 1938. When cries of "purge" arose from administration critics, the Chief Executive, resenting the applied term, pointed out that his participation and expressed opinions of candidates, prevented the deliberate mis-use of his name by those falsely claiming his support. Above are four men whose opponents received the presidential support. Back row, left to right: Sen. Walter F. George, Georgia, and Sen. Millard T. Tydings, Maryland; bottom, left to right, Sen. Ellison D. Smith and Sen. Guy M. Gillette.

In 1932 the national income had fallen as low as $38,000,000,000 from a high in 1928 of over $80,000,000,000. Since 1932 and for each and every year thereafter, up to and including 1937, the national income had gradually risen until it reached the figure of $68,000,000,000.

Production Overtakes Sales.

This consistent and continuous recovery was stopped short in 1937 by several factors. First, the production and speculative buying of heavy and consumer goods had been increased by industry at such a rapid pace that it had completely outstripped the ability of the people of the country to buy such goods. The same thing happened in 1937 on a small scale, that had happened in 1929 on a prodigious scale, namely, the purchasing power of the consumers of goods had been exceeded too quickly and too greatly by the amount of merchandise manufactured. The result was that large inventories of stocks had accumulated, which could not be sold.

In addition, the prices of merchandise had been forced up by business too drastically during the year 1937, in spite of all the efforts of the government to discourage such inordinate increases. The mounting prices, in turn, contributed also to the inability to sell the goods manufactured, and helped to create a large excess of goods which could not be sold.

At the same time, with the steady rise of business through 1936 and early 1937, the government had begun to cut down its own expenditures for relief and work relief. It did so with the reasonable expectation that private industry, with its increased markets and output, would take up some of the slack, and provide some of the employment which had previously been furnished by the government through public works projects. In this the government miscalculated.

Liberalism Endangered.

All of the big guns and resources of pressure politics and modern propaganda were brought into play in late 1937 and 1938, to try to strike down liberalism in the congress and in the executive branch of the government.

NOTABLE EVENT

A series of articles by the President of the United States is a notable event in journalism. Seldom has any newspaper had an opportunity to publish anything under the name of any President. The present series of articles is a notable contribution both to history and journalism. This newspaper publishes the articles without bias as to the opinions contained in them.

The policy of the federal government, however, continued to follow the only path of true recovery and the only assurance of preservation of our system of private profit and free enterprise—the continuance and strengthening of social reform and progressive legislation.

When I called the congress into extraordinary session in 1937, I pointed this out; and I announced the determination of the federal government to proceed with its program on all fronts with full speed.

Accordingly, I recommended the enactment of new farm legislation. I called for a comprehensive farm program—not only to replace the old measures which had been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court, but one which could go forward. I called for legislation for soil conservation and for regulation of crop production so as to furnish an ever-normal granary, which would give the farmer a fair share of the national income, and at the same time, would also assure the consumer a steady supply of food and textile fiber at reasonable prices.

I also recommended to this extraordinary session of the congress the enactment of legislation providing for minimum wages and maximum hours and the abolition of child labor in all interstate occupations. Only in this way could sweatshop conditions be eliminated and workers receive a reasonable purchasing power—to enable them to live with some degree of decency, and to provide a market for the products of the farms and factories of the nation.

Much of the legislation which I recommended was passed during 1938. For example, a new farm program was adopted; legislation establishing minimum wages and maximum hours and outlawing child labor was finally passed; various tax reforms were adopted; additional funds were provided for the construction of public works to furnish employment; and a congressional and administrative committee was set up to study economic power.

Many of the great measures debated in 1937 and 1938—farm legislation, reorganization of government, minimum wages and maximum hours, increased public works, monopoly controls, judicial reforms, water power development, low-cost housing—have, by now, become more or less accepted as part of our economic life. It is a little difficult, therefore, to look back even across the short period to 1938 and remember how bitter and how difficult was the struggle—in the congress and out of the congress—which was necessary in order to have some of these laws adopted. The opposition to them—chiefly from the same sources which had opposed the whole program of reform since 1933 was of "blitzkrieg" proportions.

In that struggle, a few Democratic members of the house and senate—who had been elected in 1936 and in earlier years on liberal platforms, and who had pledged themselves to support the great objectives and social measures enunciated in those platforms — had allied themselves with the opponents of the program.

It became quite obvious that this kind of conduct was not only a renunciation of platform pledges, but was actually endangering the success of the federal government's determination to preserve a liberal, progressive administration.

The 'Round Table' Discusses Rural Social Problems

WILLIAMSTOWN, MASS.—A call to rural churches and women's clubs to assume responsibility for community conditions and the improvement of intergroup relations, was voiced in a Round Table report on the small community presented to the Williamstown Institute of Human Relations, held here biennially under the auspices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

In discussing the "critical" social problems of rural communities, the Round Table, which met daily throughout the five-day Institute, under the chairmanship of Dr. Benson Y. Landis of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, stressed the opinion that one of the chief problems is that of the small community "whose leaders think it has no problems."

The Round Table report stressed the importance of the rural family who do much to preserve and protect the family, as a unit.

SPIES IN CONSULATES

Vichy Ambassador Henry-Haye recently let out a loud wail about newspaper reports charging him and his staff with undercover pro-Axis activities.

It is possible that Henry-Haye knows nothing about it, but government authorities are in possession of evidence that Nazi agents are on Vichy consular staffs in this country. Also, that such agents have been installed in Hungarian consular offices.

It has been ascertained that several weeks before Axis consulates were ordered expelled, Berlin, either tipped off or anticipating the move, quietly began shifting some of its agents to Vichy and Hungarian consulates.

The Vichy consulate in Chicago, headed by Raymond Imbault-Huart, was one of those that suddenly had a mysterious staff expansion. Another was in the Hungarian consulate in Cleveland, directed by Louis Alexy.

Two "investigators" were added to Imbault-Huart's staff early in June. These men were in constant contact with the Nazi consulate in Chicago; in fact, they called there almost every day until the Nazi consul departed in July. This was definitely established by Dies committee agents and from a former member of the Vichy consular staff in Chicago, who resigned in disgust after many years of service.

THE PRESIDENT'S MOTHER

Sara Delano Roosevelt thought the man to whom she proudly referred to as "My son, the President" was capable of doing anything he set his mind to; and the President would have done anything he could to satisfy her wishes.

But one favor he could not grant, despite his high office. Because of its intimate character, the story was kept a secret by the few who knew it, but now that the gracious mistress of Hyde Park has passed on, it can be told.

During the Czechoslovak crisis in 1939, the President was conferring with advisers when a secretary interrupted with word that his mother was calling from New York. The President picked up the phone, inquired, "Yes, mother?"

Mrs. Roosevelt was in a state of high excitement. There was some difficulty over a friend who had come to this country from Europe. He wanted to remain until he was certain it would be safe for him to return, but the state department was refusing to grant an extension of his visa. Couldn't the President do something?

"I'm sorry, mother," he replied, "but I'm afraid I can't help you on this."

An excited buzz of conversation came through the phone. It might be dangerous for the friend to return. Wasn't the President the highest official of the government and couldn't he do something?

Roosevelt glanced helplessly at those about him. Then, with a patient smile, he again addressed the phone.

"Mother," he explained, 'it's against the law."

This was one door even the President of the United States could not open for his mother or anybody.

NO SUGAR SHORTAGE

Don't get alarmed about those rumors of an impending sugar shortage. The department of agriculture, which should know, isn't.

Official statistics show that there is plenty of refined sugar for civilian needs. Production in the next few months, plus the reserve stocks of beet and cane sugar refiners—amounting to over 1,550,000 tons—will be more than enough to meet consumer demands until the next crop.

Only problem is what government experts term "mal-location." Due to consumer hoarding, stocks in the East are below normal, though rapidly being replenished from the top-heavy reserves of refineries in other sections, chiefly the Gulf states.

As a double precaution, the agriculture department has approved sharp increases in 1941 marketing quotas, which were stepped up to 9,002,976 tons. This is 2,386,000 tons more than the quotas announced at the beginning of the year and a million tons greater than those approved July 30.

Some sugar-producing areas, including Cuba, are not expected to supply their enlarged quotas, due to heavy drains on their raw stocks, but Puerto Rico and U. S. beet areas have plenty of supplies on hand to meet the new marketing allotments.

Practical Cutout Novelties

MISCELLANEOUS cutout designs are here to tempt hammer and saw into use. At top, left, is a very practical item—the "Leave a Note" bungalow. Inch wood makes this, and it is to be placed beside the front door. Pad and pencil inside the hinged door invites friends to leave word if they call when you are away. Practical, too, are the doorknockers—the red-headed woodpecker and the horse. And kitchen or dining room will welcome this clever cottage flower holder and the matching shade pulls.

Jig, coping or keyhole saw may be used in cutting these articles from wood. Use enamels for painting them. Pattern, 15 cents, gives outlines and complete directions. Send your order to:

CHECK UP DAIRY FEED SUPPLIES

Follow Composition Table For Best Results.

By DR. GEORGE E. TAYLOR
(Extension Dairyman, New Jersey College Of Agriculture, Rutgers University)

Now is the time for American dairymen to take inventory of their dairy feed supplies. Not only is it wise from their own economic stand point, it's also the patriotic thing to do—patriotic because it is one step toward fulfilling the government's request for a 6 to 8 per cent increase in milk production during the national emergency.

By following a more regular feeding schedule, you'll avoid drops in production due to sudden changes in ration. Don't forget that purchased feed will cost more this fall. Check on your supply of corn, oats and barley.

Consult a composition table before buying feed and purchase the kind which supply nutrients at the lowest rate. Sometimes that which is the cheapest per 100 pounds is the most costly in the long run For example, suppose wheat bran is priced at $1 54 per 100 pounds, soybean oil meal at $1 79 per 100 and linseed oil meal at $1 70 per 100. Wheat bran contains 15 pounds of total protein per 100, soybean oil meal 40 pounds and linseed oil meal 37 pounds, according to the table

If you divide the pounds of protein into the cost per 100 weight, you'll find that protein in wheat bran—the cheapest per 100 weight—costs 10 cents a pound, in soybean oil meal 4.5 cents a pound and in linseed oil meal 4 6 cents a pound. Thus buying the soybean oil meal and the linseed oil meal—two for the sake of variety since the cost is approximately the same—dollars will be saved in the long run.

Turkey Industry Is Expanding Rapidly

New features of the poultry situation include the prospect for heavy production of commercial broilers this winter and next spring, the possibility of a poorer cold-storage demand for turkeys this year than last, and a fairly good storage demand for eggs during the period of flush production next spring. The expanded commercial broiler industry now affects the prices of chickens, ducks and turkeys at all times of the year.

There was a time when broilers sold in early spring for two to three times the price of fowl, but now they are practically on a competitive basis. Approximately 100,000,000 commercial broilers are produced annually, and marketed the year 'round. Areas of large production include Arkansas, California, Delaware, Indiana, Maryland, the New England states, and Virginia The production of ducks also is an expanding and competing industry. Ducks commonly are priced so low that producers complain the only profit is in the sale of the feathers.

Sensational, of course, has been the expansion of the turkey industry. California this year has replaced Texas as the leading producing state; and Minnesota, with nearly 3,000,000 birds raised this year, is a close runnerup States producing between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 turkeys include Ohio, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, Nebraska, Virginia, Oklahoma, and Oregon The 1940 turkey crop of more than 32,000,000 birds was the second largest on record, but the effect of this upon price may be offset by the improved consumer demand.

Simple Test for Egg Freshness Explained

An egg is a sealed package of fine food when it is laid by the hen. It is the only product that Nature gives us that is sealed without the touch of human hands. "However," points out T T. Brown, extension poultryman of North Carolina State college, "eggs that bring a premium on the market are those that the consumer desires—eggs that are fresh, large, clean, uniform in size and color, and sound in shell.

The State college man suggests a simple home method of determining if eggs are fresh. "Place the eggs in a pan of water," he says, "and the good ones will rest flat on the bottom of the vessel; those that have lost some of their quality will stand on end; and very poor ones will rise somewhat. Those that rise are older or poorly kept."

Electric Help

C. T. Keen, Marshall county, Iowa, hog raiser, keeps litters of different ages separated when out on pasture by the use of temporary electric fences. These divide the field into strips, with one or more houses in each section for shelter.

In this way, robbing of younger suckling pigs is avoided. It makes feeding and watering more of a chore; but later, as the pigs get old enough to hold their own, the fences are removed.

Drastic Millinery Changes For Autumn Fashion Parade

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

PREPARE to see drastic innovations in millinery fashions this season. Perhaps the most significant and startling is the new cover-up look that is achieved through curtain drapes, snood fantasies and various other intriguing devices

There is an endless number of new silhouettes on the fall program, which carries the assurance of every one, being becomingly hatted this season Basic hats are all on the list, so you can be utterly conservative in your choice You will find your favorite beret on the list, all types of draped turbans, pill-box shapes galore, bonnets from Dutch to frontier-woman types, sailors wide of brim or not, mushrooms and clothes (very face-framing this year) also calots in versatile pleasing interpretations

However these simply give start to the current millinery story The big thrill is the revolutionary interpretations that daring designers are giving to the various type hats, through amazing back-curtain effects, cover-up devices and picturesque drapes This all seems to convey a new message of "more hat than hair" in direct contrast to the long bobs showing as heretofore

Below to the right, in the group illustrated is a very new pompadour pillbox type made of sheered felt that achieves outstanding distinction and sophistication, via a coarse-mesh net snood draping, so voluminous it extends over the shoulders Note also the decorative metal band ornament, from beneath which, the snood emanates in gathered fullness

Another hat that is making conversation in the fashion world is the profile beret The hat below to the left, is typical of this new trend

The dramatic pose given to dashing berets, to achieve a smart new look is perfectly demonstrated in this model, which is a black skirt-felt shape worn to accent the new profile silhouette That there are many ways of wearing the popular beret, adds to its popularity this season. Not only is the profile beret outstanding but emphasis is also given to huge berets worn back on the head in pompadour fashion.

A tremendous revival of feather trims is announced, which is another "reason why" hats take on a different look these days Not only does fashion place "a feather in your cap" but entire hats are made of feathers. And a perfect riot of feathers enliven the new fall felts, while dressy headgear will flaunt feathers in gayest mood. The little hat above, to the left, is typical of little feminine millinery confections, that call for cunning veils and the use of hatpins.

One characteristic feature of town and country wide-brim felts, is that crowns go towering to any height, as you see in the model pictured in the upper right corner. In this instance, a striking hat-and-bag ensemble has been achieved with two-toned felt, bright blue and red glove stitching. Blue and red combinations is a "last word" message broadcasting from fashion centers, not only for hats but for the entire costume.

Sportsfelts are very wide of brim this season and have a nonchalant swagger picturesqueness about them that is most intriguing.

Luxury Blouse

Evening and dressy afternoon blouses stress the luxury note more importantly than it has been for many past seasons. This distinguished blouse has an elaborate embroidery treatment expressed in multi-colored sequins, beads and metal threads. The use of rich and glittering embroideries for the new evening jackets follow the same trend. The new deep armhole seams so modish this fall, present endless opportunity to introduce ornate embroidery schemes.

Sweater V Necklines

Sweaters have become a campus and schoolgirl hobby. The fashion that stands pre-eminently forth as a favorite is the long torso pullover sweater with a deep V-neckline. The "big idea" aside is to wear this sweater in lightweight soft cashmere yarns over a smartly styled tweed skirt.

Two-Piece Effect For Fall-Winter

The two-piece effect whether simulated or actually so, is outstanding this season. Sometimes the skirt is seamed to a long-torso middy-like top so that it has the appearance of a two-piece, though it really is a one-piece. This type is particularly slenderizing to the figure inclined to curves.

Then the new tunic costumes interpret the two-piece vogue, being actually two-piece versions and not camouflaged. Tunics are running a big vogue, some straight-lined, others with a flare.

Peplums sewed on at the waistline make another interesting approach to the modish two-piece fashions Youth seeks the peplum effects for they are especially adapted to slender hips but the more mature figure glories in the straight tunics and long torso bodice tops.

Fall Fashion Program Includes Lace Neckwear

Emphasis on lace neckwear accessories continues as important fashion news. The fact that classic simplicity is the rule for daytime dresses of sheer wools and smart velveteens, has caused a revival or rather sustained interest in lovely feminine lingerie neckwear touches.

New in the present showings are deep lace-trimmed collars with half sleeves of matching lingerie to be sewed into bracelet-length sleeves.

Sequins and Appliques Trim Fine-Mesh Veils

Veils will be very ornate this season, with glittering accents of sequins or appliques of tiny felt flowers. Some are dotted with tiny suede stars.

Very fine mesh veils prevail, some of which are bordered with spangles, others having rows of heavy chenille to finish them off.

HINTS FOR GAS SAVINGS SLOGANS

Harold Ickes has labored and come forth with a sticker, "I Am Using One Third Less Gas" as a terrific weapon in the drive to save fuel. Well, to this department it seems feeble, trite and ineffective, especially when dealing with human beings who have shaken off their real skin and donned the tough hide of automobilists Nobody reads the stickers on a windshield, not even the fellow who pastes them on.

If they are to be used, however, why not put a kick in 'em. Something along this line.

"I Am Not a Hog, Even When in an Auto."

"I Wouldn't Cripple Uncle Sam Just for a Few Extra Miles of Touring."

"I Put Patriotism Above Petroleum."

"America First. Picnicking Second."

"I'm Stepping on Hitler, Not on the Accelerator."

"I'd Rather Lay Up My Car Than Lay Up My Future."

Of course in this crisis there is bound to be the fellow who takes the attitude, "I only regret I have but one limousine to give for my country."

TOO MANY HIGHWAY FATALITIES IN IOWA

Up to Saturday Iowa highway fatalities so far this year totaled 442. which is 75 more than a year ago on the same date!

Something is wrong somewhere and something must be done to curb this needless slaughter Just where the cause lies we do not know, but we have our own idea Too much speed is undoubtedly a large part of the cause And if that is part of the cause, the remedy is simple cut down speed to where it is considered safe for the average driver to properly handle his car

Iowa is getting a bad reputation among our neighboring states The other day we were talking to a Minnesota resident and he informed us that Minnesotans had a bad opinion of Iowa drivers, and when they would see an Iowa car coming down the highway would remark Pull off the road, here comes another Iowa lunatic"

Minnesota has speed laws and they are enforced Night driving is also slowed up still more by the law with the result that highway fatalities in Minnesota are quite rare

European bombing is tame compared what we Iowans can do with an automobile We should send some of our Iowa drivers over to scare hell out of Hitler!

GOD MADE FALL FOR THE LOVER OF NATURE

With the first slight tinge of a light frost North Iowa will soon be turned into a riot of color!

Of all the seasons this scribe likes the fall season best of all The air is cool and crispy and it seems to step up vitality after a period of scorching heat and sluggishness and fills us full of pep and a strong desire to be out in nature's wonderland

With fall comes the real sporting season of the year With fall comes the things dear to the heart of the sportsman hunting, fishing or just rambling through the timber or following the shores of a stream or lake nature in its best There is the thrill of stalking the wily squirrel who can give the keenest riflemen a merry chase and a lesson in camouflage as Mr Bushy Tail scampers from limb to limb and then disappears in a tiny clumb of leaves that seemingly could not hide a mouse Bushy Tail is smart and has a better than fifty to fifty chance of outwitting his enemy, the hunter

Then there is the thrill of going to the woods in quest of nuts and seeing the wonders of nature first hand as you go from tree to tree in search of the largest nuts and you see the many birds flitting about and scolding, and the late fall flowers and plants found only in the woods.

What greater thrill than to be crouched low near a likely pond and hear the swish of wings as a flock of Mallards, Teal or Butterballs set their wings for a downward glide toward your hiding place, and then suddenly swing away because you made a suspicious move that caught the leader of the flock's eye? Or perhaps your luck was good and next day you had a delicious roast duck in the oven.

What greater thrill than to be on a cold lake or stream and as you cast toward that likely looking spot to have the water suddenly explode as a leaping fish takes the lure and the battle is on with odds in favor of your fighting fish

Or keeping the "line straight" as you march down through tall fields of corn, nerves on edge as you strain for that sudden burst of color that seems to come from nowhere and before you can get a bead on him, old Ringneck has headed for the next township and you sort of tremble and realize you just went through a stage of "buck fever" You settle down and steady your nerves and the next cock comes tumbling down as you swing on him. You feel like a king and modestly try to conceal your happiness.

Surely God made the fall for the sportsman and the lover of nature and the great out of doors

MRS J SHOULD LEARN THE SIGN LANGUAGE

The other day Mrs. Lena Schroeder called on Mrs R. A Jorgenson to "talk over" some things.

Mrs Schroeder had a throat operation performed a short time ago and in order to heal properly she had to refrain from talking, or even whispering for several weeks so Mrs Schroeder does her "talking" by writing on a pad of paper

She sat down with Mrs Jorgenson and had her message all written out, which Mrs. J proceeded to read, and when she had finished, she also took the pencil and pad and wrote part of the reply when Mrs Schroeded nudged her and made signs indicating that Mrs. J could save time by speaking and not writing!

And was Mrs. J's face red?

Mrs. Schroeder could hardly keep from laughing out loud

• MUSIC NEWS

Mr Onerheim made us happy by going away Wednesday Not because we don't like him, but it is rather a relief not to have any kind of music for once Even though we like it!

• SPORTS FLASHES

Klemme defeated Goodell 12 to 5 behind the effective pitching of Klemme's ace pitcher, L. Kaduce Klemme got 8 hits off of Boller, Goodell's pitcher, while Goodell got four hits off of Kaduce and Brinkman

Crystal Lake won a hard fought battle Monday afternoon from the Klemme Shamrocks, 2-1 Crystal Lake got five hits off of Kaduce, while Klemme collected three hits off of Christenson, Crystal Lake's pitcher

Friday, Klemme entered the sectional tournament at Fertile drawing Kensett for the first game.

Our boastful Juniors challenged the "all-stars" to a kittenball game next week. The "all-stars" accepted their challenge and are willing to play

RECEPTION HELD FOR THE TEACHERS THURSDAY EVE

A large crowd was at the school gymnasium Thursday evening to attend the public reception of the teachers and to give them a real welcome to Klemme

The Music Club sponsored the affair and arranged a program

Several musical numbers were enjoyed as well as community singing

In the absence of Mrs. C Wille, chairman of the Music Club, Mrs. P W Johnson acted as chairman

Dr. A H Dulmes, president of the school board, introduced Supt. John Micklick, who in turn introduced the teaching staff.

Group games were enjoyed for an hour after which light refreshments were served.

ssolve yeast in warm water. salt and melted fat, then milk flour. Stir until smooth. Let stand over night, or 1½ hours. When ready to use, beat egg yolks, add to mixture and then add beaten whites. Bake 4 minutes on a very hot iron.

Fruit Sauce for Waffles.

½ cup butter
2 cups powdered sugar
1 cup crushed berries
1 egg white
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter, add powdered sugar and when well creamed, stir in white of egg and vanilla. Mix thoroughly and add berries. Chill. Makes a delicious topping for waffles when served for supper, dessert, or even late-at-night as a "snack."

Gingerbread Waffles.
(Makes 6 waffles)

1½ cups pastry flour
¼ cup sugar
½ cup molasses
2 eggs
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
6 tablespoons melted shortening

Beat eggs until light. Add sugar, molasses and sour milk Sift dry ingredients together and add. Beat until smooth. Add shortening and bake 3 or 4 minutes. Serve with ice cream.

Chocolate Waffles.

1¾ cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons sugar
2 eggs
1 cup milk
2 squares chocolate
4 tablespoons butter

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add milk, beaten eggs, fat and chocolate which has been melted over hot water. Preheat iron 8 minutes and bake waffle for three minutes.

Apple Waffles.
(Makes 6 waffles)

1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 egg
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup milk
½ cup chopped apples
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Dash of nutmeg

Chop apples, add lemon juice and nutmeg. Let stand for 15 minutes. Sift flour, measure, add dry ingredients and add apples and butter. Heat waffle iron 6 to 8 minutes, pour on batter and bake two to three minutes. Serve with butter and brown syrup.

Here's a good game for your next waffle party. It's called CONSEQUENCES and is played as the old familiar Consequences. Paper and pencil are needed. Each person draws the head of a beast, bird or man, folds the paper over and passes it to the neighbor on his left. Each person then draws a body of beast, bird or man, according to his fancy, and again folds the paper over. The last item to be added is the legs and feet. The paper is to be folded again and passed to the neighbor on the left, then all are opened. The results may be astonishing.

LYNN SAYS:

Care of the Waffle Iron. Most modern electric waffle irons should not be greased, but extra richness must be put into the waffle batter. This should be poured on the pre-heated iron from a pitcher or with a large spoon.

With continued use, the cooking surface is apt to become brown, and it is a mistake to remove this; unless it becomes charred or too thick. During the occasional scourings, great care must be taken not to get water into the connection plug or heating element. A damp cloth or a soft brush should be used to free the iron from excess batter or crumbs.

THOUGH practically all the girls in Hollywood are having their hair cut very short, Myrna Loy is holding out for longer locks. She's showing us a new hair-do in "The Shadow of the Thin Man," however. Parted in the center, the hair is rolled behind the ears and caught by a barrett or a bow at the nape of the neck in a cluster of curls She likes variety, says she, and that's why she likes fairly long hair Incidentally, the Coast hairdressers are worried for fear that the tightly shorn locks of the heroine of "For Whom the Bell Tolls" will become too popular, so on the screen they'll be longer than in the book, we're told

GOD OUR HEAVENLY FATHER

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 1 26-28; Matthew 6 24-33

GOLDEN TEXT—Our Father which art in heaven. Hallowed be thy name.—Matthew 6 9.

Without God man has no hope in this world. This is the teaching of Scripture, which is confirmed by experience and admitted by the philosophies of men. "Having no hope and without God in the world," says Paul (Eph. 2:12), and every godless philosophy paints the same dark picture. Says one, "It cannot be doubted that the theistic belief is a comfort to those that hold it and that the loss of it is a very painful loss. We have seen the spring sun shine out of an empty heaven to light up a soulless earth; we have felt with utter loneliness that the Great Companion is dead" (Clifford).

That desolate and despairing conclusion need not be the lot of any man, for we have in God's own Word a clear revelation of Himself as our Creator and our loving Father. Why not accept it?

I. God Our Creator (Gen. 1 26-28). Both of our Scripture passages tell us much about man, but in doing so they reveal God.

1. How He Made Man (vv. 26, 27). "God created man in his own image" (v. 27). This does not refer to any physical likeness, although it is abundantly evident that man's body is far above the animal level and perfectly adapted to be the dwelling place of the soul and the instrument of its activity in a physical world. Even the Son of God took upon Himself the body of a man and, in its glorified state, still bears that body in heaven. This means that man's body is worthy of honor and considerate care and use.

The real image of God in man is a moral and spiritual likeness. Man is a moral being, knowing the difference between right and wrong. He has all the characteristics of personality, self-consciousness, intelligence, feeling and will. That image has been marred and defaced by sin, but it is still there. Even in the lowest man or woman it is capable of being reached and transformed by the grace of God.

2. How He Blessed Man (v. 28). He gave man "a help meet for him" (Gen. 2:18); that is, a completely suitable companion and helper. He gave him dominion over the entire earth, and his restless, pioneering spirit still presses toward the complete realization of that promise. He provided for every need of man, not only physical and social, but also spiritual, for we read that He walked with him "in the cool of the day" (Gen. 3:8), until man by his own sin broke that fellowship. God's love toward His creation is shown by His provision for man's complete joy and full usefulness.

II. God Our Heavenly Father (Matt. 6:24-33).

Two things harass the mind and heart of man—anxiety for today and fear for tomorrow. He must have what he and his family needs for today, and it is a constant struggle for most men to meet that need. Then, as though that were not enough, there is always the morrow's new and possibly greater needs. Even those who have all they need today live in dread (and well they may if they do not trust God) that tomorrow or next week or next year they too may be in need. Our text meets both problems, for it tells us

1. Why We Need Not Be Anxious Today (vv. 24-31). The answer is simple—look at the birds. They cannot work, they are not even able to pray, yet God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers. Even a king cannot dress in such beauty—God provided it for them. "Are ye not much better than they?" (v. 26).

No bird ever worried because it did not have a meal laid by for tomorrow, and no flower has fretted itself lest its blossom failed to come forth in its accustomed beauty. Why should we be anxious?

Intelligent forethought is good and proper, but anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God. He is ready and able to meet our daily need.

2. Why We Need Not Fear Tomorrow (vv. 32, 33). "Your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need" (v. 32). Does not that settle the whole future? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Tomorrow with its joys and sorrows is not yet here, and when it does come God will be here as a loving Father to graciously provide for every moment of it.

What then shall we do? Verse 33 tells us, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." Give God first place in your life and He will see that all "these things" are added. Simple, isn't it? and blessedly true. Let's trust Him!

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

THE dress which is practically a requirement for college entrance is the jumper. It's the basis of every well-planned school wardrobe, for it can be worn with different blouses and sweaters in many interchangeable effects. Pattern No 8018 presents a jumper which slim girls will like—it has a fitted waistline, marked with a shaped, wide belt. The top is supported with straps which cross and button in back. The regulation convertible collar blouse is included with the jumper pattern.

Household Hints

While beating egg whites see that the bowl and beater are perfectly clean and dry. Also, have no yolk in the white. Otherwise the whites will not beat up to their full volume. If any yolk drops into the white, remove it with a piece of eggshell.

Before cooking rice place it in a colander and pour boiling water over it. Save this water, as it makes excellent starch for blouses, muslin, laces, et cetera.

The flavor and vitamin content of cooked white squash are improved by sprinkling grated cheese over it just before it goes to the table.

PIONEER HI-BRED CORN COMPANY
IOWA

THANK YOU Iowa Farmers

September 25, 1941

You are making this the greatest year in Pioneer history. More farmers are ordering Pioneer hybrid seed corn this year and in larger quantities, than ever before.

Last spring, about one-half of all the farmers in Iowa planted some Pioneer.

This fall most of those who grew a crop of Pioneer are reordering. Thousands of farmers who did not plant Pioneer last spring are swinging to it now.

The average order now calls for about 17% more Pioneer corn than the average order last year.

On September 25, 1941, Iowa farmers had ordered more than twice as much Pioneer as on the same date last year.

Pioneer corn breeders and seed house workers greatly appreciate your confidence in them. They will deliver to you the best seed corn they know how to produce.

MEDICAL SOCIETY CAMPAIGN AGAINST DISEASES

The Hancock - Winnebago medical society is girding again for a preventive campaign against diphtheria and smallpox

For the third consecutive year, the society will sponsor a drive against these diseases this fall in conjunction with the Iowa State Medical Society and the Iowa Department of health The campaign will be held Nov 3 to 8 inclusive

As in the past the campaign will be conducted chiefly for children, but adults are urged to participate because, smallpox and diphtheria can be particulary troublesome when they strike adults and prevention will save a lot of unnecessary illness and expense

The department stated that "we can rest assured that if vaccination to prevent smallpox isn't widely practiced, there will be an increase in this disease before many years. Smallpox is down at present, but it won't stay down unless vaccination is employed to fullest advantage"

Diphtheria, it was brought out, does not occur as frequently in this state as smallpox, but it follows the same trend and "must be watched with constant vigilance."

PAUL BLANK WRITES ABOUT LIFE IN THE NAVY

U S Naval Training Station,
Great Lakes Illinois,
Oct 1, 1941

Dear Folks-

I am right in here plowing, only it's different plowing, a little more complicated, I think

The first thing we had when we got off the train here was a physical test which I passed in fine shape Then we got our Navy hair cut which anybody can do. We were issued our clothing and went to our barracks which are new and modern in every way About 60 men on the upper deck and 60 below which makes a company All are a happy go lucky bunch and we have fine officers

We first learned to roll up our clothes and make up hammocks Sleeping in one is like trying to sleep in a duck boat and I fell out once and banged the floor pretty hard

We are now in "detention" and will be here for three weeks while in quarantine after which we go over the river to "paradise" for three weeks and then go up to Jack Benny' little town of Waukegan about seven miles north of here where we can can whoopee Then we get a twelve day leave which will be welcome

They sure been drilling us hard as we have to do 12 weeks work in six, but we like it Today they issued us rifles and bayonets to drill with This looks too much like army to me, but I guess it is not much I hope!

For recreation we have 3 movies a week which we march to about 80 rods from our barracks.

I believe this is one of the very cleanest of organizations I mean everything has to be spic and span And talk about grub, it is alright We eat as much as we want, but the best is those beans for breakfast, but not too often, but it is all good clean food

I must quit and help clean up the barracks and make up that swinging bunk Am feeling fine and getting along fine

Your loving son,

"JOE" BLANK WRITES ABOUT LIFE IN ARMY CAMP

Jefferson Barracks, Mo
October, 1, 1941

Dear Folks

How is everything at home? I hope you feel as good as I do, and I like the army life so far

I can't see anything wrong with the meals here, and talk about gaining weight, I have gained ten pounds in just a few days! They take good care of us here and I think I will be in better condition when I get home than when I left. But I would like a good home cooked meal!

We are just starting to drill and from now on I guess we will get a good work out Sunday, I hear, we will hike to St. Louis, which is twelve miles A nice little hike, or is it?

I think I will be here four or five weeks and then leave for the Chanute Field in Illinois to start school I don't know wether I was smart or lucky that I got in the Air Corps as I had to pass five examinations, and I will study to be an airplane mechanic which should be interesting I will spend twenty two weeks in the school and after graduation will go to some large air field I think it is swell that we get such a chance as going to school and I know it will mean a lot to me

There are just two things you have to do in the Army: keep your mouth shut and your ears open and you will get along alright!

We just have to keep our chin up and take whatever they give us. Well I better sign off

With Love, Your Son, Alvin.

BROTHER-IN-LAW OF KLEMME WOMAN FATALLY INJURED

Charles Hamstreet, 56, farmer living near Mason City, was killed by dynamite while blasting rock on his farm Friday afternoon

Just how Mr Hamstreet met his death is not known, but an investigation seemed to indicate that the blast may have been slow in going off and Mr. Hamstreet went to investigate the delay when the blast went off and killed him instantly

Mr. Hamstreet was the husband of Mrs. W F Missman's sister. Dr. and Mrs Missman attended funeral services which were held Monday afternoon at the Congregational church at Mason City

LOIS ANN JACOBS HONORED ON FIFTH BIRTHDAY

Wednesday, October 1st, was a red letter day on the calendar for Lois Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs, for that date was Lois Ann's fifth birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Jacobs planned and carried out a birthday party for Lois Ann to which she invited a group of small boys and girls Games and stunts was enjoyed, but the big attraction for the little folks came when Lois Ann opened the many nice gift packages her friends brought her.

Ice cream and cake was later enjoyed by the little boys and girls.

HANCOCK COUNTY FARMS TO BE CHECKED FOR PRODUCTIVE STRENGTH

Production Goals For Farm Commodities Will Be Established

(This is the first of a series of short articles explaining the "Food for Freedom" campaign being launched this fall in the nation.)

By James M Townsend,
Hancock County USDA Defense Board Chairman

Gone are the days of "business as usual" on Hancock County farms This month the "Food for Freedom" farm defense program will be launched to marshall the productive strength of the farms in Hancock County to furnish what is needed, in the amounts needed, at the times needed In this way, America can provide the agricultural products needed to win the war for democracy.

Good Market Prices Ahead

This will be accomplished thru the establishing of production goals for most farm commodities for 1942. By doing his part in attaining the production goals, each farmer will have these advantages: he has the best market at the best prices he has had in years; by doing his part, he will be making an essential contribution to the defense of freedom; he will be providing the food that will "write" the peace;" he is assured price protection in case an unforeseen development should suddenly reduce his market.

Farmers will have the opportunity to work out their 1942 farm plans when county and community AAA committeemen, as part of the regular AAA procedure, make a farm-to-farm canvass to help farmers draw up 1942 farm plans between October 15 and December 1st.

Data obtained in the canvass will be compiled, and if the county, state or nation tabulations indicate that any of the goals have not been attained, a renewed effort will be made to obtain the needed production. The individual farm plan will provide each farmer with a yardstick for carrying out his 1942 production operations in accordance with his own and the nation's best interest.

National tabulation of all farm plans will give the Secretary of Agriculture, for the first time in history, a complete picture of national agricultural production for the coming year

Launching of this program does not mean America is short of food. In general, agricultural supplies are as yet adequate, but demand in this country and for shipment under the Lend-Lease Act are increasing rapidly and serious shortages would likely occur next year unless special efforts are made to increase production in certain lines. This will be discussed further in next week's article.

GERARDIS OPEN MUSIC STORE IN KLEMME

Mr and Mrs Ernest Gerardi have leased space in the C. A. Larsen building, the room formerly occupied by John Lamont as a law office, and have opened a music store and studio

Mr. and Mrs Gerardi announce that they will carry a complete line of musical instruments, including band instruments, stringed instruments, accordions, pianos, and accessories, as well as a full line of sheet music.

The new place of business will be open to the public this week Saturday

METHODIST LADIES PLAN A CAFETERIA SUPPER

The ladies of the Klemme Methodist Church are planning to have a cafeteria style supper at the dining room of the church on the evening of October 22.

WINTER PLANS

As far as can be ascertained, the most important point under discussion between Hitler and Mussolini during their recent visit to the Russian battle lines was a plan by which Italian troops would hold down a sizeable portion of the German front during the Russian winter stalemate.

Naturally, no one outside the Fascist-Nazi high command really knows the details of what happened. However, Mussolini squawked so loudly over Hitler's demands, that their general nature leaked out in Rome—where a lot of army leaders are none too friendly to the Axis.

Hitler's theory, bluntly put, was that the Italians were no good as fighters; so during the winter months when there was no fighting to be done, they could move into the trenches and protect the German lines.

Then Hitler could ship his troops down to Africa, and could clean up the whole of North Africa before spring and good fighting weather returned to Russia. Hitler figured that during the winter he could take over all of French North Africa, Egypt and the Suez canal, then penetrate to Dakar—from which he would have a base against South America.

It has long been known that Hitler realizes he has to move fast in Africa and the South Atlantic, or the United States will be strong enough to block him.

Mussolini's reaction to this plan was anything but enthusiastic. Aside from the ignominy of withdrawing from Italy's proposed field of conquest—Africa—Il Duce argued that Italian troops could not stand Russian winters. They would die of pneumonia in such a rigorous climate.

Whether Mussolini finally agreed is not known.

Note: The Nazi plan apparently is to put 250,000 Hungarian troops in the Russian trenches during the winter; plus 200,000 Rumanians; plus about 50,000 Slovaks and about 500,000 Italians. The German army during the winter would be reduced to a mere skeleton of about 100,000 men.

NEW IMPRESSIONS

Washington newsmen, after seeing Roosevelt twice a week for eight years, have only dull impressions when they walk into a press conference. A fresh impression comes from Jack Moffitt, ace Hollywood reporter, who saw the President the other day for the first time.

"There was charm in the setting," Moffitt said "The mementoes on his desk indicate a man of imagination who can extract pleasant memories from past experiences . . . He costumes well. Hoover's choker collar became a symbol of Tory America. Coolidge dressed like a small town banker. Roosevelt avoids the foppish, but hits a certain suburban ease in his dress which sells quickly to the public.

"He was impressive in handling himself. There was ease and frankness, and a quickness in response to questions. He was at all times master of the interview.

"I was struck by his paleness and the lines in his face, contradicting the smirk I've seen in a thousand cartoons. If I were a casting director, looking for an actor for this part, I'd cast him as a man who is working hard under great strain."

UNDER WAR SECRETARY

Newsmen sat three deep around a long polished table in the new war department building. They fired questions at the man with a suntanned face sitting at the head of the table He was the under secretary of war.

What's a T-6 tank like? . . . Are M-3 tanks available for the maneuvers? . . . Did the French find the 75 mm tank gun effective? . . . What is the altitude range of the 90 mm. anti-aircraft gun? . . Is the army in Iceland? . . . What do you think about the Russian resistance?

He ducked the last two questions, but answered all the technical questions with the assurance of a soldier trained all his life in ordnance.

But he isn't a life-long soldier. He is a lawyer, an ex-circuit court judge, who scarcely a year ago was concerned with such non-military subjects as the reorganization of the New York subway.

This was a press conference with the under secretary of war, Robert P. Patterson. A judge in 1940, he is a soldier in 1941, with a complete grasp of the technical information of his job.

OPM has a defense job waiting for movie star Marlene Dietrich as soon as her broken ankle is mended. They want to use her glamorous gams (legs) to publicize cotton stockings for women, made necessary by the shutting off of Japanese silk.

Coal Was Used in the Bronze Age

The popular legend is that coal was discovered by Joseph of Arimathea who, near Glastonbury in A. D. 67, found a black lump and took it to the monastery where it was thought to be a stone and thrown on the fire. It became known as "seacoles," and was first used generally as fuel in 1228.

It is now established that coal was used in Great Britain much earlier. Sir Cyril Fox, director of the National Museum of Wales, while excavating in the neighborhood of Bridgend, England, came across two cairns, both of the Bronze age. One had buried in it two adults and a child, and fragments of coal found with each set of remains show that coal was used in these cremation burials. It was also established that the burials took place about 1600 B. C.

'Trials by Touch'

As late as the Seventeenth century, America held "trials by touch," in which the defendant in a murder case was made to touch the corpse to see if it would give some indication that he was the guilty person, says Collier's. In one such trial in Virginia in 1663, several members of a family had to touch the body of a former Negro servant. But they were acquitted because Uncle Joe "gave no sign."

An Important Statement About Rubber in National Defense

AND WHAT YOU AS A CAR OWNER AND A LOYAL AMERICAN CAN DO ABOUT IT

Among the strategic raw materials so vital to national defense, rubber is one of the most indispensable.

Airplanes, scout cars, tanks and trucks — as well as thousands of vehicles necessary for transportation in defense industries — require tires, tubes, and hundreds of other products made from rubber.

And while no other nation in the world has such vast natural resources as the United States, all of our rubber must be imported across thousands of miles of ocean.

Map showing routes that rubber travels to the U. S.

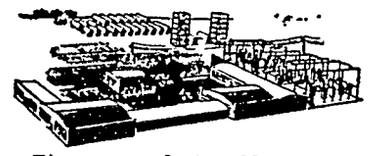
With world conditions as they are today, we must face the growing possibility that this country may be cut off from its principal sources of rubber supply.

Realizing the dangers of a single source of supply, Harvey S. Firestone began years ago the development of a huge million-acre tract of land in Liberia for growing rubber. Today, an ever-increasing amount of highest-quality rubber is being shipped to Firestone from these plantations.

At present, this country has on hand or in transit only enough crude rubber and finished products to last 13 months at present rate of consumption.

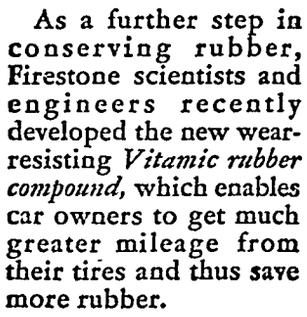
Comparison of rubber supply on hand and amount needed for one year at present rate of consumption.

Every month part of the rubber imported is used by the government to build up a reserve. The remainder is allotted to the rubber companies who must FIRST manufacture products needed for defense. They then use the rest to make the thousands of rubber products needed by automobile and other manufacturers and by the public.



New Firestone synthetic rubber factory

Fully aware of these serious conditions, Firestone has taken many steps to conserve and increase America's supply of rubber. In cooperation with the government, Firestone is now building another factory for the manufacture of synthetic rubber. This will greatly increase present capacity.



As a further step in conserving rubber, Firestone scientists and engineers recently developed the new wear-resisting Vitamic rubber compound, which enables car owners to get much greater mileage from their tires and thus save more rubber.

HOW EVERY CAR OWNER CAN HELP CONSERVE RUBBER

Today's conditions stand as a challenge to the loyalty and patriotism of American motorists. Here are a few common-sense rules of tire care which will save millions of pounds of rubber annually for your country — and save money for you.

UNDERINFLATED TIRES WASTE RUBBER

Look at this chart — if a tire with 30 pounds of recommended air pressure is run at 25 pounds, 32% of normal mileage is sacrificed! Save money and save rubber by having your tires checked every week.

SPEED WASTES RUBBER

Chart shows excessive speed is the greatest thief of tire mileage. An increase in speed of 50% may mean a 50% increase in the cost of operating your car.

QUICK STARTS AND SUDDEN STOPS ARE COSTLY

In quick getaways, wheels spin against the pavement, wasting rubber. Sudden stops cause your wheels to slide. Save rubber by starting and stopping slowly.

CHECK WHEEL ALIGNMENT AND HAVE BRAKES BALANCED

A wheel only ½-inch out of line is dragged sideways 87 feet per mile, scraping off tread rubber. Unbalanced brakes are equally wasteful of tire mileage. Save rubber by having your wheel alignment and brakes checked regularly.

CHANGE TIRES FROM WHEEL TO WHEEL EVERY 5,000 MILES

The diagram at the right shows how the tires on your car should be changed from one wheel to another every 5,000 miles. This plan of inter-changing tires saves rubber by eliminating uneven tire wear.

WHEN YOU NEED NEW TIRES . . . IT'S ALWAYS GOOD JUDGMENT TO BUY THE BEST

One of the most effective ways to save rubber — and at the same time save money and save precious human lives — is to equip your present tires with Firestone Life Protectors, the new-type tubes that out-wear three sets of ordinary tubes.

With Firestone Life Protectors on your car you can drive your present tires safely thousands of extra miles without fear of blowouts, because these tubes make a blowout as harmless as a slow leak.

And after your present tires are worn out, replace them with the safest, longest-wearing tires that money can buy — the new Safti-Sured Firestone DeLuxe Champion Tires — the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

You are invited to listen to the Voice of Firestone with Richard Crooks, Margaret Speaks and the Firestone Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Alfred Wallenstein, Monday evenings, over N. B. C. Red Network

Firestone ONE-STOP SERVICE

SAVES YOUR TIRES . . . SAVES YOUR CAR SAVES YOUR MONEY!

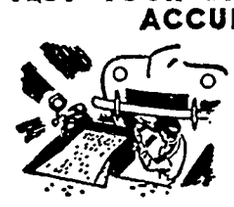
In every community there is a Firestone Dealer or Store that will gladly perform these services without one cent of cost to you.

INSPECT YOUR TIRES AND CHECK THEM FOR CORRECT INFLATION

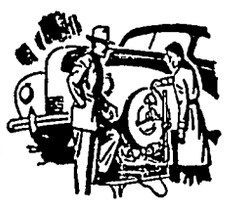
Your tires will be properly inflated free at any time. Nails, glass or other objects are removed from the tread. Breaks in the tire body are located so that they may be repaired before damage occurs. These simple precautions increase tire mileage.

TEST YOUR BRAKES WITH THE MOST ACCURATE MACHINES



Balanced brakes prolong tire life. Firestone electric brake machines scientifically balance each wheel. Your Firestone Dealer or Store will gladly test your brakes free.

CHECK YOUR WHEEL ALIGNMENT WITH MOST MODERN EQUIPMENT



Pigeon-toed wheels that waste so much rubber and gasoline can be quickly aligned. Your car should be checked regularly for alignment — another free Firestone Service.

INSPECT AND TEST YOUR BATTERY

Your Firestone Dealer or Store will gladly test the battery free upon request. And their efficient equipment will tell the exact condition of each cell so that you may avoid annoying road delays.

TEST YOUR SPARK PLUGS

Unless your spark plugs have full firing power they waste gasoline. Your motor will fire unevenly and cause increased wear on running parts. Have your Firestone Dealer or Store test your plugs every 4,000 miles. There is no charge!

SAVE RUBBER BY RETREADING YOUR SMOOTH, WORN TIRES

If your smooth tire has a safe body, a rugged, tough, long-wearing, non-skid Firestone New-Tread can be applied at amazingly low cost, which will give up to 80% of the mileage built into the original tread. This is one of the best ways to save rubber.

spect to disarmament, nistration took the lead as

For two years, from October in 1937 to September in 1941, President Roosevelt broadcast repeated warnings that America could not escape European internal troubles and pleaded through state notes to Hitler and Mussolini, for a world peace conference. The dictators scorned a direct reply. Hitler (right) views a part of his mighty air armada in 1940, which was even then blasting Old World cities in his effort to conquer more land for the Reich. Mussolini, (left) assumes a characteristic pose, as he addresses the Italian people on the eve of war. The Chief Executive sent a message to all important powers in Europe on August 24, 1939. A second urgent note was delivered to Hitler alone, on the next day. Exactly one week later, war was declared. The swastika, mark of the Germans, shown at the right of the picture, floats over crushed Paris, with the famed Eiffel tower in the background. The French fought fiercely but accepted an armistice on June 22, 1940. Since that date the war has spread almost entirely over the face of the globe, even affecting the normal life of American citizens, thus carrying out President Roosevelt's prophecy in Chicago, in 1937, that unless present European conditions were remedied, America would eventually have to face the problems arising from acts of aggression.

It was later that I pointed out that the recent systematic violation of treaties, the indiscriminate bombing of civilians, were wiping away the very landmarks of law, order, and justice which had characterized our civilization. I warned that "if those things come to pass in other parts of the world, let no one imagine that America will escape, that America may expect mercy, that this Western hemisphere will not be attacked." I called upon the peace-loving nations to "make a concerted effort in opposition to those violations of treaties and those ignorings of humane instincts which today are creating a state of international anarchy and instability.

During 1938 there came the Czechoslovakian crisis. On September 26 and September 27, 1938, I sent messages to Hitler and to the heads of the Czechoslovakian, British, and French governments, seeking a peaceful solution of that threat of war. The particular crisis was averted, but, as I stated at the time, "it was (is) becoming increasingly clear that peace by fear had (has) no higher or more enduring quality than peace by the sword."

Conditions Grow Worse.

Three months later, at Lima, Peru, the 21 American republics, including our own, agreed to stand together to defend the independence of each one of us in the Western hemisphere. That declaration at Lima was a further step toward continued peace and common defense in this hemisphere, but it did not have any effect on matters in Europe. In 1939 international affairs in Europe grew steadily worse.

That is why I was so anxious in July, 1939, for the congress to repeal the arms embargo provisions of the neutrality law. For such a repeal would, in effect, say to the aggressor nations that if they did declare war they would find that their enemies would be able to obtain the needed war supplies here in America. I knew that the sale of arms by the United States could and would help the weaker nations resist attack from those nations which had built up these vast offensive striking forces.

The Arms Embargo.

Congress was ready to adjourn in July, 1939, without passing the repeal of the arms embargo. We were convinced that the arms embargo was actually having the effect of hastening the war in Europe by the encouragement which it gave to the aggressor nations. I therefore called a conference at the White House of the Republican and Democratic leaders of the congress to urge upon them further the necessity of the legislation, and to canvass the situation so as to learn whether such congressional action were possible. At that conference I pointed out how the arms embargo was encouraging the outbreak of a general war, how it operated in favor of the aggressor nations of Germany and Italy, and how thoroughly it weakened the position and prestige of the United States as a motivating factor for peace. For we were hardly in a position to urge the aggressor nations to desist from attack, if we could not, under any circumstances, sell merchandise to the threatened democracies of Europe.

GOP Attitude.

It appeared clear at this conference, however, and was so stated by the congressional leaders, that practically all of the Republican members of the congress would vote against repeal, and that about 25 per cent of the Democratic members would. This opposition was based on the belief that there would be no war in Europe before the following January, when the congress would again assemble in regular session, and that, therefore, there was no need for immediate legislation.

Of course, it was useless to insist upon the legislation under those circumstances. It should be borne in mind, however, that the responsibility for this action properly lies with those who refused to repeal the arms embargo in July of 1939. I made it clear to them at the conference that the opponents would have to take the sole responsibility for the results of their opposition. And forthcoming events proved that early legislative action in this matter would have been extremely helpful to the cause.

"No nation can be safe in its will to peace so long as any other powerful nation refuses to settle its grievances at the council table." I therefore urged again upon the congress the necessity of increased national defense to protect ourselves against attack and other forms of aggression.

Offer America's Services.

During 1939, on April 14, on behalf of the American people, I again sent messages to Hitler and Mussolini, suggesting another approach to the solution of the problem of avoiding war and preserving the press. As the head of a nation far removed from Europe, I offered to serve as a "friendly intermediary." I asked for assurances from Hitler and Mussolini, however, that their armed forces would not attack or invade any of the independent nations of Europe or the Near East for a period of 10 years. I stated that I was reasonably sure that if such assurances were given, each of the other nations would give similar reciprocal assurances. I suggested that a peaceful discussion follow this exchange of guarantees, in which the government of the United States would be willing to take part —with two essential objectives in mind: first, reduction of armaments; second, opening up avenues of international trade. At the same time all governments—other than the United States—directly interested in territorial and political problems, could undertake to discuss those problems in this peaceful atmosphere.

In other words, to use a colloquial expression, what I was suggesting was a peace conference with everybody's guns "parked outside" the conference room doors.

I received no direct answer to this suggestion for world peace from either Hitler or Mussolini.

A few days before, on leaving Warm Springs, Ga., after a short vacation, I said: "I have had a fine holiday with you all. I'll be back in the fall if we do not have a war." This remark was again attacked by many newspapers and politicians as war mongering.

I proposed that the community of nations throughout the world act the same as communities do when "an epidemic of physical disease starts to spread," namely, join in a quarantine "in order to protect the health of the community against the spread of the disease."

SIMPLIFYING THE TAX BLOW

The senate finance committee recently voted for the Simplified Chart system for helping the public determine its income tax. It now seems certain that the Do-It-Without-The-Dizzy-Spell idea will become law and that the new arrivals within the income tax classifications will almost be admitted on a Pay-As-You-Enter system.

Secretary Morgenthau says that with the rank and file of taxpayers "it ain't the money; it's the confusion." He contends that a man in the lower brackets should be able to go to a post office, glance at a chart and find out what he owes Uncle Sam without going nuts.

When the income tax was limited to the Upper Brackets and only took in a small proportion of the people, it was all right to let them suffer. There seemed no reason why they shouldn't be given the works, up to and including the headache, the spots before the eyes, the nightsweats, the nervous breakdowns and the mad call for lawyers.

But the Every-Man-An-Einstein policy is to be dropped now that the income tax laws have been eased so that anybody can get in.

Uncle Sam knows that if the rank and file of his citizens were ever asked to go through all that trouble making out an income tax blank, there would be what Willie Howard calls a "re-wolt." Either that or more mental collapses than our institutions could handle.

Hence the "Not A Headache In A Carload" type of tax collection.

It is all right as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough. We think the tax blank should be made prettier. And carry a page of funnies.

We submit the following extra suggestions for making tax paying more painless:

1. Make the tax blanks prettier and include a page of funnies.

2. Preface each blank with the words "Don't Bother Reading This. See Your Postmaster."
3. Inclose postage for return.
4. Have the mailman leave each blank with an apology and explain that it's just too bad.
5. Forbid lengthy discussion of the tax blank in the home. Let the husband say, "I guess I'll run down to the post office and have my income tax apprehensions attended to," and let the wife limit her comment to "Okay. I hope it's nothing serious."
6. Have the post office chart printed in colors and throw in a couple of movie shorts in the corridor.
7. Require the postmasters to serve hot coffee and sandwiches.

Do You Remember—

Away back when the ultimatum came first and the attack second?

"Japan is proceeding with the reconstruction of the Chinese continent with the full co-operation of China. Churchill's charge that Japan is encroaching upon the Chinese people is wholly groundless." — Japanese spokesman.

And then again, the world doesn't seem to understand that those alleged bombs are really flower pots.

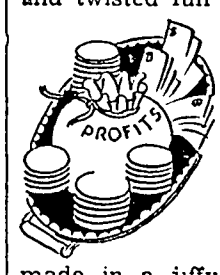
NEW WAYS FOR YOUR BAKING DAYS
(See Recipes Below)

HOT BREADS—QUICKLY

Crisp, hot rolls? Cinnamon filled and twisted full of nuts, sugar and raisins? Muffins golden and plump standing high in peaks? Scones spread with jam or jelly? Why, of course, they're yummy, and what's better, they can all be made in a jiffy. With the cooler weather setting in, you homemakers can return the hot breads and their baking into your schedules.



Or is there a bake sale or a bazaar included in the fall and winter schedule of your church or club activities? Nothing will fill the bill quite so nicely as a few trays of freshly baked biscuits, rolls, and bread.

Although cakes and pies can be baked at home by individual members, these hot breads can be made, oh, so quickly right in the church kitchen because they need only a few supplies and a few minutes to bake. They'll give your display a more complete array of baked goods and will also be a good substantial contrast to the fancier displays. To make things easy, serve them in pans (if you can spare them) to save time in making displays.

If you're planning a sale of bakery goods, have one section of a table set aside for selling individual pieces of cakes, pie, cookies, or a roll. When people realize how delicious a mouthful is, they can hardly resist buying a bagful.

As a good starter, consider the possibilities of the humble baking-powder biscuit.

Baking Powder Biscuits.
(Makes 12 biscuits)

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter or shortening
Milk to mix

Sift the flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, then cut in shortening. Add milk and mix just enough to hold together in large flakes. Pat to ¼ of an inch thickness on a floured board and cut with a biscuit cutter. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes.

Butterscotch Rolls.

Make baking-powder biscuits as given in the recipe above and pat on floured board. Brush with melted butter, sprinkle generously with brown sugar and cinnamon. Roll as for jelly roll and cut in ½-inch pieces. Put ½ teaspoon of butter and 1 teaspoon of brown sugar in each muffin pan and lay the pieces of rolled dough on top of them. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees.)

LYNN SAYS:

Quick breads require less attention than yeast breads, but there are a few pointers about them you ought to bear in mind.

Beware of overmixing the batter or dough. For the baking powder variety work the fat into the flour or mixed dry ingredients only until mixed. Then stop, quickly. Mix in the milk with a few whirls, but do not overstir unless you want tough, leathery biscuits.

The secret of good muffins is to mix the batter only until blended. Even the egg should be only slightly beaten. If you want the muffins high in peaks, add a tablespoonful or two of extra flour to the recipe. Honey, jam and jelly are indicated for muffins as grand pick-ups for meals.

Always measure ingredients unless you have the extraordinary quality of guessing accurately. There is such a thing, but it is rare, so remember to use standard measuring cups and spoons. Measurements are level unless otherwise stated.

Ovens for most quick breads are hotter than for the yeast varieties. Set the meter correctly when heating and do not put batter or dough in until the oven has reached the desired temperature.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

Scalloped Potatoes Baked Squash
*Butterscotch Rolls Beverage
Waldorf Salad
*Oranges in Syrup
*Recipe Given

Pecan Rolls.

Make as for butterscotch rolls, except add chopped pecans before rolling as jelly roll. Place broken pecan nutmeats in muffin tins with butter and sugar before putting in rolled dough. Bake in a hot oven about 20 minutes.

Plain Muffins.
(Makes 1 dozen)

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
¾ cup milk
4 tablespoons melted shortening

Mix the dry ingredients. Add the milk to the egg and mix with the dry ingredients. To this add the shortening. Stir till just mixed. Fill greased muffin tins quickly with two tablespoonfuls to each pan. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for 25 minutes.

The muffin recipe may also be baked in a square pan and topped with the following. 2 tablespoons sugar rubbed with 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons flour and 2 tablespoons butter. Rub until crumbled in appearance and sprinkle over the top of batter before baking.

Do your meals need toning up or do you want to make your bakery goods sale a smash hit? Either way, these scones will do the trick:

Holiday Fruit Scones.
(Makes 2 dozen scones)

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons butter or shortening
1½ teaspoons grated orange rind
½ cup finely cut, seedless raisins
2 eggs
⅓ cup light cream.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, sugar, and sift again. Cut in shortening, add orange rind and raisins. Reserve about ½ of one egg white for glaze. Beat remaining eggs well, add cream, and then add to flour mixture. Stir the whole mixture vigorously until it forms a soft dough and follows the spoon around the bowl. Turn out immediately on a floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll ½ inch thick and cut in small triangles. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops lightly with reserved egg white, slightly beaten, sprinkle with additional sugar. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) 10 minutes or until browned. Serve with jam or jelly.

This bread was inspired by corn on the cob, and pleasantly simulates that favorite vegetable because of the use of cornmeal in the recipe:

Corn Sticks or Muffins.
(Makes 12)

1½ cups sifted flour
2¼ teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
¾ cup cornmeal
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons melted butter or shortening

Mix flour, baking powder, salt, sugar, and sift. Add corn meal and mix well. Combine eggs, milk, shortening; add to flour mixture, beating only enough to dampen all flour. Bake in greased muffin pans or corn-shaped pans in hot oven (425 degrees) 25 minutes.

Oranges in Syrup.
(For 6 people)

Peel 6 oranges, remove all skin and membrane with knife, but leave orange whole. Make a syrup by boiling the following ingredients 10 minutes: 1 cup orange juice, ⅔ cup pineapple juice, ⅓ cup lemon juice, 1 cup sugar. Place oranges in this, boil for 1 minute. Remove to serving dish. Chill thoroughly, sprinkle with coconut before serving.

UNDER date of September 16, 1919, I have a letter from Thomas A. Edison in which this statement appears:

"If the world had been differently arranged and the sun had shone continuously, I do not think that anybody would require or take sleep. There seems to be no actual reason why we should sleep, from a scientific standp int.

"I noticed in automobiling through Switzerland that the towns which had electric lights had many new buildings and the people were active and on the streets at 12 o'clock, midnight, whereas in towns without electric lights everybody was in bed and the town was a dead one."

I won't pursue the thought outlined by Mr. Edison in the first paragraph, but I will add my bit to what he says in the second paragraph.

For years I have noticed that ample light in the dressing room and bathroom will rouse my senses almost as effectively as a cold shower. Hence lot of light on dark mornings is imperative.

I also think that adequate light in offices and factories is a source of demonstatable profit. Employees who work in semi-dark rooms can't be alert. They can't work as well or as fast as they would in bright rooms.

Few people are aware how inexpensive electric light is In most homes and shops not more than five units of light are provided, although outdoors in the sunlight nature provides up to 10,000 units of light; 1000 units in the shade of a tree; 500 units in the shade of a porch. For close indoor work, 25 to 100 or more units of light are recommended.

To obtain this, a floor or table lamp should have a 150-watt bulb The difference in the monthly light bill is hardly noticeable. The added cost of electricity used to improve the lighting in a six room house from eye straining conditions to modern sight saving standards is less than one cent a day.

Why suffer from eye strain, headaches, indigestion, if the cause is lack of proper illumination? Buy a few large bulbs and note the difference. William Feather.

LITTLE INCREASE IN CORN ALLOTMENT FOR 1942

Use Of Hybrid Corn Has Steadily Increased Production

Hancock County's corn allotment for 1942 will be 95,284 acres, James M Townsend, county AAA chairman, announced this week following release of figures from the state AAA office.

This allotment is virtually the same as the 1941 allotment of 94.-811 acres.

Normal production yield for the county has been raised to 47 0 bushels per acre from 44 5 bushels, the figure used previously in calculating AAA payments

In announcing the county allotment, the chairman explained that present indications are the 1941 allotment, plus the large carryover of 1938, 1939 and 1940 corn in the commercial corn area, will provide ample feed supplies for the increase in livestock production and livestock products sought through the 1942 "Food for Freedom" campaign.

Under the 1942 agricultural conservation program, too, there will be no restriction on the production of feed grain, other than corn wheat, potatoes and that at least 20 percent of the cropland must be in soil-conserving crops, and at the present time. United States farmers have the largest total supply of feed grains on hand since 1920, according to Townsend

Because of the existing national emergency, no corn marketing quotas will be in effect on the 1940 corn crop. Normally marketing quotas would have to be declared in effect inasmuch as the total 1941-42 corn supply of 3,174 million bushels exceeds the "normal supply" by more than 10 per cent, he explained.

Large increases in yields per acre during the last few years, Mr. Townsend said, have accounted in part for large corn reserves throughout much of the Corn Belt. Widespread use of higher yielding hybrid corn as well as improved machinery and retirement of poorer land under the AAA program has resulted in a steady increase in corn yields during recent years.

• FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

October 6 to 11 1941 is Fire Prevention Week If this week is a success or not depends upon the individual.

In 1940 there were 4487 fires and a loss of $4 449 221 00 Eighty five percent of all fires are due to carelessness and sixty percent of the fires occur in the home

Some of the fire hazards that are most common in the home are chimney not high enough above the roof; wood exposures above chimney; soot in chimney; rubbish in attic and basement; radio antenna not properly grounded; stove pipe too close to ceiling; service wires in attic; inflamable curtains too close to stove; bridged electric fuses; matches within reach of children; no stove board protecting wood floors; oil or gasoline stoves; electric iron connected; knotted drop cords; car with defective fuel or ignition systems; furniture polish; joist resting on brick chimney; ashes in a wood container; unprotected joists above smoke pipe; celluloid toys; sweepings in registers; and moss covered or curled shingles.

To make fire prevention week a success everyone of us must first remove the hazards from our own homes

• BOOKS ADDED TO LIBRARY

A new set of The Encyclopedia Americana has been put in the high school library There are thirty volumes in the set This is a worthwhile addition to the library The students should have no excuses for not looking up outside work since these attractive books have been added.

TruVal

SHIRTS are only

$1.55

For years now people have asked us: "Is this shirt only $1.35?" Our answer was, and is, "Yes."

People are always inclined to ask us this question because TruVal packs such real value into every one of its shirts—so much that they compare favorably with shirts selling from one-third to one-half more.

These shirts, made with the genuine Fair-flex collar (the collar that won't wilt or wrinkle) are expertly tailored, and guaranteed against shrinking below the marked size. If you want the thrill of a real bargain, come in today and get your Fall supply of TruVal shirts.

SUPERB VALUES . . . superbly tailored of exclusive pattern shirting . . are TruVal's fine, new de luxe shirts. They're really luxury shirts . . . budget priced at only $1.65

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcomed relief from constipation And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist today. Try one laxative combined with Syrup Pepsin for ease to your stomach, too

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acids and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

CHRIST OUR SAVIOUR

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 20:25-28; Luke 19:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

"I believe in God, the Father Almighty, . . . and in Jesus Christ His only Son, our Lord . . . I believe in the Holy Ghost." How often we have solemnly repeated these words in the Apostles' Creed, and how appropriate it is that our present three month series of lessons on great Christian teachings should begin last Sunday with a study of God, the Creator and heavenly Father, and continue today with Christ the Saviour, and present next Sunday the Holy Spirit, the Comforter.

These are profound Christian truths, but at the same time they are so simple as to be grasped by the youngest child. Today we have the great privilege of presenting in our classes our Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ. He was

I. The Self-Denying Servant (Matt. 20:25-28).

Scripture clearly teaches that God's standards are not the same as the world's standards, and that His methods of operation are just the opposite of those of the world. All too often Christians and churches imitate the world both in principle and practice, with disastrous results. Consider

1. The False Greatness of the World (v. 25). "Rulers"—"greatness"—"exercise authority"—how altogether up-to-date these words sound. They are the big and swelling words of the small hearts and minds which rule after the manner of this world. They epitomize the ambitions of the great majority of mankind, but they are definitely non-Christian. We see that as we go on to consider

2. The Humility of True Greatness (vv. 26, 27). Service in the spirit of humility and self-sacrifice—this is the standard of Christ. Yes, and it is His command to His followers. To be great for Christ one must become the servant of others. This teaching appears all through Scripture (for example, see Luke 4:11; John 13:13-17; I Pet. 5:5, 6).

How often service in the church is rendered in a spirit of pride, self-glory, and for the commendation and reward of men. When that reward is not forthcoming or some real humbling sacrifice is required, the work is not desired or the worker becomes offended. Here is one of the roots of trouble in the church. Let us put it away as we look upon

3. Christ Our Example (v. 28). He paid the price of our redemption, going to the death of Calvary for us. From the highest glory which He had with the Father (John 17:5), He graciously stooped to deepest ignominy as He became sin for us (II Cor. 5:21). Throughout both His life and His death He perfectly represented that self-denying, self-humbling service which He expects of His followers.

II. The Seeking Saviour (Luke 19 1-10).

There is much that is precious and beautiful to be said about our Lord, but perhaps nothing which brings Him so close to needy humanity as the fact that He had "come to seek and to save that which was lost" (v. 10). He was 1 Ever Interested in Sinners (vv. 1-7). Jesus was on this occasion coming up to Jerusalem for the last time. The cross was ahead. He was much taken up with His coming death and greatly straitened in spirit (see Mark 10:32 and Luke 12:50). He was passing through the great and wicked city of Jericho, yet in the midst of His deep sorrow and out of the vast multitude of that city He reached out to touch one sinner.

Zacchaeus was a man despised for his calling of tax collector, and hated for his dishonesty. He was an outcast from his own people and a stranger to God's grace, but Jesus was interested in him. Are we ready thus to go to seek and save the lost? Are we better (or busier) than our Lord?

2. Always Able to Save Sinners (vv. 8-10). Zacchaeus was a rich man, but he was a sinner. It is not easy for a rich man to be saved, but it can be done (see Matt. 19:23-26). Read the preceding verses of that chapter (vv. 16-22) and you learn of another rich man who was not saved, the rich young ruler. He was a far better man than Zacchaeus—honest, upright, honored in his community. How was it that the wicked and despised rich man was saved and the good and respected rich man was lost?

The answer is that the former admitted that he was a sinner and thus made it possible for Christ to save him, while the latter loved himself and his gold more than Christ and shut the door against His redeeming love.

Tick Tock

He was telling her his family history. "My grandfather was a poor, hard-working clockmaker. When he died a few years ago he left his estate, which consisted of two hundred clocks, to my father."

"How interesting," she said, "it must have been real fun winding up his estate."

Too Tough!

Policeman (producing notebook)—Name, please.

Motorist (caught speeding)—Aloysius Sebastian Syprian.

Policeman (putting book away)—Well, don't let me catch you again.

It's an ill wind that doesn't even dry clothes on the line.

Misunderstood

She had visited every department in the big shop and worried the salesmen, without buying anything. At last one weary assistant thought a protest was due.

"Pardon me, madam," he said, "are you shopping here?"

"Certainly," she snapped. "What else should I be doing?"

"Well, madam," he replied meekly, "I thought you were taking an inventory."

Definite

"Afraid you're going to have insomnia? What are the symptoms?"

"Twins."

Double Up

"The best way to get the most out of life is to fall in love with a great problem or a beautiful woman!"

"Why not choose the latter and get both?"

Surprise!

"Then I tried to drive round the corner."

"Well, what happened?"

"There wasn't one."

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

TODAY'S pattern is a new one-piece style which has every feature the fashion-wise school girls of today crave. The longer top, middy shaped, with the smart turn-down collar — and four-in-hand tie is the perfect start—and the full skirt attached at a low waistline completes a design to which every young "eight" to "sixteen" will give her highest approval. Note the soft gathers below the shoulder yokes.

Household Hints

Before tubbing a wash silk dress remove all buckles, buttons, bows and loose trimmings and wash them separately. If they're left on the dress they are likely to become damaged or they may tear the dress.

A serve yourself center piece for the table is a time saver. Gaily decorate a large platter of cold meat, salads and hard cooked eggs, with relishes, buttered bread slices and dabs of jelly or jam.

If your family likes variety, add a little spice to your piecrusts. A quarter teaspoon each of cinnamon and cloves will be enough for each 1½ cups of flour. It is very good with fresh fruit or berry pies.

Put a drop or two of oil or some soap on those squeaky door hinges.

Pongee must be dry when ironed. It will spot and streak if ironed when damp.

Modern streamlined war may have changed the arms and methods of Uncle Sam's soldiers, but it hasn't changed the Army man's smoking preference. For more than 20 years Camels have been the Army man's favorite cigarette. Today, actual sales records show Camels not only are the favorite with men in the Army, but with men in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard as well. With men in the service giving cigarettes first place in the gift line-up, it's natural that local tobacco dealers are featuring "Send a Carton of Camels" as the ideal gift for the service men from the folks back home.—Adv.

Some days ago the Times reporter wandered into the Wellemeyer Furniture Store and noted that H Wellemeyer had been doing some remodeling again

This time it was the linoleum department which was moved into a larger room in the basement Mr Wellemeyer's immense stock of Linoleum is now housed in a room 25x25 A new rack was built in which rest eight rolls of 9-foot wide linoleum, and padded benches were built along the walls on which the 6 foot wide roll are stored Both are plainly seen in the above picture which was taken by C C Kilgore local camera fan

Perhaps the most novel idea in the room is the chain hoist and an overhead track used to make easy handling of the 400 pound rolls This makes it possible for one man to unroll the linoleum and cut a room size linoleum from any roll on the rack A large floor is also available for matching the different strips required for the larger room.

While the writer was inspecting the new room Mr Wellemeyer explained that the linoleum factories have been busy on defense orders which must be completed before the orders for merchants are shipped

The government uses a heavy grade of inlaid linoleum for their battleships and also great quantities of regular linoleum for floors in army camps, homes for government workers, officers quarters, etc, thus during 1941 the supply for civilian use was short and the factories were behind in filling orders However, factories are now enlarging their plants and adding more machinery in an effort to catch up with back orders

Mr Wellemeyer anticipated the situation and so placed plenty of orders ahead with different factories, so he feels sure that he will be able to keep his stock up, and with the new department will even double his usual stock

Mr Wellemeyer stated that the linoleum business at his store has continued to grow and that he has enlarged the department several times.

One peculiar thing about linoleum is that there has not been a price advance in the past 2 years. Mr Wellemeyer stated he did not know the reason for that, but added that now seemed like a good time to buy linoleum.

NATIONAL DEFENSE URGES COMBAT OF DISEASE

National defense has added new significance to the importance of combating communicable diease, a member of the Hancock - Winnbago Medical Society said today, urging residents of this county to do their bit by participating in the smallpox vaccination - diphtheria immunization campaign, Nov 3-8

He said that the campaign, sponsored by the Hancock - Winnebago county medical society in cooperation with the Iowa State Medical Society and the Iowa State Department of Health, offers "an opportunity to eliminate at least two diseases which are known to be preventable."

"We cannot be completely selfish about protection against communicable disease," the board member stated. "With modern transportation as rapid as it is, disease can quickly be carried from one section of the county to another

"It is not inconceivable that a case of smallpox or diphtheria which might break out here would be transported to another part of the country, causing widespread outbreaks Protection against these diseases is not only of primary importance to us but to others with whom we come in conact."

He brought out that illness is the major cause of absence in industry and told that "it would be criminal to expose defense workers to disease which can be prevented Every effort is being taken to safeguard their health and keep the wheels of defense rolling, and we should be glad to help."

MISS NELLIE STROMER BRIDE OF GEORGE HEALD, ROLFE

Young Couple Will Live On Farm Near Rolfe, Iowa

The Elltown Peace Reformed Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Nellie Stromer, daughter of Mr and Mrs Herman Stromer of Klemme, to George Heald, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Heald of Rolfe, Iowa The marriage ceremony which was performed by the Rev Wm. Huenemann, took place Saturday, October 11, at high noon.

The bride was attired in a white satin gown having a sweetheart neckline with a fitted waist and full skirt ending in a train. A finger-tip veil was worn by the bride Her jewelry consisted of a string of pearls, gift of the bridegroom. A brooch, which had been worn by the bride's mother at her marriage, was also worn, and a bouquet of roses and delphinium was carried by the bride.

The couple was attended by Miss Marian Heald, a student at Iowa State Teachers College and sister of the bridegroom, and Harold Stromer, brother of the bride.

The bridesmaid carried a bouquet of Chrysanthemums, wearing an aqua colored floor-length dress.

The bridegroom wore a brown suit and the best man wore a navy blue suit. They wore Chrysanthemums as boutonnaires.

Vivian Stromer, neice of the bride acted as flower girl. She wore a floor length peach satin dress and carried a basket of fall flowers.

Music was furnished by Lucy McDermott of Waseca, Minn., who played the piano and sang with Lenora Draheim, also of Waseca, "O Promise Me," and "The Lord's My Shepherd." Both numbers were sung preceding the marriage ceremony

Miss McDermott was Mrs. Heald's office assistant while the latter was Home Demonstration Agent in Waseca County, Minnesota.

Immediately following the ceremony the sixty-five guests took part in a wedding dinner at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs Stromer.

A three-tier wedding cake was the center-piece of the dinner table Mrs John Goll, Mrs. A Alford, Fay Neuberger, Bernice Weaver, and Lola Goll helped prepare and serve the dinner.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of Iowa State College Mrs. Heald was employed by the Minnesota Extension Service as Home Demonstration Agent in Waseca County, resigning shortly before her marriage.

The couple are taking a week's trip through various points of interest in Colorado, and after returning they plan to reside on a farm where Mr. Heald has been farming near Rolfe, Iowa.

Guests who attended the wedding from other than this vicinity were:

Mr and Mrs. Art Wegner, Eagle Bend, Minn.; Mr and Mrs. Menard Johnson, Blooming Prairie, Minn.; Mr and Mrs. Ed Robinson, Blooming Prairie, Minn.; Mr and Mrs. W H. Turley, Bradgate, Iowa: Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Turley Rolfe, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. John Heald, Rolfe, Iowa; Mr and Mrs. Walter Heald, Rolfe, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. C E. Alford, Blairsburg, Iowa.

Iowa is second only to Minnesota in the production of creamery butter. The 139 producton amounted to 233,510,000 pounds or 13 per cent of the United States total.

United States Is Expanding New Merchant Marine

Will Launch Two Ships Every Week Day In 1942.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON. — America, cradle of democracy, is busy these days with new cradles being built for her growing fleet of merchant vessels. From Washington to California, from Florida to Maine and all along the Gulf Coast, the "rocks and rills" resound to the beat of riveters' hammers on steel, giant cranes whine while dark hulls form shapes on ways cuddling in a forest of scaffolding.

With a goal of 1,383 freighters, tankers and passenger-cargo by the end of 1943, the ship-building program, under the direction of the United States maritime commission, is now in full swing. It will bear a cost well over $3,000,000,000. Officials say in a matter of a few months, ships will be launched at the rate of two each day.

Creation of this new ship armada will, they point out, accomplish three major objectives. It will bring vital defense cargoes to the U. S. from far flung sources, carry sorely needed war material to nations fighting the enemies of democracy and, when peace returns, present this country with the maritime supremacy of the days when the proud clipper ships of the U. S. ploughed the waves of all important sea lanes.

New Liberty Fleet.

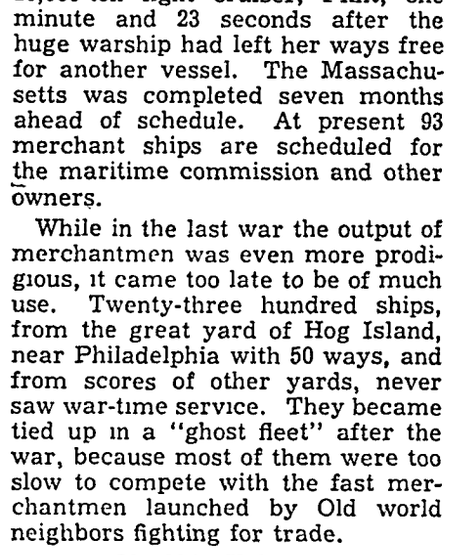
First of the new Liberty Fleet ships, the S. S. Patrick Henry, slid down the ways recently, followed on the same day by 13 other vessels in a mass launching, from 11 ports on two oceans. Built under the auspices of the U. S. maritime commission, a day was set aside for the launching of these 14 ocean liners, preceded by an address by President Roosevelt in celebration of America's ship-building program. A few days before this event the 35,000-ton $75,000,000 battleship Massachusetts was launched at Quincy, Mass.

Symbolic of the speed with which the U. S. is increasing her naval forces was the action of the shipyard in laying the keel of the new 10,000-ton light cruiser, Flint, one minute and 23 seconds after the huge warship had left her ways free for another vessel. The Massachusetts was completed seven months ahead of schedule. At present 93 merchant ships are scheduled for the maritime commission and other owners.

While in the last war the output of merchantmen was even more prodigious, it came too late to be of much use. Twenty-three hundred ships, from the great yard of Hog Island, near Philadelphia with 50 ways, and from scores of other yards, never saw war-time service. They became tied up in a "ghost fleet" after the war, because most of them were too slow to compete with the fast merchantmen launched by Old world neighbors fighting for trade.

Old Ship Valuable.

As the present conflict spread, these U. S. ships literally became worth their weight in gold. In this mechanized war, planes and ships are most in demand. For nearly two decades, American seafaring traditions rotted with the hulks moored in New world waters. In one five-year period, between 1922 and '27 only two ocean-going freighters were launched in this country.



Above is shown the S. S. Sea Arrow, the first major merchant ship launched on the west coast since the first World war. It slid down the greased ways on September 15, 1939, at Oakland, Calif.

Money could not be borrowed to build ships as it seemed impossible to operate them at a profit. Foreign owned bottoms carried two-thirds of our commerce.

With U-boats and planes now sinking between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 tons of shipping each 12 months, enough boats cannot be built, on short notice, to fulfill requirements of the U. S. to say nothing about requests from England, Russia and China for more and more boats.

The one bright light in this situation is the merchant marine act of 1936, passed by congress under stimulation of President Roosevelt. Then the United States maritime commission was created and charged with the job of re-establishing the once strong American merchant marine, and building efficient auxiliary ships, without which, the expanding navy would be nearly useless. Recruiting and training the proper personnel also came within their jurisdiction.

The Ten-Year Program.

Abolished by this same 1936 act, was mail subsidies. Instead, they substituted a policy of making grants to cover the difference between building and operating the boats under the flag of the U. S. as between this same procedure under other flags with low cost labor and material.

Today one of our fastest growing defense agencies, the maritime commission began with a staff of less than 100 men. Its first task was to survey the country's need in ships and to plan and carry out the stupendous program now in force. The foundation for the present large-scale operations was a 10-year program of building 50 ships per year or a total of 500. This was known as the long range program and 110 vessels had been delivered by September 19. Then in line with its second duty, the commission had turned over to the navy, in August, 107 ships, totaling nearly 2,000,000 tons. Among the craft was the United States liner America, a 27,000-ton vessel which is now the naval transport, West Point. It was the largest built under their program and the largest ever built in an American yard. The war caused two 35,000-ton vessels, planned for the Pacific trade, to be held up until the present war ends.

Navy Takes Over Ship.

It was in the fall of 1937 that the commission awarded the contract for the America. Later they contracted with the Standard Oil company and shipyards for a dozen speedy tankers that could be quickly changed over to navy auxiliaries in case of need. The vessels were paid for by the oil company but the commission provided $880,000 for each vessel to equip them with secret defense devices and additional speed. The navy has since taken over all of the ships.

The commission's own technical personnel was meanwhile designing fast freighters and passenger-carrying liners for the long range program With an average speed of 15 knots, from 6,000 to 12,000 tons, they were of three types, the C-1, C-2 and C-3. With low fuel consumption they were economically operated. Twenty additional ones, of pattern C-2, were ordered early in 1938. Other contracts followed and by November, 1939, over 400 craft had been ordered, due, of course, to the outbreak of the war.

In January, President Roosevelt put out a call for "more and more" ships and "more and more" speed. Within 30 days the commission had planned and put into operation an emergency program for 200 ships of a special design, from a British model, who ordered an additional 60 for themselves. The American vessels were dubbed by the President "ugly ducklings" as in comparison with other graceful long-range craft, these appeared to be not much more than "floating boxes with pointed ends." But veteran boat builders insist these cargo carriers will do the job and recent events seem to prove their worth.

The Liberty ships have "shear"—the decks slope from bow to amidships and rise again to the stern. They have camber—the decks curve a little between sides. The stern falls away with as much grace as almost any other craft on the seas.

F. D. R. Asks More Ships.

Soon after the Liberty ship program had been started, the Chief Executive, under the lend-lease program, asked for 222 ships, 112 of the Liberty type, 110 of the standard type first conceived by the maritime commission Then in July, congress, at the request of the President, passed a bill authorizing 541 more vessels, of which 25 were to be sea-going tugs. No one can predict how far America will go with her ship building plans, but the original 500 ships in 10 years has expanded into almost 1,400 for 1943 delivery and shows no signs of slackening. The outcome of the present conflict will probably be the deciding factor in the continuance or discontinuance of the program.

Warships to Protect Ocean Shipping

In a recent radio address President Roosevelt failed to specifically define the limits of America's defense waters. The dotted line on the chart shown above is generally regarded as the chief defense zone of the U. S. and, in accordance with the Chief Executive's utterance, constitutes the main danger section for the Axis powers. In reporting his orders to the navy to "shoot on sight," he emphasized that he meant the Pacific as well as the Atlantic, in fact all oceans and seas were included in his command.

Scientific Study Reveals Rules for Relaxing Slumber

ST. LOUIS.—Why is insomnia on the increase today, with millions of people ready to throw in the sheet for a wholesome eight hours of sleep? It's because of a cultural lag, say some of the most noted scientists in the country, whose researches have uncovered the fact that although this country boasts the finest springs, mattresses and bedlinens in the world today, most people do not take advantage of them Like well-meaning but blundering children, they buy beds that are too short, set mattresses on improper springs, and do not utilize to the full the new improvements in sheets This, added to the fact that modern living is a drain on nervous energy, explains why the arms of Morpheus are more coveted today than riches or power.

For more relaxing and restful nights, a study has shown that your mattress should measure at least six inches longer than you do and be at the very least 39 inches wide. To secure perfect muscular relaxation, vertically coiled springs topped by an inner spring mattress are best. To avoid lumping and uneven wear to the mattress, turn it end for end and top for bottom at least once a week. To prevent feet from rubbing against worn-out frayed spots, sheets with reversible hems allow you to shift them top for bottom every day.

N. Y. Man Creates $1,000 American Legion Award

INDIANAPOLIS.—American Legionnaires from several thousand cities, towns and villages throughout the nation are expected to compete during the coming year for the first annual community service award created recently by Lewis S. Rosenstiel, New York businessman, according to Homer Chaillaux, head of the Legion's Americanism committee.

The award, consisting of $1,000 annually, will go to the Legionnaire who, in the award committee's opinion, makes the greatest contribution to the welfare of his community, Mr. Chaillaux said. The donor, Mr. Rosenstiel, is chairman of the board of Schenley Distillers corporation.

Mr. Chaillaux pointed out that political office holders would be barred from the competition because of Mr Rosenstiel's desire to "stimulate new leadership" within individual communities. The first award will be made next year in New Orleans.

1941's 'GREATEST TRAGEDY'

You don't have to wait for historians to record the fact that the greatest tragedy of the year 1941 as far as this war is concerned is the way the British have twiddled their thumbs, watched the Russians, and done almost nothing except cheer.

Over three months have passed since Hitler sent his mechanized masses hurtling across the Russian border, and in that time the British sent only a trickle of help.

Yet the British knew that l longed Russian resistance was biggest chance they had of defe ing Hitler. They also knew t Hitler's tactic always has been pick his victims one by one.

Yet realizing this, the British h done virtually the same thing Pol did when Czechoslovakia was vaded, what Jugoslavia did w Bulgaria was invaded, and w Turkey did when Jugoslavia invaded. They have merely sat the sidelines, sent 200 airplanes, a mission to Moscow, taken a g long rest—and cheered.

Second Front?

Meanwhile, the general staff visers of both the British and Am ican armies have bluntly war that the Russians were sure to defeated unless a second front created against Hitler.

This second front against Hi meant, of course, a British expe tionary force landing in Fran Holland or Spain. This quest has been discussed carefully beh the scenes, but the British h wanted two things: one was tan most of theirs having been molished at Dunkirk; the sec has been an American Expe tionary force to help them.

The British did not really p this idea of an A.E.F., for t knew politically it was impossi for Roosevelt. But nevertheless they did want company in attempting to land troops on the Continent. They had plenty of troops in England—in fact so many that there has been restlessness and bad morale because of inactivity.

It is true that these troops are not completely equipped and are sadly lacking in tanks. But there is considerable belief that they were equipped sufficiently to make a landing in Spain from Gibraltar; and that in France the local people would have risen up to welcome them.

However, all summer long the British have maintained an "after you, Alphonse" attitude. Meanwhile the situation in Russia has become darker and darker—as every military expert knew was inevitable.

All of which brings up the vital question of exactly who is the dominating factor in the now virtual Anglo-American alliance. We have thrown a very large pile of chips into the gamble on a British victory; yet no one seems to know whether the British are taking advice from us or whether we are taking orders from the British. President Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins may know, but if so they have not informed those closest to them.

HITLER'S OIL PROBLEM

Most of the reports from Russia look black; and to U S. army observers they have been that way for some time. However, one encouraging factor stands out. This is the question of oil.

Without oil no army or navy can move. And despite the tremendous areas taken by Hitler in all Europe, he still faces, two years after starting the war, almost the same oil shortage as before.

Rumania, seized chiefly for her oil fields, has a capacity of 8,000,000 tons annually However, the Russians bombed the Rumanian oil fields so badly that production is now down to about 4,000,000 tons or less.

Germany itself has a synthetic gasoline production of about 3,000,000 tons, making a total annual production today of about 7,000,000 tons. On the other hand, Germany is using oil and gas to operate its army at the rate of about 25,000,000 tons a year, most of which has come from reserves. It is estimated that Germany still has reserves on hand of 10 or perhaps 15 million tons.

All of which means that the real pinch will come next spring. In other words, Hitler has enough oil and gas to last through the winter, but by the end of the winter he absolutely must take the Russian oil fields of the Caucasus. In fact, he is sure to stage a terrific drive to take them even earlier The tremendous Nazi sacrifices to take Kiev and Odessa all were because those two cities are the path of the Nazi march to the Caucasus.

Russian Chances.

During the coming winter, however, the Russians should be able to hold out. The Caucasian mountains are high and rugged. The Russians have a huge force in this area. The British also have rushed troops through Iran to the border of the Caucasus.

However, if Hitler's gasoline situation is even more desperate than indicated above—which may be quite possible—then he is almost sure to put the pincers on Turkey harder than ever before in order to drive on the Caucasus.

Things I Just Found Out About Newspaper Features

The California legislature in 1899 passed a law prohibiting publication of cartoons in newspapers . . . Only one important daily newspaper doesn't run comic strips—the New York Times . . . The most universally popular story, "Robinson Crusoe," and the most influential American novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," (it is credited with fomenting the Civil war) appeared first as newspaper serials.

• • • —

The first serial in an American newspaper was Defoe's "A Religious Courtship," in a Pennsylvania gazette. It wasn't completed because the agonistic Ben Franklin took over the paper and threw it out . . . Franklin published the first newspaper cartoon in this country . . . Paul Revere was a newspaper cartoonist. So were John Barrymore and Gary Cooper.

• • • —

Early U. S. newspapers took care of "syndication" themselves. They clipped freely from each other, and anything good that appeared, for example, in Thomas Fleet's excellent Boston Post was sure to be republished throughout the Colonies. Fleet, by the way, put stories told to his son by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Goose, into a book and made her the immortal Mother Goose. But Fleet's paper printed no story of the Battles of Lexington and Concord in its next issue, because, "The unhappy transactions of last week are so variously related that we shall not at present undertake to give any particular account thereof"!

• • • —

The first popular serial writers were Horatio Alger Jr. and Mary Jane Holmes, developed by the N. Y. Sun. And, believe it or not, the 60-year-old "Lena Rivers," by Miss Holmes, last year topped sales of Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and Roberts' "Oliver Wiswell" . . . The longest novel in history is Adele Garrison's (real name, Mrs. Martin White) story of one couple's married life, called "Pitfalls of Love." It has appeared in newspapers every week-day since 1915—more than 5,750,000 words.

Fashion Feathers Your Hat And Braids Your Fall Suit

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FEATHERS on your hat and braiding on your suit, coat, dress or costume ensemble' These are two of the most outstanding trends for fall and winter.

If you would make a dramatic and high-styled approach to fall, take your cue from the two ladies of fashion pictured in the foreground of the accompanying illustration Note how smartly fashion feathers their hats and braids their handsome wool costumes.

You can indulge in as little or as much as you please in this matter of braiding, but whether it is just a wee dab of braiding here or there, or an all over blanketing of braided design, when it comes to topnotch style prestige braiding's the thing this season!

See the ensemble pictured to the left. It is a masterpiece of artistry in both color and costume design. It is the sort of coat-ensemble that takes you places in "style," is ideal for travel or town wear You will wear it to dinner at fashionable restaurants, or to the matinee It has a red gabardine reefer with a black velvet collar and cuffs embroidered with red soutache braiding The sheer wool dress carries out the same color scheme The hat is a crushed Homburg with two streamlined quills.

To the right is a youthful suit of beige wool with forest green soutache braid on lapels and upper sleeve

The new greens this fall are fascinating Milliners are enthusiastic about soft, subtle greens in felts, velvets and feathers The jaunty feather hat has sprightly birds' wings to give it height and its mellow green color is a perfect complement to the beige and green suit.

So far as the new hats are concerned they are staging a veritable riot of feathers Casual wide-brimmed felts, this season, mostly of the picturesque vagabond type, are in ravishing colors aided and abetted with spectacular vividly colorful pheasant quills Referring to the three hats shown above in the picture note in the upper right corner a gray felt vagabond gaily sporting a bright pheasant quill. This stunning headpiece tops a yellow sweater worn over a gray dress.

Centered in the trio is a black beret that glories in a snow white novelty quill Berets have certainly come into their own this season. And you are supposed to wear 'em any way that is most becoming Some like 'em posed in daring profile effect, others position 'em back of their pompadours, others dash 'em down over their eyebrows, but pose 'em as you will berets are making conversation that is punctuated with thrills every step of the way And keep an eye on the dramatic manner in which they are feathered, if it's exciting moments you crave

Wear White Jersey Under Your Fur Coat

College girls who seek something other than the usual black or colored date dresses will hail with delight the advent of the new white jersey frocks that are designed to wear under brown or black fur coats This dress is proving to be one of the highspots in a co-ed's life As a rule the white jersey dress is styled with classic simplicity but with exquisite detailing in the way of drapes, tucks and sometimes trapunto quilting For those who have a yen for color there are white jerseys that are gaily embroidered in bright yarns. Others flaunt glittering gold buttons and gilded kid trimmings.

Now You Can Wear Your Vitamins on Your Head

A new process has been discovered whereby the casein in skimmed milk can be used to make a fiber which blends with rabbit fur to make felting material for hats One pound of this fiber is produced from about 30 pounds of skimmed milk

Since imports of hatter's rabbit fur are now limited because of war conditions, there is a large market for this domestic product. Bossy's in the hat business now—classy hats from contented cows!

Embroidery on Suits

There is no end to the embroidery story this season. The newsy part of the tale is that embroideries appear on sedate suits and wool daytime dresses, as well as on dressier modes. Long evening capes have embroidered yokes. Daytime jackets and blouses are also ornately embroidered.

Taffeta Dirndl

Smart young sophisticates do not like to give up the picturesque dirndl skirt that has been such an outstanding favorite during the past summer. That is why many of the most voguish taffeta and wool costumes on the fall and winter style program continue to exploit the dirndl after the manner here shown. Sheer wool and taffeta are combined most attractively in this stunning afternoon dress. The fitted bodice of sheer wool has a brown taffeta facing at the V-neck, and the sleeves show the new drop shoulder treatment. Crisp brown taffeta is shirred on at the natural waist. The hat is a veil-trimmed rolled-brim dark brown felt. The whole effect is soft and feminine and true to the tradition of elegance.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE HOLY SPIRIT OUR HELPER

LESSON TEXT—John 3 5-8; Acts 1:8; Romans 8 26-28, Galatians 5·22-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.—Romans 8 14

Nothing could be more practical or blessed for and in the life and service of the believer than an understanding of the person and work of the Holy Spirit, yet it is a subject concerning which most Christians are woefully ignorant.

Before taking up the work of the Spirit as it appears in our lesson, we should understand that the Holy Spirit is a person, not an influence which may exert itself upon a service, or a power which a man may obtain and use He—the Spirit—is one of the Trinity, with the attributes of a person, doing the work of a person and always referred to as a person in Scripture (When "it" is used of the Holy Spirit in the A V. it will be found to be corrected to "him" in the R V.)

What then does this divine person do? The work of creation was His as one of the Godhead. He regenerates, He teaches, He comforts, He leads, He calls and qualifies Christian workers, He is the divine author of the Bible. These and many other things He does, this One who indwells the believer as the ever-present Guide and Counselor. The Christian is

I. Born of the Spirit (John 3 5-8).

The new birth is indispensable to entrance into the kingdom of God. We either enter that way or we do not enter at all. Let's be clear about that "Ye must be born again" is not the edict of a church or the plea of a preacher; it is the plain statement of our Lord Himself (v 5).

The Holy Spirit is indispensable to regeneration We must be born of the Spirit How it takes place we can no more explain than the coming or going of the wind, but just as the power of the wind is known to us by clear evidence, so the regenerating power of the Spirit, mysterious though it be in operation, is known to us by the evidences of redeeming grace in a man's life.

II. Empowered by the Spirit (Acts 1:8).

Spiritual birth calls for service for Christ. For that we must have the power of the Holy Spirit. A man may do many ordinary things in the strength of his own body and mind (although even these ought always to be under the Spirit's control), but when he comes to witnessing for Christ, teaching or preaching God's Word, he must have Holy Spirit power or he is utterly ineffective.

III. Directed by the Spirit (Rom. 8·26-28).

The guidance of the Holy Spirit, especially in the matter of prayer, is stressed in these verses, but they are a part of a longer passage dealing with the indwelling, enabling, and guiding power of the Holy Spirit (read vv. 9-14) Every detail of life in the home, at business, or in social relations should be in conscious submission to His leading.

It is in the realm of the spiritual, however, that we find ourselves peculiarly infirm (v. 26), and this shows itself especially in prayer—"we know not how to pray as we ought." Then the Spirit in the Christian makes intercession. How blessed! "The practical meaning of these profound words seems to be that the divine Spirit, by His immediate influence in the saint's soul, which becomes as it were the organ of his own address to the Father, secures the rightness of the essence of the saint's prayer To our understandings such intercessions with groanings which cannot be uttered, take the form of desires of ours, inspired and secured by Him. In any special case of prayer, the saint may or may not use words, but anywise the root-desires that underlie the prayer, being the Holy Spirit's promptings, are unutterable to the full In the heart the Father sees below the surface of our ignorance the sacred longings which are the expression of the Spirit's influence" (H C. G. Moule)

IV. Walking in the Spirit (Gal. 5: 22-26)

Being born again of the Spirit, living daily by the Spirit, it is right that (as v. 25 puts it) "if we live by the Spirit, let us also walk by the Spirit." The works of the flesh, horrible in their wickedness and lust, are listed in the verses preceding (vv. 19-21), and then by striking contrast we have the fruit of the Spirit in the life of the Christian. Note the distinction: Work is something we produce; fruit is something that grows.

Walking in the Spirit the Christian finds in his life the inward graces of love, joy, and peace. These then express themselves outwardly in longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, and self-control. The Spirit-filled man is not only a good man: he lives a good life

Irrepressible Small Boy Has Ready Explanation

"Now, children," said the school teacher, after a nature lesson, "I have told you how the new little birds learn to fly. I am going to play the piano and I want you to imitate the little birds' movements with your arms in time to the music."

She sat down at the piano and as the music went on, all the children waved their arms energetically, with one exception, little Johnny.

"Come along, Johnny," said the teacher coaxingly; "why did you not imitate the newly hatched birds as I told you?"

"Please, miss," replied the small boy, "I'm a bad egg!"

• EDITORIAL

The school year is now just one sixth past For some of the students in K H S it has been successful and for others it hasn't been so well

The report cards will soon be handed out It will be interesting to see the various expressions of satisfaction and disappointment on the faces of the pupils

We as students make our school what it is We, today are building up this school's reputation for the time to come Let's each and everyone of us keep up it's good name by acquiring good grades in our studies and department to the best of our ability

Our various grades good or poor are our own accomplishments If we are not satisfied with our grades let us not blame the teachers We as individuals must strive to keep our aim high

• STOP SIGNS

In order to protect the children who are attending school, stop signs are placed on the intersections near the school at noon and when school is out Sometimes drivers forget or do not see these sign Children crossing the street Assume that the cars will stop and let them cross Let us observe these signs and protect our children

• COMING EVENTS

Oct 31 Junior Class Play
Nov 6-7 State Teachers Convention at Des Moines
Nov 11 Armistice Day
Nov 18 Seven Eagles Jamboree
Nov 27-28Thanksgiving Vacation

• SENIOR CLASS NEWS

In Home Economics, class II, we have started studying the art of principle colors We have learned what the primary secondary or binary and intermediate colors are

Our two hour six weeks Physics test is over, although it will long be remembered We are now studying Molecular Properties in Solids"

Since Billy Zabilka who was our class president, has left us, we elected a new Vice-President and President They are Lucille Hartbeck Vice President, and Melvin Coobs President Melvin was our former Vice-President

• JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

Friday afternoon determined whether the Juniors had any hidden talent among them We were trying out for the Junior class play

The six weeks test that some of the teachers gave almost got us down but everyone seems to be recuperating quickly

That chart on the bulletin board is doing a rushing business

It is the end of the first six weeks, and did we find out!

A nine page test in biology Every test was harder than the one before it, and to top it off we still have one to go After disposing of all that knowledge, we will be worthless for a week.

• FRESHMAN CLASS NEWS

We feel lucky to have another freshman Elwood Harvey makes the twenty-first person in our class If the sophomores aren't careful we will be catching up with them

We really have been putting our noses to the grind stone this week to make up for lost time We thought we had better study for the six weeks tests.

Thursday in Home Economics we girls cooked some breakfast cereals such as oatmeal, cornmeal, etc The only thing about cooking is the dishes afterwards, or the eating part of it!

In keeping with Fire Prevention Week we had a fire drill Friday afternoon These drills teach us how to leave a building in an orderly way if an emergency should develop.

• MUSIC NEWS

A new lesson schedule has been arranged by Mr Onerheim which went into effect last week

We made recordings of the band and mixed chorus last Wednesday We may not compare with the U. S Navy Band or Fred Warring's Pennsylvanians, but we think we are pretty good.

The band is sorry to lose our first clarinet player, also a bass in mixed chorus, Billy Zabilka But we still have one first class clarinet, Eunice, and rumor I've heard we're getting a new one, eh Ellen?

Melvin Coobs and Bill G played solos over K G L O, Tuesday

• DRAMATICS

The Junior play books arrived Friday All Juniors were curious to know the name of the play. A little bird told them it was "Mr Cook Takes Over"

Sounds good, doesn't it?

• SPORTS FLASHES

Klemme High School defeated Thornton baseball team here Friday afternoon 12-1

Klemme collected 10 hits while Thornton garnered 6 hits. Kaduce hurled for the locals, while Miles and Just did mound duty for the visitors

This game closed the season for the Shamrocks

• PRIMARY ROOM NEWS

We have a new second grader in our room Her name is La Nelle Harvey

We had three visitors in our room this week They were Alan Neuberger, Charlotte McConn, and George Alan Anderson

Maxine was seven years old on Monday We had a party and she treated us to candy bars

The first and second grade are starting to build a grocery store

We had several youngsters register for Kindergarten

• SEVENTH AND EIGHTH GRADE NEWS

Peggy Lou brought some very interesting shells to school Thursday We enjoyed them in connection with our science reports

The following have been neither absent nor tardy the first six weeks Phyllis, Peggy Lou, Elizabeth, Dean, Marcille, Clarence, Lois Ann, Ruth Bell, Roger Ridder, Ruth Stokesbary, James, Robert Figgerman and Jeanne

In Geography, we are beginning a new unit on South America

onfess now, how often would you n down a tart lemon pie, a deep-dish apple pie, or a juicy cranberry one with the bright berries peeking out of the lattice crust? Not often, I imagine, or pie wouldn't be our country's fa- dessert. So here's to pie, fa- t dessert time or at a bakery made in big tins or as indi- l servings:

of pastry strips across top. Flute rim with fingers. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees) for 15 minutes; then decrease heat to 350 degrees and bake 30 minutes longer.

Apple Pie.

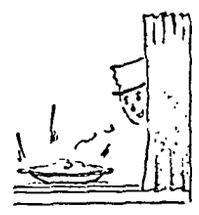
1 recipe flaky pie crust
2 pounds cooking apples
1½ cups sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons cornstarch

Pare, core, and slice apples. Mix with sugar, cinnamon, and cornstarch. Fill pie tin which has been covered with crust and dot fruit with butter. Lay on top crust which has been pricked with a fork, and flute edges. Bake 45 to 50 minutes in a moderate (350-375 degrees) oven.

Tang and color are this cranberry pie's delectable recommendations, so make enough to have seconds. You can have your vitamins, too, for cranberries are an excellent source of vitamin C, necessary for teeth and bones, and also a fair source of vitamin A which promotes appetite, stimulates growth, and makes for general well-being. Make it with a criss-cross crust and you'll come in with top honors:



Spicy Cranberry Pie.

(Makes one 9-inch pie)
1 recipe pie crust
4 cups cranberries
2½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup water

Wash and pick over berries. Bring to a boil with the water, add sugar, boil gently, being careful not to break berries. Boil 5 minutes, remove from fire, cool, and add lemon juice, rind, and spices. Fill unbaked pie crust, cover top with strips, and bake 30 minutes in a hot (400 degrees) oven.

There are pies in which you bake just the crust, pies in which you bake crust and filling, and other pies which you don't bake at all. In this latter class are those pies whose crust is placed in the icebox to cool, then filled with filling and cooled until set. Here's a pie with crust, rich and crumbly, a filling that really melts in your mouth:

Coconut Custard Pie.

(Makes one 9-inch pie)
2 egg yolks
1½ cups milk
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons gelatin
¼ cup cold water

Soak gelatin in cold water. Cook egg yolks, milk and sugar in double boiler until thick and pour over gelatin. Cool, add vanilla, and pour over a crust made of:

3 cups oven-popped rice cereal, rolled fine
⅓ cup butter melted
¼ cup sugar

Combine cereal crumbs, sugar and butter and press evenly around the sides and bottom of a pie pan. Chill before filling Pile meringue on top of filling Use 2 egg whites stiffly beaten, to which add ⅓ cup sugar slowly, and ¼ cup of coconut. Brown lightly in broiler

In making a successful meringue, beat the egg whites until stiff and glossy, then blend in sugar completely to prevent beads of syrup from forming on top of the meringue. Leave the pie on the top of the oven after it is baked. Cold air striking the meringue will cause it to fall.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

JUDY GARLAND was up a tree when she got that very special invitation to go to Chile recently. It came from the Hon. Claude Bowers, U. S. ambassador, asking her to be guest of honor at a gala charity premiere of Metro's "Ziegfeld Girl" in Santiago. (And if you think Metro's publicity department had a hand in the matter you can't be far wrong!)

Well, Judy couldn't get away, because she's working with Mickey Rooney in "Babes on Broadway." So she wrote a nice letter and arranged to send as proxy a doll, three feet high, resembling her in every detail. Wearing a modish traveling suit, it was to take a plane, be met by the ambassador and a group of American women, in Chile, and attend the dinner clad in a replica of the gown worn by Judy in one number of "Ziegfeld Girl" Which should satisfy even an ambassador

Ann Miller, whose motion picture fortunes hit a new high in Columbia's "Go West, Young Lady," has been keeping it secret that she's really Lucille Collier, the girl who seven years ago tried to land in pictures as a dancer She failed—she was only eleven then—changed her name and personality, and three years later had won attention as a night club dancer.

If you liked that Dashiell Hammett book, "The Maltese Falcon," you'll probably like the picture Warner Bros. have made from it, called "The Gent From Frisco." It features Mary Astor, Humphrey Bogart, Gladys George and Peter Lorre. It's the first directorial effort of John Huston, son of Walter, who also wrote the screen play. He did so well with it that he's been assigned to direct "In This Our Life," with Bette Davis, which is quite a step forward for a young director.

Daisy, Asta, and the other noted dog stars of filmdom have had to move over and make room for Romulus, the nondescript brown mongrel who made his film debut in "Reap the Wild Wind." Cecil B. DeMille, who chose him from 200 applicants, says he's the perfect character dog He won his second role in Paramount's "Midnight Angel," in which he'll appear with Martha O'Driscoll and Robert Preston; they're old friends, as he met them when they all worked in his first picture.

Seems that most Hollywood stars become shy and embarrassed when they have to play a love scene—or so we're told. But not Greta Garbo. The director explains what he wants and she falls into the mood of the scene, relaxed and unselfconscious. George Cukor, directing her in "Twins," says that some of the finest love scenes he's ever watched are those between Garbo and Melvyn Douglas in this picture.

When Fay Holden played Greer Garson's mother in "Blossoms in the Dust," Fay's husband, David Clyde, played butler. Now she's being Robert Young's mother in "H M Pulham, Esq ," and again her husband is scheduled to "Yes, Madam" her.

"Bachelor's Children," winner of the 1941 Radio Guide award as the year's best daytime radio serial, is now heard from coast to coast over the NBC red network Now in its seventh year, it still has the five actors and actresses who created the principal roles.

ODDS AND ENDS—After working safely with leopards in Universal's "White Savage," Brian Donlevy had to have first aid when he was bitten by a baby pig . . . The Jerrie Walters given credit for writing the story of "Small Town Deb," Jane Withers' latest film, is really Jane herself . . . Rex Bell, former cowboy star and husband of Clara Bow, former "It" girl, has an important role in "Tombstone" . . . Hedy Lamarr wears spectacles in some scenes of "H M Pulham, Esq.," proving that glasses don't kill glamour . . . Arline Judge returns to films in a role in Columbia's "Harvard, Here We Come" . . . Penny Singleton and her husband, Robert Sparks, have purchased a 120-acre ranch.

THE VEGETABLE SEDAN

Henry Ford has just turned out a car with a plastic body made largely from vegetables. It is part salad and part automobile.

It marks the triumph of the vegetable over the steel industry.

Henry has been experimenting with the idea for years. He is a man who always looks ahead. And wipes his own windshield.

A farm boy, Hank always nourished the notion that the "Man With the Hoe" could do anything that could be done by the "Vice President With the Blueprint." And after all there was nothing so fanciful in the idea of making an auto out of vegetables. Henry had been making spinach out of automobiles all his life.

Henry's first problem was to find out which vegetables would go best in automobiles. He could dismiss the cucumber at the start. Too many people won't have anything to do with cucumbers.

He then considered onions, but dropped them quickly. After all, he was making a car, not a hamburger.

Lettuce and tomatoes were suggested, but vetoed after the opening debate. Mr. Ford did not want the public to get his car confused with a reducing diet.

The soybean had begun to poke its noggin up and attract attention for some time. Of all vegetables, none has gotten ahead in life like the soybean.

The jelly bean, the string bean and the lima bean were better known, but never got anywhere industrially. (Once in October, 1928, a string bean did succeed in getting into the reception room of Mr. Ford's offices, but it was kept waiting so long that when the word finally came, "Mr. Ford will see you now," it had gone stale.—Ed note.)

But it was soon found that almost anything from a harmonica to a trailer could be made from the soybean, and Henry always liked a bean that was ambitious and full of get-up and go.

In 1932 somebody suggested that automobiles could be made from hay, but word came from Detroit that Mr. Ford was satisfied to keep on making hay from automobiles.

Anyhow, Henry has succeeded in his experiments, and in the priorities crisis has found a way to make a flivver almost entirely from the vegetable garden. The plastic material has 10 times the strength of steel in resisting a blow. It's the iron in the vegetables.

Of course, the government can throw a monkey wrench into Mr. Ford's car by putting the soybean and other vegetables on a priorities list. Anyhow, good luck to the idea. But we hope we don't get another one of those tire jacks made out of mashed potatoes.

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

"IT'S to be another jumper year," says every fashion prophet who knows a thing about school smartness. Pattern No. 1450-B sounds a new note in jumpers—it has a jacket, too The jacket is long sleeved, waist length, collarless—of a peasant feeling which keys it perfectly for the youthful, wide-skirted jumper. The latter is cut with a square neckline, low enough in front and in back to allow a great part of pretty blouses or soft sweaters to be clearly visible. The jacket makes this outfit warm enough to carry you right through the early autumn, and the whole outfit is so slim you can wear it under a winter coat easily The jumper closes with a placket in the side which may be closed with snaps, hooks and eyes, buttons or a zipper.

Corduroy in bright vibrant colors is the first choice for a fabric for this jumper and jacket Wool tweeds, gabardine, scotch plaids, flannel and velveteen are other suitable materials.

Barbara Bell Pattern No 1450-B is designed for sizes 11, 13 15, 17 and 19 Corresponding bust measurements 29, 31, 33, 35 and 37. Size 13 (31) jumper requires 3¼ yards 36-inch material, jacket, 2 yards Send your order to

Nervous Earth

After a great earthquake, the ground near the epicenter may be in almost incessant motion for days, and numerous aftershocks of varying intensity may be recorded for weeks, even months, says Collier's. For example, the Tokyo earthquake on September 1, 1923, was followed by 1,256 of these aftershocks within 30 days.

Painter.

Frank Schumacher of Onawa may not have discovered his talent for painting as early as most, but he is making up for lost time. About ten years ago he started in painting, as an experiment, and now paints many pictures, mostly of outdoor life, which have found a ready market. He is in great demand by his friends for painting of pet dogs and favorite local scenes.

CHILD CLIMBS WINDMILL; PARENTS BADLY SCARED

Arlene, the four year old daughter of Mr and Mrs Henry Stoltenberg, who reside on a farm west of Hayfield, gave her parents a bad scare last week when she climbed almost to the top of a 60-foot windmill tower

She was discovered by an older brother, Gene, who immediately called his father who talked encouragingly to his daughter as he climbed the tower and brought the little girl down without accident

Several of the lower ladder steps have since been removed to avoid a repetition of the event

Mr and Mrs Stoltenberg lived in Klemme several years ago and Mr Stoltenberg was our town marshall

HANCOCK COUNTY WILL CAMPAIGN AGAINST DIPHTHERIA AND SMALLPOX

Taking a leaf from the comic pages and applying it to what they termed "a serious scientific problem," officials of the Hancock-Winnebago county medical society asserted today that where diphtheria immunization and smallpox vaccination are concerned, "too many persons act as though they are in the land of Reversia."

Far too common, they said, is the practice of waiting until an epidemic occurs before obtaining protection against these diseases

"It seems to be a matter of waiting off until tomorrow that which should be done today and in the case of smallpox and diphtheria that's doing things in reverse for when an outbreak occurs, the disease you're trying to fight takes over and the value of protection is minimized

The doctors added that to get ahead of these diseases the Iowa State Medical Society and the Iowa State Health Department conduct annual immunization campaigns and told that the 1941 campaign is scheduled to take place in this county Nov 3 to 8 inclusive

NEW $5 FEDERAL USE TAX ON ALL VEHICLES FEBRUARY 1

Beginning Feb 1, all motorists will be required to pay a federal use tax of $5 00 a vehicle as a reult of inclusion of this new form of taxation in the revenue act of 1941.

The U S Treasury and bureau of internal revenue are now working out details for collection of the new tax from owners of some 32,000,000 motor vehicles and the fact that the postoffice department has been authorized to cooperate may mean the sale of stickers or plates through post offices of the country.

It was pointed out that penalties are provided for owners of motor vehicles who, after the effective date of the new tax, permit the use of their vehicle before payment of the tax.

WILL REPRESENT COUNTY IN DISTRICT CONTEST, OCT. 27

Two Thousand People Witnessed Contest Near Kanawha

Two thousand interested people attended the county corn husking contest held October 17th on the Irving Thompson farm south of Kanawha. Twelve huskers took part in the event which was very successful in spite of the inclement weather conditions

Harold Larson, first place winner of the contest will represent Hancock County at the District contest to be held on October 27th at Millard.

Results of the contest were.

1st Harold Larson of Kanawha, who picked a gross load of 2,410 pounds corn, 15 lbs. gleanings, 8.2 lbs husks with a deduction of 45 lbs. for gleanings, 78 lbs. for husks leaving a net load of 2,317 pounds.

2nd George Kelch of Wesley, a gross load of 2,405 pounds and net load of 2,066 pounds.

3 Richard Brower of Garner had a gross load of 2,255 lbs. and net load of 1,771 pounds

The others in order and their gross and net loads were as follows:

Donald Liska, Garner, 2185 and 1669, Emory Weaver, Garner, 2025 and 1667; Ben Wilkenson, Kanawha, 1965 and 1598; Guy Lamfers, Kanawha, 2135 and 1575; Edmund Otis, Wesley, 2190 and 1549; Lawrence Radloff, Garner, 2065 and 1559; Bernard Greiman, Garner, 1990 and 1491, Kenneth Donavon, Wesley, 2190 and 1468; Clarence De Waard, Britt, 1805 and 1094.

The Farm Bureau and Kanawha Commercial Club wish to thank everyone who assisted in any way with the contest.

WANT 13,000 ACRES SOY BEANS IN COUNTY NEXT YEAR

Oil for the "wheels of industry" can come from the farm!

National defense demands for fats and oils in industry and industrial products has given the soybean part of the responsibility of furnishing this vital oil.

Indications are that in 1941-'42 the United States would use about 600 million pounds more of fats and oils from its stocks than would be added to stocks. In 1942-43 the deficiency would be about 500 million pounds.

Soybeans, peanuts and castor beans can furnish oil, and in the mid-west, the soybean comes into the picture. Production goal set for soybeans in the 1942 "Food For Freedom" campaign in Hancock County is 13,021 acres. This is an increase of 921 acre over last year.

Harvesting of soybeans for grain was encouraged this year in Iowa when the AAA Program was changed to permit the farmer's doing this without receiving deductions in agricultural Conservation payments if he did not harvest more than 15 percent in excess of his total depleting allotment. In 1942, there will be no total soil depleting allotment that might restrict the acreage of soybeans.

Caution must be used in increasing soybean acreages, and goals for various counties have been set to encourage large increases in production only where soil erosion is not a serious problem or contour farming is practiced.

Prices being paid for soybeans at present are extremely high, and there is every indication that they will be good for at least the next two years. The defense program is expected to boost to still higher levels the use of manufactured products containing fats and oils. More employment and larger payrolls will continue to increase consumption as well as prices.

Europe Looks To U. S. Farms For Food in '42

To Ask Increased Production Of Most Farm Products Over 1941 Record.

By L. G. ELLIOTT
President, LaSalle Extension University

NEW YORK CITY.—"Arsenal for the Democracies" is the role which is being enacted by the United States in the present world conflict. The far-flung industrial activity which has resulted has made itself felt in every section of the country and in every type of enterprise. So far, the effect felt by the farmers has been principally the indirect result of increased purchaing power created by the up-swing in industrial production.

Prospects for the immediate future, however, are that the American farmer will be called upon to contribute just as directly as do the munition makers today. According to the department of agriculture estimates, 10,000,000 persons abroad will be dependent upon exports from the United States for their sustenance. In 1942, farmers will be asked to increase production in certain crops even beyond that of 1941, one of the most productive years in history.

With the exception of certain crops such as cotton, wheat and tobacco, which will continue to be curtailed because of large surpluses and loss of some important foreign markets, most major crops will be needed in larger quantities. The leaders will be livestock, dairy products, eggs and vegetables—the very products which have been adding most to the increased farm income of 1941. With the gains experienced during the first six months of this year and the estimated $1,000,000,000 increase in farm income estimated for the last six months, the total farm income for 1941 will exceed $10,500,000,000 compared with only slightly more than $9,000,000,000 for 1940.

It is expected that present price levels will at least be maintained if not increased to some degree. Even based on today's prices, the increased production schedule will boost the farm income in 1942 to a higher figure than any year since 1920. Dairy farmers have been averaging 20 per cent more income this year than a year ago and the goal for 1942 in this branch of agriculture is a still further 8 per cent increase. The schedule for 1942 hog production is for better than 11 per cent increase over 1941, or 80,000,000 head as compared with the 71,000,000 pigs slaughtered this year. Seventeen per cent more cattle are now on feed in preparation for the new increased markets.

It is not expected that the new demands for farm products will result in the dislocations which are bothering some lines of manufacturing and some communities where manufacturers have had to curtail operations because of their inability to secure certain raw materials. The industrial picture as a whole is decidedly favorable. The national trend is still upward and payrolls as well as production are steadily rising. Many industries such as steel and machinery are not only operating at close to present capacity, but are constantly adding new plants. The effect of industrial prosperity is felt directly in the cities and the resultant better markets still further increase the demand for manufactured items as well as farm products.

At the present time, approximately 20 per cent of the income received by all persons emanates from defense spending. This now aggregates more than $1,000,000,000 monthly and the next few months will see this increased to a still higher figure.

U. S. 'Non-Combatants' Corps in England

The above picture shows a group from the first American civilian technical corps as they arrived "somewhere in England," recently, for non-combatant duties in the British armed forces. They are all trained automobile and radio technicians, and seem happy, despite the rain which falls frequently in the British Isles.

Soldiers Depend on Quartermaster For Food, Shelter and Transportation

ATLANTA, GA.—The army has a name for the vast, intricate and vital Quartermaster corps activity. They call it logistics. For the man on the street, the term is readily understandable when translated as a design for living.

How soldiers live, are quartered, supplied and, in this day of mechanized warfare, how they are transported is something John Q. Citizen can comprehend when he puts it on the same plane which he designs for his own comfort and ability to move about.

What the Quartermaster corps does for more than a million and a half soldiers John Q Citizen must do for himself. His design for living is only multiplied by the army but somewhere in the multiplication the army tacked on the term logistics, which the dictionary defines as "that branch of military art which embraces the details of transport, quartering and supply of troops."

So John Q. Citizen begins to understand logistics when he compares it to the possession and operation of his motor car; tenting and furnishing of his home; supplying his family with clothing, groceries, meats, vegetables and other necessities of life, even down to the ice box in summer and filling the coal bin for the winter.

Not many citizens who maintain and own their own automobiles could orient their daily lives in these times to a new design for living which did not include control of their motor cars. The housewife, to whom the Quartermaster corps often has been compared, recognizes the necessity of having the automobile ready for instant use when it comes time to meet the 5:15 bringing hubby home from the office. Mrs. Citizen isn't at all in favor of calling her neighbor on the telephone and asking use of the neighbor's motor car to fulfill a responsibility which she has long recognized as her own.

The army in its plan of logistics calls for a simplified system on the service of supply to the front lines with Quartermaster corps not only responsible for assembly of supplies, but to insure their arrival responsible also for transportation.

Motor Service Station.

To meet this motor transport problem the Quartermaster corps is moving with tremendous speed in establishing regional motor maintenance districts throughout the country. Facilities are being installed at a central point in interlocking hundred mile circles to keep each motor vehicle in first class condition and uphold the Quartermaster corps slogan, "Keep 'em Rolling."

Like the housewife who demands her automobile be ready when she wants it the Quartermaster corps has pledged that no motor vehicle shall remain out of service because of damaged or worn out equipment. Instead the quartermaster will remove the damaged part and install in its place a new one, sending the damaged equipment to the regional depot for repair but keeping the motor truck in service for the troops and live up to the demand to "Keep 'em rolling."

Logistics, or design for living, so closely links the operation of the transportation with the service of supply that there is scarcely a citizen who does not see the parallel to his daily life in the activities of the Quartermaster corps.

Variety of Duties.

The quartermaster not only is the ice and coal man, but he is the haberdasher, the restaurant man and the hotel keeper. He runs the taxi service and operates the trucking, transfer and storage business as well. He is the garage man and the operator of the gasoline filling station: the railroad ticket agent in addition to being the train dispatcher. He is the garbage collector and the second hand salvage dealer. He operates the laundry and shoe repair shop in addition to conducting the clothing store and managing all the five and tens.

All of a city's public utility facilities the Quartermaster corps furnishes for the soldier much in the manner which a city manager, or the mayor and board of selectmen or aldermen of a city, conduct those functions in a community. He provides the water supply, and the sewage disposal; he runs the electric light plant, paves the streets in camp, builds parkways and operates the fire department.

Only the war-time essentials of these duties does the Quartermaster corps take with it in providing the design for living for troops in a theater of action. To execute behind the lines these requirements of transport, quartering and supply the army always has selected the highly trained Quartermaster corps and given to the duties demanded under that selection the term logistics which comes from the Greek word "logostikos" which has as its root the word "lego" which means to select.

Claim Gifted Child Neglected by Schools

EVANSTON, ILL.—Is there a young genius in your home? There could be, whether your income tax is thousands of dollars a year or you don't know where the next month's rent is coming from.

This is the report of Dr. W. Drayton Lewis, assistant professor of psychology at Murray State Teachers college, Murray, Ky.

Dr. Lewis studied 50 of the most brilliant children in a group of 50,000 selected from schools all over the country—each a "one-in-a-thousand" child on the basis of intelligence tests. All had IQ's over 145—100 is "normal."

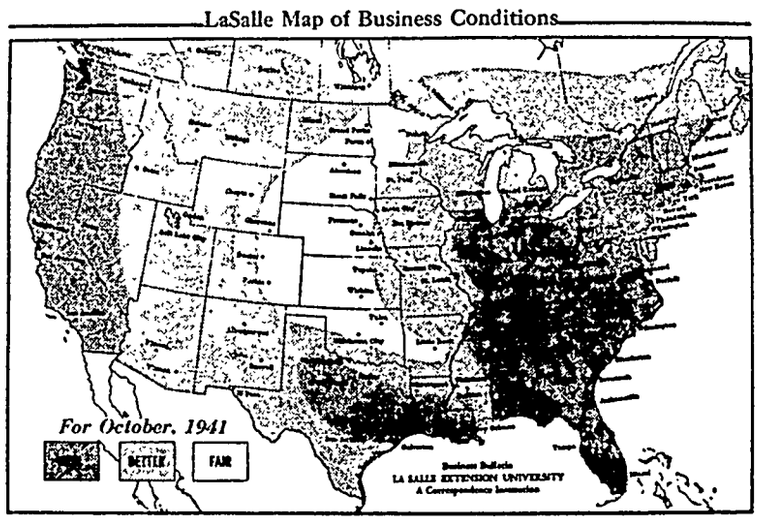
"It is tragic," Dr. Lewis said, "that these gifted children are so mistreated in the schools. Our educational system neglects the most promising students. Only one boy in five and two girls in five of the outstanding group were characterized by their teachers as being precocious or mentally quick. Two of them were even called dull or mentally sluggish. These children, who rate one in a thousand among their classmates, are not even recognized by their teachers as bright, because the educational system keeps them down to the level of the average."

The economic status of the children's homes, Dr. Lewis reported, varies from poverty to affluence, and the social status is equally divergent.

"These exceptionally intelligent children," he said, "can be expected in any type of home. The fathers come from all levels of society. They are high school principals, army officers, doctors, ministers, mercantile men, government employees, farmers, barbers, truck drivers, mill hands, factory workers, and common laborers" In fact, they are from all walks of life.

Farm Conditions Improve

LaSalle Map of Business Conditions



Plans for increased farm production, in all major products, except cotton, wheat and tobacco, which will lag due to surpluses and present lack of market, are prevalent over the entire country. In the front rank will be livestock, dairy products, eggs and vegetables, present chief source of farm income.

Plan Shops to Repair Army Clothing and Equipment

WASHINGTON. — Clothing and equipment repair shops designed to serve from 20,000 to 40,000 men and operated by 50 civilian experts soon will be opened at 26 army camps.

Divided into five sections, the standard repair unit will handle clothing and textiles, leather footwear, rubber footwear, mattresses and pillows, and tentage.

Most of the shops will be established in existing structures at the army camps where they are to be used, and floor layout plans will vary. To make the necessary adjustments as easy as possible, all items of machinery to be used at the shops will be equipped with individual motors.

The repair of shoes is one of the biggest jobs for the new units.

Next in amount of repair work to be done is the clothing and textile section. The repair of overshoes, tentage, mattresses and pillows, will demand relatively small space.

DELAYS TO RUSSIA

There were two inside reasons for the slowness of the U. S. mission to Moscow in sitting down at the conference table with Joe Stalin. One was the technical difficulty of the flight across Germany. The other was China.

The flight from London to Moscow is not the easiest thing in the world, since about a thousand miles is across enemy territory. The British bombers which make the flight use as much of the night as possible over German territory and also go up to tremendous altitudes.

The U. S. mission to Moscow also had to fly in sections—three different planes, flown on different days, with the time of departure kept a dark secret. And the last sections were delayed in London.

The Chinese delay of the mission to Moscow occurred before Averill Harriman left Washington, when it was proposed that China, nearest friendly neighbor to Russia, should sit in with Harriman, Stalin and the others.

But the state department objected—and for a highly unexpected reason. Appeasement-minded diplomats inside the state department claimed that a Chinese mission to Moscow would offend Japan. The United States was trying to woo Japan away from the Axis, they argued, and so nothing must be done to rub the Japanese fur the wrong way.

In the end, Japan reaffirmed its partnership in the Axis; but only after the U. S. mission to Moscow already had started, also after Nazi victories in Russia seemed on the upgrade once again. So the appeasement policy of the state department got nowhere.

NOTE—Key to Japanese policy of friendship for the United States or allegiance to Germany always is the barometer of Nazi military success. If Hitler is winning, Japan will stick by him; and if the U.S.A. looks stronger, it is vice versa.

U. S. MILITARY ATTACHE

Gen. John Magruder was recently appointed head of the U. S. military mission to China in order to heal the slight to Chiang Kai-shek when he was not permitted to send an envoy to the Harriman conference in Moscow. But General Magruder is more famous for another chapter in his life.

When he was U. S. military attache to Switzerland in 1938, Magruder sent a report to the war department on the march of Hitler's mechanized forces to conquer Austria. In this report he said that Nazi tanks and trucks were of poor quality and that many of them had broken down en route to Vienna.

This U. S. military report was immediately picked up by the British who placed great confidence in the word of a U. S. military attache.

Today, Hitler's tanks and armored cars are the model for modern warfare.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S JOB

A friend of Mrs. Roosevelt came to see her at the White House, to talk about the First Lady's new job in the Office of Civilian Defense. She was much impressed at Mrs. Roosevelt's grasp of the problems, but a little disturbed at the boldness of some of her plans.

So thinking of Director LaGuardia, the friend remonstrated: "If you introduce such bold ideas, what will the mayor say?"

The First Lady smiled. "My dear," she said, "I don't think the mayor will say 'No' to me."

NOTE — Mrs. Roosevelt cannot spend full time at her desk in the O.C.D., and during her absences, the job will be held down by her good friend Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the secretary of the treasury.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

What the army needs for men in southern areas is short pants. The long trousers are too hot and difficult to keep clean. British officers observing the maneuvers wore shorts and looked cool and swagger.

Observed one second army wit anent the fact that the war games were held in the "Cajun" (Arcadian) section of Louisiana, "450,000 soldiers and all looking for Evangeline."

Attention, Mr. Tom Dewey: The U.S.O. did not show up very helpfully in the maneuver area. In some of the towns the local organizations did make an effort to provide the soldiers with bathing and laundry facilities, but in general the U.S.O. fell down on the job. It should have made special arrangements for the men in this backwoods region.

New Date Frocks Add Rhythm To College Girl's Wardrobe

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

PROBABLY "full credit for chic" won't be listed on college report cards this fall, but it's one course that is getting plenty of "cramming" the country over, as college girls settle down to the routine of classroom and campus life.

According to a recognized authority who annually advises hundreds of college girls on how to buy and how to wear clothes, as part of the functionalized "how to live" curriculum on a Midwestern campus, grooming has a significant influence on the adolescent girl. There is a relationship between success and a feeling of well-being which springs from the knowledge that one's best self is being expressed through the proper habits of posture, dress and general bearing.

"Wardrobe rhythm" is the way this authority describes the proper assemblage of clothes that are adequate for all occasions Being well dressed on a modest budget is a matter of wardrobe integrating. One of the weaknesses of the average American girl is that she buys a one-occasion dress or an eye-appealing number on the spur of the moment without giving any thought to how it will fit into her general wardrobe scheme.

The girl who wants to assemble a wardrobe that will be adequate for all occasions should decide on a color scheme for the season and stick to it. She should select frocks, ensembles, suits, coats and accessories that are interchangeable, meanwhile being sure that a dress or ensemble is suitable for wear on a variety of occasions. Variety can be achieved with bright belts, bags and carefully selected costume jewelry

If you are planning a basic fall and winter wardrobe on a limited budget you might include a gray or tan herringbone tweed man-tailored jacket with a matching bias-cut skirt, a campus coat of bright red and gray or tan and green wool plaid lined with gabardine for general utility wear, a wool "dressy" dress for dates and those "special" occasions, a wool reefer in gray or brown to harmonize with the skirt of the suit or to be worn over the wool dress and a separate blouse-and-skirt dinner dress. These items, with a collection of sweaters and blouses, will keep you looking smart on all occasions.

Three simple "date" dresses that will major in chic for all more or less dress-up occasions are shown in the illustration For "five and after" the "good little black dress" is ever a loyal standby The tea dress of black crepe, left, with its long torso line accented by scallops and its American beauty red velvet bow at the neckline, should win high honors The tricorn hat adds just the right note of dash

Off to the movies? Wear the "date special" shown to the right and you'll steal the show. It's tan with brown passementerie across the square neckline and around the waist And the skirt—well, it looks as though the dirndl is here to stay. A characteristic feature of this season's fashions is the importance attached to light wool daytime dresses in oatmeal, tan, beige, muted greens and dusky browns. The emerald green taffeta dinner dress in the center, above, should be a "come" signal for the stagline. The frock with its slimming torso line ending in a peplum will be voted an ideal basic evening dress.

Feature Ensembles In Costume Jewelry

It is a season of pretentious, important-looking costume jewelry. The massive sort predominates. such as huge wide bracelets with massive necklaces. Great clusters of colored stones or rhinestones form spectacular lapel pieces. Topaz and amber are in high fashion, to wear with autumn browns.

The newest effect comes from three separate pieces, varying in size but otherwise identical, that clip to dress or coat lapel in groups. Matched to these are earrings, bracelets and often finger rings.

Jet Gives New Sparkle To All Black Ensemble

For the sophisticate who likes to "say it" in terms of smart apparel there is an avenue of approach that leads directly to heights of modernism. It is the "black as a crow" ensemble that is being exploited this season among the ultra fashionable. To achieve this your black crepe or jersey dress is flecked with jet, intensified with jet passementerie at throat and sleeves. A tiny jet hat with a snood at the back or a drape carries out the theory of seductive black. Gloves are black, and wispy sheer black silk hose are worn with black suede shoes. The hand bag is either jet embellished or of classic suede to match the shoes.

Use Lace Trim

Now that peplums and tiers and flounces and overskirt effects are in fashion, designers are enhancing them with edgings of either black or white lace. Lace yokes are also being featured. Removable, very sheer lace guimpes are sold at the neckwear counters.

Campus Favorite

Blouses! You can't have enough of them! Here is a beauty It is one of the most stunning campus originals brought out this season. It has long full sleeves, a round, high neck, fly-front fastening and double button-over pockets that are very new. It carries a convincing message of "style" told in terms of sophisticated simplicity. The colors are luscious pastels to contrast with dark fall clothes.

Little Folks to Wear Colorful Long Hosiery

No more winter chill for little folks, the latest news being to the effect that long stockings in bright colors will be worn again. They are arriving in bright attractive colors that will make appeal to little girls who have an eye for pretty, as well as practical apparel.

SWEET POTATO HARVEST TIME

Growers Cheat 'Jack Frost' By Digging Quickly.

By LEWIS F. WATSON
(Extension Horticulturist, N C State College.)

Shortening days and cooler nights herald the arrival of fall and harvest time for sweet potatoes, one staple in the diet of many farm people

Potatoes keep best when they are allowed to mature before harvesting and before frost kills the vines. If the vines are killed by frost, they should be removed immediately and the potatoes dug soon

Use a vine cutter, attached to the beam of the plow, when vines are not removed before harvest. This attachment should be constructed so as to prevent the blade which cuts the vine from going deep enough to injure the potato

One of the most important rules of harvest time is not to bruise the potatoes They should not be thrown from one row to another. Three rows can easily be placed together without throwing the potatoes Bruised yams not easily in storage, and dark spots caused by rough handling lower the market value of the crop.

As the potatoes are removed from the soil and piled in the heap row, they should be graded carefully. All cut or broken yams should be piled separately from the No. 1s and fed to stock as soon as possible.

For curing and storing, a regular storage crate has many advantages over the bushel tub. Besides conserving room, the crate allows a better circulation of air.

Potatoes should be stored and cured in a thoroughly cleaned and dry house immediately after harvesting. Proper temperature and moisture conditions are essential factors in keeping the crop.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Weed

CASTOR BEANS

To make American industry less dependent upon foreign products, castor bean growing is being revived to supply a fast-drying oil for paints and enamels. It is found to be a good substitute for tung oil, a product of China which has been extensively used in the paint industry. Since the Japanese invasion, this foreign oil is both costly and difficult to get and the domestic supply is not being produced in large quantities.

Castor bean growing is not new to this country for it thrived in a half dozen states around 1850 when 23 oil mills were operating, most of them located around St. Louis. After the Civil war, production increased until Kansas glutted the market with a boom crop of 766,143 bushels in 1879. Prices fell and interest in the castor bean declined.

Last year test plots were grown in 33 states from coast to coast, in the South and as far north as New York. New seed was imported from Java, Brazil and India by the National Farm Chemurgic council in an effort to find a new market for the farmer. It included shatter-resistant varieties which do not require a prohibitive amount of hand labor, since they are less likely to eject their seeds as they start to ripen, and can be harvested in two or three operations.

One of the first commercial uses of castor oil is in lacquer for lining cans in which food is preserved. By treating it with sulphuric acid, an oil is obtained which is used for softening textiles. It is also used in the manufacture of soap, aniline inks, and non-brittle tire cement.

Farm Notes

Milk cows on farms in the U. S. increased nearly three per cent between 1940 and 1941.

One hen normally will eat about 80 pounds of feed a year, of which approximately one-half should be mash and one-half grain, in order to obtain best results.

An inexpensive and efficient homogenizing machine for small dairies, operated by a quarter-horsepower motor and weighing only 137 pounds, is now on the market.

The 1941 United States lamb crop probably is the largest on record.

The 1941 U. S. hay crop of 96,000,000 tons is expected to be the largest harvested since 1927 and the third largest produced in the last 30 years.

July 1 estimates on corn in the United States indicate a harvest of 2,548,709,000 bushels, which will be 4 per cent more than the 1940 crop and 10 per cent above the average crop in the period 1930-39

ELMER TWITCHELL ON THE GAS CRISIS

"I'm all set for this gasoline rationing," declared Elmer Twitchell today. "Ain't a bit worried. Got myself all adjusted. Won't notice it at all."

"How so?" we asked.

"Preparedness," snapped Elmer "Been salting it away or got a pull with a gasoline bootlegger?"

"Neither," explained Mr Twitchell. "I've done nothing beyond the reach of any other American Any auto owner can take the same steps I have so that the gas shortage won't bother him in the least"

"Speak. What have you done?"

"Well, I'll tell you," said Elmer "It's very simple First of all, I've painted every light in the house a bright red"

"What's the big idea?"

"I want the full atmosphere of the open road," he continued. "Then I've put obstacles all over every room so there'll be trouble getting anywhere I'm hanging a dead-end sign at the front door and I put a detour marker on the back door to complicate matters."

"Yes, but "

"Don't interrupt," he snapped. "I'm putting windshield wipers on every window in the house, breaking them first. I mean breaking the windshield wipers, not the windows. I want to be sure none of 'em work. Then I'm setting the furnace on full tilt and removing the thermostatic adjustments. I want to be sure I'm hot."

We were beginning to get the drift.

"I'm putting in a big stock of horsemeat, frankfurters and stale rolls, a lot of wet peanuts and plenty of bananas and soda pop. Enough to last all fall and winter," he continued. "And I've ordered a four months' supply of pickles, hard-boiled eggs and all the other junk people eat on their Sunday afternoon pleasure trips. Gas or no gas, I don't want to take any chance on being cut off from all my accustomed pleasures."

"You mean you're not even counting on using an auto?" we exclaimed.

"Exactly," said Elmer. "I'll have my house all fixed up with everything I can get through motoring. I'm even arranging to have grease put all over the chairs and walls and I'm putting in a small stove to burn nothing but rubber. And see this?"

Elmer held up a phonograph record.

"Put it on the machine and all it does is just snarl in different keys. Every little while a voice yells, 'Get over, ya big bum!' "

* * *

Mr. Twitchell was well pleased with himself.

"It's a pretty good idea," we agreed.

"Good my eye. It's perfect," concluded Elmer. "Without a pint of gasoline to my name I'm all set to enjoy everything at home that I would enjoy if I went out in the auto."

INEXPLICABLE

It seems to me somewhat ironic,
That tender care, massage, and tonic
Should be required of men who cherish
A scalp that's adequately hairish.

When it is barely getting started,
Despite mistreatment, curse, and scorning
Returns augmented every morning.

DAY'S END!

"Here they come!" With tensing trigger finger the hidden duck hunter swings on the incoming birds-- a single, or a double, or perhaps a clean miss and the season is open!

Rain or shine, sleet or snow, it is always the same on opening day There is the guy with the sour duck call and the guy with the new boat paddling hither and yon and the guy with the roaring ten guage who blasts away at the moon It is fun and the duck hunter loves it!

Back to the Missus For her it is always the same opening day, too Mud from boots on the floor, wet clothes in the corner, ducks to be picked on the drain board and the inevitable yarns. A BLACK-OUT FOR KLEMME?

A couple of weeks ago the residents of Klemme were treated to a good sample of what a "black-out" is like

We did not have to scoot into our 'bomb shelters" nor did we hear any bombers screaming overhead and as far as we can tell, no casualties resulted, but there were a few skinned shins and plenty of cuss words

The black-out we refer to was the result of the light in the street [illegible] being extremely conspicuous by its absence in all parts of town except a couple of lights on main street

Why the delay in getting the light in working order?

KLEMME IS THE HOME OF A RARE SQUIRREL

It is safe that no one will kill or molest a certain squirrel in Klemme that is easily distinguishable by his odd color

The squirrel we are telling about is a "black" squirrel and we were told they are rare in Iowa and are native to northern Minnesota and Canada where they are protected game

Klemme's black squirrel is a handsome specimen He is larger than most of the red squirrels in town His belly and legs well up are black as ink, and his top coat is quite dark However, he has a large bushy, reddish-colored tail

"Old Blacky" is quite tame and has been coaxed within six feet of the writer He usually visits our neighborhood every morning and seems to have a job to look after each morning, as he will climb up on the roof of Lydia Bock's house and put in a good half hour "barking" at some imaginary intruder

And, please don't harm this nice friendly squirrel

THE MEN AND WOMEN OF TOMORROW

That little group of seventeen smiling little tots who trudged happily to school last week to begin their first day in kindergarten, are the men and women of tomorrow We wonder what is in store for them

Eight years from now some of them will graduate from the 8th grade Four years later a small number of those who began together will receive their diploma and graduate from the high school. Perhaps one or two will go to college.

Each of the little tots was accompanied to kindergarten by a proud, hopeful mother. A few tears were shed as mother watched her little child make his or her first step out of her life and step into a world of the future.

Little Johnny and Mary have begun to prepare themselves for the future, taking the first step to become the men and women of tomorrow and to take the place that we ourselves our now occupying in this scheme of things.

What will the future bring to them? That question will be for each Johnny and Mary to solve in his or her own way

And so, another generation has started to kindergarten

Proclamation

The American flag has been carried to all the seas as a symbol of our faith in the great republic, and a reminder of our power and determination to maintain our rights and uphold our ideals. We should know more of the story of the heroic service of our Navy in times of danger and how splendidly it has cooperated with our diplomatic arm in times of peace. The Navy is that part of ourselves that we project into every sea and all harbors to emphasize the spirit of brotherhood by which our nation has become great and powerful

The people of Iowa have special reason to join in doing honor to the United States Navy because of our own contributions in distinguisher personnel and otherwise; and we will gladly pause to renew our pledge of unwavering support to the tremendous task of assuring the freedom of all the seas

It is my pleasure to name the day that is the anniversary of the birth of a great American, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who gave much of his thought and life to the up-building of our Navy to be.

Iowa Navy Day

MONDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1941

Let us in Iowa give this day over to contemplation, to study to an earnes effort at understanding, the rule of the Navy in the making of a nation respected round the world

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the State of Iowa Done at Des Moines, this 7th day of October, in the Year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-One, of the State of Iowa, the Ninety-Fifth, and of the Independence of the United States the One Hundred and Sixty-Sixth

Game Birds Do Spoil

For many years the argument raged as to whether it was proper to hang game head up or down when letting them get "high" The "high" game is not as fashionable as it once was and South Dakota prints the following suggestions to aid in keeping game fresh while the hunter is still in the field

Bleed birds on killing to remove the heat quickly Take out entrails to remove heat and eliminate a place where souring might start Wipe or wash out body cavity to eliminate digestive acids. Carry game head down to open feathers at top so heat can escape. Never bunch birds together or put in a tight box or sack. Lay side by side in car so birds will cool on way home In hot weather dress birds out and leave in open air until dry and then put in cool place.

Around Iowa

Fresh Fruit.

K. C. Starbuck, Grinnell, doesn't have to wait for fruit to be in season at his house. Last week he picked enough ripe red raspberries from his garden for servings for three.

Sweet Potatoes

Ed. Sshwank of Denison displayed sweet potatoes that were quite a prize. He dug three hills, getting 15 potatoes, the largest weighing 2 pounds and 12 ounces. Several others weighed two pounds.

Received Late.

A post card recently was delivered although it took 61 years to do it. On Oct 21, 1880, A. D. Swan, early Indianola merchant, ordered some material for his store from Perkins & Gray. The card had become lost in the Des Moines post office and was delivered only last week.

Re-Engaged.

Twenty years ago, Mrs Hugh Willoughby, Grundy Center, lost her diamond engagement ring at home working near the house Last week it was found by her brother-in-law The ring's mounting was tarnished and the band broken but the stone was not damaged Mr. Willoughby placed it on his wife, stating that they were engaged for the second time

GRASSHOPPERS

Residents of southwest Iowa thought they were being invaded last week Grasshoppers by the millions flew across that section of the state, giving a slight dark tinge to the sun Large numbers of the 'hoppers settled in the country but packs of them flew on to other lands.

STORM

The Ernest Krause family were pleased that the freak cyclone struck high in the air at their farm near Eldora The top was torn from the windmill, a grove of maple trees was damaged but none of the farm buildings was touched No damage was found on any of the surrounding farms.

THANK YOU

Humboldt County Superintendent of Schools has received five "thank you" letters from London evacuee children. Last Christmas the rural and town schools of Humboldt county sent several boxes of articles to London children and the letters were written in appreciation of the gifts

MUSICAL

The high score of 265 at a Washington, D C music school brought great honors to John Ambelang of Chariton John, now in the U S Navy, immediately was placed in a Class A band The score received by the former Chariton boy was the highest ever received in the history of the school.

LOST, AND LOST AGAIN!

Someone answered an ad for a lost dog but the West Union "Union" office lost the name of the finder. Mrs. Leo Pierce advertised for the return of the dog, "Booger" and was advised that he had been found Later she was advised the name of the finder was lost so she still has not found the dog.

CIRCULAR? NO!

Hugh L. Mosher of Allison threw what he thought was a circular into the wastebasket but upon seeing that it carried a three-cent stamp decided to forward it to his daughter at Parkersburg Miss Mosher also thinking it was a circular, put the letter into her purse. Some hours later she opened the letter and to her astonishment found a check for one hundred dollars. The money was awarded her as a winner of a jingle contest.

Only 62 million acres of cropland in the United States is considered both good and non-erodible. Irrigation, drainage and clearing could make available 68 million acres of good, non-erodible land.

Bacon.

E. C. Kellogg, Winterset merchant, received an order for five pounds of hickory-smoked bacon from a Florida man. The man had recently stopped in Winterset and purchased a package of bacon The letter stated that the bacon had sold in Florida and had an acorn flavor.

SPORTSMANSHIP AND CONDUCT

Are you a good sport" Of course we are all good sports before we are put to a test but then our sportsmanship fails us If we learn during our school career to take things on the chin and think of others first how much easier it will be throughout our life You and I find many things we do not agree with or enjoy, but do a few of these things and see how quickly people will meet you half way Smile and the world smiles with you weep and you weep alone Lets try it and see

In this day and age when our conduct record follows us it is very important to have a good record It seems the former school's are a good source of information about a person Everyone is proud of their school when people have a high opinion of their school but how easily this can be torn down by a few people who forget their etiquette

Lets be better sports and have better conduct thus making for better school all around

Razed.

A building that in its day has seen many a "happy" time, will be torn down by John Wiedner of Waukon. The building, the old Parrel tavern, located on the bank of the waterway that steamboats used to reach Harpers Ferry, show what happened during the years. The salvage will be used in building tourist cabins. Wiedner is keeping as a souvenir the shamrock-shaped panel over the door with the date "1859" cut in the wood by Thomas Parrel, the year the latter built the tavern.

Your cookie jar problem can be solved very neatly with toothsome oatmeal cookies with flecks of chocolate in them:

Oatmeal Cookies.
(Makes 4 dozen)
½ cup butter or shortening
1 cup brown sugar
Grated rind of 1 orange
1 egg, unbeaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sifted flour
1½ cups fine rolled oats
7 ounces chocolate pieces

Cream butter and sugar. Add orange rind, egg, vanilla and beat well. Add salt and flour which has been mixed with the oats. Add chocolate pieces and work into batter. Drop by spoonfuls on greased cookie sheet. Bake 15 to 20 minutes in a moderate (375 degrees) oven.

Recommendations are in for the old favorites of which you never tire. If you want to make a pretty and at the same time, a very successful platter, you might try alternate rows of both these Ginger Cookies and Brownies:

Soft Ginger Cookies.
(Makes 5 dozen)
1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup molasses
¾ cup evaporated milk
3 cups flour
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon each, ginger, cinnamon

Cream sugar and shortening, add egg and molasses. Beat well, add milk and blend well. Mix dry ingredients and add to batter. Last add soda, dissolved in 2 tablespoons warm water. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake 15 minutes in a hot (375 degrees) oven.

Brownies.
(Makes 2 dozen)
⅓ cup butter or shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
¾ cup flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat eggs and sugar together. Add to this melted butter and chocolate and blend. Add flour, baking powder, nuts, and beat well. Pour into a greased pan and bake 30 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Cool and cut in squares.

For a delicious variation of the brownie recipe, you'll like the addition of ¾ cup of bran cereal in place of the chopped nutmeats. They'll give you a slightly different flavored cookie, but guaranteed to please you, just as well.

Meat-Macaroni Casserole.
1 package macaroni
⅓ cup salad oil
1 pound hamburger
1 dry onion, minced
1 green pepper, minced
1 clove garlic, if desired
1 can tomato soup
2 cups peas
2 cups corn
Salt and pepper

Cook the macaroni in plenty of boiling salted water and when tender, put in a sieve and rinse with cold water. Meanwhile fry the hamburger in the heated oil, stirring it occasionally to separate it. Skim out the meat and in the same fat cook onion, pepper and garlic till tender, but not browned. Garlic may be omitted entirely, and it is usually removed after the onion and pepper are cooked. Combine all ingredients and simmer 20 to 30 minutes to heat thoroughly and blend flavors, then serve.

"CAPTAINS of the Clouds" (Warner Bros.) brought the war right home to Hollywood More than 100 pilots of the company who worked for a month in Canada are now in service overseas. James Cagney, Alan Hale, George Tobias and Dennis Morgan now would rather talk about the Royal Canadian Air force than about anything else. They have so many friends in it!

By the time the picture is released, virtually every one of the Canadian fliers who appear in it will be overseas

Jean Phillips has finally taken it for granted that she'll have to change the color of her hair for each new picture Naturally blonde,

JEAN PHILLIPS

it's been dyed four times for her last four films. She thought she could just be herself for "Sweater Girl," but June Preisser and Betty Jane Rhodes have the other top roles, and they're both blondes Back to the hairdresser's for Miss Phillips'

Samuel Goldwyn has acquired rights to the famous "off to work we go" song of the little men in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." It will be used as theme music for the seven droll professors in "Ball of Fire," starring Barbara Stanwyck and Gary Cooper.

Twentieth Century-Fox sort of faced a problem recently; Ginger Rogers was to make one picture for the company, and there just wasn't a good story for her. And Ginger's valuable property nowadays. So—she's going to appear in a re-make of "Chicago," which probably will be called "Roxy Hart." She's also slated to start in "Self-Made Cinderella," Lubitsch's first one for Fox.

Too bad the off-stage dialogue of Myrna Loy and William Powell can't be used in "The Shadow of the Thin Man." The other day they made a scene in which Asta, the famous dog, had to sit on Powell's chest. Asta seemed to feel sort of silly. Powell retired to his dressing room for a few minutes, and when he returned they tried it again, and Asta adored sitting on his chest.

"I changed my necktie for a few strips of bacon," Powell explained, exhibiting a neat bow.

"Do you suppose Asta was interested in the bacon," asked Miss Loy, "or in the ham?"

The fourth picture dealing with the Burma road will be Metro's "China Caravan." Columbia plans "Burma Road," Fox plans "Over the Burma Road," Universal has "Burma Convoy" all done. Evidently everybody decided at the same moment that the Burma road was news.

To make factual, uncolored news available to the people of Central and South America, one of the big radio makers is sponsoring a daily program of press association news over local radio stations throughout Latin America; it's the first special news program for general distribution there to be sponsored by a United States company.

There are more ways than one to make an excellent living and a solid reputation in radio. Alice Youngman is doing it via the dramatized commercial route; she has assignments on "Are You a Missing Heir?", "Helen's Home" and the Lanny Ross programs.

ODDS AND ENDS—Radio's Dinah Shore, singing star of the Eddie Cantor show, has a new college degree—Doctor of Blues, presented to her by Harvard freshmen . . Monogram's going to bring "Black Beauty" back to the screen And Metro will do the same for the play, "Her Cardboard Lover," which was made way back in 1932 under the title of "The Passionate Plumber" Sonja Henie has signed a new long-term contract with Fox, starts work again January first . . Olivia de Haviland escapes from hoop skirts and bustles for her role as the young wife of college professor Henry Fonda in "The Male Animal."

CIVIC RESPONSIBILITY REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 5.32, 33; 11 26-28, Isaiah 28 1-6, Habakkuk 2.12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people—Proverbs 14 34

Legal approval of the sale of alcoholic beverages has largely taken the matter out of the hands of the home and the church and has made liquor a civic problem That, of course, does not provide us with a convenient excuse for evading our personal responsibility, for the nation is made up of you and me, of your home and mine, of your church and mine. We must share the nation's responsibility gladly and actively if we are to be worthy of our citizenship Especially is that true of the Christian, for he sees the spiritual and moral implications of the matter, and he also knows what to do about it.

I. "Righteousness Exalteth a Nation; but Sin Is a Reproach to Any People" (Deut 5:32-33; 11.26-28).

That may sound a bit old-fashioned and it may appear that men have abrogated that principle, but if we wait a bit we shall see that it still works

1 Righteousness Brings Blessing (Deut 5 32, 33; 11:26, 27). In this callous and indifferent generation we need to repeat with emphasis the fact that there is laid down in the very constitution of the universe a moral distinction between right and wrong Right is always right and wrong is always wrong.

The book of Deuteronomy presents the fundamental laws of God. In this fifth chapter there is a review of many of these laws and a practical appeal for obedience. It is pointed out that the way of liberty in the walk of life is to turn neither to the extreme of legal bondage nor to the opposite extreme of human license, but to "walk in all the ways which the Lord your God hath commanded you." Walking in His ways brings all the blessings of Deuteronomy 5·33, a promise which is repeated in 11 27.

2. Unrighteousness Brings Judgment (Deut. 11:28). Turning aside from God's ways must bring upon man His curse. It is no light matter to be under God's disapproval. We who know how much the approval or disapproval of frail human beings around us may mean, should consider what it means in the life of a man (or of a nation) to have the eternal, omnipresent and omnipotent God against him.

Then what about a people which countenances the manufacture and the sale of intoxicants, which they well know bring about wickedness and vice which can only call for the judgment of God. Many believe that the great war in which the world is embroiled is simply God's judgment upon the nations (including England and America) because they have turned aside from His holy ways. That means that the most effective way to stop the conflict is national penitence and prayer. Why not believe and practice II Chronicles 7 14?

II. Civic Greatness Cannot Be Built on Sin and Oppression (Isa. 28 1-6, Hab. 2:12).

Yes, that sounds old-fashioned too! The theory of today seems to be that the road to greatness is by way of disregard of God's laws, and by the application of the mailed fist of cruel conquest But let us remember that others have tried the same violation of God's law, and let us recall what happened to them Did you ever hear of Napoleon?—of Alexander the Great?—of the "glory that was Greece"?—and the world conquering power of ancient Rome? Modern military leaders could well afford to spend less time on their books of strategy and their war maps and more time reading the Bible and the pages of history

1. Drunkenness and National Decay Go Together (Isa. 28.1-6). The leaders of Israel (Ephraim) lingered long over their wine bowls as they spoke with pride of their nation, and especially of Samaria, its crown It was a city beautifully situated on a hillside surrounded by a fertile terraced hillside.

Does not that all have a vaguely familiar sound? A great nation of our day which now lies in bondage to its neighbor dictator not long ago spoke with pride of its attainments and its security, while (according to the testimony of its own leaders) the use of intoxicants went on apace, even in the army

2. Permanent Power Cannot Be Built on Oppression (Hab. 2:12). Here again history reveals the correctness of Scripture. Many a nation has sought to find its "place in the sun" by building with the blood of its vanquished enemies. It has never worked, and it will fail now just as it has in the past.

What about the city, state, or nation that attempts to promote its own growth out of the taxes on liquor and its sale?

Coveted Positions

The most coveted social positions held by women in England are those in the households of Queen Elizabeth and the Dowager Queen Mary, says Collier's. Today, these positions are occupied by 25 women, ranked in five classes Mistresses of the Robes, Ladies of the Bedchamber, Extra Ladies of the Bedchamber, Women of the Bedchamber and Extra Women of the Bedchamber.

If you have a relative or friend in the service and have any doubts about what to send him as gifts, your problems are over. The service men have solved it for you by naming tobacco as their first choice in gifts. Actual sales records show the favorite cigarette with men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard is Camel Prince Albert is the popular smoking tobacco. With these preferences in mind, local tobacco dealers feature Camels by the carton and Prince Albert in the pound tin as ideal gifts to the men in the service from the folks back home. —Adv.

Rather Far-Fetched Was This Relationship

"You say, madam," said the barrister to the woman in the witness box, "that the defendant is a sort of relation of yours Will you explain what you mean by that—just how you are related to the defendant?"

"Well, it's like this His first wife's cousin and my second husband's first wife's aunt married brothers named Jones, and they were own cousins to my mother's own aunt. Then, again, his grandfather's on my mother's side, were second cousins, and his stepmother married my husband's stepfather, and his brother Joe and my husband's brother, Henry, married twin sisters. I've always looked on him as a sort of cousin"

False Alarm.

Miss Margaret Vorba, teacher of school No. 4, north of Gladbrook, was surprised to find the fire deparment at the schoolhouse door ready to extinguish a fire. The pupils had been studying "How to Use the Telephone" and had called a number of places and one of three calls was regarding fire alarms The Gladbrook telephone operator misunderstood the message and called the fire department which responded promptly.

that you would like to t I have been doing all so I will start at the be- d try to give you a brief know I enlisted March left the same day for San arrived there three days upon my arrival I was f from the station to the station barracks I ar- night so as soon as I got racks I was shown to my that was that for that next day we had another examination and had to ral shots. While we were r all this we had a chance e the activities of the und us and of which we a part. While wander- nd the hospital area we led "long-haired suckers" ellows who had arrived a before us and in the days that we found out what nt. That same day we rched down to the barber given a haircut, a better it is scalped. They left half inch of hair on our d from then on we were boots" The training camp "boot camp" and the so- uckers in it are called This training period lasts n weeks during which we owed no liberty at all and us got rather homesick and ged During the first week nothing but police duty, eans cleaning up around and barracks. The second e went on schedule and rom morning to night on de ground They issued us obnailed boots and when toon of sixty-three men t there drilling on that ce- rade ground along with a- other platoons you can how much noise we made.

econd week we were issued ingfield rifles and from we drilled with rifles. We had to swab k two or three times a day washed clothes every day, also had to learn to patch our clothes, iron our shirts ousers, put a real shine on ss shoes, and above all, to at rifle clean.

he beginning of the second n schedule we moved into These tents hold two men and each platoon occupied row, or that is two rows of with a board walk running the center. During the third on schedule we went on sev- ng hikes with combat packs r backs and on those hikes acticed skirmishing and oth- ngs connected with actual practice. We also took up et drill and at the end of the week we were required to run a bayonet qualification course Those of us who qualified received a medal for our efforts We also received instruction on different kinds of gases

On Saturday of the third week on schedule we were taken out to the rifle range We stayed out there for three weeks and during this time we received instruction on the shooting of the 30 calibre Springfield rifle and the 45 cal automatic pistol On Friday of the third and last week at the range we fired the Springfield for record and on Saturday we left for the base During the last week at the base we reviewed everything that we took up in the preceeding six weeks and we were taken through the gas chamber and while we were in there we had to pull off our masks and by the time we got out of there we were really crying and we couldn't see a thing for a few minute

During this last week we turned in our old rifles and were issued the new Garands We were taken out to the range for another day to fire the Garands and we all liked the new rifles very much

On Saturday we graduated from boots to regular 'leathernecks' and we were inspected by the Commanding Officer About half of the platoon left the same day for Bremerton, Washington, and I was among that bunch We spent two days on the train and during this time we were treated to a lot of beautiful scenery

After arriving at Bremerton we were put in a guard company, and from then on our duties consisted of guarding the Navy Yard When you are in a guard company you soon learn what it is to be up at all hours of the night and you really learn to appreciate sleep On your night on guard you usually get in about four hours and on your night off you get about eight unless there is a fire call during the night

Uncle Sam's big battlewagons come to this yard for repairs and at the present time the British battleship, the Warspite, is in for repair I stayed at the Navy Yard for three months and was transferred to the Naval Radio Station at Bainbridge Island The Island is about ten miles by water from the yard The duty is much easier and I like it much better here We guard the radio station here on the island and some of the patrols are long and dark. I bump into deer on my post quite frequently and the first time this happened I was almost scared out of a year's growth!

By the way, the fishing around here is very good and we are allowed to fish off the dock when we wish The annual salmon derby was held yesterday

Well, I guess that I had better bring this long letter to an end and hope that I didn't tire you out reading it I am hoping for an answer, and I might say that I am always glad to hear from the home town folks because letters mean a lot in here so I want as many letters as I can get

Sincerely,

Pvt. Glenn V Lewis,

Diphtheria Smallpox Drive In County November 3 to 8

CHILDREN SHOULD BE PROTECTED AGAINST DISEASE.

Parents of Hancock County have shown great foresight in protecting their children against diphtheria during past years according to the county medical society but immunization of new "crops" of children as they come along must be continued or there is danger that the disease will return, the society warned today

Diphtheria, society official explained is a communicable disease which is not hazardous so long as the population is protected against it However they said, it can break out in epidemic form when preventitive efforts are relaxed for any length of time

Reminding that a diphtheria immunization - smallpox vaccination campaign will begin in this county November 3 and end November 8, the society told that diphtheria deaths in Iowa declined more than 90 per cent since 1923

Actual death totals show 239 deaths in 1923 compared with 15 in 1940 Credit for the decline can be given to state-wide use of diphtheria immunization.

Preventive treatments stimulate the child's body to produce nature's protective substance, called antitoxin, against the disease Protection develops slowly, requiring six weks to six months to complete but it last many years

HAMPTON MAN HELD BY HANCOCK OFFICERS

Clark Lumley Jailed After Shooting Accident Last Thursday

Clark Lumley of Hampton was being questioned at Garner Thursday by Hancock County officers in connection with the shooting of Glenn Erickson, also of Hampton, at Twin Lakes near Kanawha last Wednesday evening

Lumley was arrested by Sheriff L. M "Dutch" Brower after Erickson was shot through the left shoulder by a 20 guage shotgun on a hunting trip Lumley was alleged to be intoxicated at the time of his arrest and was placed in jail to sober up before questioning, according to Sheriff Brower.

Erickson was taken to Kanawha for first aid and from there to the Hampton hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

Also in the party was Victor Bryan of Hampton.

MAX BARZ GIVEN HONORABLE DISCHARGE FROM ARMY

Max E. Barz, former Klemme boy and son of Emil Barz of Waterloo, received an honorable discharge from the Army at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, on October 7, due to the development of a thma while on maneuvers which incapacitated him from serving as a soldier. Max joined the National Guard at Waterloo last spring.

After his discharge, Max took a Civil Service Test and is now working as student accountant and senior typist for the 32nd Division of the 4th Corps Area in the Subsistence Department and likes his work just fine.

WILL BUILD TOWER FOR CHURCH BELL

The trustees of the Methodist Church have authorized a committee to go ahead with plans for the building of a tower connected to the north side of the church, to be built of brick and which will house the old bell which has not been in use since the present church was built.

The old bell hung in the former German Methodist Church, which later became the First Methodist Church when the two Methodist Churches here were consolidated at the time Rev. Gauger was assigned to this charge.

MEYERS IMPROVE THEIR FARM NEAR MILLER

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Meyer, Klemme, who own a 160 acre farm located 1 mile west and 3-4 of a mile south of Miller, have made some fine improvements on the place this fall.

They have recently completed a new hog house and a brick silo. They expect to build a new machine shed later. The house was recently wired for electricity. The land is well drained and the entire farm is well improved.

Roy Waddingham, who farms the Clarence Neuberger place just south of town, will move onto the Meyers farm in the spring.

Recreation Building for Army Posts

Architect's drawing of hospital recreation building under construction at 65 army hospitals. The buildings will be furnished and operated by American Red Cross, which will provide motion pictures and other entertainments, and through its own staff carry on social service and recreation program. Each building will contain a theater, recreation room, small kitchen and guest-rooms for relatives summoned to bedsides of soldiers. Living and office quarters for Red Cross staff also will be included in the building.

WASHINGTON.—The hospital nurse smiled as she held the telegram before the eyes of the woman on the bed.

It said, "Red Cross and my commanding officer say o. k. for me to come, will arrive hospital twelve hours, Red Cross lending train fare keep your chin up Mom." It was signed "Pete."

The nurse tried to describe the effect of that telegram on the anxious mother.

"Sort of like a blood transfusion," she said.

Telegrams like Pete's are making people realize more and more these days just how much the Red Cross manages to do for Uncle Sam's army and navy. American mothers are learning that the Red Cross will give their sons in camp definite practical help in time of trouble. Back in 1905 congress named the Red Cross the official link between the men in the American armed forces and their families at home; since that day the Red Cross has been the trouble shooter or "worry buster" of every soldier.

If there is illness at home, the Red Cross, through its local chapters and its field directors in each camp, will keep the boy posted with up-to-the minute news It will verify home conditions and, as in the case of Pete, help him obtain emergency furlough, or perhaps a dependency discharge. It will keep him well supplied with reading matter, entertainment and comfort articles while he's sick in the hospital. It will help him find employment when he returns to civilian life and it will give assistance to his family when they are in trouble.

There is little that the Red Cross will not do for a serviceman. Recently a soldier was brought into a military hospital with both eyes totally and permanently blinded in an accident. A volunteer Red Cross worker there spent half a year teaching the boy to read braille.

Another army camp reports the case of a veteran's widow who was refused government compensation because officials lacked evidence of her husband's disability. During the next few months, a busy Red Cross field director wrote more than 200 letters on her behalf, finally unearthing the evidence which meant her livelihood.

Right now the Red Cross is busy constructing headquarters buildings for its staff at 62 army camps, and has undertaken to furnish and operate hospital recreation buildings in 65 army stations and general hospitals. Furnishings for the latter will include a theater and motion picture equipment, as well as offices and a lounge. Thanks to the Red Cross, American mothers can be perfectly sure that their convalescent sons will have plenty of medically approved entertainment while they are laid up.

Red Cross service to the armed forces covers a lot of ground. The army and navy recruit their nurses from the nursing reserve of the Red Cross. The present drive to collect 200,000 units of human blood plasma for the armed forces is another Red Cross assignment. And just to top things off, the women of this country, as volunteers in the ranks of the Red Cross, this year handed over to the United States army and navy over 28,000,000 surgical dressings, and are now starting upon a batch of 500,000 sweaters.

As one soldier put it, "Uncle Sam's our commanding officer, and he looks out for us the best he can. But the Red Cross—well, the Red Cross is Mrs. Sam."

Million Words Weekly

NEW YORK. — Daisy Bacon is just about the "readin'est woman" alive. She reads carefully and weighs with judgment more than 1,000,000 words every week. Miss Bacon is editor of three national magazines and studies each line that goes into them. She is the only woman in the world who is active editor-in-chief of such a trio and the one woman who edits an all-fiction weekly book. She publishes only about 800,000 words a month, but must read the astounding total to find what she wants to print. For relaxation she reads "a few books" each week.

Daisy Bacon

Thoroughly feminine, tall, slender, blonde, her hobbies are perfect clothes and cats. Her costumes are of her own design and have resulted in her being called one of the best dressed women in the country. Her love for cats is exemplified by pets at her apartment at 40 Fifth avenue, New York, and by a parade of about 200 modeled figures of felines across the top of her editorial desk.

A descendant of Gov. William Bradford of Plymouth Colony, and the family of Sir Francis Bacon, she loves the West and usually spends her vacation there. One of her great-uncles, John Holbrook, was one of the noted sheriffs at Fort Dodge, Iowa, in early days, helping to bring about peace in a turbulent area. An earlier ancestor was Deacon John Holbrook of Vermont, one of the first American publishers. Miss Bacon has an uncanny faculty of quickly choosing stories and articles favored by her readers.

Hoosier Couplets Ready Now for Braille Readers

Ortmeyer Humorous Verses Free to Blind People Anywhere in U. S. A.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Arthur H. Ortmeyer, well-known writer of couplets, who conducts a column in the Indianapolis News called "Hoosier Homespun," has widened his field of homespun philosophy and humor into braille. The couplets, some of which appear below, are now being distributed by the Indiana state library. The post office gives free postage, as it does with all braille publication in the U. S. Any sightless braille reader in the country may borrow for reading, the book "Life Lines" postage free, on application.

Alabama and Mississippi state libraries have asked for rights in publishing the book and the Library of Congress will begin issuing Ortmeyer's couplets soon. A few selections from the couplets follow:

Churning waters sing a paean
Even in a wash machine.

No double feature yet quite vies
With that of sunset and sunrise.

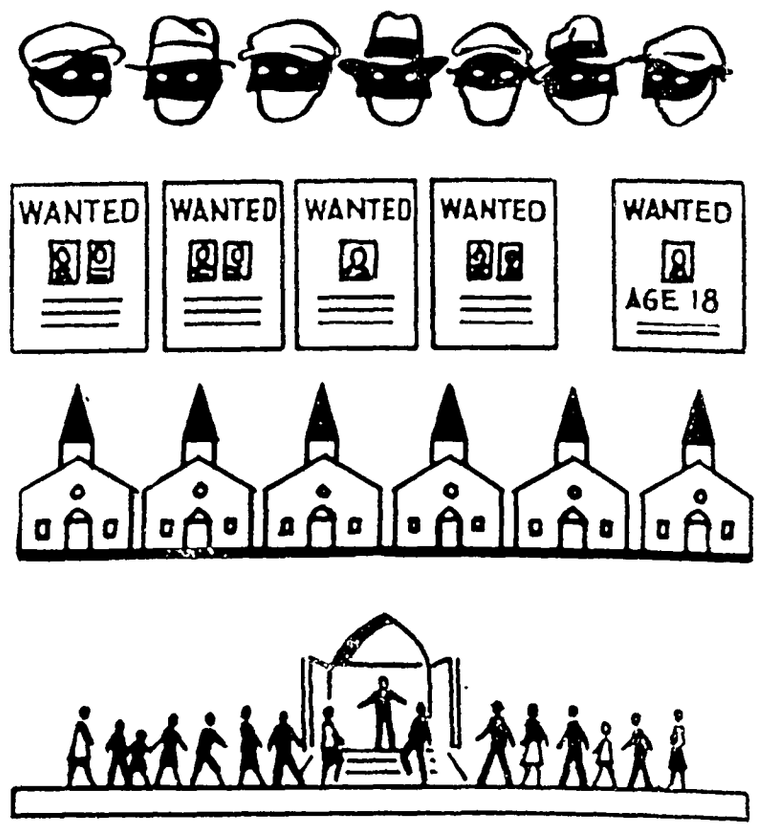
Wright Cadet

From all appearance Cadet Richard M. Wright, of Richmond, Ind., is about to board an airplane at the very site where his famous cousins, Wilbur and Orville Wright, once conducted a flying school. This photo, taken at Maxwell Field, Ala., in the Southeast air corps training center, where Cadet Wright is now enrolled in the Pilot Replacement wing, might be called "Wishful Thinking." Keen to start flying like 700 other cadets in his class, Wright will not be allowed to enter an airplane until he has completed an initial five-week training course, which will condition him to enter flying school.

Rural Folks Go to Church



The rural sections of the country are better promoters of Sunday School attendance than those in cities, according to a recent survey by the International Council of Religious Education. The chart above pictures the situation today, in accordance with figures released by the council. (1) 14,500,000 crimes in 1940. (2) 1 crime in 5 by boy or girl. (3) 185,000 U. S. Sunday schools. (4) Criminologists say church training prevents crimes.

CHICAGO. — Rural Americans have proven to be better Sunday school promoters than their city brothers, a survey made public here by the International Council of Religious Education discloses.

The first nation-wide survey of Sunday school distribution and attendance showed that 72 per cent of all church schools in the United States are found in rural areas of less than 2,500 population.

In attendance, however, the urbanites have an advantage. Sunday schools located in cities have an average enrollment of 210 compared to the rural church schools' 65. A nation-wide average of 114 is maintained.

Thirty-six Protestant denominations, co-operating through the International Council, operate Sunday schools in the United States and now have a total of 160,430 schools. Total pupil enrollment for these schools was announced as 20,772,141.

Dr. Mary Leigh Palmer, associate director of leadership education, made public the statistical findings of the survey.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson & Robert S. Allen

Washington, D. C.

AN INSIDE STORY

Word trickling back to the diplomatic corps from Germany indicates that Hitler is beginning to realize that the United States means business, and that he made a tragic mistake in not accepting the advice of his more conservative diplomats who warned him of this in the first place.

In fact, the inside story, which now can be told, is one of the most tragic of the war. Possibly if it had not been for overweening personal jealousies the war might even have been prevented.

What happened was that when Hans Dieckhoff, German ambassador to Washington, returned to Berlin in 1938, he brought back a strong report that the United States would enter the war eventually if Germany became the aggressor. He was ready to warn that Germany faced a repetition of 1917-18. But Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop would not let him see Hitler.

Ribbentrop, probably the most ambitious man around der Fuehrer and a great friend of Himmler, wanted to be the funnel for all advice going to Hitler. Also he was feeding him his own kind of aggressive advice, not the cooling caution of Ambassador Dieckhoff.

In the same cautious school with the ambassador were Baron Von Neurath, recently ousted as governor of Czechoslovakia because of his moderate views; Hjalmar Schacht, governor of the Reichsbank, now in virtual retirement; and Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, Hitler's former commander and more recently consul general at San Francisco. Even Field Marshal Goering was much more moderate than Von Ribbentrop.

Czech Putsch Delayed.

It was Captain Wiedemann, who, around May, 1938, chiefly persuaded Hitler not to invade Czechoslovakia. He was then Hitler's military aide and attended a meeting of der Fuehrer's inner advisers at which general staff advised caution. Finally Hitler, exasperated, threw up his arms and ordered them all out of the room. But Wiedemann stayed behind, and finally persuaded his chief to delay the march into Cezchoslovakia at least until the fall of 1938—which was done.

Later, it was Wiedemann and his moderates who persuaded Hitler to receive Chamberlain and Daladier at Munich. But by this time it was too late for Ambassador Dieckhoff to tell his story.

Ribbentrop never forgave Wiedemann for this. Also his vaunting ambition would permit no rival close to Hitler So, shortly thereafter, he got Wiedemann transferred to a distant and relatively unimportant German consulate in the U.S.A. Later when Wiedemann was deported from this country, it is significant that Ribbentrop once again transferred him as far as possible from Berlin—this time to Tientsin, China.

The foreign minister of Germany wants no moderates around.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN

Don't be surprised if a U. S. warship disembarks a load of Nazi sailors and turns them over to the justice department to be tried on charges of "piracy."

It is even possible that in the "haul" may be an armed Nazi raider or two that had been operating down Brazil way.

Anything may happen these eventful days since the President enunciated U. S. determination to maintain freedom of the seas, and branded Nazi submarines and surface raiders in American waters as "pirates." Armed Nazi ships are prowling American waters and the U. S. navy has its orders.

It can be revealed that neither the justice nor war department would be surprised if they had some "pirate" seamen and "pirate" craft to deal with soon. Both have been quietly studying for a week the law and precedents concerning such an eventuality.

The war department enters the picture because under the law all war prisoners landed on U. S. soil come under custody of the army. However, the U. S. is not at war, so there is doubt over the army's jurisdiction.

No final decision has been reached, but the consensus of the legal experts is that any such "pirates" should be turned over to the justice department.

One suggested procedure is that the Nazis be landed at a U. S. port and then jailed by the justice department as aliens without passports. But most of the legal authorities contend that the Nazis should be dealt with squarely as buccaneers.

EGG SHORTAGE IS THREATENED

More Laying Hens Needed To Meet Demand.

By LESLIE M. BLACK

(Extension Poultryman, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Keep your pullets and turn them into laying hens instead of putting them on the market thereby providing more eggs for Uncle Sam's food-for-defense program and aiding your own income.

There's no definite egg shortage now but there may be in the future unless egg production is increased. People are eating more eggs at home, the army needs lots of eggs, and large quantities are scheduled for shipment overseas. The government recently asked poultry producers to increase egg production 10,000,000 cases during a 15-month period ending next summer; and they have responded, but later figures indicate the increase will fall short of that figure.

We know that we can produce all the eggs needed in the food-for-defense program. It's just a matter of having plenty of laying hens and taking care of them properly.

Eggs are one of the best foods, and no one should eliminate them from one's diet because of shortage. On the average, each person in the United States uses 26 dozen eggs a year. This average should be maintained along with supplies for the army and Britain.

A recent United States department of agriculture report shows that about 19 per cent more chicks have been hatched since January 1 than a year ago, but the increase in numbers of young chicks on farms on June 1 was disappointing. This would indicate that many pullets are being sold as meat along with cockerels for the broiler market.

The egg-feed price ratio is attractive to the poultry producer now, and the government has announced that a favorable ratio will be maintained. It looks like this was the year to fill all available poultry houses with well-matured laying pullets.

A special effort should be made to withhold all well-developed pullets from slaughter. The market for poultry meat can be fully supplied from the cockerels out of this year's hatch because prices will be better if the broiler market is not overloaded.

To Prevent Fuel Waste Adjust Oil Burner Now

Owners of household oil burners can avoid unnecessary expense and conserve fuel this winter by having burner flames properly adjusted with a flue gas analyzer.

With his flue gas analyzer, a service man can adjust a flame for the most efficient use of fuel. Homeowners, however, are warned against trying to adjust the flames of their oil burners themselves. Oil companies and furnace representatives can supply trained men for the job.

The majority of the country's 2,000,000 house-heating oil burners are east of the Alleghenies, according to the U. S. department of agriculture. Use of a flue gas analyzer can help materially in conserving oil, which is particularly important in the region faced with a shortage.

Experiment in Use Of Dried Vegetables

BERKELEY. — Dried vegetables will soon be a part of every army cook's larder, if experiments carried out by the fruit products division of the University of California college of agriculture are any indication.

The division began investigating methods of dehydrating vegetables for army use more than a year ago at the suggestion of the quartermaster corps. Dr. W. V. Cruess, head of the division, reported today that the methods developed have been very successful in drying the vegetables and still retaining their color, flavor, and cooking quality.

The secret of success, said Dr. Cruess, was found to lie in thoroughly scalding the raw vegetables in steam to precook them and destroy enzymes responsible for undesirable changes in flavor, color, odor and texture. Very thorough drying was found to be essential to preparing vegetables that will keep well.

Farm Hill Land

One of the big advantages of farming hill land on the contour is the amount of water that is saved for soaking into the ground. During an eight-year period at a government soil erosion station in southwestern Iowa, an area listed on the contour lost only 2.7 inches of water a year, while a similar slope area farmed up and down hill lost 19 inches of rainfall. In a drouth year, especially, such differences are very significant.

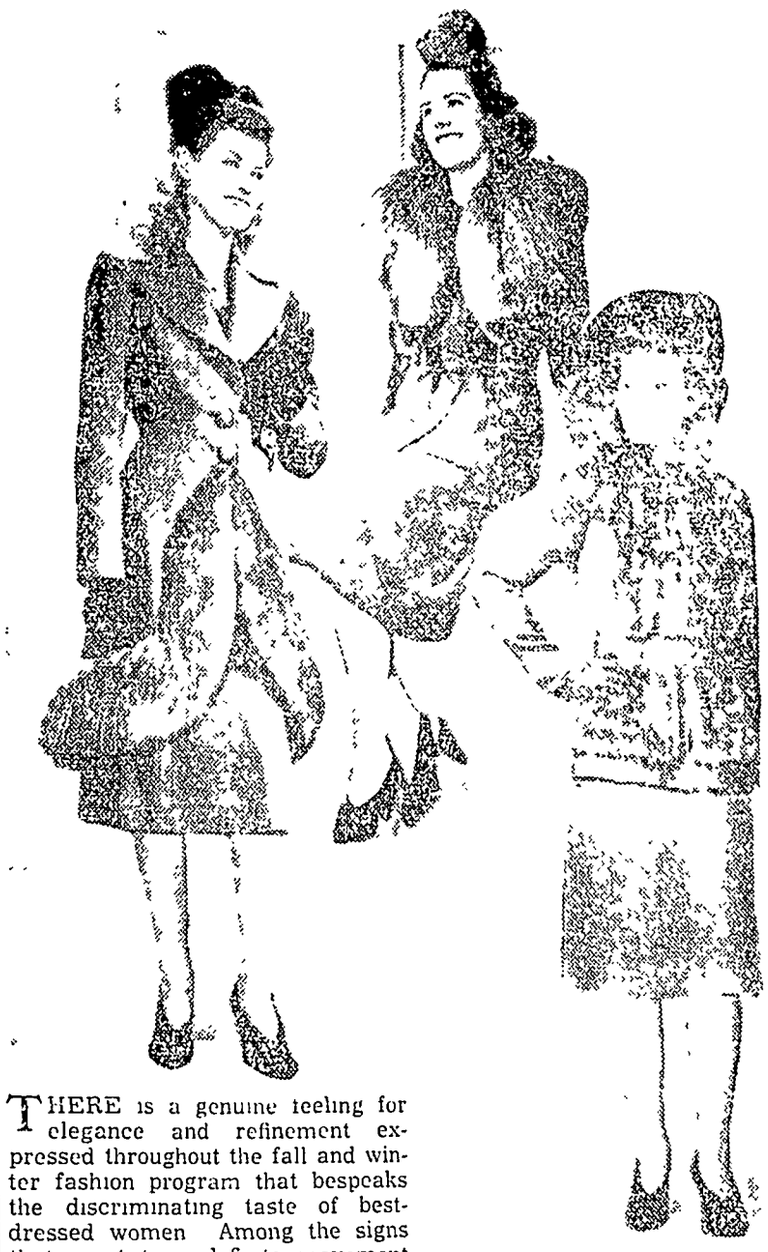
Elegance and Refinement Are Apparent in Furred Costumes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



THERE is a genuine feeling for elegance and refinement expressed throughout the fall and winter fashion program that bespeaks the discriminating taste of best-dressed women Among the signs that point to a definite movement toward distinctive apparel that carries a message of "tone" and quality is the emphasis placed on luxury fabrics this season, on sumptuous furs, important-looking jewels and accessory accents that impart thoroughbred touches to the costume.

Then, too, the revival of dress-up clothes for "after five" is noted this season. The street-length dinner dress is an important fashion which in turn brings back into the picture formal little early Victorian dinner hats to wear with them. The new long gloves add dignity and luxury

That there is a definite importance attached to richly fur-trimmed costumes was a fact emphasized when the Style Creators of Chicago presented a showing of representative fall and winter modes recently, three of which appear in the accompanying illustration These luxurious costume suits of wool have dresses that are jewel-studded at the top and have fur-trimmed jackets for added elegance.

Smart and distinctive is the fitted three-quarter length cutaway bordered in fox shown to the left in the picture Its matching dress has below-elbow sleeves, a tucked neckline and a huge clip of silver, turquoise and aquamarine. A cleverly styled pompadour hat of felt adds a convincing style touch.

Amethyst-colored wool is the fabric selection for the suit in the center of the group. Its hip-length jacket is distinguished by a flattering collar of blue-dyed fox. The high draped turban is in two shades of amethyst.

The fitted and bloused jacket of the soft brown wool suit shown to the right has a front of sable-dyed squirrel An autumn brown felt hat with wide brim softly shirred and chou of green velvet tops this handsome outfit

A record-breaking season that will dramatize furs to the limit is in promise Designers are using fur so intriguingly that only seeing is believing. Their efforts run in two distinct avenues of thought. One approach leads to the lavish use of fur as a trimming, as demonstrated in the accompanying illustration The newest coats are enriched with tuxedo panels of fur, dresses have tunics heavily bordered with fur, and there are attractive appliques of flat fur.

On the other hand, designers are playing up high drama in separate fur pieces Muffs were never so huge and, as if to stress this fact, hats in matching fur are often so tiny they look like topknots perched on pompadours or thrust at a dangerous angle over the forehead. However, milliners are seeing to it that there are fitted snoods at the back or other contrivances that insure firm anchorage to the head. Nor are all fur hats tiny, for one of the smartest hat fashions this season is the wide brim that is fur-faced

All sorts of fur neckpieces are made of fur, the latest bit of fashion gossip centering about the new stole effects Some of them are like capelet scarfs Other fur fantasies include fur-cuffed gloves, huge bows of fur to wear at the throat, shoe ornaments, bracelets with dangles of fur, corsages of fur flowers, and fur motifs to applique

Jewels on Wool

A button craze is on Designers are working overtime devising ways to "show off" buttons. Fashion even has a surprise for your tailored wool suit—jeweled buttons! It's this kind of ingenuity that keeps things interesting. From the American couture series by "la Mode," come the buttons of vari-colored jewels that march in double rank and file up and down the jacket of this smart suit, climaxed by a matching spray lapel pin. You will find these jewelry-and-button ensembles equally fascinating on tailored and dressmaker suits.

So brighten up that dark sheer wool, or make that gaudy plaid even more enchanting with buttons, buttons and more buttons!

All That Glitters Is Right in Style

Everything in the way of hats, dresses, suits and accessories glitters this season You do not have to stop and wonder if this glittering touch or that will be in good taste It is good taste, according to fashion's decree. The embroideries massed on evening fashions are masterpieces of needlework. The jet accents on day frocks, be they simple wool or regal velvet, are everywhere. Nailheads are no respecters of fabrics They glitter on suits and on elaborate dress gowns alike.

Black frocks are being illumined with flashes of gay beadwork and embroidery. And the latest is bright red, green or vivid blue sleeves, lavishly embroidered. Hats, too, come in for their share of glitter. Some are of fur encrusted with gay sequins.

Dressy Afternoon Suits Of Velvet or Rich Silk

The trend toward gentlewoman fashions is reflected in the new afternoon suits displayed in current costume collections You will still wear tweeds for morning and about town, but for afternoons you will be wanting a suit in black, brown or deep jewel-colored velvet. If you prefer, you can choose a suit of elegant moire silk. Most of the suits have jackets with flaring peplums

Match Them

Match your petunia-colored gloves with stockings in identical hue Give your simple black dress a dashing fillip with these accessories. Top it with a little jet dinner hat—that's fashion's way of doing it this season.

Star Dust STAGE SCREEN RADIO

WENDY BARRIE and George Sanders were sort of rocked back on their heels recently on the set of RKO's "A Date With the Falcon." They were introduced to Michele Morgan, the French actress who makes her screen debut here in "Joan of Paris," and promptly acknowledged the introduction in fluent French. Then they went on from there But Miss Morgan shut up like a clam, not even a "Oui, oui" did she utter.

Finally, when they'd about decided that their French was all wrong, she explained that she was trying so hard to be completely American that she wasn't even thinking in French!

John Boles is returning to the screen in Monogram's "Boy o' Mine." Remember John? He used to be one of the screen's most popular singing stars. He's been doing concert tours and sort of resting on his laurels, during his vacation from the screen.

mount as the third member of the co-starring triumvirate of "This Gun for Hire." The other two stars are Veronica Lake—and we're told that she'll change her hair-do—and Alan Ladd. Ladd is a young character actor, of whom not much has been heard as yet; he won the role with a remarkable screen test.

Movie-goers will get their first glimpse of the technique of the underground revolt against Hitler, now spreading through Europe, in the newest March of Time film, "Norway in Revolt"; it also includes scenes of combined Norwegian and British naval raids on the coast of Norway, which resulted in the destruction of valuable Nazi war supplies.

Bette Davis is "The Most Regular Star" on the Warner Bros. lot, according to a poll conducted by the studio's 72 police officers. The honor was awarded because of her thoughtfulness, cheerfulness and her being, in general, "a regular guy."

Those who have forgotten that Bob Hope started his theatrical career as one-half of the hoofing team of Hope and Byrnes are going to be surprised when they see his song-and-dance version of the Irving Berlin number, "You Can't Brush Me Off" in Paramount's "Louisiana Purchase" He does a dance routine with a colored kid band and quartet that should make Rochester look to his laurels.

Did you know that Mickey Mouse was 13 years old the other day? Walt Disney named him Mortimer Mouse, but Mrs. Disney suggested the change to Mickey. He made his debut in the cartoon comedy, "Steamboat Willie," and was an instant success.

Everyone who enjoyed those radio presentations of outstanding pictures is delighted now that the Playhouse is back on the air. Dramatized versions of successful pictures are heard Monday through Friday in quarter-hour episodes. The cast is headed by Virginia Field, and includes Donald Briggs, who has appeared in many of the Dr. Kildare and Andy Hardy pictures

Dear Ma.—

I am inclosing a clipping witch has gave me the biggest lift since I was drafted. It is from Camp Stewart down in Georgia and it says that a colonel named Ralph Tobin of the 207th Coast Artillery came out against potato pealing in the army. He said he didn't think a soldier should ever wash a dish neither as both take time that could be used in learning how to fight. Well this man Tobin is my choice for top general in the U S A. If this clipping gets read much he will be the hero of the army in no time.

This colonel says the German army used a separate organization of kitchen workers to peel potatus and wash dishes and, ma, that is the key to the way them Nazis fight I goss With a guaranty that they won't never never have to do no work as kitchen canaries no wonder there morale is so good. He gave a hint that the American army wood organize a trained division of kitchen help soon and I hope he is right. It wood improve the spirit of the whole army and me so much that you wood never no we was the same fellows.

I do not no if there is anything except talk behind this idea but I wish you would mention it in your prayers every night as I am sure the army wood be in better shape to win a war if it could get potatoes, dishes, cooking and general housework off its mind

I also wish ma that the army wood organize a division of street cleaners and bath room attendants two on account of that is no work for a soldier neither. It is awful hard for me to feel like a 100 per cent fighting man when I am walking up and down a camp spearing old papers and picking up general rubbish. And I certainly do not feel like no important cog in the arsenal of the democrats when I am in a scrub bucket brigade in the men's room.

* * *

They call this fatigue duty in the army and the man who first thought up this name for it had a great sense of word values. It fatigues me to even think of army housework. I do not get half so tired on an all day hike as I do just thinking of peeling another barrel of potatus or washing dishes

If I was not a private I wood write a letter to Colonel Tobin saying he is the first smart general the army ever had and that I was for him for President, Secretary of War and the hero of the next Sergeant York picture, but it might get me into trouble like most of my letters do. I wish you and pop wood write him and get all the neighbors to do it Believe me it has puzzled me how the Heinies could take all those Maggienot lines and forts so quick but the hole secret is out. They could concentrate on it instead of on potato peeling.

* * *

Well, this will half to be all for now now.

Lots of love,

Oscar.

P S—Could you find out the address of Myrtle Atwood for me.

GOOD-BY FOREVER

Vacation friendships warm the heart
So much that, when you come to part
With people you have known a day,
"Be sure to look us up," you say,
And they in turn insist that you
Look them up when you're passing through.
They wring your hand, and you wring theirs,
No other parting's pang compares.
So great your joy in having met them,
It's strange how soon you can forget them.

'ALL RIOT ALONG THE POTOMAC!'

Hi—There was a serious accident in Washington yesterday. Six busloads of eastbound co-ordinators collided with four buses full of westbound federal administrators. Six trucks carrying defense program allocators, priorities fixers, etc., following the eastbound buses then crashed into the wreckage. It is believed the defense program will be greatly speeded up, due to the crash.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY

"Worry is interest paid on trouble before it becomes due"

Dean Inge

"Ideals are like stars we never reach them but like the mariners on the sea we chart our course by them" Carl Schurz

AUTUMN

Autumn, in my opinion, is the best and most beautiful season of the year The fields woodlands, and river-valleys are all in beautiful color and the rustling of leaves is heard as you walk to and from school On many evenings the scent of smoke is brought to your nostrils from the neighbors burning the leaves which had covered their lawn They are all making preparations for 'Old Man Winter' who is just around the corner

FEDERAL ADMISSION TAX

Effective October 1 1941, all exemptions allowed under the Federal Admission Tax Law are to be eliminated It will be necessary therefore, for public high schools to collect the Federal Tax upon all admission charges The tax is one cent for each ten cents or fraction of the admission fee and must be added to the ticket as a separate item As for example, if the price of admission is 10c the ticket will indicate ten cents plus 1c, a total of 11c On a 25c ticket a 3c tax is added

COOPERATION

We would like to have your cooperation and will appreciate your efforts in not letting your children come back at noon until after 12 30 P M

During the noon hour in cold weather our building becomes crowded with boys and girls. Boys and girls who come in from the country eat their lunch here and then take part in the activities planned out for them during the rest of the noon hour There are enough boys and girls here at noon to tax the facilities we have to entertain them Boys and girls who live in town and rush back make the noon problem more acute Some pupils are back at school by 12 15 P M

• SPORTS FLASHES

Basketball practice started Monday with 31 boys reporting They are:

Duard Lewis, Delbert Bachman, Charles Bock, Garland Brinkman, Carroll Etchen, Verne Greiman

Elwyn Jacobs, Donold Schaeffer, Robert Kimball, Edward Barz, Ben Neiman, Louis Klotzbach, Larry Van Syoc, Bob Schultz, Laurice Lemke, Glenn Wille

together until light. Add egg yolks, beat well, then chocolate and blend well. Add flour alternately with milk and beat well each time. Beat until smooth, add vanilla, and fold in egg whites. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in a moderate (350 degrees) oven. Ice with:

Seven Minute Frosting.
2 egg whites
1¾ cups sugar
4 tablespoons water
1½ teaspoons vanilla
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar

Put egg whites, water, sugar, in top of double boiler and set over boiling water. Beat constantly for seven minutes with rotary beater then remove from fire. Add vanilla and cream of tartar and beat until of consistency to spread. Marshmallows (about 12 to 15) cut in pieces may be added.

Speaking of luscious cakes, there's another type of cake which will be just as much of a success either at your Halloween party or cake sale. As different from a chocolate cake as night from day, is this light, tender Silver Moon cake. Its velvety texture is no trick if you use a good shortening and cream it well:

Silver Moon Cake.
½ cup shortening
1¼ cups granulated sugar
2 cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon almond extract
⅔ cup milk
5 egg whites

Cream shortening and sugar until light, then add milk and sifted dry ingredients alternately, beating after each addition until smooth. Fold in stiffly beaten whites and flavoring last. Bake in three layers in a moderate (375 degrees) oven, 25 minutes. Frost with a butter frosting:

Uncooked Butter Icing.
¼ cup butter
2 cups powdered sugar
3 tablespoons hot milk
1 teaspoon lemon or almond flavoring

Cream butter and shortening, add milk and blend until smooth. Add flavoring. For variation, add 2½ squares semi-sweet chocolate melted before blending in milk. Flavor chocolate icing with vanilla.

A cake that wins a place in the Hall of Fame is this spice cake without which no cake sale is complete. But it isn't just an ordinary spice cake for it has the subtle flavor of bananas combined with the spices:

Spice Cake.
(Makes three 9-inch layers
½ cup butter
2 cups brown sugar
4 eggs
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon each, cinnamon, nutmeg
½ teaspoon each, allspice, cloves
2½ cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 bananas, mashed fine

Cream together the butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add beaten egg yolks and bananas and blend well. Sift together the dry ingredients twice. Add them alternately with the milk, beating smooth after each addition. Last, fold in egg whites. Bake in three layer pans, in a moderate (350 degrees) oven, for 35 to 40 minutes. Ice between layers with a double recipe of the Seven minute icing or Chocolate flavored uncooked icing. For a fruity spice cake, ⅓ cup raisins and ⅓ cup nuts may be added with the flour.

SIN AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

LESSON TEXT—Galatians 6:7, 8; I John 1:5, 6.

GOLDEN TEXT—If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.—I John 1:9.

Sin is an appalling reality, hideous and horrible in itself, and bearing with it the gravest consequences both in this life and in the life to come. Man does not find it pleasant to face that fact, and so he makes light of sin and even may go so far as to deny its existence. Obviously such an expedient does nothing to solve the difficulty or to meet the gnawing distress of a heart facing and fearing the judgment of God.

Far better to meet the reality of it, admit its awfulness, and seek God's way of full deliverance. Sin, which came into the world when man listened to Satan and disobeyed God in the Garden of Eden, has gone on to mar and to mark all mankind. We note that

I. Sin Brings Corruption (Gal. 6:7, 8).

Seedtime is followed by harvest. This is the law of nature, the law of God. The farmer who sowed wheat in the spring looked for wheat when the harvest time came. The same principle holds in the spiritual realm. Just as the one who sows to the Spirit reaps eternal life, the one who sows to the flesh reaps corruption, and death.

A life of self-indulgence (which is sowing to the flesh) brings moral decay. The weakened will yields to desire, and it "bringeth forth sin and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death" (James 1:14, 15). This death is spiritual, bringing separation from God, a loss of fellowship and communion with Him. Spiritual death as well as physical death came upon mankind through Adam's sin.

II. Sin Loves Darkness (I John 1:5-7).

There is not a bit of darkness in God. He is light. When Jesus came into the world, He came as the Light of the World. But "men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved" (John 3:17-21).

The corollary of that truth is that a man who says he has fellowship with God, but continues to walk in darkness, brands himself a liar (v. 6). Compare Revelation 21:27-28 for what God thinks of liars.

The light still shines, and the one who is walking in darkness has only to step over into the light (v. 7) where he will find fellowship with all God's people and know the cleansing of the blood of the Son of God.

III. Sin Is an Undeniable Fact (I John 1:8-10).

It seems impossible that a man who knows himself and knows the life he lives would ever deny sin, for it is one of the most evident of all facts. Yet men have denied it, or sought to explain it away, calling it error, or a "fall upward," or a step in man's development, or the evidence of man's self-consciousness and desire to learn.

There is no hope for a man as long as he assumes such an attitude, for he not only lies himself, but he makes God a liar. He denies the truth of God's Word about sin, makes meaningless or wicked God's dealings with sin, and reveals that God's Word is not in him. Those who make such statements declare that they do not belong to God and do not accept His Word. It is evident that they ought never to be permitted to teach such things in the church, or in the name of Christianity.

IV. Sin Calls for a Saviour (I John 2:1-6).

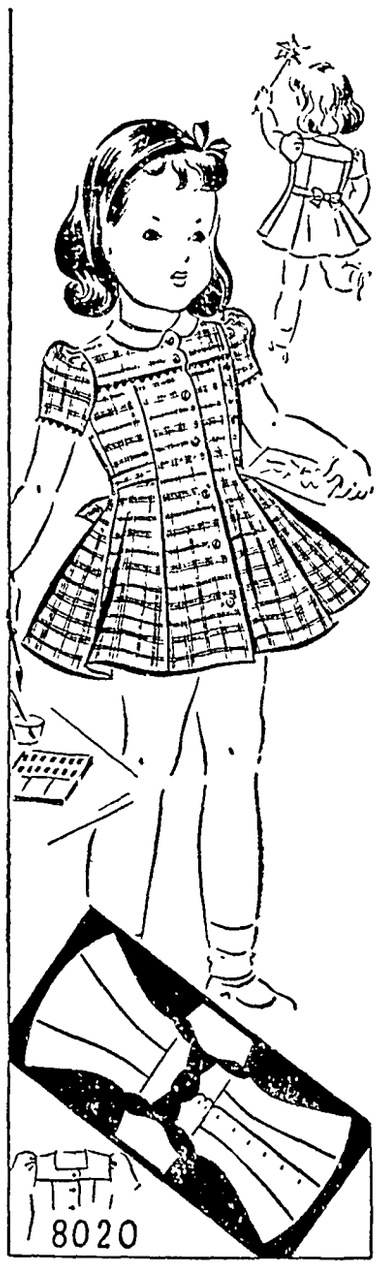
Christ the propitiation, the mercy-seat covering for our sins, is the only Saviour. He paid the price, and made it possible for God to be just and at the same time a justifier of the ungodly. The sinner needs such a Saviour.

Sin in the life of the believer also calls for a Saviour, one who will cleanse us (1:9) and who will in His own blessed name plead our cause "if we sin." He is our Advocate (2:1) pleading His righteousness in our behalf when we do fail.

This does not mean that we may then become indifferent or careless about sin. If we say we know Him and do not keep His commandments, we lie about our professed relationship to Him. The mark of a true child is a spirit of obedience.

God's children prove their love to Him by keeping His commandments. Talking about our devotion to Him, giving our service for Him, or sacrificing for His cause mean nothing if we do not obey Him. We only pile evidence upon evidence of our untruthfulness by making claims and doing things which are negated by our disobedience.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE



WE ARE never too young to appreciate a pretty frock. Here is one of youthful lines, with its yoke top set off with ric rac braid and turn down white collar—and side sashes to tie in back. There's no reason why your own little daughter shouldn't be a proud possessor of two or three frocks like this one. A glance at the diagram will show you how utterly simple it is to make. It can also have an open square neck, as sketched.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Buttonholes in sweaters should be sewn up before sweater is washed. Treated in this way buttonholes will not stretch.

* * *

Beat eggs only slightly when used in custards, puddings, sauces etc. Beat well when used to make food light, as in sponge cakes, puffy omelets, etc.

Brooms and sweeping brushes should be hung up when not in use. If left standing on the bristles, the bristles get bent and will not do their work.

Pour a cup of cold water over cooked cereal before leaving it for the night. This prevents a hard crust forming on cereal. Pour off water in the morning and reheat cereal.

Stuff centers of apricots, pears or peaches, with cubes of mint or currant jelly. Brush with melted butter and broil five minutes. Serve with meat, fish or fowl.

Save all your salt, flour and sugar sacks. Wash them well in plenty of hot soapy water and rinse them thoroughly. They're fine for storing fruits and vegetables in the refrigerator. Give them a good washing and sunning at least once a week.

As might be expected since Camel cigarettes are America's favorite, the induction into service of thousands of selectees and volunteers has only emphasized the service man's preference for Camels. Actual sales records from service stores show Camel is the favorite with men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. Prince Albert is another big favorite with men in camp or on ships. Since service men have indicated in all surveys to date that tobacco ranks first in the gift line-up with them, it is natural that local tobacco dealers are featuring cartons of Camels and pound tins of Prince Albert as ideal gifts for the men in the service from the folks back home.—Adv.

GIRL'S 4-H PROGRAM DRAWN UP FOR COMING YEAR

The Girls' 4-H committee, leaders and assistant leaders, and Miss Isobel Crowe, specialist from Iowa State College, met at Garner on October 22. A county-wide program built around clothing and citizenship was drawn up and approved. Prospects for several new clubs was evident and some of the new leaders attended the meeting. The girl will be doing much to aid in the national defense movement in the way of a more forceful health program, the Citizenship Program, aiding the Red Cross and their nutrition study.

Iowa's soil produces more wealth each year than all the gold mines of the world.

"A Dog And a Kid"

No one will give it and no one ever did
A happier pair than a dog and a kid.

For doubt can't be dim nor can worry befog
The gay zestful way of a kid and a dog.

Athrob with adventure, their hearts beat as one,
Their pulses resurge with the rythm of fun.

They swing into action as impulse may bid,
"Today is the day" for a dog and a kid.

Oh God, clear the pathway along which they jog
And smooth out the bumps for a kid and his dog.

And make of the world that they wander amid
A place truly fit for a dog and a kid.

Farmers Can Help Defense Program By Repairing Farm Equipment

GOVERNMENT ASKS FARMERS TO REPAIR MACHINERY THIS WINTER

By So Doing Will Aid Greatly In The Defense Program

"Rainy day" jobs in Hancock County can be utilized this fall and winter to help defend America by repairing farm machinery

All farmers in this county are being asked to do repair work now to avoid delays next year and to put their old equipment in good running order

We must check our needs and see that we get our repairs so we will be in shape next spring to furnish the food that will "write peace."

Specified steel products handled by warehouses, hardware stores, dealers and jobbers have been assigned a defense priority rating of A-9, and this should be of assistance to farmers in meeting their hardware needs

We cannot put too much trust in these priorities, however, as increasing difficulty in obtaining non-military supplies, labor and transportation can be anticipated as the tempo of defense production increases.

Therefore, if the food goals so vital to the success of the defense program are attained, farmers must be prepared to reach them in spite of these and other obstacles that may arise.

Metals, we know, will be scarce, and the allocation of phosphate fertilizer has begun Substitutes are being made for specific insecticides and fungicides. Terminal storage space is at a premium; increasing of farm storage is recommended and urged.

SON HONORED AT FAMILY GATHERING SUNDAY

A basket dinner was enjoyed at the C M Stokesbary home Sunday in honor of their son Lyle of Port Orchard, Washington, and also for his cousin, 1st Private Willard Perkins from Camp Forrest, Tenn

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs Geo Stokesbary and daughter, Linda Marie of Des Moines, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perkins, of Waterloo, Mr and Mrs A B. Peterson and daughter Hilda of Lake Mill, Mr Gordon Peterson of Emmetsburg, Mr and Mrs. Leslie Peterson and son Le Roy of Leland, Mr and Mrs. Alvin Graham and sons Wayne and Harold of Clear Lake, Mr and Mrs George Stokesbary and Mr and Mrs. Truman Glassel and son Billie of Garner; and Mr and Mrs. Donald Dean and son Donald Lee of Corwith.

Lyle is employed as a welder in the Navy Yards at Port Orchard.

HELLO, FOLKS!

Mr and Mrs. Glenn Bridges are the parents of a 9½ pound baby boy born to them at their home in Klemme on Thursday, October 30 Mr. and Mrs Bridges also have two girls in their family.

The life of a steel trap can be prolonged by coating it with paraffin. This practice helps remove human odor also.

All these factors are directly related to the "Food for Freedom" program, and the success of the entire agricultural defense effort depends upon how well every farmer makes the best of the facilities he has for increasing production during 1942.

GOVERNMENT NEEDS MORE IOWA HOGS NEXT YEAR

Hancock County Hog Men Laying Plans To Meet National Need

Iowa hog men will have to send 18,000,000 hogs to market next year in order to meet this state's share of Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard's request for 8,000,000 more hogs in 1942 than in 1941, according to E. L. Quaife, of Iowa State College animal husbandry department.

Quaife spoke at a meeting of Hancock County hog producers at Garner last Tuesday. This is one of a series being held in every county in the state.

This is about 2.000,000 more hogs than the estimated Iowa production for this year, Quaife said. Usually about two-thirds are produced in the spring and one-third in the fall, which would mean around 12,634,000 spring pigs and 5,366,000 fall pigs.

In order to push production up to this total good methods of feeding and management will be more necessary than ever before, he emphasized

Recommendations for feeding the fall pigs, selecting breeding stock for next year, and winter care of the brood sow were laid before the group.

County Agent Hamer calls attention to the printed information on hog production available at his office The Extension Service has just revised the leaflet, "Iowa Hog Producers and the National Defense Program," which gives in condensed form the latest information on late fall and winter feeding, care of the pregnant sow, feeding suckling pigs, grain and protein mixtures for economical feeding, and other topics.

Also available are Ext. Cir. 220 "Market Hog Production," Ext. Cir. 218, "Brood Sow and Litter, Feeding and Management" and the following mimeographs: "Give the Pigs a Chance," "Fight Mange and Save Money," "Swine Erysipelas," "Enteritis in Pigs," "Cause and Control of Abortion," "Moveable Hog House Plans."

All of these are free, and Hamer urges that every hog producer make sure to get any of them he needs

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs J. W. Johnson's forty-fourth wedding anniversary was Thursday, October 30th, and their son, Slyvan's birthday comes on November 7th, so Sunday was set as a date for celebrating both events. But it was kept as a surprise on Mr. and Mrs. Johnson who had gone to church and relatives were gathered at their home to invite them to dinner and enjoy a big feed along with a wedding cake and a birthday cake.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs L. R. Blunt of Charles City· Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Rooks of Meservey, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Johnson and family of Forest City.

SHOWER HELD FOR MRS. RUDY HOEFTE, OF BRITT

Mrs. Daisy Lemke is hostess at a shower at her home today Wednesday for Mrs. Rudy Hoefte, of Britt, recent bride and daughter of Mrs. Lemke.

Friends and neighbors were invited and the afternoon was spent playing games and stunts after which a delicious lunch was served.

Mrs. Hoefte received a variety of nice gifts from her friends.

Air Corps Tests New Food Ration On Desert Hike

DAYTON, OHIO.—A 100-mile hike across desert sands of New Mexico has just been completed by a 14-man experimental expedition from Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, army air corps test and research center, for the purpose of testing the efficacy of a new type emergency field ration produced by the Quartermasters subsistence laboratory at Chicago.

Trial of the ration resulted because air corps pilots are frequently confronted with the possibility of being forced down in areas away from civilization. More particularly is this the case in aerial patrol duties over the jungles of Panama, the frozen wildernesses of Alaska, and the desert country of our Southwest.

This new type ration which provides the user with 3,500 calories a day in three packages with an average weight of 12.5 ounces a meal, is designed for emergency use by air corps personnel who are unfortunate enough to be forced down at points where they must walk 100 miles or more to reach a settlement where aid may be obtained.

Biscuit Is Mainstay.

Mainstay of the experimental ration is a "pemmican" biscuit containing virtually all the essentials for a balanced diet, and said by scientists to be far superior to the original Indian "pemmican" made of buffalo meat and corn meal and to later "pemmicans" in flavor and dietetic value.

Each meal package also contains two graham crackers and—typical American touch—a stick of chewing gum.

Variety of diet is afforded by powdered soluble coffee with sugar, a supply of malted milk tablets, and a small tin of veal loaf, all on the breakfast menu.

In addition to the ever-present pemmican biscuit the luncheon package contains a ham loaf tin, bouillon paste in a tube, and a supply of dextrose tablets, and the supper package provides a pork-beef sausage, some pieces of chocolate fudge candy and tablets for making lemonade.

Possible 'Variety.'

"In actual practice," explains Maj. D. B. Dill, chief of the experimental expedition, "the pilot could vary his diet a little by eating his breakfast package at lunch, or his supper for breakfast, but our experimental group followed the diet religiously, without variation."

Flying out to Albuquerque, N. M., in an army transport plane, the party landed at the army base one evening and early the next morning began a hike across the desert.

Accompanying the "hoofers" on their field test was an army truck carrying laboratory equipment and an extra water supply. Each hiker carried a 25-pound pack, including two blankets, mess kit, and three days of emergency rations.

Walking steadily, over rough country, at altitudes ranging from 5,000 to 9,400 feet above sea level, the party recorded mileage ranging from 13 to 21 miles a day. Since the average pilot wears an ordinary oxford shoe, instead of a heavy marching shoe, the hikers wore oxfords and uniforms or pilots' and mechanics' coveralls.

Testing Methods Used.

For test purposes the party was divided into two groups, one of which subsisted on the regulation army type C field ration, which includes meat stew which must be heated in order to be palatable, biscuit and coffee. Another group began the hike on a diet of another type of "pemmican" with three eight-ounce cans providing a day's rations. This all-purpose food, alone, however, proved so unpalatable that it was abandoned.

In summing up results of the field trip, Major Dill pointed out that the subjects used were men of only average physical condition, many of them laboratory workers, rather than persons engaged in physically arduous daily occupations. While camp fires were used and water was heated for coffee and bouillon, as a matter of choice, both coffee and bouillon were palatable when made with cold water, so that the ration could be eaten without heating any of it. In this respect the ration has an advantage over the Type C ration which must be heated.

Squeeze Play With India as Prize

New importance military experts attach to Iran, formerly Persia, is shown on above map. In addition to having a little oil of its own, Iran is the gateway on one side to the oil fields of Iraq and the Russian Caucases and on the other side is the logical gateway for Germany to India. As the pressure is applied from the west, Japan, playing her part as Axis partner, puts on the squeeze on the other end with ever-increasing demands in Indo-China and Thailand, and with a drive through Burma not impossible. Caught in the middle is India—pride of Great Britain and logical prize to be coveted by her enemies.

Farmer's Problems in National Defense Studied by Land Use Planning Committees

WASHINGTON.—The department of agriculture has issued a summary of the recommendations made to the department by land use planning committees of the 48 states which have been studying agricultural problems in national defense

The recommendations of the state committees reflect the thought both of the thousands of farmer members of county planning committees and of field representatives of every department operating agency. The committees were requested by Secretary Claude R. Wickard to make the studies in order to assist him in shaping the course of the farm program during the defense and post-defense periods.

The state committee reports stress recommendations for the current defense effort, but also give thorough consideration to the problems of the post-war period and to long-range planning for agriculture.

To meet the special defense situations in agriculture, the state committees recommended: Integration of the agricultural economy with the total defense effort through such means as decentralization of defense industries, careful planning of military food requirements, increased federal aid for public services in areas of expanding defense population, and long-range planning of defense housing; development of priorities and price control policies in keeping with agricultural needs; and greater co-ordination of marketing and distribution of farm products.

Unified Program Recommended.

The state committees were virtually unanimous in recommending the development of a unified national educational program for health and nutrition. A hot-lunch program for all school children, expansion and extension of AAA payments for home food practices, and improved health and medical services in rural areas were some of the measures suggested.

Likewise stressed by nearly all state committees was the need for substantial enlargement of existing guidance and training programs for rural youth. Specific training for non-agricultural pursuits was widely recommended.

Other defense recommendations emphasized effective use of forest, soil, water, and range resources so as to minimize waste and assure sustained yield. Many of the state committees indicated that needed additional production should be obtained so far as possible by increasing production per animal or per acre of land cultivated rather than by developing new crop land. Expansion of old transportation facilities and development of new ones were urged to forestall the possibility of shipping bottlenecks. "Some form of price guarantee or support," with the guarantees or supports moving upward as the prices paid by farmers move upward, was recommended for both basic and non-basic crops. Expanded trade within the Western hemisphere was suggested by many committees as a means of fostering better Pan-American trade relations.

View Post-War Period.

Looking ahead to the post-war period, the state committees set forth three lines of activity which they believe will make easier the return to a peace-time economy: (1) a rural works program adequate to care for rural unemployment and underemployment; (2) curbs on possible uneconomic expansion of cropland and undue speculation in land values; and (3) shaping of present defense efforts in such a way as to promote desirable future changes or additions to the agricultural program. Recommended under item (3) were further emphasis on the family-sized farm and the absorption of excess farm population through expanded urban employment.

Defense Workers Avoid Wearing 'Flashy' Clothes

CHICAGO, ILL.—Although getting a big slice of Uncle Sam's billions, workers in defense industries, unlike those of World War No. 1, avoid flamboyant street apparel, nor do they go for $15 shirts. Restraint and good taste govern the choice of both dress-up and work clothes These facts were revealed in a check-up of firms handling men's furnishings in Chicago's Merchandise Mart.

Woman's 'Place' In a Democracy Is Forum Topic

COLUMBIA, MO.—Three of the most important factors in determining the integrity of any American home—finances, health, and character—will be examined from the standpoint of charting a more practical way in which our educational system can contribute to their improvement, in a three-day forum opening on the Stephens College campus here November 6

The forum on "the American woman and her responsibilities as a citizen in a democracy" will include afternoon sessions of open panel discussions and evening sessions addressed by authorities in the various fields. Attending the afternoon session as participants will be parents of the students, undergraduates, alumnae, housewives and representatives of numerous national organizations.

James Madison Wood, president of the college, who for nearly 30 years has pioneered in the field of "practical" education for women, explained that most of the elements entering into the success or failure of a family are covered by these three factors. It is his contention that a "refocusing" of the educational program for women, to equip them more adequately for solving the real-life problems.

Purpose Outlined.

Each of the three main topics embraces a number of subheadings which will receive attention in both the "roundtable" and the more formal discussions. He explained that problems under the head of finances, for example, include such things as budgeting, intelligent buying, care of property, investments, insurance and savings. Under health come all factors contributing to or detracting from personal efficiency. Character involves many factors, such as training in spiritual values, loyalty, patriotism, simple honesty, sportsmanship and willingness to shoulder responsibilities. Home atmosphere is the dominant influence here, Mr. Wood said, with parental example and proper guidance in choice of books, movies and radio being increasingly important.

"These things, to be sure, are not completely neglected in our present educational system," Mr. Wood said, "but so far as women are concerned formal education of today does not give the breadth or depth of training that each of the 65,000,000 women in America should have in terms of equipping her for her true responsibilities as a citizen.

Woman's Heritage.

"The 'general education' here discussed is the heritage of every woman. It should amount to a careful mastery of those facts and social experiences necessary to intelligent living—just as is now demanded by colleges and universities in the fields of scholarly and professional achievement. The latter deals with the specialist, the former deals with the layman. Our present interest is the layman, primarily the mother in the home, the only real teacher of children."

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Story Tellers: Clifton Fadiman will have you know that he's a book-reviewer, not a literary critic. He points out the big difference in "The Reviewing Business," in Harper's. "Literary criticism is an art," he says, "like the writing of tragedies or the making of love and, similarly, does not pay. Book reviewing is a device for earning a living" . . . Charles Poore also takes a box-office slant at the prose racket in The Times mag, in his definition of the Pulitzer Prize. The best way to disillusion your daughter who is stage-struck is to point out the chorus girls staggering into subway kiosks . . . No playboys or sables—just yawns and smelly subway stations, sister.

Washington, D. C.

FARMER PRICE VICTORY

Louis J. Taber, National Grange president, and other farm leaders didn't come away empty-handed from their conference with the President on price control.

While he would not agree to their proposal that wages be included in the price control bill drafted by Price Administrator Leon Henderson, Roosevelt did make one important concession. He said he would have no objection to a "parity averages formula" being put in the bill to limit the dumping of government-owned wheat and cotton when the prices of these commodities threaten to soar out of bounds.

Under this formula, to insure farmers an average parity price for the full crop year, restrictions would be placed on the amount of wheat and cotton that could be sold. Also, the dumping could not begin until prices reach certain above-parity levels, to be worked out by Henderson and the department of agriculture.

Taber and his colleagues had to do some fast talking to sell the President on this plan. At first he seemed in no mood to accept any changes in the bill and told his callers that if they had come to debate the question of controlling farm prices they were wasting their time.

"We have simply got to head off inflationary trends," the President declared grimly, "or face the worst depression the country has ever known after this emergency is over."

The farm leaders finally won him over to their plan with the assurance that they would not oppose Henderson's system of selective price controls, providing the parity gains won at this session were not lost.

Taber pointed out that though the prices of wheat and cotton are now only slightly below parity, and livestock above it, farmers get only 43 per cent of the consumer's dollar spent for farm products, as against 60 per cent in 1917, when defense production was geared to the peak it has reached today.

NEW LABOR HEADACHE

Strikes are still a serious problem, but the big labor headache currently harrying defense chiefs is the complex and mounting difficulty of employment dislocations.

Almost every day brings new reports of workers let out due to lack of materials, forced curtailment of production or other defense causes. Official estimates of such dismissals put the number at between one and two million.

And the end is not in sight. Some experts anticipate that in the auto industry alone 200,000 workers will lose their jobs.

Aware of the serious economic consequences of such dislocations, OPM heads are making strenuous efforts to overcome them. So far only partial answers have been found.

Originally, OPM tried to handle such dismissals by local absorption. This worked all right in towns with industries engaged in defense work. They could use the displaced hands and gladly took them on. But in communities where this condition did not exist, other solutions had to be found.

Various methods have been used. In some instances defense orders have been granted to reopen shutdown plants. In other cases, where conversion of a plant wasn't possible, an entire new defense plant has been erected in town. In still other instances, workers have been given "retraining" instruction and moved to places where labor was needed.

Defense chiefs count on Floyd Odlum's reorganized subcontracting division to take up most of the slack on defense dislocations.

Odlum originally estimated it would take two months to set up administrative machinery, but OPM chiefs are urging him to turn his attention to getting subcontracts now and rounding out his organization as he goes along.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The American Association for Economic Freedom has reprinted an address made more than 10 years ago by Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin of Cleveland on "A New Social Order" in which he advocated a union of the English-speaking countries to resist the totalitarian aggressors.

Heavyweight champ Joe Louis, soon to be drafted, is tackling what he describes as "the biggest fight of my career." He has sent a circular letter to every member of congress asking them for help to raise a fund for a movement to improve the economic condition of Negroes.

It isn't advertised, but the army now has a regular military air service across both the North and South Atlantic, operating on schedule, just as punctually as any commercial airway in the U.S.A.

Good news for the troops eaten by chiggers in the Louisiana maneuvers: Denton Crowl of Toledo had just discovered a chemical which will make them as scarce as American heavy bombers.

Jesse Jones is angling to get John Hertz, original king of the Yellow Taxis in Chicago, appointed to the Maritime commission.

FARMERS LOSING RICH TOP SO

Valuable Land Nutrients 'Going With the Wind.'

By LINDLEY G. COOK

(Extension Soil Conservationist, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Suppose someone drove into y farm and asked you to give hi tons of top soil from each of y best acres of land? You'd give a cool reception, wouldn't you? course, every farmer would, many good farmers are giving a their top soil at this rate or fa every year and not even worr about it.

Take the losses caused by severe storm in August, 1939, an example. The run-off plots the Marlboro Soil Conservation search station were all in toma and the vines were luxuri spreading over at least 50 to 75 cent of the ground. There had b no cultivation during the previ four weeks. There were four of plots, all of which received stantial treatments of commer fertilizer every year, in addition which one set of plots also go winter cover crop. A second received 20 tons of manure per a each year and the third set recei 20 tons of manure and a winter er crop annually.

In this particular August sto the plots having fertilizer a lost nearly one-half ton of soil to acre, the ones having had an ann winter cover crop lost less tha quarter of a ton to the acre, those which each year got man and cover crop lost only one-eig of a ton to the acre This was one storm only, and the loss fo season naturally ran into many t

Not only do storms carry a more valuable top soil than m farmers realize, but they also ca away a lot of valuable fertiliz elements. Carefully kept record losses of nitrogen, phosphorus, potash on these same tomato p during 1939 showed that the p which annually received comm cial fertilizer alone lost these th elements at the rate of $12.91 wo per acre, while the correspond losses on the plots which also ceived annual treatments of man and winter cover crop amounted only $0.81 per acre

These losses of valuable top and plant nutrients can be grea reduced by simple conserva measures. Your county agent the supervisors of your local c servation district will be able give you more detailed informat about ways and means of establi ing adequate conservation measu on your farm

New Fall Clothes Are Pretty But They Are Also Practical

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOU are enrolled at college, if you are a debutante, if you are a full-fledged socialite, or if you are a career girl, you will be going places this fall and winter, and that means pretty clothes and many of 'em.

The "trick" is to assemble a wardrobe of costumes that have the style-correctness and indefinable charm that will make you the reigning glamour girl in the smartly alert stadium group, at the college "prom," at afternoon tea or bridge. The illustration herewith is designed to offer suggestions for costumes that will do just that.

Wherever smart crowds parade into the stadium this fall you will find fragrant fresh flowers posed romantically on muffs and cuffs as well as on coat collars and revers, and on canes, if you please. Here's hoping your far-away soldier, or a doting parent at home will be wiring you one of the newest style corsages to wear to that football game.

If you are seeking ways to allot your clothes allowance wisely, we would suggest the purchase of a youthful-looking kidskin jacket such as that worn by the cheer-enthusiast seated to the left in the group. A flattering gray or beige fur like this will "go with everything," your sports frocks, your dresses for town wear and travel, or your new "date" dress.

It's simply perfect to wear to football games. As a background for a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums such as the girl pictured is wearing gray kidskin is the ideal answer. For an apropos ensemble, the streamers must carry out the college colors. Coach your florist beforehand to attach your college letter right in the heart of the flower as though it had grown there. The stunning hat that completes this costume is black with the new curtain drape that conceals the hair at the back in a soft line.

The hunter's green frock of sheer wool, with tailored lines and nipped-in waist, as shown above to the right, is a smart choice to wear to the game and the tea dance afterward. A corsage of roses is matched to the rose petaled crown of the saucy pillbox hat. It is the very latest fashion to wear your flowers at the belt line, after the manner pictured.

One of the necessary luxuries of a debutante or fair college girl is a simple classic gown fashioned of a delectable pastel woolen. The styling of the pastel frock above to the left in the group is particularly attractive. There is restrained fullness at the front of the skirt. The bodice is beautifully detailed, with the new and popular slenderizing midriff effect. Pompadour hat and long suede gloves complete this charming "date" dress. Evidently, according to this picture, "he" wired "her" one of the extremely popular patriotic corsages of red roses, blue cornflowers and white carnation petals.

The fall and winter social whirl makes it almost imperative that every girl who goes places own a black velvet "date" dress. Black velvet is equal to any occasion. Below, to the right, you see a glamour dress on a glamour girl. The square-cut neck is extremely flattering. A stunning bracelet, a jeweled brooch, the new long gloves, a towering turban draped of cerise velvet done in the milliner's happiest manner, and an exotic corsage of rubrum lilies dramatize this "portrait of a lady" to the 'nth degree.

New Fall Bags

Long and narrow, beautifully appointed with the "last word" in contrivances to make life easier by safeguarding your valuables, and taking care of your "hanky," your lipstick and other make-up essentials, the new bags are everything you want them to be in convenience as well as esthetic appearance. An oriental influence is reflected in the initials which take a distinctly Chinese slant on the bag shown at the top. Bracelet, earclips, and twin lapel bowknot pins matching metal add a cosmopolitan touch. The new black suede bag shown below has a pocket and smart tucked detail.

Wear a Collection Of Pins and Clips

If you wear your fancy jewelry clips and pins as fashion dictates you will look like a military heroine displaying a collection of honor medals. The latest is to wear, not merely a single clip or pin but a whole bevy of them. It works somewhat like the charm bracelet idea. You collect versatile clips and display them on your blouse or lapel. You can get twin clips, triplet, quadruplet and even quintuplet groups. This is especially so in regard to butterfly motifs. A flock of jeweled wings is often seen fluttering on the new costumes. Some of the clip sets have, say, three units which are held in leash with delicate link chains. Makes a stunning effect.

Enormous glittering flower sprays will be worn on fur coats this winter, or will be worn with the simple basic dark dress to take the place of trimming or other ornamentation. The return of long necklaces is also important jewelry news.

Luxurious Fabrics May Soon Be Harder to Buy

Fabrics used in the fall collections almost overawe one with their elegance. Some merchants say this is the grand climax before we settle down to utilitarian weaves, and that lavish silks will be less and less available. However, the present handsome silks are setting the pace for rayon weaves produced in our own country that will reproduce handsome failles, satins, brocades, and so on.

Stiff silk weaves such as failles, taffetas, tie silks, lustrous, firm satins, and rich velvets are linked this season to the new slim silhouettes and are also being made up in stunning costume and evening blouses.

ALL OUT FOR THE SPAGHETTI HEARING!

What is spaghetti, and if so how?

Is macaroni playing fair with the government?

Is the federal security program in any way being balked by the vermicelli situation?

* * *

These are questions which the government of the United States of America is now handling despite all the other serious matters we thought were taking up its time.

And what department do you think is considering the spaghetti, macaroni and vermicelli situation? You'd never guess. The Federal Security administration! Yes, sir, Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt has ordered a hearing on the whole subject.

Is victory over Hitler and Mussolini tied up in some way with the dollar Italian dinner? Is the ultimate triumph of democracy dependent on a standardized bowl of spaghetti? Are the Four Freedoms remotely linked with honesty in the macaroni, spaghetti and vermicelli trades?

Who can say? All we know is that Mr. McNutt had ordered a hearing by the Food and Drug board for defense reasons. Even the ravioli situation may be gone into.

It just goes to show you the thing the long arm of the government gets into these days. Not even a plate of minestrone soup can go its own unregulated, undisciplined, uncontrolled way.

And by the way who is the Federal Administrator in Charge of Noodles for the fiscal year?

And have you got the address of the U. S. Chop Suey administration and the first name of the government Grated Cheese Dishes coordinator?

But to get back to the Italian dinner crisis. We understand the macaroni hearing is to be for the purpose of going over the whole spaghetti, vermicelli and macaroni situation in America with the idea of making certain it does justice to modern government and that there is nothing about it that might at some time show that Washington had not been on the job.

* * *

The government is out to protect you from false spaghetti just as it protects you from a bad stock market investment. It would give you the same safety in the matter of buying 10 yards of spaghetti that it tries to give you in acquiring a few shares of common stocks.

* * *

Spaghetti should be cord shaped and measure between 0.06 and not more than 0.11 in diameter, the government holds. It has specified certain specific shapes, and contours for macaroni and vermicelli, with or without grated cheese.

* * *

And it is sticking to its policy of protecting you against everything, except a fly in your minestrone. It may yet get around to that. We hope the spaghetti hearing is a happy one and that somebody will provide red wine.

REPENTANCE AND FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15 11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Repent ye, and believe the gospel.—Mark 1.15.

Sin with its devastating consequences has its only remedy in the salvation which is in Christ Jesus. He died to set us free from the penalty, the power, and ultimately the very presence of sin. However, His death, which was for all mankind, is effective only for those who in repentance and faith accept His redeeming grace and turning from their sin.

I. Worldly Pleasure Brings Sorrow (vv. 11-16).

Selfishness is at the heart of sin, which is essentially self-will over against God's will. The younger son, who represents the sinner, wanted his own way. He suffered from

1. Restlessness Under Restraint (vv. 11, 12). The father loved his son and sought his welfare by proper parental control, but the boy wanted to be free to live as he pleased. God loves all men and seeks by loving and gracious restraint to lead them in ways of righteousness and peace. But they, while they want His blessings, are often eager to get away from His guiding hand.

2. A Request Resulting in Responsibility (vv. 12, 13). When the prodigal asked for his inheritance he took upon himself full responsibility for its use. The man who refuses to have Christ rule over his life assumes a grave and heavy burden which he is not able to bear.

It is an awful thing to rule God out of one's life, to attempt to steer a successful course through the stormy sea of life. Why do it? It will always result in loss and failure.

3. Riotous Living Leading to Reproach (vv. 13-16). In the "far country" he found for a time what we call "fun," but it led to bitter sorrow. To the flesh there are "pleasures of sin" (Heb. 11:25), but they are only "for a season"; that is, "very short lived—and they come high. 'The devil is not such a fool as to go fishing without bait.' The pleasures of sin are the devil's bait, and they always have a hook in them. If you bite at the devil's bait you will soon have the devil's hook in your gills and be in the bottom of the devil's boat" (John W. Bradbury).

The end of Satan's "fun" road was a pigpen in a far country. That may not always be literally true (although it happens often enough), but it is always true spiritually. Men and women are in a state of spiritual collapse and disgrace because they have rejected God's way. But there is a way out.

II. Godly Sorrow Brings Joy (vv. 17-24).

Paul tells us that "godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation" and thus differs from "the sorrow of the world" which "worketh death" (II Cor. 7:10). The prodigal found his way back to the father's house. First, there came to him

1. Remembrance and Realization (vv. 17-19). He began to think. If men and women could only be made to think we would have more repentance, but Satan tries to keep them too busy to think. He remembered what he had as a son in his father's household. What memories will your boy have in his hour of need? You are writing that record now.

He "came to himself." The man in sin is really unbalanced, subnormal, not himself, spiritually insane. When he "came to" he knew that he was in the way of the perishing. Then came

2. Repentance and Return (vv. 20, 21). To repent means to change your mind, to turn your life in an "about face" from sin to God. Repentance calls for more than thinking or talking or praying. One must act. The young man "arose and came to his father." That was his part, and then came the father's part—

3. Restoration and Rejoicing (vv. 22-24). The son expected to return as a hired servant, but his father restored him to full family fellowship. God is gracious, and the repentant sinner finds himself clad in the spotless robe of Christ's righteousness, wearing the ring of sonship, with shoes on his feet, so that he may go on the errands of his Father.

God's plan of salvation brings no half-way redemption. There are no stepsons or distant relatives in His family. It is a full salvation which brings glorious fellowship in life and service.

You who are still eating the husks of this world, who are in the far country tending swine, we invite you too to come to God and share in the rejoicing in the Father's house.

Life a Struggle

Life is a struggle, but not a warfare; it is a day's labor, but labor on God's earth, under the sun and stars with other laborers, where we may think and sing and rejoice as we work.—John Burroughs.

'Death Ray' Is Used For Killing Bacteria

Scientists are experimenting with a "death ray" so effective that it may come into wide use.

"Unlike most publicized "death rays," the newest one will spend its lethal force on germs, not mankind. Already a scientific fact, the ray may be responsible for a new "germless" air in air-conditioned auditoriums and public meeting places.

At the convention of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, held in Cleveland, Dr. Harvey C. Rentschler, research director for a large electrical company demonstrated his microbe death for the first time.

He explained the ray as a virtual "blitzkrieg" to microbes, a deadly explosive weapon that blasts its germ victims to pieces in one-thousandth of the time required to blink an eye.

In proof of his claims for the "death ray" Dr. Rentschler staged a laboratory "blitzkrieg" in the assembly hall. A highly magnified view of microscopic life in a drop of water was projected on a screen and the engineer-observers saw swarms of bacterial life cramming the projection.

Suddenly there was a sharp, staccato report, like a pistol shot. All life ceased. The bacteria had been literally blasted to pieces by the ultra-violet "shot," as it tore its way across a spark gap.

In the industrial use of the ray for air conditioning, Dr. Rentschler said, a wave length of ultra-violet most fatal to bacteria will be produced by the discharge of electricity through inert gas and mercury vapor between electrodes at opposite ends of a slender tube.

Modest Florida Plumber Likes Big Game Hunting

Modest and mild-mannered J. L. Graham, 60-year-old proprietor of a modest plumbing business in Clearwater, Fla., is a man of simple tastes—simple, that is, except for his favorite recreation.

When Graham goes on a vacation, he gathers up his collection of high-powered rifles and journeys into the depths of the African jungles to hunt big game.

Graham, a spare-framed, white-haired man whose erect carriage and clear eyes bespeak physical fitness unusual for his age, recently returned from a four-month expedition to Northern Rhodesia, locale of the Stanley and Livingstone saga

He bagged a rhinoceros, two lions, a tiger, a hippopotamus and about 35 smaller animals The unassuming plumber explains that besides his four African expeditions, he has stalked large game in Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico

One explanation of Graham's ability to indulge in the sport of tycoons and maharajahs is that the cost of his last expedition, for instance, was $1,100 compared with the $5,000 to $50,000 often spent by big game hunters

"In the first place, I traveled on a freighter instead of a luxury liner," he pointed out. "I didn't play shuffleboard and deck tennis, but it was a fine trip just the same

"Then when I started out on the actual hunting trip, I didn't hire a whole village of carriers as do some hunters. I hired only four native boys."

Graham has two explanations of how he affords it: 1 He invests his money wisely. 2. He has remained a bachelor.

Explorer's Idea of Antarctic

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, noted Arctic explorer, believes that the United States is wise to acquire territorial rights in the Antarctic. The vast "down under" continent, he says, may prove to be a valuable source of petroleum, radium and food and in the near future it may become valuable for long-range weather forecasting. "If the land in the Antarctic proves to have the worthlessness which now is ascribed to it, then it will be unique in the history of the world," the explorer said. "Nearly all newly discovered lands have been considered worthless" He said the value of the Antarctic could not be ascertained because no one could look into the future "Who would have known a hundred years ago that Canada some day would become an important source of radium?" Stefansson asked "Benjamin Franklin was a wise man, and he was smart enough to make a good-sized fortune. But he knew about petroleum in western Pennsylvania and, despite his wisdom, he could not conceive its commercial value."

Youthful Music Writer

George Garratt, 21, of Mount Lebanon, a suburb of Pittsburgh, has composed 20 unusual selections. He is studying piano, composition and conducting technique. Already played in public concerts in Texas, Detroit, and Chicago, two of Garratt's compositions are being considered for publication by the Composers Press in New York. "Many people ask me if I'm worried when my compositions are played in public without first being published," Garratt said recently "I'm not, because there is only a slight chance of classical pieces being stolen, there is a much greater chance with popular pieces." The youthful composer's works include "Symphonic Variations," a piano concerto, a suite for two pianos and several short selections.

WILL CONDUCT SECOND SERIES OF LESSONS

The Eyestrain Season Is Here Again

By this time we are well into the eyestrain season. All over America, families have been forced by cool weather and short days to retreat from the front porch into the comfort of the house. From now until Spring, nearly all evenings will be spent indoors reading, writing, studying and sewing. And unless those tasks are performed under good lighting, eyestrain and perhaps permanent injury to the eyes may result.

Check over your lighting and lay in an ample stock of lamps now. The new I.E.S. reading lamps, designed by scientists to protect eyesight, can be purchased at our store at amazingly low prices.

Don't risk eyestrain for yourself or your family another day. Stop in and see the new ways to better light for better sight. And remember, current to provide good light costs only a few cents a night.

When health is lost something is lost
When character is lost all is lost
Anon

Friendship is the flower of a moment and fruit of Time
Anon

ARMISTICE DAY

Armistice Day is observed by the Allied countries of the World War Some are on different days however

The ceremonies in the United States usually include a period of silence at eleven o'clock in the morning At this hour the war ended on November 11 1918 and the services are in remembrance of those killed

In May 1938 this day became a legal holiday by an Act of Congress

A program to commemorate Armistice Day has been arranged for Nov 11 The band will play patriotic music the school pupils will listen to a talk by President Roosevelt who will be on the air at 10 00 o'clock, songs by a group and taps will be blown at one minute to 11 00 when all pupils will stand at attention and face the east

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

This year as previously, careful preparation has been made for the observance of National Education Week with a significant program The dates for 1941 are Nov 9 to 15, and the theme is 'Education for a Strong America'

Two programs will be held in our school next week to commemorate Education Week On Wednesday an assembly program will be held in the morning and another on Friday morning, music and talks will be given at that time

TEACHERS CONVENTION AT DES MOINES

That's the round-up of vitamins Now, how about minerals"

You've probably heard that you need calcium to build good bones and teeth, but did you know that you need it to help your blood to clot when you have a wound and that you need it also to regulate your muscle contraction? No food keeps people from getting old indefinitely but if you've good calcium deposits, you'll at least postpone old age for awhile. Milk and green vegetables burst with calcium so use them every day. Don't forget the salads: carrots, cabbage, and celery aren't too expensive in winter and they're calcium-rich.

Phosphorus works together with calcium in building bones and nerves. Milk, cereals, meat, cheese, eggs, nuts—all these have a good phosphorus content.

Iron's a marvelous pep-you-upper. Not only does it guard against lagging energy but also digestive disturbances and general irritability.

Iron goes to work and makes red, red blood cells that are just about the hardest working cells you'll ever find. The red blood cell shuttles between your lungs and your 7,000-mile-long circulatory system dropping off the oxygen and carrying out the carbon dioxide.

You need lots of iron so don't miss a day on iron foods. That means you'll be eating plenty of liver, molasses, oatmeal, dried apricots, eggs, whole wheat, lean beef, cabbage, oysters and raisins from now on.

Iron by itself is apt to be a bit lazy. It needs copper to make it get to work, so be sure to have prunes often, whole-grain cereals, oatmeal, dried fruits, liver and oysters at some one of your three meals.

Iodine spells power. It is released to your system by the thyroid gland which is near the Adam's apple. Sluggishness, mental and physical, are the result of lack of iodine or thyroid deficiency.

Seafood contains iodine as well as garden vegetables. Salt has been iodized to help out general deficiency, and cranberries if raised in low-lying lands near the sea are a popular source of iodine.

Magnesium balances calcium, and as you're getting your milk you'll be getting magnesium, too Other sources are green leafy vegetables.

That's the line-up. You'll notice that many foods contain both or several kinds of essential minerals and vitamins. Of course that should make the job you have to do easier.

Liver and Vegetable Pie.
(Serves 6 to 8)

¼ pound salt pork
1¾ cups cooked pork liver, cut in pieces
1½ cups sliced onions
1 cup diced carrots
2½ cups boiling water
1½ teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca
Black pepper and salt
¼ teaspon celery salt
¼ teaspon Worcestershire sauce

Fry salt pork, add liver and brown slightly. Cook onions and carrots until tender in boiling salted water Drain, measure liquid and add water to make 2 cups Add vegetables and meat to liquid, then remaining ingredients and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly Turn into greased casserole

Cover casserole with the following: Mix 1 cup sifted flour with 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt Cut in 3 tablespoons shortening, add milk (about 6 tablespoons) and mix until soft dough is formed Pat to ¼-inch thickness, cut several slits on top. Fit over casserole Bake in a hot (450 degrees) oven, 20 minutes.

Beloved Singer Pleaded For Mercy, Not Justice

The beloved Madame Schumann-Heink was a woman of rare charm and geniality She was the first to make fun of her own shortcomings, and was often heard to comment good-humoredly on her decidedly matronly figure

On one occasion, a fashionable portrait painter asked her to sit for her portrait The plump opera star hesitated for a long while before making her decision

"Don't be afraid, Madame," said the artist teasingly "I'll do you justice"

"Ah," replied the prima donna, "it isn't justice I ask at your hands, it is mercy"

Walking Lighthouse

In a wonderful world there are many queer professions, but ranking high among the strange ones is that practiced by a Chinese coolie living in Chungking

At night he can be seen walking around the dark streets with a lighted candle measuring some eight inches stuck in the top of his skull In return for a small fee he will guide you to your destination.

When very young his parents, apparently, had cut the top of his skull, inserted a candle which they held in position by sealing-wax, and sent him out on to the street as a guide to travelers.

For many years now he has done this queer job, and must surely be the only human "lighthouse" in the world.

Hugo Had No Doubt

One evening a number of Victor Hugo devotees, dining at the poet's home, were trying to outdo each other in praising their host's genius. One of them thought the street in which Hugo lived should be named after him. Other streets were being suggested as more appropriate when an enthusiastic fellow declared that no one street was worthy of such distinction. The whole city should be named after the poet! Hugo merely nodded approval and said: "That will come, my friend, that will come!"

...rigin Of Fire Unknown

...origin of Tuesday morning's blaze is a mystery The electrical system was modern conduit type with all the wiring enclosed The heating plant was an automatic coal stoker type and had been turned down early in the evening Ronald Barz, an employee of the store, was in the building after 9 00 o'clock and did not detect any smoke Passersby on the street at near midnight did not see any sign of a blaze.

Both the new store, which was 48 x 88 feet in size and a warehouse 42 x 48 feet in size were destroyed Both buildings were very heavily stocked with merchandise and Mr Jacobs estimates the loss on buildings and merchandise will hit the $50 000 mark

Mr Jacobs stated that the loss in Tuesday morning's blaze was covered by insurance

Plans To Give Service

Mr Jacobs plans to build temporary headquarters so that he can continue to give his customers service in plumbing and heating jobs that have been contracted and will also continue to give Skelgas service to customers now using that service

New Store Will Be Built

Mr. Jacobs stated this morning that he plans to rebuild as soon as possible and that the new building will be entirely fire-proof Temporary headquarters will be established in a short time so that he can go on with his business

Five men, besides Mr Jacobs and his son, Elwyn, were employed in the store The others are Melvin Neuberger Levi Klotzbach Cecil Bridges, Ronald Barz and Henry Suckow

In Bisiness Here 22 Years

Mr Jacobs has been in business in Klemme for over 22 years On August 14th, 1919 he took possession of the hardware business which he purchased from John and Geo Gruetzmacher, the firm being then known as Gruetzmacher Bros

At that time the stock was small and invoiced around $5 000 Mr Jacobs steadily built up the business until he had one of the finest hardware stocks in North Iowa

Shamrocks Ready To Open Basket Ball Season Tuesday In Jamboree

SEVEN EAGLES WILL PUT ON THIRD ANNUAL EVENT AT KLEMME GYMNASIUM

The Klemme Shamrocks will start the curtain on the 194 -1942 basketball season next week at the Third Annual Jamboree Coach Patterson has been drilling a quad of 25 men in preparation for the Jamboree next Tuesday night

The team will probably be built around Bowman C bs Schultz, Beck and A Wille Seniors Bill Grosshuesch Kaduce Jacobs W Wille and Kuebach, Juniors

Sophomores and Freshmen are showing up very well in practice and may be called into the first squad

The five men to be chosen for the starting assignment will not be decided upon before game time

Barz and Stille were lost from last years squad through graduation and Zabilka moved with his parents to Sanborn Bird another member of last year's squad moved to Galt

A tough schedule confronts the Shamrocks this year and Coach Patterson is willing to promise some very good basketball games, but estimates only an average season as far a wins and losses are concerned

The Team will be rangy with quite a few of the boys measuring around the 6-foot mark and a few towering over that. They have had quite a bit of experience and should be capable of playing a good brand of basketball.

The type of offense and defense of the local team will depend upon the ability of the opponents

The schedule for the season is as follows

WEDDING CEREMONY AT THE REFORMED CHURCH SUNDAY

Reception And Lunch Held At The Community Hall For Couple

The Immanuel Reformed Church of Klemme was the scene of a very beautiful wedding ceremony Sunday afternoon, November 9 h, 1941 when Miss Doris Barz, the youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs Fred Barz of Ventura, became the bride of Mr Eugene Greiman, son of Mrs. Wm Huenemann, of Garner. The Rev Calvin Grosshuesch officiated, using the double ring ceremony in performing the marriage rites

The Bride wore a floor-length white satin dress, and carried a bouquet of baby chrysanthemums and red rose. She also wore a necklace of pearls, a gift from the Groom

The Bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Greiman, sister of the Groom, wore a floor-length dress of blue, and carried a bouquet of baby chrysanthemums

The Bridegroom wore a brown suit with a white carnation boutonnier, while the Best Man, Mr. Milvern Barz wore a dark suit with a white carnation boutonnier.

Darlene Barz, as flower girl, wore a floor-length dress of pink organdy and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums, and Harley Barz, the ring bearer, carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

A quartette, composed of Eugene Habercamp, Billy Grosshuesch, Allen Barz and Harold Swalve, sang "I Love You Truly," and "Oh! Promise Me"

Miss Esther Greiman presided at the piano and played the processional and recessional.

Raymond Barz, Wiley Weaver and Bernard Greimann were ushers.

A reception was held after the ceremony in the Klemme Legion-Community Hall immediately following the ceremony where a large number of relatives and friends enjoyed two-course lunch.

The happy couple left soon after the reception on a week's trip through the Ozark Mountains.

Mrs. Hueneman is a graduate of the Klemme High School, after which she attended the State Teachers College at Cedar Falls. She is a rural school teacher.

Mr Hueneman graduated from the Garner high school and since has followed the occupation of a farmer They are going to live on the Fred Barz farm northeast of Klemme, as Mr. and Mrs. Barz expect to retire

PHEASANTS MAY BE STORED IN KLEMME LOCKER PLANT

In cooperation with the Cold Storage Locker Association, the State Conservation Commission is inaugurating a new service to Iowa hunter locker holders

Application to hold game, which would include pheasants and ducks, longer than the 10 days after the close of the season are being sent to every locker plant operator in the state Cold storage locker operators are being furnished with posters to display explaining storage regulations on game birds and animals. They are also being furnished with special file cards on which to record game in storage.

This means that those who have lockers at our local Klemme Food Market plant, this year will be able to put their pheasants in storage.

KLEMME YOUNG MAN IN THE U. S. NAVY RESERVES

Merle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schaefer enlisted in the U. S Navy Reserves and for the past four or five weeks has been taking his seamanship training at the Great Lakes, Illinois Naval Station.

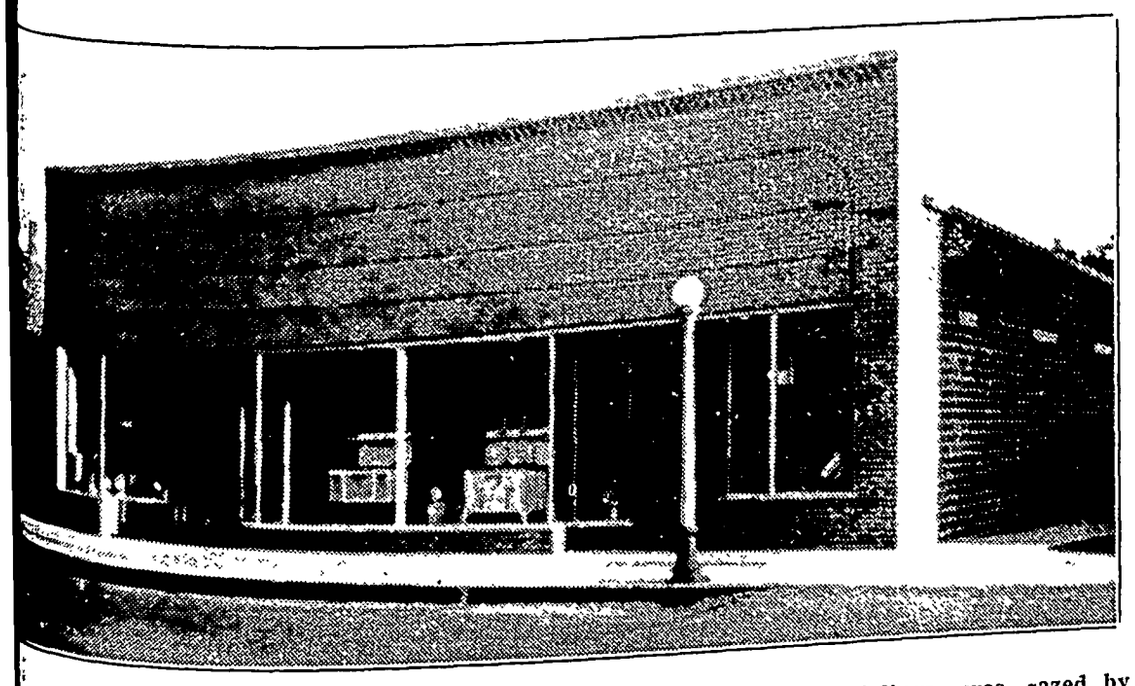
He expects to enter mechanical work after his training period.

Jacobs Hardware Store Razed By Fire



The E. F. Jacobs Hardware Store, one of Klemme's newest business buildings, was razed by fire early Tuesday morning, November 11th. The building was erected in 1937 and was opened to the public on Saturday, November 6, 1937. It was built to replace a former wooden building destroyed by fire on the night of Sunday, March 14, 1937. The same fire also razed the Stott Grocery Store and the Post Office in a frame building owned by John Day. The Klemme Food Market also suffered damage to stock by water and smoke in the fire of March 14, 1937.

Government 'Food for Freedom' Program Aims at Highest Level in Farm Production

By Ellington S. Winston
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

With 1941's bumper crops yielding the biggest financial harvest since the fabulous days of 1929, nearly 11 billion dollars have flowed into farmers' pocketbooks from this year's operations.

While statisticians are busy interpreting the 1941 results in terms of a billion dollar increase over last year's crop value 6,000,000 American farmers are already focusing their eyes on 1942.

Preparations have to be made much earlier than usual for next year, because 1942's plantings and harvests promise to be the most important in American history. Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard's new "Food for Freedom" program, gearing farm production to the highest level ever attempted, will usher in a revolutionary new era in agricultural economy.

Fitted into the strategy of defense preparations at home and the war abroad, farm production may be the element that determines victory or defeat. So American farmers are rolling up their sleeves to win the battle of food. They know that the nation that wins this battle will win the war and write the peace terms.

For weeks past 100,000 agents of the department of agriculture have been busy in every state, county and farm ascertaining the supply of food needed next year; determining what the carry-over will be; setting production goals. Each farm operator will know what is expected of him for 1942.

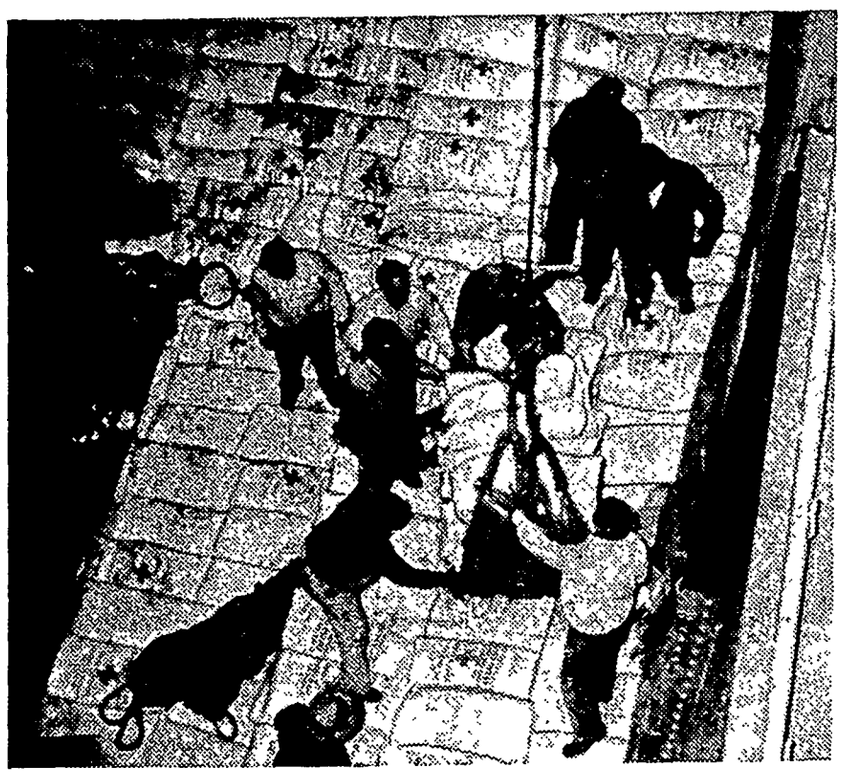
'Go Ahead and Produce.'

In effect, Uncle Sam is saying to each farmer:

"Go ahead and produce—for more production will pay!"

And Uncle Sam is backing up this suggestion by guaranteeing to maintain farm prices for the entire year of 1942 in line with the parity plan. The government will support the farm market with a fund of more than a billion dollars provided in the new lease-lend act.

But though next year's farm production is scheduled for a 15 per cent increase over the 1936-40 average, this does not mean the lid is off. Agriculture is not going to return to the old days of unrestrained planting Instead, the output of some farm commodities will be held in check, while the supply of others will be increased.



Many government officials and agricultural leaders are of the opinion that food is the item that shall dictate the terms of peace. Providing food for famine-threatened Europe in the post-war period thus would become the Number One job for the American farmer. Already some food has gone to some of the occupied territories and there is considerable agitation on the part of some individuals and groups to furnish even more. Taken early this year, the above picture shows flour being loaded for shipment to hungry France. But thus far only token shipments have been made.

CLAUDE WICKARD
Guides new farm program.

Program's Objectives.

What are the new program's objectives and how will they work?

Briefly, the plan proposes to

1—Break the shackles of regional one - crop agriculture by having farmers change their crop plans from wheat, cotton, and tobacco—already produced in over-abundance—to commodities the world needs more desperately such as dairy products, milk, eggs, butter, cheese, pork, lard, beef, lamb, fruits and vegetables.

2—Provide vast quantities of protein, vitamin foods for Britain and the other democracies to help turn the tide of war definitely against Hitler.

3—Maintain and improve living and nutrition standards for all Americans including those serving with the armed forces and those employed in the vital defense industries.

4—Build huge "stock piles" or reserves of food—pork, dried eggs, dried milk, etc.—which can be employed as a "Fifth Column" to undermine the Nazis during the war and provide food for famine-threatened Europe after peace comes.

Under the new production plan, goals have been set for all farm commodities. This means that there will continue to be quotas under the AAA program for wheat, cotton, corn, potatoes, tobacco and some less important crops.

Some of the Goals.

For example, farmers are being asked to:

Produce 125 billion pounds of milk in 1942, as against 116 billion, 809 million pounds in 1941.

Increase egg production to 4 billion dozen from 3 billion, 676 million dozen produced this year.

Slaughter 79,300,000 hogs in 1942, compared with 71 million head this year.

Boost beef and veal production from 25,100,000 head to 28 million head.

Raise 7½ billion chickens next year, compared with 6 billion, 280 million in 1941.

Increase lamb and mutton output to 22,900,000 head next year, compared with 22,400,000 head this year.

Indicative of the shift in emphasis on other farm commodities are the following:

The corn acreage goal is set for 87½ to 90 million acres. This compares with a 1941 acreage of 87,363,000, but is far under the 1936-40 average of 93,980,000 acres.

The 1942 wheat goal is set for 50 to 55 million acres or a reduction of 10 to 15 million acres compared with 1941.

The 1942 cotton goal is set for 22 to 24 million acres. The lower figure would be sharply less than the 1941 average of 23,519,000, and would represent an even more drastic cut from the 1936-40 average of 27,858,000 acres which was, in itself, a controlled and reduced total acreage.

Considering production schedules as a whole, it is evident that curtailments in the acreage of certain crops will be more than offset by increased acreages devoted to others. Moreover, the urgent emphasis on more milk and dairy products and on more beef, pork, lamb and poultry, means that the acreage devoted to feed crops will have to be adjusted upward. This means that more farm land will be under cultivation next year. It means that fields will have to be worked harder. It means that farmers will have to perform a better production job.

With labor becoming scarcer and scarcer, the demands on agriculture for increased production will have to be met with fewer farm workers. In all history there never has been a time when it was more important for our farmers to follow the most efficient methods of production and to utilize to the fullest extent every farm practice which will result in maximum production with minimum labor. In such a program, the importance of fertilizer is self-evident. The U. S. government is leading the way in its crusade for soil conservation and the abolition of wasteful soil-mining practices.

If America is to produce more food, we must help our soils do the job. That means putting back into the land more fertilizer elements to help produce that food. Every pound of beef or pork, every quart of milk, every bushel of potatoes, corn, wheat or oats, removes valuable plant food from the soil.

Fertility Must Be Watched.

Under normal conditions the total annual fertility loss to American farm lands is 16 million tons of nitrogen, 2½ million tons of phosphorus and 36 million tons of potash. With the expanded farm program for next year, this total will show a marked rise. The need for an ever-increasing program of soil conservation, according to the Middle West Soil Improvement committee, is indicated by the fact that fertilizers and manures are applied at a rate that restores only a portion of the total plant food loss.

Hope that soil conservation measures will be increasingly promoted is seen in the recent statement of Secretary Wickard that "While the 1942 goals call for the largest production in history, we are not going to have to plow up the hills and plains to get it."

Mistakes of the last war will not be repeated. Then America pulled 50 million of western grassland into wheat production. That led to the dustbowl, to overexpansion and disaster for thousands of farmers

Farmers have already shared generously in the present defense boom, and they seem likely to share even more extensively in the months to come. At the rate industrial and defense activity is moving, the American people may have an income totaling 100 billion dollars by next summer. Wage earners may spend nearly 18 billion for food alone This means that farmers will have the biggest buying power in history. It means that they will have more money to spend for fertilizer, for improvements, repairs and new equipment.

FBI and Police Work Out Training Plans For Meeting Needs of Civilian Defense

WASHINGTON. — Following conferences between Fiorello LaGuardia, director of civilian defense, and John Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, plans are now being completed for conducting courses of training for the police of the nation in order to assist them in knowing and performing their duties in the civilian defense program.

These "FBI Civilian Defense Courses for Police," conducted with the official approval of the director of civilian defense, are being held in various parts of the United States by instructors of the FBI who have been selected by Hoover for this purpose.

In preparation for this type of instruction, Director Hoover sent representatives of the FBI to England last year. For several months in 1940 and 1941, these representatives studied and observed the methods being employed in England during actual wartime conditions, and the benefits of these observations will be made available to the police of the nation through the FBI National Police academy and through the "FBI Civilian Defense Courses for Police."

The program of training, which has been prepared by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and approved by Mayor LaGuardia as director of civilian defense, will include various law enforcement duties in emergencies. Among such duties are the following:

Convoying troops.

Convoying military mechanized units.

Guard and patrol work.

Protecting restricted and vulnerable points and places.

Air raid precaution functions of police.

Enforcing blackout requirements and laws controlling noise.

Evacuation problems.

Around the police organization is built many of the civilian defense programs and the police are in the forefront during bombings and air raids, and are exposed to the maximum amount of danger and have a heavy responsibility in the protection of the public during these emergency conditions It is significant and proper, therefore, that training be given promptly to the police to enable them to best perform their duties during emergency conditions

Experience in Britain indicates the importance of a well-trained police force in an emergency.

All Income Groups Will Pay New Taxes

More than 5,000,000 persons who were outside the scope of the federal income tax in the last fiscal year will have to pay an income tax in 1942, according to the department of commerce. Even the lowest income groups, it is pointed out, will contribute a part of their income in indirect taxes of various kinds

Man About Town:

How British! Lord Louis Mountbatten, the ex-Captain of the Illustrious, will soon be making front page news again, but that's a naval secret. He was telling us about the sinking of the Hood by the Bismarck and the way the Bismarck was chased, trapped and destroyed.

Mountbatten suggested that the complete exciting sea saga be given to the newspapers—to cheer lovers of freedom.

"Heavens, no!" ejaculated the Admiral. "No more publicity. The incident has had too much of a press as it is!"

By Way of Report: Most papers missed this bit at the Bioff-Browne trial, where testimony about thousand dollar bills is being tossed about like confetti. Judge John C. Knox, who has a sensayuma, was questioning Nick Schenck of MGM, who was having trouble remembering his annual income.

"Well, just try to give it to us approximately, within $75,000," said Hizzoner, whose record is the best on the federal bench, whose decisions involve billions and whose salary is $10,000 a year.

Idiom's Delight: Seymour Berkson of Int'l News contributed this one to the book of anecdotes called "The Best I Know." An American Reporter was summoned to the office of the Moscow censor, who angrily objected to this dispatch: "The American Ambassador stood within a stone's throw of Stalin . . ."

"What do you mean by this outrageous insult?" thundered the censor. "You know perfectly well that he didn't throw a stone at Mr. Stalin!"

The reporter finally explained it was an American idiom.

"So?" said the dope. "In that case we change it anyway. Make it: 'The American Ambassador stood near Stalin. He threw NO stones!' "

CANAL DEFENSE PLAN UPSET

It isn't going to be announced, but Nazi propaganda in South America has upset U. S. plans for an important new base defending the Panama canal. Plans had been carefully laid for commercial development of an island off the coast of Ecuador, to be followed by naval installations. But genial Jesse Jones innocently let the cat out of the bag, and the Germans did the rest.

The island is known as Albermarle, in the Galapagos group, lying southwest of Panama, a perfect location for watching Japanese maneuvers near the Pacific entrance of the canal. To inspect it Roosevelt went fishing there three years ago, when the U. S. S. Houston took him on a Pacific cruise.

Roosevelt had heard about the Galapagos since childhood. His great-uncle, Capt. Amasa Delano, put in at the islands on his voyages to China. And his mother, as a young girl, stopped there on a voyage to China.

The President personally was responsible for the strategy of forming an American trading company to develop Albermarle. He knew the sensitive Latins, knew that a direct proposal for building a U. S. naval base would arouse the old enemies of "Yankee imperialism," and that the only safe way was to set up a company for the development of fishing and cattle, thus bring the navy in edgeways.

Accordingly, the Pacific Development company was formed, incorporated in Delaware, and financed with funds from the RFC. First it got a credit of $30,000, but later, when a credit of half a million was extended, RFCzar Jesse Jones innocently announced it to the press.

Jesse Jones' Joke.

Apparently the naval stratagem was such a dark secret that even Jesse, a member of the cabinet, didn't know about it. So he announced it as nothing but a commercial development, because the island was owned not by Ecuador but by a private individual. And then he added a little jest of his own.

"And if you can spell the man's name," said Jesse, "I'll give you the island. The name is pronounced 'heel.' "

Up spoke a correspondent who knows Spanish well. "You spell it G-i-l," he said.

"That's right," said Jones. "Go to the head of the class."

"No," said the newsman. "I want the island."

"I'll owe you the island," said Jones, and everybody laughed.

But there was no laughter in the navy department; for German propaganda, through short-wave radio and local newspapers, stirred up the old fear of Yankee aggression, intimating that a U. S. naval base off the west coast of South America would make little puppets of the Good Neighbors for all time.

The propaganda was successful, and the deal had to be cancelled. It may be that the Pacific Development company will still pursue its "livestock, fishing, and mining of sulphur," as provided in the concession, but President Roosevelt's dream of a Panama defense base is sunk.

MORE CRACKDOWNS

You can put it down as a certainty that there will be other OPM crackdowns, in addition to the one on the Chicago "juke-box" firm, for "bootlegging" scarce raw materials.

OPM Priorities Director Donald Nelson said nothing about it, but he has his gimlet eye fixed on a big steel plant, an auto manufacturer and others. Both have been secretly thumbing their noses at priority restrictions.

The auto maker was called on the carpet by Nelson and spent several uncomfortable hours trying to explain the unauthorized purchase of a large quantity of strategic materials and the action of a parts subsidiary selling such supplies.

When the auto executive left OPM he was red-faced and obviously worried.

The steel company is suspected of secretly filling orders for big customers in direct violation of defense requirements, particularly naval. An investigation is now under way. The company has a long history of battling the government and the fur will fly if the suspicions are substantiated.

Note: After Nelson's investigators finish with their aluminum inquiries, they will move into chemicals, where there have been numerous complaints of wholesale disregard of priority orders.

Camp Cavalcade

GLORIOWY figures in a cavalcade of American history—such as the names behind the names of the great cantonments scattered all the United States, where young Americans are learning to be soldiers in order to defend their country when the need arises.

Near Watsonville, Calif., is the army camp named for an army chaplain—Father Joseph P. McQuaide, who served as chaplain for the corps in the Philippines from 1899 to 1900, was drafted into the federal service August 5, 1917, went overseas and served there until December, 1918. Commissioned a major in 1922, he became regimental chaplain of the 250th field artillery, a position which he held when he died in Los Angeles, March 29, 1924.

Joseph P. McQuaide

Camp Barkeley, near Abilene, Texas, is named for private David Barkeley (1898-1918) of Company K, 358th infantry, Eighty-ninth division, who was awarded, posthumously, the Congressional Medal of Honor "for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity, above and beyond the call of duty, in action with the enemy near Pouilly, France, November 8, 1918." Barkeley responded to a call for volunteers to swim across the River Meuse to reconnoiter enemy positions, secured the desired information but was drowned on returning.

California also has a camp near San Miguel, named for a soldier who was awarded, posthumously, a Congressional Medal of Honor. He is Corp. Harold W. Roberts (1899-1918) of Company A, 344th battalion, tank corps, who, when the tank in which he was driving slid into a shell hole, 10 feet deep and filled with water, gave up his chance to escape, pushed his gunner through the back door of the tank and was himself drowned.

Camp Davis, at Holly Ridge, N. C., honors a North Carolinian, Maj. Gen. Richmond Pearson Davis (1870-1937), chief of artillery of the 5th army corps of the A.E.F. and winner of the D.S.M.

Camp Croft, near Spartanburg, S. C., is named for South Carolina's Maj. Gen. Edward Croft (1875-1938), who came out of the World war as a colonel with two decorations, the Silver Star and the Purple Heart, having through the grades to major-general and was made chief of infantry of the army in 1933.

Camp Williams, near Sparta, Wis., bears the name of a Pennsylvania-born journalist who, after working on newspapers in Missouri, became a foreign correspondent and gave up that career to become a first lieutenant in the 128th machine gun battalion of the A.E.F. He is Maj. Gen. John F. Williams, who became a colonel in the Missouri National Guard in 1923 and is now chief of the National Guard bureau of the war department in Washington.

John F. Williams

Camp Wolters, near Mineral Wells, Texas, recalls the services of Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters of Houston, who organized the Texas cavalry during the World war and afterward recruited a regiment of cavalry in New Mexico to complete the service. Later he was placed in command of the Fifty-sixth cavalry brigade of the Texas National Guard and he is said to be the only man ever awarded a service medal of the association, given by an act of the legislature of the Lone Star state.

Camp Blanding, near Starke, Fla., bears the name of Maj. Gen. Albert Blanding, born in Iowa in 1876, commander of the Thirty-first ("Dixie") division of the A.E.F. and since his retirement in 1940, chief of the National Guard bureau of the war department.

Camp Hulen near Palacios, Texas, honors Brig. Gen. John A. Hulen, who won the D.S.M. for services during the Meuse-Argonne offensive in October, 1918.

Camp Wallace, near Hitchcock, Texas, honors the memory of Col. John J. Wallace of South Dakota who was killed in France on November 7, 1918, at which time he was major (temporary colonel) in the field artillery corps.

Spirit of the American Soldiers

"There is a stoical determination to see the thing through. They have entered this war after reading of it for three years. They know its horrors. In this they are unlike the soldiers of any nation whom circumstances rushed into war, as into an unforeseen adventure. Our men know what war; they followed it in the press since its outbreak. They are going in, dogged and grim; theirs is a solid courage—which is the sublime."—Capt. E. L. Fox, in Forum magazine, January, 1918.

Fashion Advocates Lavish Use Of Fur in a Variety of Ways

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHION is most eloquently "saying it" with furs this season. According to the signs there is going to be a most grand and glorious display of furs this winter both as trimming and as coat or cape ensembles of sumptuous fur. Almost everything in the way of matching accessories that can be made of fur is being made of fur: hats, gloves, handbags, separate neckpieces, detachable plastron fronts, and lapel gadgets of bows and boutonnieres.

Milliners are giving of their best in creating fur hats matched to coats, to jackets, or to the trimming on one's gown and wrap.

The favor for browns has placed extra emphasis on the importance of mink. There's exciting fashion news in the sumptuous mink coat shown above to the right in the illustration. It is topped by a hat made glorious by a wide brim (huge fur hats will be worn this winter) of matching mink.

The young woman centered above in the picture is snappishly turned out in an ensemble of gray Chinese kidskin, the fingertip-length coat fashioned along very youthful lines.

The insistent call for sleek black by fashion sophisticates keeps Persian lamb and elegant broadtail in the limelight again this season. Royally luxurious is the broadtail ensemble shown in the upper left corner. Here a slim svelte princess coat demonstrates how up-to-the-minute is the styling given to furs this season. The hat is one of those new tall effects so definitely in style.

Its graceful flared train is Kelly green for added color.

Fur capes are definitely something to talk about, for they are in the very foreground of the current fashion picture. The gorgeous cape lower right, is of lustrous black Persian lamb. The new rule for a black wrap worn with a color-bright dress is faithfully observed. The pretty, softly styled frock is in the widely sponsored new gold tone.

For daytime wear nothing exceeds leopard in chic, unless it be American opossum, which is also playing a star role. You will be perfectly tuned to the grandstand picture if you attend the game in a coat of leopard at lower left. It is a fashionable, three-quarter length style with a stand-up collar and bracelet-length sleeves — all very youthful and destined for an eye-smashing entry into any smart gathering.

A most extraordinary development in fur styling this season is the working of glittering embroidery on the lapels and collars of fur coats. The new fur capes are sometimes embroidered with a hem line bordering for evening. Brown sequins worked on mink hats, jet motifs on either black or white furs or metal thread embroidery punctuated with glistening jewels give to furs an entirely different aspect. Many of the most staid and conservative coats are bursting into glory with gleaming jeweled buttons.

Grandma's Buttons Make Style News

Dig into grandma's button box, and you may find hidden treasures that will cause your winter gowns and coats to soar to heights of sartorial glory. Better still, trek around to the button counters and see what a splurge buttons are making in the fashion realm.

Two important trends register in the button field, one of which is the inclination toward bulkiness. Buttons are sometimes massive and knobby. Also, the new buttons tell a grand and glorious color study. You, with everyone else, are going to wear a great deal more color this year than you did last, and accordingly button originals are keeping pace with the color commotion.

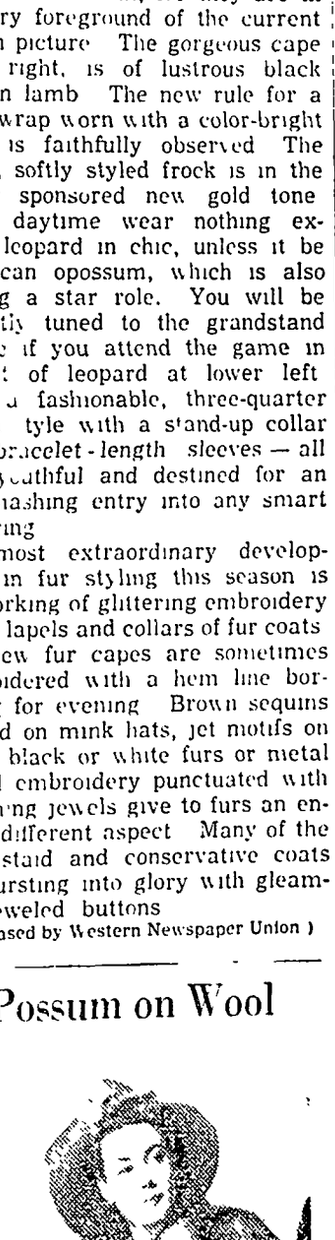
Plastic buttons are available in a full range of costume colors. A button that makes an interesting accent on frock or blouse is a molded plastic done in a flower design with nailhead detail. Fresh fashion interest is also developing in filigree buttons. A gold filigree button is proving especially attractive for dress-up blouses and party frocks. In fact, metal buttons rank high in favor, whatever the type.

Glitter is popular, and lovely rhinestone buttons flourish on woolens, velveteens, dressy crepes, and the newest fashion note is rhinestone or other jeweled buttons on fur coats and jackets.

Woolies Defy the Chill Breath of Jack Frost

Farmers can prognosticate and their signs are unfailing. It's "ditto" with fashion. Well, from all fashion indications, we will see wool mittens; long wool socks (sheer wool for daytime hose), heads done up in wool wimples; huge fur hats and muffs as extravagantly big. All will valiantly fulfill their mission of comfort and smart appearance when winter brings on its usual quota of days with a sharp tang.

Possum on Wool



American opossum is a flattering, young-looking fur when it trims swank town and country tweeds. It carries a message of style prestige wherever it goes, and this year fashion's spotlight is showing it up more conspicuously than ever. In the picture we see American opossum accentuating the straight silhouette of a hunter's green wool coat. Three bands of the fur around the bottom of the skirt, and a flattering ripple collar of this fur, add distinction to the pencil-slim coat. The ripple-brim fine felt hat is detailed with stitching.

Star Dust
STAGE—SCREEN—RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

JANE WYMAN and Regis Toomey have teamed to shatter all records for the screen's longest kiss — it lasted three minutes and five seconds, and you'll see it in Warner Bros.' "You're in the Army Now." The former record was held by Ann Sheridan and George Brent. Jane and Regis, seated on a hard piano bench, were told just to keep on kissing till told to stop, while Donald McBride, playing Jane's father (as well as an army colonel), discussed military problems. First thing they knew, they'd set a new record.

Old-timers may remember "Humoresque," which was filmed way back in 1920 with Alma Rubens, Vera Gordon and Gaston Glass. It's coming back to the screen, this time probably with John Garfield in the Gaston Glass role, that of a violinist whose career is cut short by military conscription.

—:—

Fred MacMurray was too young for the last war, so he didn't know what it feels like to crawl through barbed wire entanglements till just the other day. He had to plunge through chicken wire for a scene in "The Lady Is Willing," the new Columbia comedy he's making with Marlene Dietrich. The wire merely surrounded some rabbits, but when he got out he felt as if he'd been through several wars.

—:—

Margaret Hayes isn't wearing backless evening gowns just now; probably won't for some time. As the female spy in "The Lady Has Plans" she had to have the design of a radio-controlled torpedo drawn on her back. Theoretically, according to the script, the ink is removed with a chemical which makes the plans invisible till another chemical agent causes them to reappear. Margaret was told by the prop man that she needn't worry, but she has no faith in trick chemicals.

—:—

Of course you'll want to see "Mr. Bug Goes to Town," the feature-length cartoon on which Dave Fleisher and his staff of 700 animators and artists have been working for the past 10 months. Here's some inside information on it. Fleisher figures that an entire painting of a scene or character must be made for every one twenty-fourth of a second the feature is being projected on the screen. Breaking down his budget of $1,000,000 in terms of running time, that comes to $9 per frame, or picture. "Mr. Bug Goes to Town" is a drama of insect life.

Incidentally, Miss Dietrich would like to make it very clear that the jewelry she wears in that picture doesn't belong to her. The $500,000 worth of gems were shipped from New York, and half an hour after they were sent from a jewelry store to the studio the shop was robbed. So the glamorous Marlene hired a couple of body guards and let it be known that when it's not before the cameras it's in a bank.

—:—

Radio's Fibber McGee and Molly are about to lose their privacy. As Mr. and Mrs. J. Jordan they haven't got a single rise out of an autograph hound. But with millions of screen fans seeing them on the screen in "Look Who's Laughing," along with Edgar Bergen and Lucille Ball, they're sure to be recognized wherever they go.

—:—

Critics of dramatic schools say that they're no place to learn to act. Paramount's "Gun for Hire" has three answers to that. They are (1) Veronica Lake, (2) Robert Preston, (3) Alan Ladd. All three went to dramatic schools.

—:—

ODDS AND ENDS—Victor Mature will be seen as a gangster in Fox's "Highway in Hell," with Pat O'Brien . . . When George Brent was ill recently Ann Sheridan sent him roses frequently; he had them made into perfume, which he sent her . . . Harold Lloyd has picked Kay Kyser to star in "My Favorite Spy," his new production . . . Orson Welles has signed Dolores Costello for the leading role in "The Magnificent Ambersons" . . . Richard Barthelmess, once a screen favorite, returns for an important role in RKO's "The Mayor of 44th Street" . . . Melvyn Douglas woos Garbo in "Two-Faced Woman," and Norma Shearer in "We Were Dancing."

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma.—

I got your clipping about 200,000 jeeps two be released by Christmas and you are no more anxious about me being one of them than I are. I wish I had helped out more at home so I could claim somebody was dependent on me without laughing. I have checked and double checked to see if I couldn't dig up some evidence of what a help I was to you and pop but I did not have no luck to speak of.

* * *

All I could get down on paper was these three cases:

1—Once about three years ago when pop was sick ten days I took care of the furnace and chipped in about $4 to help pay family expenses. (This is subject to error. It may have been $4 50, but I kept no papers.)

2—In 1938 or 1939 I forget witch when he was on a auto trip we had a blowout and I did not let you and dad get out and change the tire. I did it myself.

3.—Last year the radio went on the fritz just when you and dad wanted to hear some favorite program and I fixed it for you. Also I went to the delicatessen store for you a couple of times when dad was two tired.

I do not think this is enuff to get the army to send me home as a dependency case, so if you can think of anything let me know and you letter make out a affedavits and have it sworn by a notarery public as the officers is very suspicious.

* * *

The paper says some units will lose 30 per cent of their men through releases but if all the boys in my unit who are trying to get out are successful mine will lose at least 99 per cent. Otto Bixby's folks have dug up evidenoe that he is over 28 years old and that they put him down as 26 because they lived two years in Brooklyn witch don't count.

* * *

Otto also says his family is suffering without him as his mother can't carry up coal and wood three flights like she used to. He also says his sister has arthuritus and can't mow the lawn, wash the flivver and do all the washing and ironing. Altogether his being away from home leaves the family in a awful fix he says.

* * *

Another boy in my outfit says he is needed right away at home as two new saloons have opened up near his house and his old man is less a help than ever. I am still trying to get out on the ground I am a hardship case and two new things happened by way of evidence this week. First I had two front teeth pulled the same day that we had steak for dinner. If that ain't a hardship I don't know what is. Next I am innoculated so many times that to look at me you would think woodpeckers had been working all over me. And Nellie Petersen ain't wrote me in over a hole week all of witch makes me feel more like a hardship case than ever.

Of cearse if I was married I could get out of the army in the Christmas releases and I am now convinced that early marriage is a good thing for every boy. Not that I wood be such a heel as to get married to dodge the draft, but I just wish I had got married to a nice girl four or five years ago when I had some fine chances. If I had my life to live over again I wood get married by the time I was 18 and no later.

If I was anywhere near 28 I might stand a show of getting out, but unless you made a mistake in the berth certifficates there is no hope that way. Could you check up all over again and be sure. I always used to hate to think of being as old as 28 or 30 but after a year in a army no age seems so swell, in fact with the world as cockeyed like it is today I would have no complaint if I was 50.

Well this will have to be all for now and do not worry as I am beefing just because it feels good and life in a army is not so bad when you get used to it.

Love,

Oscar.

P. S.—I hear Mildred Donaldson has moved back into our neighborhood. Do you know her address?

Due to priorities, drug stores will have to cut by 15 to 25 per cent many of the items they now carry, it is predicted. Well, that's okay with us. We're tired of dropping into an apothecary shop for a pill and coming out with a roll of linoleum, a percolator, a wrist watch and a new painting for the hall bedroom.

The [illegible] promising therefore [illegible] are in store for us Let's be prepared by buying a season ticket for the ten games Then all [illegible] cheaper and you don't have to purchase a ticket for each game By buying a season ticket you show your interest toward the school

• SPORTS FLASHES

Practices this week have been very strenuous, as Coach Patterson is trying to get his boys in shape

SEVEN EAGLES JAMBOREE

The Seven Eagles Jamboree on November 18 will find the outfit again opposing the north The teams composing the North are Crystal Lake Hayfield and Woden The team composing the south include Goodell Kanawha and the Shamrocks

Each game will consist of two ten-minute quarters with a two minute rest period between quarters and a ten minute warming period

Last year a large crowd attended the Jamboree, but this year we hope for a larger attendance

The first game will start promptly at eight o'clock

• MUSIC NEWS

Last week it was stated that we were getting a new bassoon, but this was a mistake, as it is going to be a new Sousaphone

The Mixed Chorus had recordings made again Wednesday to see if there had been any improvement in the group

• SENIOR CLASS NEWS

In American History the seniors are studying the beginning of our government, and the constitution Mr Micklick brought up the subject of student government to us Most of the class seemed to think it would be alright

The seniors are again hard at work writing original short stories in Literature class

In Physics class we're all "up in the air" over the study of airplanes This is a very interesting subject to all of us.

Miss Ott gave the senior girls one of her "few and far between" Home Economics tests Thursday The girls say they may be few and far between but when she does give one she really makes up for lost time!

We all outdid ourselves posing for the photographer who was here to take our pictures last Tuesday

• JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

The Bookkeeping Class has taken up special journals in their work this week. They are the purchases, sales, and cash journals.

We have been studying about political and civil rights of people in the United States in our American Government Class this week

The Typing Classes are progressing rather well We have learned about all the keys now We have only taken one speed test

• SOPHOMORE CLASS NEWS

In World History we finished our study of Roman Civilization this week and had a test over it Wednesday

We've been studying the play, "Sham" this week in English II to help us with our dramitizations Our "original" plays are coming along fairly well.

We are studying birds in Biology and have learned to classify them in five different ways. by the structure of their feet, by the structure of their beak, their migratory habits, nests, and the location of nests

• FRESHMAN CLASS NEWS

The freshman girls made coffee cake, orange bread, and banana walnut bread in Home Economics class It made the room smell very good We are studying the school lunch now

We presented several plays to the sophomore English class We have finished plays and are reading the story 'The Elephant Remembers" in English I

We are studying "The Sources and Control of Heat," in General Science We learn what heat is, different types of fuel, ways of measuring heat etc

In business training we are now learning the business proceedure in buying

• SEVENTH AND EIGHTH GRADE NEWS

Our new unit in Science is on Fire and Oxidation We performed some experiments to discover how substances changed to gas for burning

In Geography we are studying about the land of the early Incas in South America We found these countries quite different from the A B C countries Interesting reports were given on Lake Titicoco, coca (from which cocaine is made) and cinchona bark (from which quinine is made)

Both grades have completed two Self Testing Drills in Arithmetic and show a "high average" on the Class Progress Chart

Phyllis Peggy Lou, Clarence, Marcille, Lois Ann, Mary Lou, Roger R Ruth S, Ruth B, Mavis, and Robert R earned perfect scores in spelling for the week

• FIFTH AND SIXTH GRADE NEWS

The Sixth graders took an Arithmetic self testing drill They got a rating of five

We studied the picture "The Song of the Lark," by Jules Breton in English class

Perfect spelling scores were earned by Isabelle, Iris, Marjorie, Mary Edward Harold, Ruth, Helen Pringnitz People showing improvement were Marjorie, Iris and Helen Pringnitz

KLEMME BOY SCOUTS ARE COLLECTING WASTE PAPER

Klemme Boy Scouts are contributing their bit toward national defense and at the same time reaping a small consideration for their treasury through their efforts to collect waste paper and magazines.

The Scouts are making a thorough canvass of the town and have secured a large amount of paper.

Don't burn your old newspapers and magazines. Save them for the Scouts who will call for them at your home.

Bean Sprouts
Apricot-Cream Cheese Salad
Bran Bread
Orange Chiffon Pie

*Recipe Given

1 pound mushrooms
4 tablespoons butter
8 slices buttered toast
16 slices crisp bacon

Beat egg yolks, add flour, mustard, salt and paprika. Mix well. Add ½ cup milk gradually and stir until smooth. Put mixture in double boiler, add rest of milk, and cheese, cubed. Cook until thick, add Worcestershire sauce. Wash, slice, and saute mushrooms, slowly. Place mushrooms on toast and pour cheese mixture over them. Garnish with bacon.

Although the taffy pull will be the main event of the party be sure to have games planned to fill out the evening. Quiz games are popular and lists for these can be made up beforehand using questions on slogans, famous personalities, historical events, interesting facts, and riddles as questions.

Children will want some lively fun too, and for this you can have a sack race. The leaders of two lines of players are given two large paper sacks. They place the sacks on their feet and at a signal run to the opposite goal and back, take off the sack and give it to the person next to them. The object is to see which line finishes first.

Speaking of children, are you having a time with their school lunches?

Variety is the big problem for packing a complete meal in one small box is hard to vary and doesn't have as many possibilities as the table at home. Having at least one hot food helps loads, and put this in the thermos bottle. You can have cream soups, vegetable soups, then again hot milk drinks for variety.

Sandwiches are a standby, but don't get into a rut with these. Don't have soggy fillings. Wrap each one separately in wax paper. Favorite fillings include:

Peanut butter and jelly
Chopped meat mixed with mayonnaise and relish
Chopped hard-cooked eggs with bacon
Cheese and luncheon meats
Vegetable salad sandwiches
Flaked fish with celery, lettuce
Chopped figs or dates, nuts, moistened with orange juice

Color peps up the lunch box, so occasionally pack a salad in a paper container. Use fresh fruits often, or canned ones also packed in small glass or paper containers. Cornstarch puddings are attractive and nourishing, and simple cookies wrapped in wax paper will bring cheers from any child.

Economy is highlighted these days, but it needn't be dull if you use attractively garnished platters.

Chop Suey or Chow Mein.
(Serves 6)

⅓ cup butter or shortening
2¾ cups cooked meat, cut in strips
1¼ cup onions, cut fine
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can bean sprouts, drained
2¼ cups celery, cut fine
1 cup hot water

For thickening and flavoring:
⅓ cup cold water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon sugar

Melt butter, add onions, fry for 3 minutes. Add celery, salt, pepper hot water, cover and cook for 5 minutes. Add bean sprouts and meat mix and bring to a boil. Combine thickening and flavoring ingredients add to first mixture. Cook 5 minutes. Serve hot with Chinese noodles for Chow Mein, or with steaming rice for Chop suey. Garnish platter with thin strips of fried egg and green onions if desired.

UNION WITH CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—John 15 1-10
GOLDEN TEXT—Abide in me, and I in you.—John 15 4.

Our lesson presents deep spiritual truths concerning our union with Christ — mystical, but practical; precious, but too often forgotten or neglected.

I. The Conditions of Union With Christ.

There is a sense in which union with Christ is entirely unconditional, one is either united with Him by faith or he is not. However, there are conditions for the fulfillment of all that such union carries with it. It is in that sense we use the word.

1. Cleansing (vv. 1-3). Christ is the Vine, and the believer as a true branch is united with Him. There is a oneness here which is difficult to express but delightful to receive and believe. He who is the Vine needs no cleansing, but the branch needs constant, daily purification by "the Word" (v. 3). Are we permitting God's Word to keep us clean? Only if we are reading it, studying it, meditating upon it.

There is moreover a severer type of purging to which the husbandman subjects the vine that it may bear more richly, and that is pruning (v. 2). It may not be pleasant, my brother, but it is profitable, and remember whose loving and sure hand it is that wields the pruning knife (v. 1).

Some branches must be cut away altogether (v. 1) and burned (v. 6). They lack the evidence of life—fruitbearing — and must be destroyed. These words are evidently not written to dishearten true believers, but they are a solemn warning to those who bear a false profession of Christianity.

2. Abiding (vv. 4-8). The branch bears the fruit of the vine. It has no strength or ability of its own to bring forth fruit. The Christian cannot serve Christ without abiding, and if he does abide the life of Christ will show forth in His living and serving. There can be no union without abiding in Christ.

3. Obedience (vv. 9, 10). The hall-mark of character in a child is obedience. That is also true in God's household. There is no use in talking sweetly and piously about abiding in God's love unless we obey His commandments. The Christian who disobeys the teachings of God's Word regarding holy living and does not respond to the leading of the Holy Spirit shuts off the blessing of God in his own life and stops its flow out to others.

II. The Results of Union With Christ.

1. Purity of Life (v. 3). "Now ye are clean"—how refreshing our Lord's words sound to us as we live in a wicked and filthy world. We sometimes wonder if there are any pure lives anymore. Yes, there are—those whom the Lord has cleansed by His Word. Would you like to be clean? Turn to Him and to His Word.

2. Prevailing Prayer (v. 7). At first one wonders why our Lord put in that word about prayer, but it is evident that one of the fruits of union and fellowship with Christ must be intelligent prayer according to God's will, in the power of the Spirit, and certain of an answer.

Notice that the prayer promise here is absolutely unlimited, but that it follows an "if" which states a closely limited condition. Let us fulfill the condition and claim the promise.

3. Fruitbearing (vv. 2, 4, 5, 8). The fruit a Christian bears is the fruit of Christ who is the Vine, but as the branch he does have the joy of bearing "fruit" (v. 2), "more fruit" (v. 2), and "much fruit" (vv. 5, 8). The Christian's phrascology can be borrowed, the Christian's service imitated, but his fruit produced only by abiding in Christ.

4. Abiding in Love (v. 10). We have been talking about abiding all through our lesson and it may seem strange to list it as one of the results of union with Christ, yet it belongs here. Our Lord said (v. 10) that the cleansed and obedient disciple should abide in His love, even as He obeys the Father and abides in His love.

What a picture that is. Christ, the One who knew no stain of sin (II Cor. 5.21), always perfectly obedient to the Father (Heb. 10:7), who knows complete and perfect fellowship with the Father, reaches out His loving arms and draws the believer into the circle of that blessed union and love.

'Only Thee'

No one can ever become quite solitary, quite poor, quite miserable, who can truly say "Lord, if only I have Thee." That is just the time when God makes his consolation most gratifying and abundant, when we through d stress of body and soul have turned from all temporal things to Him, and have learned that royal, overshadowing "only thee"—Theodore Christlieb.

Household Hints

If a cloth is dipped in vinegar and rubbed over the kitchen stove before it is blackened, it will remove all the grease that may have accumulated on it.

* * *

Lard has the greatest shortening power of any of the plastic edible fats.

Fruitcake makes a delicious pudding served with either hard or hot sauce. Steam the fruitcake before serving.

When making chocolate candy or frosting always melt the chocolate over hot water, as it burns very easily because of the fat content.

Lincoln's Beard Result Of Little Girl's Suggestion

A little girl from Westfield, N. Y. once wrote Abraham Lincoln a letter as follows:

"I am a little girl, eleven years old. . . have you any little girls about as large as I am. . . If you will let your whiskers grow, you would look a great deal better for your face is so thin. . . I must not write any more answer this right off. Good bye. Grace Bedell."

A few months later, Lincoln let his beard grow. On one of his trips he passed through Westfield and immediately sent for Grace. He thrilled her by pointing to his beard and saying: "You see—I let those whiskers grow for you, Grace."

HANCOCK COUNTY'S U. S 'LUXURY' TAXES FIGURED AT $229,335'

Hancock County's federal taxes on four Luxury items gasoline tobacco liquor and sugar gave the United States treasury during the past fiscal year a total of $229,335 78 or enough to pay for six fast medium bombers to aid the national defense program

This estimate has been made by Midas Criterion national publication in the distilled spirit field through a per capita analysis of federal tax collections during the last fiscal year

Industrial organizations cooperating in the study cited examples to show the roles played by individual "luxury" items heavily taxed both federally and by the states in boosting the county's federal tax payment According to Lewis S Rosenteil board chairman of the Schenley Distillers corporation the county's share on a per capita basis of federal liquor taxes which recently raised for the second time since July 1940 was $97 186 62 The county's tobacco tax payment according to southern growers association was $82 708 74 placing that industry second only to liquor as a source of excise revenue

The petroleum industry, whose tax revenue comes mostly from motorists, collected for the U S $40,661 28 in this county and federal sugar taxes amounted to the sum of $8 779 14

From the country as a whole these four categories netted the treasury a total of $1 935,852,891 00 during the fiscal year, according to the Midas's Criterion study

PHEASANT HUNTING WAS THE BEST EVER HERE

The season on ring neck pheasants which opened in Iowa last week Wednesday at noon and came to a close Tuesday evening, was the best season ever, according to the hunters.

Birds were very plentiful and most hunters got their limit of 3 male birds in short time.

The sport was a bit more exciting after the first day as the birds were getting wild and harder to get.

Thousands of pheasants were bagged but there are still plenty for seed for a big crop next year

Hunters must be becoming more cautious as few accidents were reported.

Iowa poultrymen are feeling the pressure of defense priorities by a shortage of aluminum leg bands, disinfectants, metal feeders and waterers and cardboard chick boxes.

THE CHURCH WITH THE MUSICAL TOWER

(Contributed)

When the Klemme Methodist Church was built eleven years ago, a tower for chimes was in the plans of the architect. The tower was erected with the hope that at sometime the chimes would become a reality This dream has been realized

On Sunday, November 23, the new chimes will be dedicated in the 10 00 o'clock service These chimes will serve the entire community in bringing comfort and cheer to lonely and burdened hearts The beautiful harmonies from the tower amphlifiers as well as the speakers indoors will embody the very accents of religion

Out over the maddening crowd, every man and woman for miles around, will be immersed in the atmosphere of the living church At an hour in the history of the human race, when forces are tirelessly at work moulding mankind into one homogeneous godless group, it is our privilege to enlist the latest developments of science in the services of the church as a means of combating successfully this terrifying trend to paganism

It is hoped that by means of the carillon musical tower there will result a deeper church-consciousness, and that by the grace of God, the moral fabric of our people will rise to a higher plane of righteousness. With that hope these chimes are installed and we hope our community will as a whole benefit from them

Individual and personal gifts have made possible this achievement for our church and community

THANKSGIVING IN UNITED STATES TO BE CHANGED

Iowa Among Few States To Observe The Later Date Again

President Roosevelt's annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation expected in a week or so, will again designate Thursday, November 20, for this year's observance But beginning in 1942, the president has stated that the traditional fourth Thursday in November will be proclaimed by him.

The week-earlier observance adopted to bring about a longer shopping period between Thanksgiving and the Christmas holidays was found not to have produced anticipated results The President, therefore, last May announced an end of the new custom adopted three years ago

Executives of two-thirds of the states and the District of Columbia have indicated their intention of proclaiming the president's November 20 date as their state's Thanksgiving day this year. In 16 other states the governors have declared they will stick to the tradional date, which this year is Nov 27

States to observe November 27 are Arkansas, Deleware, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota Tennessee, Texas and Vermont.

"Franksgiving" States

States to observe Nov 20 Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming and the District of Columbia.

LIBERTY, CONCORD, GARFIELD HAVE NONE, MAGOR ONE

Only $334.43 Delinquent Taxes Are Chalked Against Klemme

The Britt News-Tribune is this week publishing the delinquent tax list for Hancock County In some respects it is outstanding,

There are three townships in which all taxes are paid, they being Liberty, Concord and Garfield, right in the very heart of the county. Magor township has but one landowner who has not paid his taxes. It is beleived to be a record of all time in that one respect.

In another respect Britt appears to be the poorest town in the county with a trifle more than 56 per cent of the total delinquent taxes in towns of the county. Corwith has less than $70 due, and that is something for a town to be proud about. Klemme owes the county treasury $334 43, not bad.

The amounts due in dollars and cents are set forth in the following table.

Build Your Diet On Simple Foods To Lower Costs

Nutrition Study Reveals Ways of Keeping Healthy On Limited Budget.

CHICAGO, ILL. — The average normal American needs from three to four pounds of food a day. He can buy it for an average cost of as little as seven cents a pound, even at today's prices. He can be amply and healthfully nourished on 25 cents a day, if necessary, if he will build his diet around a few simple, plentiful foods, according to a current low-cost nutrition study.

Millions of low income and moderate income American families are undernourished today because of wasteful spending of their food money, which in turn is the result partly of "over-civilized" eating habits and partly of lack of education in food values, the study says. Much of their precious food money goes for items of little or no food value—"taste-ticklers" and stimulants.

If the American housewife with a limited food budget will see that each member of her family over 10 years old gets a pound of whole-wheat foods and a pound—one pint—of milk per day she need not study elaborate tables of vitamins, calories, and minerals, this study by Northwestern Life Insurance company continues. The pint of milk, and a pound of entire-wheat flour, together with other "makings" for a loaf of bread, will cost 15 cents or less, and will supply most of the proteins, vitamins, and minerals needed for healthful vigorous living. If she will further enrich her bread with a couple of ounces of soy flour, and spend another 7 or 8 cents a day per person on potatoes and carrots, an occasional orange, or can of tomato juice, and a bit of fatty meat two or three times a week, her family can be completely nourished for about 25 cents a day per person, or seven dollars a week for a family of four, the study shows. Additional food money available can then be used to add variety and luxuries to this basic health diet—which, the study emphasizes, is not a so-called minimum-standard diet, but furnishes the various necessary food elements more bountifully than many expensive menus, and can be combined to make more than 50 different dishes.

Variety Is Expensive.

The average American family has avoided serious diet deficiences in the past simply by eating a wide variety of foods. This is the easiest and pleasantest, but also the most expensive way, the study states. Where income is low and prices are rising, more reliance must be placed upon such low cost, high value combinations as wheat and milk, if a complete and healthful diet is to be maintained on a small food budget.

The whole-wheat grain, boiled or steamed, makes a tasty and sustaining breakfast cereal, the study states. Put through a home coffee grinder twice, the wheat becomes an inexpensive coarse flour which bakes into a delicious nut-like bread, rich with the flavor of the fresh-ground wheat grain.

Observing that the average urban American, even of low income, may not make this return to pioneer days with a coffee grinder in his steam-heated kitchenette, the study suggests that whole-wheat flour can be obtained at many groceries, together with numerous prepared whole-wheat cereals. Whole-wheat bread of the 100 per cent grade retails at 9 to 10 cents a pound in most cities, and day-old bread can frequently be bought at half price. For infants and young children, and for oldsters with weaker digestive tracts, the study recommends the "enriched" farina, and the new "enriched" white loaf, which gives almost the same food values as whole-wheat bread.

Present defense prosperity is very spotty, the study states, and has boosted the income of many families who previously could scarcely spare 25 cents a day per person for food, while at the same time millions of other families with fixed incomes find their purchasing power sharply reduced by soaring prices. Still greater rises in living costs seem inevitable, unless adequate large-scale efforts are made to control cost elements. Extraordinary demands due to the war and to defense preparations are likely soon to be reflected in the prices of milk and other dairy products, the report observes.

'Sells' Whole Wheat.

A promotion campaign to "sell" the American public on the value of whole-wheat is suggested by the report, along the lines of the dairy campaign, which has been promoting greater use of milk. With an embarrassing surplus of wheat on hand, present U. S. consumption of wheat products averages only 6½ ounces per capita. If this could be increased to a pound of entire-wheat products per capita, plus a pound of milk, the health and vitality of the nation would climb and our wheat surplus problems would be largely solved, the study states.

Such a wheat promotion campaign should not only broadcast the scores of tempting ways in which whole wheat can be served, says the report; it should also see that whole wheat is available through the family grocery store. In many localities at present, wheat can only be obtained at a feed store or flour mill.

Other low cost foods which can be interchanged with the basic diet of whole wheat and milk for the sake of variety are oatmeal, and barley, used as cooked cereals or mixed in with the whole-wheat flour; also corn bread and corn meal mush, potato soup, and navy beans.

Are These South America's 'Five Zones'?

When President Roosevelt revealed that secret information had been discovered for the redivision of South America into five parts (one taking in the Panama canal), under German control much speculation was aroused as to the nature of these plans. The above map, based on the studies of Prof. Karl Haushofer of Munich, shows the five zones that he had mapped to be under German, Italian and Spanish domination. 1. Columbia reabsorbs all of the Central American republics, (also Cuba and West Indies, not shown); 2. Venezuela and the Guianas would be a German colony; 3. Peru, Ecuador and northern Bolivia would be under Italian influence; 4. northern Brazil, nominally independent; 5. Argentina, Chile, Uruguay, Paraguay, southern Bolivia and southern Brazil, as part of "Greater Germany."

Lifetime Is Spent In Constant Search For New Products

MINNEAPOLIS. — A 76-year-old Minneapolis scientist has been working for 35 years to keep 20,000,000 people warm in winter and cool in summer. And it all started because he realized a youthful ambition to help the nation's farmers reduce their threshing costs.

When George H. Ellis was 16, and a mechanic at Sauk Centre, Minn., during the eighties, high threshing costs were ruining farmers. So he invented a machine to make binder twine out of straw. This reduced threshing costs and saved farmers many times the $10,000 he received for the invention.

George Ellis

In 1906, necessity of utilizing waste products from his twine manufacturing process sent Ellis on another search. This quest resulted in the first insulation board ever produced—out of flax straw fibers too short to be made into twine. He formed his own company to develop the new product but it took a full-time salesman 18 months to sell the first insulation board to a home builder.

Flax became difficult to obtain, so resourceful Mr. Ellis substituted wood fibers for straw and a new worldwide board insulation industry was conceived. Estimated value of the 34 different companies which grew out of his invention is now $150,000,000. More than 20,000,000,000 square feet now are in use, mainly in homes insulated against heat and cold.

Government Commission.

Retiring in 1916, Ellis soon grew bored, then accepted a commission from the U. S. government for research in Panama. He later engaged in private research all over the world. In 1924 he joined Minnesota and Ontario Paper company's insulite division as consultant engineer, the post he still holds.

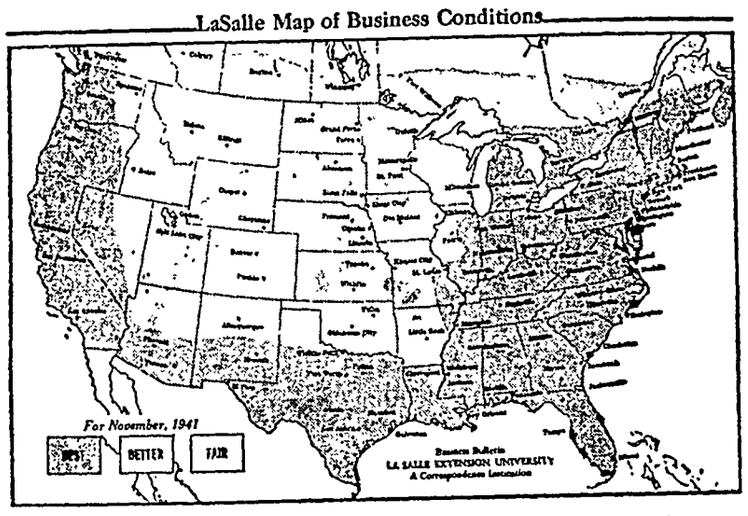
Necessity for a preservative for insulation board next resulted in one of the inventor's most dramatic and productive researches. Exhausting all available library material on preservatives he decided to consult scientists at the Smithsonian institution in Washington, D. C.

Like a detective hot on a clue, he followed tip after tip until his interest was aroused by the institution's ancient Egyptian mummies. Searching for the secret of their remarkable lasting qualities he learned that asphalt-dipped bandages used for wrapping the dead and their similarly treated caskets had much to do with their preservation. The result was asphalt-treated insulite board with its preservative qualities, particularly against moisture condensation.

Although he has 150 patents and a lifetime of research behind him, Ellis is working on new industrial developments which he prefers to keep secret.

Farm Outlook Best in Many Years

LaSalle Map of Business Conditions



On the above map, the current improvement in farm conditions highlights the business picture throughout the country as outlined by the La Salle Extension University.

By L. G. ELLIOTT
President, La Salle Extension University

CHICAGO.—The improvement in farm conditions, which already in the first eight months of 1941 had produced a total income gain to farmers of $1,201,000,000 over 1940 not including government payments, continues to indicate that this year will be the best of any year since 1920.

The income increase has been more than double from livestock than from crops—$850,000,000 for the former as compared with $351,000,000 for the latter. Harvests have been large and granaries are well stocked with crops that are selling for much higher average prices than have been received in over 12 years.

Farmers are well equipped to accomplish even more in the future than they have this year. The numbers of livestock on farms and ranches are close to the peak, and the animals are in good condition. Large quantities of cattle, hog, dairy and poultry products will be produced and marketed to meet the ever-growing consumer demand.

Army Uses Substitutes For Strategic Material

WASHINGTON.—In its constant efforts to cut down the use of strategic and critical materials formerly used in the many articles of supplies and equipment it procures for the army, the quartermaster corps is developing as many substitutes as possible, the War department has announced.

In a great many items tentative specifications are established for use of these substitutes.

NAZI SABOTAGE

The man to watch in Europe today—next to Hitler—is a suave and charming diplomat in Turkey named Franz von Papen. It is always a significant omen when Hitler sends Von Papen to a country. It means he has dire and potent intentions regarding that area.

It was Von Papen who went to Austria as ambassador to soften it in preparation for the Nazi occupation. It was Von Papen who 26 years ago tried to do the same thing here. And now, with weather getting cold in Russia and Hitler running lower and lower on oil, a Nazi squeeze on Turkey becomes almost inevitable. To prepare for it, Ambassador Von Papen has been working overtime in Turkey.

Almost forgotten is Von Papen's attempt to soften and sabotage the United States during the last war. But his operations here indicate the lengths to which he may go in Turkey to bring that country into the Axis.

In 1915, Von Papen was German military attache in Washington when Count Johann von Bernstorff returned from England with a satchel containing $150,000,000 in German treasury notes.

Von Papen, then in Mexico City, hurried north, and immediately began organizing a network of spies.

Invasion Via Canada.

After selecting his agents carefully, Von Papen laid the following plans:

No. 1. To invade Canada through British Columbia with the aid of German warships in the Pacific and German reservists in the United States. This plan was vetoed by Von Bernstorff.

No. 2. To blow up the Welland canal. This scheme likewise was abandoned, because the canal was too well guarded.

No. 3. To blow up Canadian railroads in an effort to prevent transportation of Japanese troops through Canada. (The Japanese were fighting with the Allies.)

No. 4. To blow up the International bridge at Vanceboro, Maine. This was accomplished through an agent named Werner Horn.

Von Papen was so industrious and unscrupulous that he over-reached himself, and Wilson demanded his recall. But when he reached home, both he and Bernstorff were awarded decorations, and both promoted.

Subsequently, Von Papen became chancellor of Germany and he took part in the conspiracies which brought Hitler into power.

RUSSIAN REQUEST—A DRIBLET

Averell Harriman's confidential report on Russian requests for aid was vastly different from British requests after Dunkirk. In comparison with the British, the Russian orders seemed a mere driblet.

After the Lowlands debacle, the British had to start from scratch, having lost practically all their armored equipment and most of their field artillery. The Russians have lost tremendous quantities of material, but judging from their relatively modest requests, they still must have a lot left.

One of the chief things they asked for was 75 and 105 mm. guns, which, luckily we can supply. Production figures are a military secret, but these cannon are now rolling off assembly lines in quantity. The Russians also asked for machine guns, which we can furnish also in large numbers, since machine gun production is at a high level.

One of the biggest, and pleasantest surprises to Harriman was that the Russians do not need machine tools, at least for the present. This took a big load off his mind, as both the U. S. and Britain have few tools to spare right now.

Note: U. S. military experts consider lack of co-ordination between the three Russian armies to be one of the principal reasons for the break through in the center against Moscow. Although there has been a shift of Russian generals, doubt still exists about the co-ordination of the three armies under a central command.

INFLATION CURE

Here is the inside lowdown on Price Administrator Leon Henderson's own private preventive against inflation.

He disclosed it to a group of Charlestown, W. Va., business men during a speech on the dangers of runaway prices. One of the audience asked Henderson how a business man could best protect himself against inflation.

"Work like hell," was the prompt reply, "and go to church regularly."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Introduced to a British production expert who had just completed a survey of U. S. defense plants, OPM boss William Knudsen took him off his feet by inquiring "What impressed you least?"

A sports commentator, sponsored by a shaving cream, called the duke of Windsor in Baltimore, inviting him to appear as guest star on the radio program, the money to be paid to British charity. The duke declined—even before he was told the offer was only $100

PLAN BOX SILO ON LEVEL LAND

Is Good Substitute for the Trench Silo.

By E. R. EUDALY
(Dairyman, Texas A & M College Extension Service.)

Built above ground, a "box" silo is a substitute for a trench silo in regions where the land is more or less level and where keeping water out of a trench is a problem.

To construct such a feed container, build two parallel levees of dirt any height and width desired, then fill between the levees with silage and cover with earth. This sometimes is called a trench silo upside down. Two—in places where lumber is cheap it might be advisable to build the upside down trench out of lumber and tar paper. This is called a "box" silo.

It is not advisable to build a "box" of smaller dimensions than four feet between walls, six feet high and 20 feet long Lesser space between walls would be hazardous since a little spoilage at the edges would be too high a percentage of waste. A minimum height of six feet is suggested because of settling and the possibility of some spoilage on top. If the silage settles a whole lot there might be a high percentage of spoilage

Width and height may be as much as desired beyond the minimum footage as far as keeping of the contents of the silo is concerned. But the width should be regulated according to the number of live stock to be fed, the specialists advise. At least five cows are necessary to obtain the most success from a "box" silo.

The posts should be three feet apart in the row if one-inch lumber is used, but may be as much as 4 feet apart if using two-inch lumber. Shiplap lumber is best for siding but rough sawed lumber may be used provided it is laid so that the inside of the wall will not be so rough as to break the lining paper. Tar, or asphalt, paper is recommended for covering the inside of the wall, and No 9 galvanized steel wire, or the equivalent in strength to tie the posts together at the top.

The silage at the open end of the box should slope from the ground to the top of the wall so that the end can be covered with earth. One or two or three inches of dirt may be used provided oats or barley is planted in it, and the earth kept moist until the grain makes enough growth to form a good root system and hold the dirt together to prevent cracking.

Seed Winter Oats for Successful Winter Crop

Many farmers have had excellent success in seeding winter oats in the fall as a cover crop, according to J. C. Hackleman, crops extension specialist of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, Urbana, Ill. The only trouble with using winter oats in the fall, he said, is that the crop is more apt to winter-kill than barley or rye. Oats also does not make as good a nurse crop as the other two crops because it makes a more leafy and dense growth and consequently shades the legumes more and probably consumes more moisture and plant food than would be used by a rye or barley crop.

When used as a winter cover crop, winter oats, barley or rye should be seeded a week or 10 days before the average date for seeding wheat, Hackleman said.

Although more apt to encourage chinch bug increases the following growing season, barley makes the best pasture of the three crops. To nurse crops of oats, rye or barley instead of being harvested as grain are pastured next spring, the land can be classified as soil-conserving under the AAA farm program.

IMAGINARY DIALOGUES: MRS. ROOSEVELT AND THE OCD CHIEF

("Mrs. Roosevelt takes office as assistant to Fiorello LaGuardia, director of the Office of Civilian Defense."—News item.)

Mrs. Roosevelt (making her first appearance)—Good morning, boss.

Mr. LaGuardia—Good morning. What can I do for you?

Mrs. Roosevelt—I'm the new girl here. Roosevelt is the name.

Mr. LaGuardia—Oh, yes. I remember. Let's see . . . just what were you to do?

Mrs Roosevelt—You just said to report as your assistant

Mr LaGuardia—So I did! well, are you all set?

Mrs. Roosevelt—I'm willing to give you all my spare time.

Mr LaGuardia — Come, come! You'll have to do better than that!

* * *

Mrs. Roosevelt—Dear me! If it isn't one thing it's another these days!

Mr. LaGuardia—If it isn't ONE thing it's A DOZEN OTHERS!

Mrs. Roosevelt—I don't see how you get time to attend to so many matters in so many places.

Mr. LaGuardia — I'm puzzled about you in the same way. Gosh, I guess we are the four busiest people in America.

Mrs. Roosevelt—Four? There are only two of us

Mr. LaGuardia—Let's not belittle ourselves!

* * *

Mrs. Roosevelt—I'm very anxious to get going.

Mr. LaGuardia (whipping out a bunch of timetables)—So am I.

Mrs. Roosevelt—I mean to get going here . . . on the new job.

Mr. LaGuardia—Oh, yes. My error. Let's see what the set-up is. I'm head of the OCD and I need help.

Mrs. Roosevelt—Fancy Fiorello LaGuardia needing help!

Mr. LaGuardia—It does seem fanciful, I admit. But I need a deputy and I thought of you, as the First Lady of the Land and such a great worker in so many causes, would be of great help.

Mrs. Roosevelt—What can I do that you can't do?

Mr. LaGuardia—Well, a daily column for one thing. And you have a radio sponsor, too. I heard you on the air. I went right out and bought some of that tea.

Mrs. Roosevelt—I spoke for a coffee program.

Mr. LaGuardia—Sorry! It must have been a bad reception on my radio set.

* * *

Mrs. Roosevelt—I've often wondered why you didn't do a newspaper column yourself.

Mr. LaGuardia—I guess the papers don't use that kind of language. But I've had a radio offer.

Mrs. Roosevelt—From a sponsor? Who?

Mr. LaGuardia—A cigarette company. It wanted some new noises for the Modern Design theme.

Mrs. Roosevelt—Are you going to accept?

Mr. LaGuardia—No. My doctor thinks I am doing too much already.

Mrs. Roosevelt—I don't blame him from worrying about the strain on you.

Mr. LaGuardia—That isn't it. He's worrying over the strain on him in worrying about the strain on me. To get back to business, do you think you understand just what our job requires.

Mrs. Roosevelt—Hark!

Mr. LaGuardia—What is it?

Mrs. Roosevelt—I thought I heard enemy bombers overhead.

Mr. LaGuardia—Excellent. You get the whole idea exactly!

Rayon Fabric Patterns Show New Emphasis on Originality

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

NO LONGER are fine fabrics the exclusive property of the few people who can disregard cost. There's luxury for everybody these days, because of the advancement of rayon as a textile fiber during the last few years Rayon has made possible the reproduction of all the magnificence of traditional quality cloths at prices well within the reach of modest budgets.

To the evening wear field, where luxury has always been the keynote, are contributed gorgeous fabrics worked with all the lavishness and richness the feminine heart could ask. Exquisite, for evening, is crisp rayon taffeta in enchanting colors and new effects. Such novel taffeta finishes as gleaming satin stripes, metal stripes and striking plaid effects with metal stripes and unusual color designs are seen in stunning bouffant gowns like the model pictured in the foreground of our illustration.

Beautifully adapted to the fluid molded lines of the current evening season, sleek rayon jersey brings its lovely draping quality to sophisticated dinner and evening inspirations Jewel-toned rayon jersey falls in sleeky gleaming folds for the skirt and wide bishop sleeves of the glamorous dinner gown centered in this group.

The vogue for street-length informal dinner gowns has inspired the long-torso style which combines a rich black rayon crepe skirt with a smartly contrasting shaded rayon and metal striped bodice, as shown to the right. The long sleeves and low V-neck of the bodice are excellent fashion points, as is the graceful all-round pleated skirt.

Indispensable in the dinner and evening wardrobe are the rayon crepe frocks. Lovely versatile types, such as matelasse patternings, tree-bark effects and mossy finishes give pleasing variety. The exquisite grace of line expressed in the slender tiered frock to the left in the group interprets the beautiful draping qualities of mossy rayon crepe. In this instance the crepe is in a dusty rose, with the refined brilliance of cut steel at the draped neckline

Large Patch Pockets Extend the 'New Look'

Dresses and suits are very pocket-conscious this fall. Four seems to be the magic number for pockets and sometimes six—four on the long-torso jacket, distributed in two breast pockets and two hip pockets, with the skirt sporting two pockets on its own account.

Ingenious pocket arrangements are also expressed in connection with peplum flares. There are separate stole scarf affairs made to wear with practical daytime dresses that are finished off at each end with huge pockets. They have zip fastenings, all very practical and usable.

Tip to Toe—You'll Be Wearing One Color

The latest turn of fashion is to carry out the costume ensemble in one color from head to foot. Very handsome indeed is an outfit that created quite a sensation in the grandstand parade at one of the important games this fall. This stunning ensemble, done in the new gold tone so smartly in fashion, included a fleece boxy topper, a perfectly matched handknit two-piece dress and a turban. Costumes all in the widely heralded "black plum" are also outstanding in the autumn-winter collections. Brown and topaz colors are also very effective developed in single tones throughout.

Bangle Bracelets

Young girls are going in for a new hobby. It is the collection of bangles for their bracelets which are for the most part in silver. You can buy cunning little trinkets galore at the jewelry counters, and a most thriving business is going on in their sale. However, it makes it far more interesting to add the personal touch of dropping a hint to doting relatives and friends that you would rather have a bangle to add to your collection than any other gift they could make to you.

Ostrich Trim

The much-beloved little pillbox hat is taking on new glory this season. Picturesque ostrich goes trailing down one side over the hair in a glamorous "portrait of a lady" manner. The huge profile berets are also dramatically ostrich-adorned.

Be Lovelier

"Only the brave deserve the fair"—and "only the fair deserve the brave." In these times when men are so occupied with defense, women and girls can maintain national morale only if they look their best. Just as soldiers, sailors and marines are required to keep their uniforms neat, to shave every day, to keep their nails in order, and to have good haircuts, so should women be especially careful of their clothes, their complexions, their hands and hair. The selection of stylish, becoming dresses and the use of cold cream, powder, lipstick and nail polish and attention to the hair are more important than ever before. Here is a lovely New York creation that carries out the trend of "dressier dresses" and feminine elegance with its smooth, slenderizing pockets and antique filigree gilt buttons.

PRAYER AND THANKSGIVING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6 5-15, Ephesians 5:20; I Thessalonians 5 16-18

GOLDEN TEXT—Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks.—I Thessalonians 5:17, 18.

Being one with Christ, the Christian finds prayer to be as natural as breathing. As he walks with the Master he talks with Him, praises Him, thanks Him, makes his petitions and his needs known to Him. We feel, however, like Christ's disciples who asked Him to teach them to pray (Luke 11:1).

I. Instruction in Prayer

Approaching the subject from the negative viewpoint, Jesus told them

1. How Not to Pray (Matt. 6:5, 7). Prayer, which is the highest privilege of the Christian, is beset by some deadly dangers.

a No hypocritical performance (v 5). Some who wished to be seen in prayer managed to be in a conspicuous place at the Jewish hours of prayer (nine, twelve, and three o'clock). There, before a crowd, they put on a prayer "show" for the benefit of the onlooking audience. Such a prayer is designed for the ears of men and never reaches God

b. No vain repetition (v. 7). We do not need to repeat our petitions. God knows our need (v. 8). When repetition is the outpouring of an earnest and urgent heart it means much, but that is different from just repeating phrases.

2. How to Pray (Matt. 6:6, 8, 14, 15; Eph. 5:20; I Thess. 5:16-18). Public prayer is sometimes both necessary and proper, but usually our prayer should be a. In secret (v. 6). When we pray we should be free from distracting influences or personalities. We are talking to God and should give ourselves entirely over to communion with Him.

b. In faith (vv. 6, 8). God knows what we need even though He waits to be inquired of concerning it. He will answer prayer so as to honor His name in our lives and in our testimony before others.

c. With forgiveness (vv. 14, 15). No one who comes before God with an unforgiving spirit toward his brother is ready to ask God for the forgiveness which he himself so greatly needs.

d. With thanksgiving (Eph. 5:20). To give thanks is altogether fitting as we come to God in prayer. Note that we are to be thankful "always" and "for all things," not just when some special blessing or favor has come to us.

e. Without ceasing (I Thess. 5:16-18). Union with Christ enables us to pray without ceasing, even as He ever prays for us. This does not call for the constant utterance of words, but the moment by moment prayer of a heart and life lifted to Him. With such praying comes constant rejoicing (v. 16).

II. A Model of Prayer (Matt. 6:9-13).

The prayer which our Lord taught His disciples was intended to be a model rather than a form of prayer. We may repeat it, however, if we put into it the prayer of our hearts.

1. God and His Glory (vv. 9, 10). Recognizing Him as our Father to whom we may and must come for all things, we in all humility ascribe all honor to Him. Then we pray that His kingdom may come, not only in the future (and we look forward to it!), but now, in our own hearts. The true believer wants the will of God done in his own life and throughout the earth, even as it is perfectly done in heaven.

This prayer begins at the proper point. A right relationship with God brings true blessing on earth. The one who prays is now ready to present to God

2. Man and His Needs (vv. 11-13). Daily bread is mentioned first, for without it life could not continue. This is the constant need of man, and his great struggle. God is able for that problem, and only He is able. Unless He gives "seed to the sower and bread to the eater" (Isa. 55:10) we are gone.

But man has even greater spiritual needs. Sin needs forgiveness, weakness needs strength, the power of the enemy of our souls calls for deliverance. Again God is able and ready to hear man's prayer.

One of the sad things about the study of prayer is that we are all so ready to talk about it, discuss it, even preach about it, and then do so little praying. Knowing how to pray, and admiring a model of prayer, will profit us nothing, unless we pray.

Good Work Never Fails

So, then, Elijah's life had been no failure after all. Seven thousand at least in Israel had been braced and encouraged by his example, and silently blessed him, perhaps, for the courage which they felt. In God's world, for those who are in earnest there is no failure. No work truly done, no word earnestly spoken, no sacrifice freely made, was ever made in vain.—F. W. Robertson.

IT MAKES NO DIFFERENCE WHAT WE THINK ABOUT . . .

Aid To Britain!

Or National Defense

These two subjects are somewhat beyond our power to directly help or hinder. However, we must concern ourselves a great deal about the present condition of our Farm Machinery, and be not only thinking, but doing something about REPAIRS for next season's work.

Next year as never before, those of us who wait to repair until just before going into the field will be "Out Of Luck" for parts. At present conditions are such that Branch Houses do not have parts that dealers normally stock in quantity.

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY

Friendship improves happiness and abates misery by doubling our joy and dividing our grief

Addison

He that hath no friend and no enemy is one of the vulgar, and without talents powers or energy

Lavater

REASONING POWER AND OUR RESPONSIBILITIES

Reasoning power and taking our own responsibilities are two of man's weakest points If we would only take time and think things out we could get farther ahead by our own efforts

In school if we can't find something we're looking for, we go to the instructor who kindly helps us If we would think where and why to look for it it would be easy to find it without help It should be our responsibility to look for things we need and want

At our homes when we run into difficulties which we ourselves could think out we run to our parents If our parents would make us take more of our own problems into our own hand we'd learn to do things without someone else's guidance

Even when we are small it is our duty to take some things as our own responsibility There should be some task that depends on our responsibility

There will always be problems arising in our every day life that needs some of our reasoning power If we don't have the courage to be responsible for things that we should be we'll never make progress in the world in reaching our goal It should be our aim in life to make the best better and if we do not succeed at first we should try try again

ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM

Tuesday morning the high school students listened to the talk given by President Roosevelt over the radio and attended the program sponsored by the American Legion and Auxiliary Rev Kratz of the Church of Christ in Mason City gave us a very appropriate and interesting talk

EDUCATION WEEK

Since this week was Education Week we have had two programs to make us realize more fully the value of education On Wednesday Rev Herschel Harvey gave us a short talk on the subject of education The band furnished us with music

On Friday morning Rev Calvin Grosshuesch gave us a short talk on the two different types of people in the world in connection with education The band furnished the music

PHEASANT HUNTERS

Wednesday afternoon was the first day of hunting pheasants and the boys were rather scarce in our school It seems as if plenty of the pheasants were shot.

CHEER LEADERS

Cheer leaders were chosen last Thursday They are Lorraine Buntenbach, Ellen Kilgore, Arlene Wille and Barbara Johnson

SIX WEEKS TESTS

The second 6 weeks is now ended That means those tests again!

• MUSIC NEWS

The band played several numbers for the Armistice Day program Tuesday morning, and Melvin Coobs played "Taps."

We also played for two assembly programs Wednesday and Friday morning.

We're going in for Latin lately in mixed chorus The song is "Adoramus Te" by Paletrina

We have a new music schedule and band which usually was Tuesday and Thursday mornings is now Tuesday and Friday. Junior band will be Thursday morning Lessons will be the same as before.

Season basketball tickets are now on sale so if you don't have yours you better get it Adult tickets are $1 65 for 10 games

• SENIOR CLASS NEWS

Work progresses rather slow in Manual Training when Mr Kingery leaves the room, but when he comes in the wood really flies!

Personal grooming seems to be the topic which we are discussing in Home Economics The Boys are beginning to wonder if carrying cups of water on our heads will help any of us

In Physics we are studying the Pendulum," of which there are two kinds a simple and a compound pendulum

Do you know why the milk particles, in your cream separator go to the outside? Because milk particles are the heavier and experience a greater force, therefore they occupy the outer section of the bowl

The Song of Hiawatha" by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow has proved very interesting for it is historical and tells of many Indian legends and lores

In United States History we are tudying the first three administrations they are Washington, Adams and Jefferson The first political parties were called Federalists and Anti Federalits, and were led by Hamilton and Jefferson

• JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

The Typing Class has been taking speed tests this last week We have now learned all the keys and are studying tabulations and centering

In Bookkeeping this week we finished another set On Friday we took a test over the last eight chapters

American Government Class has been studying about the possessions of the United States and also the one on Political Parties

• SOPHOMORE CLASS NEWS

The English II Class has been reading "Silas Marner" by George Elliot this week We've already completed seven chapters

After finishing the Romans in World History we've started on 'Medieval Times" and have decided feudalism isn't as complicated as it sounds

The sophomores' cheers will be outstanding this year with Barbara Johnson to lead us

Many of the sophomore boys were absent Wednesday for the opening of the pheasant season They won't talk, but from all appearances, they didn't get any

• FRESHMAN CLASS NEWS

This week our English Class has been interesting Miss Ott gives us a good story to read and then we talk about it She gives us tests to see if we have read them.

Thursday the Home Economics girls, made three main hot dishes for luncheons and suppers They didn't turn out as well as expected

A few boys took advantage of the pheasant season Wednesday afternoon and went hunting.

We had three assemblies this week They were on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

• PRIMARY ROOM NEWS

holiday is ours! As you bustle and plan this year's Thanksgiving dinner, remember this is the day we give our thanks for the bounteous harvest of the year, for the peace and the prosperity, singularly ours. Remember, too, and cherish the forc- of the Pilgrims who had the ge to start carving out this f ours!

this holiday is ours, so let illed with the spirit of the day wholehearted thanks.

e foods are synonymous with sgiving without which the day n't be complete, but don't get rut about having the same every year, vary the trim- a bit and fascinate the family. wisps of croutons will in- if you serve them in the oy- lew.

*Recipe Given

Salt and pepper
½ cup milk or ¼ cup evaporated milk and ¼ cup water.

Add the melted fat, seasonings and milk to the potatoes. Beat the egg separately, add yolk first and fold in white to the potato Place in a buttered casserole dish, set in a pan containing hot water and bake 15 to 50 minutes at 375 degrees until light and puffy. Marshmallows may be placed on top of casserole during last 7 minutes of baking time.

With all the soft food of the meal, you'll want something crispy and tart as a relish.

Cranberry-Orange Relish.
(Serves 12)

2 cups cranberries, cleaned, washed
2 oranges, whole
1 cup sugar

Grind all the fruit together by putting through a coarse food grinder. Mix the ground fruit with sugar and let stand about an hour before serving.

Brussels Sprouts.

Brussels sprouts lend a bright touch of green when served plain with butter or crumbled, cooked chestnuts. Pick the dead leaves off the sprouts, then soak them in cold salted water for ½ hour. Wash and put in boiling water and let cook until just tender, about 15 to 17 minutes. Drain, reheat, and serve after seasoning.

Magic Yeast Rolls.

3 cups bread flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup butter
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup sugar (rolled in later)
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup chopped nuts
½ cup milk
¼ cup hot water
2 packages granular yeast

Sift flour. Add to 1½ cups of flour the salt and shortening. Combine as for pie crust. Combine milk and hot water. When luke-warm, add yeast and 1 tablespoon sugar. Combine with first mixture; beat until smooth. Cover and let stand 20 minutes. Add eggs, vanilla and the rest of the flour. Stir until it becomes a smooth, sticky dough, but stiff. Tie dough into a clean cloth (wring out in cold water first). Drop in a pail of cool water. In an hour the dough will rise to the top. Remove and turn on a platter and cut into pieces the size of an egg. Roll in sugar and nut mixture. Twist into figure eights. Shape and turn onto a greased pan. Let stand 5 minutes and bake 10 minutes at 425 degrees F.

Remember how mother used to make her pumpkin pie and tarts the day before and how good they always tasted after they stood in the cool pantry overnight? Why not try it this time? It'll save you a great deal of fuss on the big day itself besides giving the tarts a chance to mellow and ripen for extra good flavor.

Pumpkin Filling.
(Makes 1 large pie or 10 to 12 tarts)

1½ cups prepared pumpkin
⅔ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1½ cups milk

For fresh pumpkin, steam or bake until soft and put through a sieve. Add remaining ingredients in order given. Turn into crust lined pie tin or tart pans and bake first in a very hot (450 degrees) oven, then reduce temperature to 325 degrees and bake 25 minutes.

Household Hints

Powdered or confectioner's sugar that has become lumpy should be pressed through a fine-meshed sieve or rolled with a rolling pin.

* * *

Surfaces to be whitewashed should first be well-cleaned and freed of any particles that might scale off. Scrub with a stiff brush or broom. Whitewash adheres to moist surfaces better than it does to dry ones. So sponge off the area to be whitewashed with cold water.

New waffle irons should be washed with soap and rinsed carefully. If this is not done the first waffles are likely to be discolored.

* * *

Grease marks on pages of books may be removed by sponging them with benzine, placing them between two sheets of blotting paper and pressing them with a hot iron.

Basting with a little spiced peach juice will add new flavor to broiled or browned sausages.

New Principles in Coal Heater

MANY improvements in furnaces, both oil and coal burning types, have been reported in late years, but little change, until recently, has been noted in the coal heating stove, which still is depended upon in millions of homes for warmth and comfort A late development in this field has brought out an improved coal burning heater It employs a radically new design in firebox and heating flues, advanced ideas in combustion engineering and other improvements that result in greater heating efficiency, fuel economy, and much less operating attention.

A desirable feature of this coal heater is that it may be loaded with 100 pounds of coal at one time The coal, stored in the magazine, gradually feeds semi-automatically of its own weight to the bottom firebed, the heat making coke of the upper coal layers, when bituminous coal is used. The gases formed in this coking process escape through newly designed flues in the firebox and are consumed by the flames which travel up outside the fuel chamber. Even the gases released on top of the fuel bed burn as the flames pass over the top The coal, or coke into which it is transformed, slowly works to the bottom firebed where it is consumed, leaving a fine ash and no clinkers.

Because of its large fuel capacity and the advanced construction principles employed, it will heat all day and all night in coldest weather without refueling. In mild weather this heater will hold fire for several days All with very little attention. Users generally need to start a fire but once a season.

Regulation of heat is governed by a simple adjustment of drafts. Because it holds fire so well and so long, the home where it is used is warm every morning. Because of this feature the stove has been named Warm Morning One who has struggled on a cold morning to build a fire can well appreciate the significance of the name.

Along with the standard models which hold 100 pounds of coal, there is a larger heater with nearly 200 lb coal capacity made especially for heating schools, churches, lodge halls and warehouses —Adv.

Funeral Services Held Monday For Little Joan Joyce Priebe

LITTLE GIRL DIED FRIDAY EVENING AT IOWA CITY

Daughter Of Mr. And Mrs. Verner Priebe Had Been Ill Long Time

Funeral services for little Joan Joyce, three year and four months old daughter of Mr and Mrs. Verner Priebe Klemme farmers, were held Monday afternoon at 2 00 o'clock at the Immanuel Reformed Church of Klemme Arrangements were in charge of the Wellemeyer Funeral Service The rites were conducted by Rev Calvin Grosshuesch, pastor

A mixed quartett provided the music

Interment was in the Ell Township Cemetery near Klemme, and the little girl was borne to her last resting place by Ardell Rosendahl, Harlan Nuehring, Edward Barz and Marvin Rosendahl

The obituary is furnished through the courtesy of the Wellemeyer Funeral Service

Joan Joyce Priebe

Joan Joyce, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Verner Priebe, was born July 21st, 1938. She was brought to Holy Baptism by her parents August 21st of the same year

During the first two years of her life, little Joan, the very picture of health, brought joy and sunshine into the life and home of her parents

A year or more ago the little child showed signs of illness and since September first of this year it became evident that her ailment was of a serious nature. Her parents consulted medical specialists and did everything humanly possible to have her health restored

About two weeks ago, while at the Iowa City hospital, her true ailment was discovered, namely Meningitis and a bone infection An operation was performed November 5th and it seemed that she might recover, and then suddenly her condition became worse until God relieved her of all suffering when she was called to her Eternal Home at eight o'clock, Friday evening, November 21st, 1941 at the age of three years and four months

The little child bore her severe suffering patiently and bravely.

Surviving and mourning her untimely death are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Verner Priebe, one brother, Carroll Verner; and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Priebe, and Mrs. Louise Rosendahl.

CHRISTMAS SEALS WENT IN MAILS HERE MONDAY

Approximately 110 residents of Klemme have received letters containing Christmas Seals as the 35th Annual Christmas Seal Campaign got under way here Monday Already returns are being received.

The Christmas Seals which went on sale Monday are not distributed by the Red Cross, but by the National Tuberculosis Association, Mrs. Martha Bredbenner, chairman for the Christmas Seal in Klemme said today in clarifying an apparent misunderstanding.

In 1920 by mutual agreement she explained, the alliance made several years earlier between the two organizations was dissolved Since then the bouble-barred cross has appeared on all National Tuberculosis Association Seals, which are now known as "Tuberculosis Christmas Seals" This cross is the official emblem of the international crusade against tuberculosis

She further stated that these local early purchases are encouraging, and if they indicate the trend correctly, sufficient funds should be obtained for next year's tuberculosis prevention program

CANDLE LIGHT CEREMONY IS VERY BEAUTIFUL

Merlin Neuberger And Bride Will Make Home On Farm

The Klemme Methodist Church was the scene of a beautiful candle light wedding ceremony Sunday evening, November 23rd, 1941 at seven o'clock when Miss Marcele Blumer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Blumer of Liberty township, became the bride of Mr. Merlin Neuberger, son of Mr and Mrs. John Neuberger of east of Klemme

Rev Herschel E. Harvey, pastor of the local church, used the single ring ceremony in uniting the young couple in the holy bonds of matrimony

Rev Harvey sang "I Love You Truly," and was accompanied on the piano by Miss Lois Reimer, who also played Lohrengrin's wedding march and the recessional by Mendelssohn.

The Bride was attended by Miss Mildred Blumer, her sister as the Maid of Honor, and two Bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Neuberger, sister of the Groom, and Miss Margie Blumer, neice of the Groom and cousin of the Bride

Catherine Halfpop, a close friend of the Bride, was the flower girl.

Wm Neuberger, brother of the Groom was Best Man, and the ushers were Roy Baack, Curtis Waddingham, Ardel Waddingham and Paul Jahnke.

The Bride wore a dress of slipper satin, designed with a sweet heart neck-line, with imported lace insets down the back and her veil was coronet style of seed pearls and orange blossoms, finger-tip length net with lace matching the dress She wore a necklace of pearls a gift of the Groom, and carried a bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses and white sweet peas tied with white satin ribbons.

The attendents, Miss Neuberger, wore an aqua blue crepe dress with an orchid coronet in her hair Miss Mildred Blumer wore a dress of pink net over taffeta, and Miss Margie Blumer wore a peach crepe gown with a peach coronet in her hair The attending ladies all wore shoulder bouquets of Sweetheart roses and white baby 'mums, tied with pink ribbons and carried lace handkerchiefs, gifts from the Bride. Miss Halfpop wore a dress of blue taffeta trimmed with lace and carried a basket of flowers, which she threw in the path of the Bride.

The Groom and Best Man wore suits of dark blue. Their boutonniers were of orange blossoms which were worn by their parents at their wedding nearly 46 years ago

A dinner reception was served to eighty guests in the dining room of the church following the ceremony The room was decorated in pink and white, and the tables lighted with candles

A three-tier cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Ben Reimer, served as a center-piece.

The waitresses were Ruth Fiddler, Doris Pringnitz, Mable Thieman, Nerna Pringnitz, Lois and Lola Gast, Ivadelle and Betty Blumer.

The Bride has taught school in Hancock County for the past three years. The Groom has been farming with his father the last few years on the farm five miles east of town, where the young couple will make their home as Mr. and Mrs. Neuberger will retire and move to Klemme.

HELP DECORATE THE STREETS!

The day after Thanksgiving, which is Friday of this week has been named as the day to put up Christmas decorations on the Main Street in Klemme.

Each business firm is expected to furnish at least one man to help with the work of putting up the lights, trimming the electroliers, and helping with any other decorating.

It's Friday, this week!

Aristocracy of Farm and Ranch Gather In Bid for Top Honors at Live Stock Show

(Special to Western Newspaper Union.)

CHICAGO. — Aristocracy of farm and ranch will foregather in a spectacular display at America's largest live stock and farm show, the International Live Stock Exposition, held this year November 29 to December 6 in the International amphitheater at the Chicago Stock Yards.

Famous throughout the world, the show celebrates its 42nd anniversary as the country's premier showing of the meat-making breeds of live stock, draft and pleasure horses, and farm crops. Under present conditions, it also takes world precedence for size and importance among all events of this kind.

Officials of the exposition report that earlier predictions that the total number of animals to be exhibited this year would exceed the 12,000 mark have been realized with the closing of entries. A final tally of the exhibits discloses a huge increase over last year's entry.

It is reported that an all-time record entry has been set for three principal breeds of beef cattle that will be featured—the Shorthorn, the Hereford, and the Aberdeen-Angus, which yield the main supply of the nation's finest meats.

Swine Exhibits Large.

There are also big increases in the swine exhibits this year, with six of the eight breeds in this division showing large advances over 1940, and the total is the highest in many years. The draft horse entry of approximately 400 head, and the sheep entry of nearly 1,000 head, compare closely with the showing in these two departments at the 1940 show.

Visitors at the coming exposition will see 1,000 or more of the finest horses of this country and Canada which will include ton weight draft horses of five different breeds as well as riding and driving horses that will be exhibited in the famous International Horse show which will be held every evening and on four afternoons during the eight-day run of the exposition.

Owners of the leading stables of three and five gaited saddle horses, harness horses and ponies, and roadster horses have listed their finest specimens for these competitions. Each of the International Horse Show programs will also feature trick riding and driving performances, a demonstration of sheep herding by the national champion sheep dog, parades of prize-winning draft horses and beef cattle, led by a kilty-clad band of bagpipers, plus the thunderous paces of huge six-in-hands of draft horses, shown by the packers and brewers.

Illinois Top Entries.

Illinois leads all of the 35 states and Canada from which entries are received, the management announces. Prospective exhibitors from 60 Illinois counties have registered entries. Iowa is second among all the states in county representation, with entries from 51 counties, followed by Indiana with exhibits to come from 33 counties.

All past records have been far surpassed in the number of prime steers, lambs, and pigs exhibited in the junior classes of the show by farm boys and girls from 10 to 20 years old. The entry is over 700 head, an increase of nearly 50 per cent over any past year. A tribute to the skill of these young people is the spectacular success of one of their number at each of the past three successive shows, when the grand champion steer over all breeds was exhibited on two occasions by a girl and once by a boy, all under 18 years old; and six times within the past 13 years the grand champion steer has been exhibited by youths under 21.

Above at left is shown Lucille Rhende, Sheldon, Ill., with her champion Angus steer at the 1941 Illinois state fair, which is entered in competition at this Live Stock Exposition. At right above is another 1941 entry, Herbert Rees, Pleasantville, Iowa, winner of championship at the Iowa state fair this year. At right below is last year's "Corn King," Charles Fischer of Shelbyville, Ind. His "crown" and that of all former winners are again at stake in this year's record entry show in Chicago.

The 12,000 or more animals that will be exhibited this year by owners from nearly every state in the Union and province of Canada will compete for awards that carry with them more than $100,000 in cash prizes. It will require the services of 65 of the continent's leading live stock, horse show, and farm crops authorities to name the winners.

Canadians Will Judge.

Chief judging task goes to W. L. Carlyle, noted Canadian stockman of Calgary, Alta., and to J. Charles Yule of Carstairs, Alta., who will together judge the individual steer classes consisting of well over a thousand entries.

Mr. Carlyle was formerly head of the animal husbandry department at the University of Wisconsin and was successively dean of the Colorado, Oklahoma, and Idaho State agricultural colleges. He is now manager of the duke of Windsor's Canadian ranch near Calgary.

Mr. Yule is well known to American stockmen as the judge of the steer classes at the International show last year.

The climax of their work, after three days of preliminary judging, will be the naming of the grand champion steer from among the thousand or more beeves that will be shown for this honor by scores of cattle experts, young and old.

It will be the third time in the past 40 years that a Canadian has judged the steer classes at Chicago. At all other times, cattle experts from England, Scotland and South America have officiated.

Six other Canadians will act as judges this year, five in the sheep classes of the exposition, and one in the small grain classes of the International Grain and Hay show, the latter ranking as the world's largest competitive farm crops show. This feature is being held for the twenty-third time in connection with the Chicago exposition.

Grain and Hay Show.

The crops contest annually attracts a showing of several thousand samples of the current year's harvests in competitive classes that include corn, small grain, seed and hay. Growers of the championship crop samples in each division are named "Kings" of that particular crop for the year. Officials of this division announce that championship exhibitors will be guests of honor of the exposition at a banquet for champion growers to be given at the Saddle and Sirloin club, famous stockmen's club at the Chicago Stock Yards.

Farm youth will take an important part in the programs of the opening week-end. As a pre-opening event, championship teams of boys and girls from 20 or more states will compete on Friday, November 28, in a Junior Live Stock Judging contest, in which finalist winners in state-wide judging contests earlier in the season will compete for national honors. The contestants will all be either 4-H or Future Farmers of America club members of high school age.

The Chicago Association of Commerce will award three agricultural college scholarships to the three highest ranking individual participants in this contest; and one of the large Chicago packers will present $100 scholarships to the three individuals who score highest in judging cattle, sheep and swine.

A similar contest is being staged for teams of agricultural college students. Last year 31 state agricultural colleges sent teams to compete in this event which has been a feature of the International Live Stock exposition since the initial show in 1900. A great many of the leading live stock judges and live stock farmers of the present day obtained their first actual judging experience in training for and competing in these contests.

4-H Club Congress.

For the past 19 years, the National 4-H Club congress has been held annually in connection with the Chicago show. A permanent 4-H Club building stands adjacent to the International Amphitheater at the Chicago Stock Yards, where the winning state exhibits in 4-H work will be on display during the week of the exposition.

It is anticipated that 1,450 farm boys and girls from 45 states will take part in the Twentieth National congress, representing top winners of the current year in state-wide contests in which 1,420,000 rural youths, now engaged in 4-H work, participated in the preliminaries.

They will visit Chicago on free all-expense trips to compete in contests that will determine whom among them will be the national champions of the current year in 4-H accomplishment. According to officials of the congress, 11 national contests are planned this year.

Most of these events will be judged during the opening week-end of the show, and the winners will be introduced to exposition visitors at the International Horse show. At this time, the entire congress delegation and their leaders, numbering over 1,600, will parade.

Leading them will be a team of eight ton-weight draft horses, featuring four matched pairs of geldings, each symbolic of the four-fold club standard: "Head—Heart—Hands—and Health."

Highlighting the procession and ceremony will be two 4-H bands, one from Douglas county, Nebraska, consisting of 60 members who have completed their fourth season of concert work—the other from Calumet county, Wisconsin, a band of about the same size that has been organized for 10 years.

New features of the 1941 congress will include a 4-H wool exhibit of fleeces produced in sheep and lamb projects, and a Boys' Sheep Shearing contest. This event will be open to any youth under 21 years old who has had some previous shearing experience. It will be held as an adjunct to the National Sheep Shearing contest, which has been a feature of the Chicago show for the past four years.

Sheep Shearing Title.

Top professional shearers and amateurs from all parts of the country annually compete in this event for the national shearing title. Awards are made on the basis of speed, plus efficiency in handling sheep and fleece, and absence of cuts.

The International sales of prime beeves, lambs and hogs are famous sources of supply for the choice meat cuts in demand for the holiday trade. Hotels, restaurants, the railroads, and clubs, the country over, are the principal buyers.

Here's a youth a mile too young to have an entry in this year's exposition but he's busy helping his father, Allan Atlanson of Wilson, Ill., get a pure-bred Shorthorn ready for competition representing the Edellyn Farms, one of Illinois' 1941 record entries.

Scrap Iron on Farms Sought for 'Defense'

WASHINGTON —The department of agriculture has announced that farmers throughout the country will be asked to sell their scrap metal for use in defense production.

Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard has requested U. S. department of agriculture defense boards in each state to make plans for their states immediately and enlist in the county defense boards in the effort.

"The National Defense program is seriously threatened by actual and impending shortages of iron and steel scrap," Mr. Wickard said. "In addition, civilian shortages of steel including metal for farm implements and parts needed by farmers will be more severe if steel mills cannot be kept running at capacity. Farms have long been one of the most important sources of scrap metal. Therefore it is a patriotic duty to see that the scrap should be made available for use," added the secretary.

BRITISH AND U. S. POLICY

U. S. diplomats are not shouting it from the housetops, but there have been two important occasions when the British put a very restraining hand on American foreign policy, and checked major moves in the South Atlantic and the Pacific.

One move was last May when it became conclusively apparent that the Vichy government was the tool of Hitler and when many U. S. strategists favored the taking of Martinique and the Azores, and perhaps even a landing force at Dakar in French West Africa.

But the Churchill government protested that this would take U. S. ships away from transporting supplies to the Battle of Britain; would focus American attention upon another part of the world. So Roosevelt kept out of the South Atlantic.

The second move was about two weeks ago when Mr. Churchill telephoned the President to advise against any showdown with the Japanese in the Pacific. His advice came shortly after the new pro-Nazi cabinet took office in Tokyo. Churchill urged that the battle in Europe was the main show and the United States should not get absorbed with side-shows.

Regarding this Churchill advice, there continues to be a wide rift inside the Roosevelt administration. And incidentally, there is not complete unity on this point inside the British government. Australian sentiment leans toward a cleaning up of the Pacific situation, after which all parts of the British Empire, plus perhaps the United States, could concentrate on Europe.

Rift in Administration.

Inside the Roosevelt administration, the men who urge a go-slow policy toward Japan are Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations, and the state department. On the other side are many of the other admirals, including Admiral Ernest King, commander of the Atlantic fleet, who says he can get along in the Atlantic merely with his present consignment of destroyers and light cruisers, which are all that are needed for convoying.

The first big point of the "strong policy" admirals is that every day of delay weakens the Russians, and the Russians are the big potential allies of the United States against Japan. With Russian bombing planes operating from Vladivostok against the paper and bamboo houses of Tokyo and Yokohama, the Japanese would be up against it.

The second big point urged by these admirals is one which not many people realize: When the United States went into the last war, Japan was on our side. There was no need to worry about the Pacific. But this time, the minute the U.S.A. becomes embroiled in Europe, it has to guard its back door against a traditional and very potent rival.

Therefore, argues the Pacific school within the navy, let's face our enemies one by one rather than have two jumping on us later and from opposite directions.

There is nothing the navy dreads more than the idea of attack in two oceans at once—attacks aimed at Alaska on one side and Brazil on the other. That is why some of the admirals so resent the phone calls from Winston Churchill.

U. S. DESTROYERS

The submarine situation which forced the Reuben James and now threatens all U. S. destroyers in the North Atlantic, is far different from that of the last war.

Today, German submarines operate in gangs or wolfpacks of three to five, lurking in the path of a convoy, and without putting their periscopes out of the water. They do not even run their engines. Thus the approaching destroyer cannot pick up the subs with its sound detector, but the subs, on the other hand, can hear the engines of the approaching convoy.

Then when the convoy is within range, the subs release their torpedoes, sometimes blind. In other words, they do not lift their periscopes but frequently fire merely in the direction of the approaching engines. Because convoys travel so close together these days, hits are almost certain.

Submarines fire blind chiefly in the daylight. At night, on the other hand, when the submarine cannot be seen, it comes to the surface.

This is one reason for the increased number of merchant vessel casualties since September, for as the nights became longer, U-boats have longer hours to operate on the surface.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Says an official in the Finnish legation, "Eighty-five per cent of my people desire the defeat of Germany—but 100 per cent desire the defeat of Russia!"

Peru's air attache in Washington, Col. Armando Revoredo, cried "To hell with the Good Neighbor policy" when Uncle Sam requisitioned Peru's 18 bombing planes. But actually he is a good friend of the U.S.A., was responsible for changing Peru's aviation instruction from Italian to American.

'They Got Me Covered' Is Funniest Book of Year

A NEW all-around champion has been crowned in the entertainment world. He is Bob Hope. Not satisfied with being rated tops on the radio, Number One in screen box office receipts, he is author of one of the nation's best sellers, which just about nails down this triple crown for Bob. "They Got Me Covered," Hope's autobiography, has been claimed by critics and readers alike as one of the year's funniest books. It is a hilarious story, in narrative form, of Bob Hope's life, generously illustrated with photographs, in addition to having cartoons depicting scenes from his life.

The book is now available at drug and department stores throughout America at 10 cents per copy with the purchase of a Pepsodent product. This low price is possible because the sale of the book has been sponsored by the Pepsodent Company.—Adv.

Removal of Stains From Fabric

Perhaps Dad's best shirt has been inadvertently scorched in ironing; perhaps sister's white tennis shorts are suffering from grass stains; perhaps Junior's white flannels annexed grease stains while their owner struggled with an automobile that wouldn't start. And Mother herself may have a stained-fabric problem. Here then are a few "first aids."

FOR SCORCH

If the scorched fabric is washable, and if the scorch is slight, soap and water will remove it. The spot may be wet with water, or soap and water, and exposed to the sun for a day, or longer if necessary. Sometimes scorch will disappear if the fabric is merely exposed to the sun, provided the scorch is not deep. If the emergency is great, and the article needed at once to wear, it may be rubbed lightly with a cloth dampened in a bleaching agent or with hydrogen peroxide, though these will of course lighten the color if the garment is of a colored material. Prefer to use them only on white goods. Sometimes hot water, or hot water and lemon juice, poured through the stain will remove it, but the water must be very hot.

FOR GRASS STAINS

If the material is washable, grass stains may be removed by hot water and soap, rubbing the stain vigorously. If a trace of the stain remains, use a bleach for which lemon juice will usually serve.

FOR GREASE OR OILS

Brush off any dust or dirt that may adhere to the fabric. After brushing, any one of three possible methods of removal may be used: (1) wash in soap and warm water to remove the grease; (2) absorb the grease by the application of dry substances; (3) use some sort of solvent.

If soap and water are used, soaps containing naphtha or kerosene will be found effective, and the spots must be rubbed thoroughly. Among the absorbents that may be used are corn meal, white talcum powder, powdered magnesia, fuller's earth, brown paper or blotting paper. In using blotting paper or brown paper, place a thickness below the stain and one above it and iron with a hot iron, changing the paper as it becomes soiled. In using magnesia, corn meal or other dry absorbent, spread it thickly over the spot and leave until it is impregnated with the grease; repeat as many times as necessary. The use of solvents is difficult since it frequently results in a "ring." Place a pad of clean cloth or a white blotter beneath the stain and sponge with a clean cloth—preferably of the same material as the garment—moistened with the solvent. Use small quantities of the solvent and work toward the center of the stain. It helps to surround the stain with some absorbent material such as those mentioned above, before beginning the use of the solvent.

FOR TEA AND COFFEE STAINS

Fresh coffee stains, and most old ones, can be removed by ordinary laundering, followed by drying in the sun, or by the use of an ordinary bleach. For coffee stains on silk or wool, sponge with cold or lukewarm water. If a grease spot remains, from cream in the coffee, remove with a solvent. Tea stains, when fresh, are easily removed by laundering. If they have persisted for some time, more drastic measures are required, such as boiling in a strong soap-solution made in the proportion of a half-inch cube of soap to each cup of water. If the stains are kept wet with lemon juice and exposed to the sun for a day or two they will nearly or quite disappear.

FOR FRUIT STAINS

If the stain is on white or fast-color material, stretch it over a suitable container, fasten it with an elastic band, and pour boiling water upon it from a height of three or four feet so that the water strikes the stain with force. Whatever stain remains after this treatment will bleach out if the article is hung in the sun to dry. For an old stain, which does not respond readily to the hot water treatment, moisten with lemon juice and expose to hot sunlight.

PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES

Attack any stain as soon as it is made. The longer it is left, the harder it will be to remove.

For information concerning the removal of a very large number of stains, send five cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Farmers' Bulletin No. 1474.

ROSE PLANTING

Dig the plants carefully to prevent mutilation of their root systems; keep the roots moist until the plants are reset; make the holes in which they are planted large enough to receive the roots, spread in a natural position; do not allow either manure or commercial fertilizer to come into direct contact with the roots; spread the roots well, with rich, crumbly soil between them; see that the soil is not too wet, and that it is firmly compacted about the roots of the plants.

Wool and Fur Combinations Make Stunning New Outfits

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WITH surpassing artistry and craftsmanship American designers are setting a new high in costume design. Especially are our American style creators doing themselves proud in the campus, town and country ensembles which they create of gorgeous colorful wool and stunning fur.

Not only do the costumes pictured redound to the glory of American designers but there is fascination and patriotic thrill in the thought that the fur, American opossum, which is combined with the beautiful wools of these stunning costumes, is itself decidedly all-American.

The possibilities presented in this new alliance of wool with opossum are endless. Not only is opossum a flattering young fur when used for general utility costumes, but through scientific skill it has also been made available for dressy daytime and evening wear as well as for all-purpose wear.

A beautifully cut coat is shown to the left in the group. The exquisitely colorful wool stripe of which it is made speaks for itself. Now that fashion is advocating color, women are going in wholeheartedly for coats that add a bold dash of color glory to the winter landscape. The soft front fullness achieved by skillful manipulation of the stripes is decidedly effective. The wide notched collar and cuffs of natural American opossum are perfect with the subtle blue, lavender and pink in the tweed.

When one invests in a three-piece outfit as perfectly ensembled as the handsome model shown to the right, she has underwritten for herself a feeling that wherever she goes she is sure to be among the best dressed. This important ensemble for town carries an air of matchless distinction. The suit is a masterpiece of fine tailoring. The three-quarter length cape of American opossum with striped tweed to match the suit will carry through triumphantly as a wrap to wear through the winter with daytime frocks and party dress as well. A sure, safe, sound and sane investment, this, that will pay big dividends in chic, charm and self-gratification.

Centered in the picture is another example of the intrigue and glamour expressed in the alliance of bright wool with smart fur. The coat is lined with a plaid wool in glowing high color to match the hood and blouse. When thrown back the hood forms a colorfully lined collar. The jacket and skirt pick up two of the colors in the plaid. Mittens too, if you please, of matching fur!

If your new wool ensemble happens to be of wool in the now-so-fashionable magenta color, and if it is without fur, you will look very smart if you carry with it a stunning huge muff of opossum, and, of course, there must be a hat of the same fur to wear with it. The hat and muff twosome is an accessory combination especially cited among topnotch fashions.

Colors highlighted in wools this season especially stress browns and dark greens. The new bright blue is the talk of the town. With furs it is outstanding in any fashionable gathering. Amethyst tones and purples also are being played up to heights of distinction in wools, their beauty accentuated with handsome amethyst jewelry and sumptuous furs.

Crocheting Has a Gay Fashion Role

Crocheters, now is your big moment. Crocheting is rising to dizzy heights of style prestige this season. It is nothing less than astonishing to see what novel and intriguing costume accents can be achieved with crocheting. This new enthusiasm for crocheting is "going big" with leading designers everywhere who are bringing new artistry and imagination into the field of crochet design.

One of the most fascinating gestures noted this season is that the new longer length heralded for the smartest vividly colorful suede or fabric gloves is being achieved by either gauntlet or mosquetaire tops done in simple crocheting decorated with tiny crocheted flowers or tiny ruffles that finish the top edge and then go meandering down the glove.

Wool suits and dresses are cunningly detailed with pockets crocheted of yarn in either a matching or a contrasting color. A crocheted patch pocket embroidered in your monogram will add a thrilling touch to your long middy-like jersey sweater.

Other ideas include a border of crocheting that widens the brim of your gay colored felt hat. Add a bag and belt with related crocheted detail. Cover big button molds with plain crocheting adorned with an applique of crocheted flowers. Designers are also bringing genius to play in the crocheting of scarfs and triangular head coverings. In fact, there is no end to the charming and unique uses now being made of crocheting.

Silk Jersey

Here is a perfectly charming dinner gown made of silk jersey that combines sun tan beige for the blouse with black jersey for the skirt. The skirt is subtly draped in the new long sleek lines so popular this season. Note the new, long dolman sleeves. A wonderful black cire felt turban has superfine sheer black lace veiling arranged over its crown, the ends brought down and fastened under her chin. Gold buttons adorn the blouse.

THE PRIVATE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma—

Every day they are checking out a bunch of us refugees from soft beds under them new rules releasing jeeps who are married, or 28 years old, or needed at home, but they are still passing me up like I was the army's choice for permanent K P duty. I look and feel more like a hardship case than most of the crumb hunters who are being released and I keep telling the officers that I am no more use to the army than if I was married on account of I am in love.

* * *

Every time I argue that I am needed at home they just laugh at me so I gess they must have investigated and found out that I always let you and pop bring up the coal and wood and was not no help to speak of. When I think of how I used to squawk about tending the furnace it makes me sick all over. Believe me ma if I ever get out of this and back in my own home I will think it a priverlage to tend the furnace.

* * *

It makes me soar to see a lot of boys being released every day. But they certainly get checked up on and three days before they go they get a complete going over by the doctors again. I can't figure this out unless they want to be sure no jeep gets out of the army in any better shape than he was when he came in. I asked Sergeant Mooney and he said it was the rules that every soldier must be exactly like he was when he was accepted. He said one reason why I could not get out was that I was in such lousy shape when I reached camp that it would be impossible for a army to ever get me back in the same condition again.

Otto Bixby thought he was going to be released and he was all set and everything but after the medical inspection he was told he wood have to stay in the army. The records of admission showed he had four teeth missing when he got in and they don't check with the fact he has six missing now. They won't accept his explanashun how he lost the other two.

They just finished a big athletic field for us at this camp and we got a regimental football team on witch I am trying out for the reserves. In the first scrimmage I got a sprained ankul, two broken toes, a dislocated arm, a soar back and two teeth knocked out but I still do not feel no worse after it all than I do when I get back from a manoover.

CHRISTIAN LOVE

LESSON TEXT—John 13:34, 35; I Corinthians 13:1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT—We love him, because he first loved us.—I John 4:19.

Many important things enlist the interest of the Christian, but we need to beware lest we neglect what Jesus declared to be the first and great commandment—that we love God; and its necessary sequel—that we love our neighbor. If love is forgotten (and who can deny that it often is in our day?), the very foundations are shaken. We need a revival of Christian love.

I. Love—A Mark of Discipleship (John 13 34, 35).

Do you want to know whether a man is a Christian? Find out whether he loves his brethren. Such is the test Jesus gives in these verses.

1. Commanded. It is the will and purpose of God that the followers of Christ should have a real love for one another. It is not to be a matter of impulse or chance, but the love God has for us should constrain us to love one another. Thus is love.

2. Exemplified. God has loved us. He does love us. How infinitely much is wrapped up in these simple words! He even gave His Son to die for us because He loved us (John 3 16). How then can we withhold our love from Him and from one another?

II. Love—A Christian Grace (I Cor. 13).

In a world where hatred prevails, and is in fact glorified, this chapter needs to be read and reread. We find that love is

1. Essential (vv. 1-3). Life has many excellent gifts and men quite properly seek after them. How do they compare with love, and what do they amount to apart from love? Glowing, angelic eloquence; the far-seeing eye of the prophet; the attainments of knowledge and culture; mountain-moving faith; liberal-hearted charity; martyr-like self-sacrifice—without love they are all as nothing. Apart from Christ and His love operating in our hearts and lives the worthiest attainments of men are vain and empty. Love is the very essence of a satisfying and useful life.

2. Effective (vv. 4-7). Does love really work, or is this just a fine-sounding but obsolete theory? It works.

Think of the things in life which irritate and depress us; then put opposite them the qualities of Christian love as given in verses 4 to 7, and you will agree that what this world needs most of all is love.

Remember that talking about love or reading about it or studying it in the Sunday school will not make it effective. We must put it into practice. Why not start now? You will be surprised at the results.

3. Eternal (vv. 8, 12). Many gifts are only temporary in their usefulness; in fact, almost everything that man makes or does (apart from his service for God) is transient. Even so vital a matter as prophecy shall one day find its end in fulfillment. Hope shall eventually find its longing expectation satisfied. Faith will be justified in seeing what it has believed. Childish things will be put away by the full-grown man, knowledge will increase and darkness disappear.

But love—love is eternal. It never fails, and will never fail. God is love and God is eternal. From all eternity and unto all eternity love continues. Therefore, we agree with Paul who in the verse preceding this chapter (I Cor. 12:31) says that while you may covet the best gifts, here is the more excellent way—love.

Let us be clear about this. Love is not a substitute for regeneration, and certainly regeneration is no excuse for lack of love. Read John 13: 34, 35 again and remember that if we are Christ's disciples we will count it a high privilege to keep this first and great commandment of love.

Dependence on God

Poverty in any shape helps to stir in man a sense of need, a disposition to consider himself as dependent . . . The real puzzle of life consists not in the fact of widespread poverty but in that of widespread affluence; in the fact that so many are sufficiently endowed with "goods" as to believe they can live by them, and so cease to look for their true life to God their Father.—E. Lyttleton.

Death Becomes Transparent

And so the empty tomb becomes the symbol of a thoroughfare between life in time and life in the unshadowed presence of our God. Death is now like a short tunnel which is near my home; I can look through it and see the other side! In the risen Lord death becomes transparent. "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"—Dr. J. D. Jowett.

ITS TIME TO START FEEDING OUR FEATHERED FRIENDS

With cold weather definitely assured in North Iowa, it is again time that we turn our attention to making cold winter days more cheerful for our little feathered friends, the birds, who are staying with us to help bring cheer on dreary days.

Hang pieces of suet or fat in the trees and bushes near your home and see how quickly the birds will discover it. They need a bit of fat to keep their tiny bodies warm on zero days and nights. Snow will soon cover the ground and also the bits of seeds that the birds must have, so the birds will again appreciate their human friends who build a feeding platform where bread crums and other tid-bits can be placed A box or a simple shelf in a sheltered place will do for a feeding station.

Soon you will have many kinds of birds visiting your yard to feast on the crumbs and fat you have put out for them You will be delighted watch the busy little chickadee and hear his cheerful chirping; the gaily colored cardinal may pay you a visit, and you will be sure to see many downy woodpeckers getting their dessert of suet after a busy search for dead insects under the bark on a nearby tree The saucy bluejay will also come for his share at your feeding station as well as the nuthatches and the pesky sparrow

Feed the birds and help yourself to a more joyful winter.

OLD "BLACKIE" VICTIM OF AN AUTOMOBILE

Our friend, "Old Blackie" the Canadian squirrel who made the trees in Klemme his home ,came to a sad end a couple of weeks ago when he was evidently struck by a car while crossing the street We found "Old Blackie" lying cold and motionless in the street and could not help but feel a tinge of sadness as we had learned to regard him as a friend

"Old Blackie" was well known all over town for his unusual black body He was larger than the common red or fox squirrel He was identified as a Canadian Black quirrel and was a long way from his native north woods.

When we first saw "Old Blackie" he was quite reserved and dignified and seemingly did not care to make our acquaintance However, he weakened when we began to offer him nuts and he soon came to know us better and would come to within a few feet of where we stood

"Old Blackie" made the rounds every day and the whole town was his "stamping ground" We miss he old boy!

WHY ARE AMERICANS SO CHANGEABLE?

We can remember that it is not so long ago that we Americans were sitting on the side-lines rooting for the Finns when they were being invaded by the Russians. Remember? How we applauded the game little country when they had the Red Russians practically licked to a standstill until the hordes became too many for the game Finns to stave off any longer, and we felt genuinely sorrow for them

Our daily newspapers were then showing cartoons depicting Stalin with his hands dripping blood and crushing the Finns in his strong bloody grip. The Finns were defeated and the cartoonists soon forgot the Finns and turned to other fields. We soon forgot all about the little country who never forgot us when pay day rolled around

The scene changes and in our desire to see Hitler crushed we Americans are again back on the side-lines watching another game This time the Reds are the ones who we Americans are rooting for and doing everything we can so that they can win the game against Adolph and his thundering herd of murderers!

And because little Finnland is causing Russia a lot of grief up on the north end of the line of play, we want the referee to do something about it. We want the "ref" to rule the Finns out of the game so Red Stalin can have a free hand to knock Hitler off the map.

It just don't quite make sense this rooting for one "team" and then turning right around and giving them the "razzberries."

At any rate, although we are now backing Russia to the limit, let us not forget the Finns. We Americans must see to it that they get a square deal, if and when they make an armistice with Russia

We perhaps all agree that even though we don't love the Russian system of government, we should give them all the aid we can with tanks, planes and ammunition Every day that Stalin holds back the Nazis is just one day further away from war for our boys. We don't want American soldiers to have to fight another foreign war.

So America sits on the side-lines and cheers the Russians to victory

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving was first observed in 1621 The first Thanksgiving was observed by the Pilgrims to show their thankfulness for the blessing of the closing year

Thanksgiving was observed on the last Thursday of November until a few year ago when it was changed to a week earlier

Most of us think of Thanksgiving as a day to be excused from school and a day of turkey and plenty of food We really forget the real purpose of Thanksgiving When we think of all the blessing we have had in the past year haven't we all a great deal to be thankful for?

REPORT CARDS

Report Cards go out again this week Do all of us understand the purpose of report cards? It is check-up on the children, for the benefit of the parents The school and parents are working together to educate the children, thus making better men and women of them

The parents should follow closely the progress made by their children and if not satisfactory should come to school and consult the teachers.

We found out what we didn't know this week by having six weeks tests. We are really going to study hard the next six weeks.

The girls made simple luncheon desserts Wednesday in Home Economics class. We have just about completed luncheons and suppers.

In English I we gave oral announcements Some of them were clever and we made the rest of the school wonder what we were doing, because we were laughing and making so much noise. We are studying the planning and explanation of outlines for themes.

We got our pictures back this week and many of us wonder if we really look like them.

We are still studying about being salesmen, selling in business in Business Training.

KLEMME SHAMROCKS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER WITH BELMOND BRONCS

The Klemme Shamrocks opened the season on the local court with a double header basket ball game that was equally divided

The Belmond reserves won the curtain riser 19 to 18

In a rather ragged first game for both the Shamrocks and the Broncs in which both teams showed flashes of good ball handling the Shamrocks nosed out the visitors 19 to 17

The Shamrocks got off to a comfortable lead which they maintained up to the final quarter when the Broncs tied it up 17 all With only two minutes remaining, Jacobs slipped in the winning basket on a close shot and the Shamrocks put on a stalling offense to finish the game

Chicken a la King for Fifty

(See Recipes Below)

Church Supper Ideas

What is so gay as a grand, big get-together full of informal fun, the hum of pleasant conversation and plenty of good food thrown into the bargain? A church supper, of course!

The fun will take care of itself and the food—well, almost if you get the right amount of it, for the cooking's as simple as only simple can be Chicken's a treat any way you serve it, but very easy to prepare and serve if you do it this time-tried, old-fashioned, favorite way ladled out of a big kettle with plenty of cream sauce onto feathery light hot biscuits:

Chicken or Turkey a la King.
(Serves 50)

4 4-pound chickens, stewed, then cut meat into pieces
Or
1 18-pound turkey, stewed or roasted, meat diced
1 pound fat (chicken or turkey fat and butter mixed)
4 cups flour
2 gallons scalded milk
1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 large cans
2 tablespoons minced onion
1½ teaspoons or more salt
¾ teaspoon white pepper
1½ teaspoons paprika
2 sweet green peppers, chopped (optional)
2 pimientos, chopped (optional)
½ cup egg yolks (6 eggs)

Melt about three-fourths of the fat, add the flour, and blend thoroughly; add scalded milk, stirring rapidly with a wire whisk to keep well mixed. Cook until starch taste is gone—about 10 minutes Cook the mushrooms, sliced, in remaining fat, until delicately browned and add to sauce with the onion Beat egg yolks and mix with a small amount of the hot mixture to blend and add to the sauce, stirring thoroughly Cook 4 or 5 minutes more. Add turkey meat. Season to taste (with paprika and pepper mixed into salt). Add peppers and pimiento, if used. Serve on hot biscuits.

The simplest way to prepare the chickens is to cook them in seasoned water, to which a small onion, 2 carrots and a small bunch of celery are added. Chickens are handled best if disjointed and the breast and back sections cut into convenient-sized pieces.

Baking Powder Biscuits.
(Serves 50)

4 pounds flour
⅔ cup double-acting baking powder
2 tablespoons salt
1 pound shortening (2½ cups)
5 cups milk

Sift the dry ingredients together, add fat and mix lightly. Make a well in the center and add the milk

THIS WEEK'S MENU

*Chicken a la King
*Scalloped Potatoes
*Sunset Salad
Bread and Butter
Assorted Cakes
*Coffee

*Recipe given

Mix just until the dough holds together. Divide dough into fourths and make ¼ at a time. Roll on a floured board, pat to ½ inch thickness, cut and place on baking sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in a hot (450 degree) oven until golden brown.

Scalloped Potatoes.
(Serves 50)

10 pounds (6 quarts) sliced potatoes
2 quarts hot milk
½ cup flour
1½ cups butter
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon pepper

Peel potatoes before weighing Before measuring, peel and slice If large, cut in two lengthwise before slicing Into six baking dishes put a layer of potato, then a slight layer of flour, and repeat until all potatoes are used. Dissolve salt, pepper and butter in hot milk. Pour over potatoes, cover and cook in slow oven for 1½ hours or until done

Best idea for a salad is this one that's made in advance and needs only to be sliced and placed on lettuce leaves for serving It's as gay and colorful as the get-together itself.

Sunset Salad.

18 ounces lemon gelatin
2½ quarts hot water and canned pineapple juice
1½ quarts grated raw carrots
1½ pints canned crushed pineapple, drained
2 teaspoons salt

Dissolve gelatin in hot water and pineapple juice which has been heated to 130 degrees F. Chill. Combine carrots, pineapple and salt. When mixture is slightly thickened, fold in carrot and pineapple mixture. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise and grated carrots. Makes 32 portions.

Just in case you want to make up a church supper menu of your own, I'm listing additional recipes:

Meat Loaf.

10 pounds ground round steak
2 pounds ground pork or salt pork
4 eggs
½ pound bread crumbs
2 onions
2 tablespoons salt
2 teaspoons pepper
1 quart cold mashed potatoes
1 quart milk or canned tomatoes

Mix thoroughly, mold into five loaves, and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., until done. Makes 50 servings

Boiled Coffee.
(Serves 50)

1¼ pounds coffee (6¼ cups)
2½ gallons water
2 eggs

Mix shells, whole eggs and 1 additional cup of cold water with coffee. When the water comes to a boil, add the coffee egg mixture which has been tied in a bag, to the boiling water, and boil for 3 to 5 minutes. Test for strength. When ready, remove bag, let coffee stand 10 to 15 minutes before serving.

The wife of one of our famous football coaches, Mrs. Lou Little, likes to serve a simple but hearty meal after the game. Jot this one down as an idea for an after the game supper or church supper idea: Hot mulled cider, casserole of pork and beans, buttered hot date-nut bread, celery, pickles, and chili sauce, jellied cole slaw, doughnuts and coffee.

For the casserole, used canned pork and beans with tomato sauce, heat in the oven about 20 minutes As a decoration use half slices of date-nut bread Put them around the top of the beans for 5 minutes before the casserole comes out from the oven.

LYNN SAYS:

Attractive salads pep up meals besides adding nourishment plus to menus. Salads in winter are a little hard to plan because of the scarcity of fresh fruits and vegetables, so I suggest you try these for solving your salad problem:

Prunes stuffed with cream cheese and nuts, served with orange sections and lettuce.

Cooked beets and cooked carrots diced with celery, mixed with mayonnaise

Orange sections served with tiny cream cheese balls Marinate oranges in french dressing first.

Canned pineapple and fresh oranges served in alternate sections on lettuce. Alternating orange and grapefruit sections are a good idea, too.

Chunks of lettuce with crumbled hard-cooked egg and a few leftover peas, tossed together with salad oil, salt, pepper, vinegar.

IT'S difficult to write calmly and critically about Walt Disney's "Dumbo"—in fact, it's practically impossible. This story of the baby elephant with the over-size ears, who's born into a circus and made miserable by the other animals because of those same ears, is completely enchanting. There's Timothy Mouse, successor to Jiminey Cricket; there's the band of black crows, there's the squealing circus engine—and there's the really lovely sequence in which pink elephants dance. Every moment of this hour-long picture is delightful—no two ways about it, you'll have to see "Dumbo."

Jean Phillips, once Jean Harlow's stand-in, had moved from a bit to a co-starring role in just two pictures—she's the first stand-in since Adrienne Ames to become a leading woman, which is bad news for girls who hope to climb to stardom by that route. Her first break came when she was cast in "Among the Living"; that performance earned her the second lead in "The Morning After." Now she's co-starred with Macdonald Carey in "Dr. Broadway." Her resemblance to Ginger Rogers blocked her career when she first went to Hollywood.

Glenda Farrell is happy. She's signed to play the ex-sweetheart of a gangster in "Johnny Eager", says she's fascinated by the part, and also wants to do it because the picture is being directed by Mervin LeRoy, who gave her her first part in films.

Irving Berlin has written 14 new songs for "Holiday Inn," more than have ever before been turned out in a single picture. Bing Crosby will sing some of them, Fred Astaire will dance to them. The score includes two old Berlin favorites, "Easter Parade" and "Lazy."

Ginger Rogers and Cary Grant will co-star in RKO's production of Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," with an original score by Oscar Strauss, the Viennese composer. If you want to see another version of the same story right away, you can go to Metro's "The Chocolate Soldier," with Nelson Eddy and Rise Stevens, of the Metropolitan Opera company. It's Miss Stevens' screen debut, and Metro executives feel sure that the public will take her to their hearts.

Remember the parting of the Red sea in C. B DeMille's "The Ten Commandments"—or the chariot race in "Ben Hur"—or the earthquake in "San Francisco"? Mr. DeMille thinks he's added a memorable sequence to that list—the squid fight in "Reap the Wild Wind." Ray Milland and John Wayne, in diving suits, are exploring the hull of a wrecked vessel in a search for Susan Hayward when they encounter the sea monster. Mr DeMille donned a diving suit and directed the scenes, in a huge tank. For other scenes in the picture he descended 20 feet into the Pacific, to the ocean floor. Said it was the only way he could get the eerie realism that he required.

Who'd be your choice to portray Will Rogers in Warner Bros film of his life, made from the book, "Uncle Clem's Boy"? At present Stuart Erwin, Spencer Tracy and Roy Rogers, Republic's Western star, are under consideration It's said that Mrs. Rogers prefers Tracy, though Erwin's supporters urge that he's a better choice because he resembles the famous comedian and philosopher.

ODDS AND ENDS—Paramount will star Charles Boyer and Veronica Lake in "Hong Kong," a romantic story played against modern, war-torn China . . . Ginny Simms has just been made an honorary colonel of Southern California district, American Legion, Los Angeles—first time a star's been awarded the honor by an entire district We hear that Tony Martin said he was "ready and willing" to enter the army, even though an appeal from his draft classification had been filed . . . RKO's "Mexican Spitfire at Sea" brings you not only the team of Lupe Velez and Leon Errol, but Zasu Pitts, Elizabeth Risdon, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Eddie Dunn and Harry Holman as well.

Panholders Make Interesting News

PANHOLDER time is here—as transfer Z9364 illustrates. Two cute kittens with perky bows, a sunbonnet girl and her straw hat playmate, two cages holding applique birds, and a demure maiden with full panholder skirts—these are for kitchen decoration and your protection. The old-fashioned girl holder is cut from wood and painted, and two panholders hang from a hook at the waist to form her skirts.

There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good: myself. But my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy if I may—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Relieves NASAL IRRITATION due to colds

● When your nostrils become red, irritated, stuffy due to colds or dust, just insert a little Mentholatum in them. Note how quickly it soothes the irritated membranes and relieves the stuffiness. It will also check sneezing. Once you enjoy Mentholatum's comforting relief, you'll always want to keep this gentle ointment handy In jars or tubes, 30c.

Courage and perseverance have a magical talisman, before which difficulties disappear and obstacles vanish into air.—John Quincy Adams.

OVER 50?
Constipated?

Most of us find that age and living habits bring on occasional bowel-laziness. These spells of constipation, with aggravating gas, may cause restless nights. ADLERIKA can help you face the future more cheerfully. Its ingredients attract to the bowels extra moisture which softens packed wastes and assists in comfortable bowel action. ADLERIKA helps to leave your bowels refreshed and clean. Next time constipation and gas threaten your comfort, try ADLERIKA. Druggists have it.

ROSENDAHL'S REMODELING THEIR HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rosendahl have made extensive plans for remodeling their home in North Klemme. Part of the work has already been completed.

A basement has been excavated under the entire house and a new foundation has been built and the house raised. This gives a lot of room in the basement for several rooms.

An addition has also been built on the south side of the house, enlarging the living room and providing a front entrance.

Work to be completed, probably next spring will include a remodeling job of the upstairs, complete with a new roof line.

When the remodeling is all completed the Rosendahls will have a well arranged and convenient modern home.

Applications For Corn Loans Now Being Placed On File

JAMES M. TOWNSEND STATES PROGRAM UNDER WAY

All Loans Will Bear 3 Per Cent Interest Until Maturity

Announcement was made this week by James M Townsend, the Chairman of the Hancock County AAA Committee,, that the 1941-42 Corn Sealing Program would be well under way within the near future. Applications for loans are already being received in the county office at Garner.

Loans will be made by the Commodity Credit Corporation on ear corn from December 1 to June 1 and on ear or shelled corn from June 1 to September 30 when stored on the farm and meeting the requirments hereinafter set forth. The loan rate in this county is 71 cents per bushel.

Any producer upon whose farm the acreage planted to corn on the farm is not in excess of the corn acreage allotment is eligible to apply for a loan.

For the purpose of the 1941 loans, aligible corn is defined as merchantable field corn produced in 1941, husked and in the ear (or shelled after the 1st of June) stored in acceptable cribs or bins on the farm, and grading No. 3 or better except for moisture content.

Ear corn accepted as collateral for loans between December 1, 1941 and March 31, 1942, shall not have a moisture content in excess of 19½ per cent if stored in an 8-foot crib. If the crib is wider, the maximum moisture content will drop 1% for each foot that it is wider than eight feet After April 1st, the maximum moisture content allowed will be lower.

All loans will bear 3% interest and mature on demand on or before August 1, 1944. Loans may be satisfied prior to date of maturity under any of the following conditions (1) Payment by the borrower of the face value of the note plus interest. (2) Delivery of the corn collateral, grading No 3 or better, during the months of August, September, or October, 1943, upon 30-day prior written notice to the county committee (3) Delivery of the corn collateral, grading No 3 or better, during August September, or October, 1942, upon 30-day prior written notice to the county committee, provided loan was completed prior to April 1, 1942.

If the corn collateral is delivered to the Corporation on or after August 1, 1943, a storage payment of 4 cents per bushel will be earned by the producer on the number of bushels so delivered. No storage payment shall be earned by a producer, if he pays off the loan

Commodity Credit Corporation will not require as a condition of obtaining a loan that the producer furnish a certificate of insurance

A uniform charge of 1c per bushel will be charged each producer upon the net number of bushels certified for a loan.

KLEMME SHAMROCKS PLUCK GARNER RED CARDINALS

The Garner Cardinals were unable to penetrate the Klemme Shamrock's tightly set zone defense here Tuesday night and went home with the small end of a 36 to 25 basket ball score.

The Cardinals were forced to take long-range pot shots at the hoop in order to score, while the Shamrocks opened up their familiar Blitzkrieg and rammed in for a series of close in shots that paid real dividends

The Shamrocks were led by Kaduce who hit the hoop five times along with a pair of charity shots for 12 points Jacobs contributed 9 points, Brinkman 6, Klotzbach 4, Bock 3 and Grosshuesch 2

For the Garner Cardinals Scott hit five long-range buckets and a free toss to lead his team with 11 markers, while McCormick came in second with 7 points and Phillips and Schneider each tallied 3

The Little Shamrocks lost their battle 8 to 22 in the preliminary

A DASHING NUMBER

Manufacturers are now making skimmed milk hats as a substitute for genuine felt materials This might easily become an Iowa industry since skimmed milk hats are based on the commodity casein, a milk product. Scarcity of rabbit and beaver fur originally used in the making of felt has driven hat makers to the use of casein as a substitute Who would have thought the war would produce a skimmed milk hat?

NO ROTATION?

W T Sivadge, farmer living at Adair, has one field that has been planted to corn for between 40 and 45 consecutive years. Last year the yield averaged 90 bushels to the acre and this year, about 60 bushels The owner says there is no danger of Iowa land wearing out if it is given the proper treatment accorded the field he owns. He follows a practice of hogging down in the fall and fertilizing in the spring.

CORN WILL BE SEALED THIS YEAR AT 71 CENTS A BUSHEL

Sealing price on the 1941 farm-stored corn crop in Hancock County will be 71 cents per bushel, 10 cents higher than the 61-cent rate of last year, James M Townsend, Hancock County AAA chairman, announced this week

This increase in the loan rate is also reflected in the price of corn the Commodity Credit Corporation will sell from steel bins in the county, he said

Varying from 70 to 76 cents per bushel in Iowa counties, these loan rates are similiar to those already in effect on cotton and wheat, the AAA chairman explained. Previously the corn loans were made at a uniform rate throughout the commercial corn area.

With these rates variations based upon the normal farm price of corn in each county over a 20-year period, Mr Townsend said 1941 corn loans should bring about the least possible interference with normal livestock feeding operations in all parts of the corn belt

Averaging 74 8 cents for the entire commercial corn area, the loan rate is based on 85 per cent of the corn parity price of 88 cents on September 15, 1941, the last reporting date before beginning the current marketing year Oct 1 The average loan rate for Iowa is 73 1 cents per bushel

Further explaining the new sales policy on Commodity Credit Corporation Corn, Mr Townsend stated that the corn stored in the county may be purchased at the 1941 county loan value from now until January 1, 1942. After that the price will rise one-half cent per bushel each month until the price is three cents per bushel above the county loan rate

Detailed procedure on the making of corn loans to farmers and the date that corn sealing will begin in the county will be announced in the near future, following a series of district meetings throughout the state.

600 MEMBERS IS GOAL SET BY HANCOCK COUNTY WORKERS

100 Leaders Join In Mass Farm Bureau Membership Drive

More than 100 leaders, team captains and workers, including representatives of all agricultural groups in the county, met at the Memorial Hall in Britt, on Tuesday evening, December 2nd at 8 00 P M to launch the greatest drive for Farm Bureau membership in the history of the county, Virgil Cook, County Farm Bureau President announced today.

Plans for the campaign have been worked out in detail during the past week under the direction of Clark Lackore, who has been named organization director. He was assisted by T C Peterson of the Iowa arm Bureau Federation, who is organization fieldman for this district

Every farmer and individual who is interested in agriculture will be given an opportunity to join the Farm Bureau during the campaign. The Hancock County Farm Bureau has set a goal of 600 members for 1942, as its share of the 50,000 state membership goal of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation.

Definite quotas have been set for each township in the county, and team captains and workers will start work on December 10th in each township continuing the effort until every farmer has had an opportunity to join the organization

Membership in the Hancock County Farm Bureau also provides membership in the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation and the American Farm Bureau Federation. It has a record of accomplishments covering more than 20 years in the county, state and nation, which was climaxed this year with the greatest victory of all: passage of the 35 per cent parity loan plan bill providing Iowa farmers with assurance of good prices for this year's crops.

Leaders today point out that the parity loan plan law is only effective for one year, and that only through greater membership can it be secured for a longer period of time

The present farm program, the farm credit program, and many other aids to agriculture have come only as a result of its efforts. As members of the organization take to the field, they will acquaint farmers generally with the facts concerning the many accomplishments of the Farm Bureau in the county, state and nation.

"As we take to the field this year, we are sure every farmer in the county will give us a little of his time to listen with open mind to the story of the Farm Bureau,' V A. Cook said today.

"We feel that it is doubly important for 1942 in the face of the defense effort to organize our forces to the nth degree so that come what may, agriculture will be in a position to carry its share of the burden We know that our farmers want to carry their share of the burden and cost of improving the agricultural situation and of guarding against inroads which may be made by forces opposed to the best interests of our industry.

"Today, we face serious problems with the war on in Europe. We will no doubt be called upon as never-before to help in the solution of these problems, and eventually aid in writing the peace. Through a big county Farm Bureau, and a big State and National Farm Bureau, we can and will be ready.

"Other counties in the state are right now carrying on similar campaigns to that underway in our county. We will measure up when the final results are counted in the state and in the nation," continued Mr. Cook.

Rubber and Tin In Malay States Are Rich Prize

Vital Area Controlled by British Supplies Important Products For U. S. Industries.

(Exclusive to Western Newspaper Union and Copyrighted by National Geographic Society, Washington, D C.)

On land which 50 years ago was a dense, tiger-infested jungle, plantation owners in the British-protected Malay States of southeastern Asia are producing more than a third of the world's rubber supply.

Much of the output is sent to the United States, for this country is not able to grow the rubber which its factories turn into tires, hose, mats, balloons, and a thousand-and-one other articles.

Why does rubber flourish in the Malay Peninsula?

Geography gives us the answer. Rubber trees need plenty of rain and hot weather. The Malay States are just north of the Equator, and their climate is one of the hottest and dampest in the world. Similar climate makes rubber production profitable also in the near-by Netherlands Indies.

Supply From Brazil.

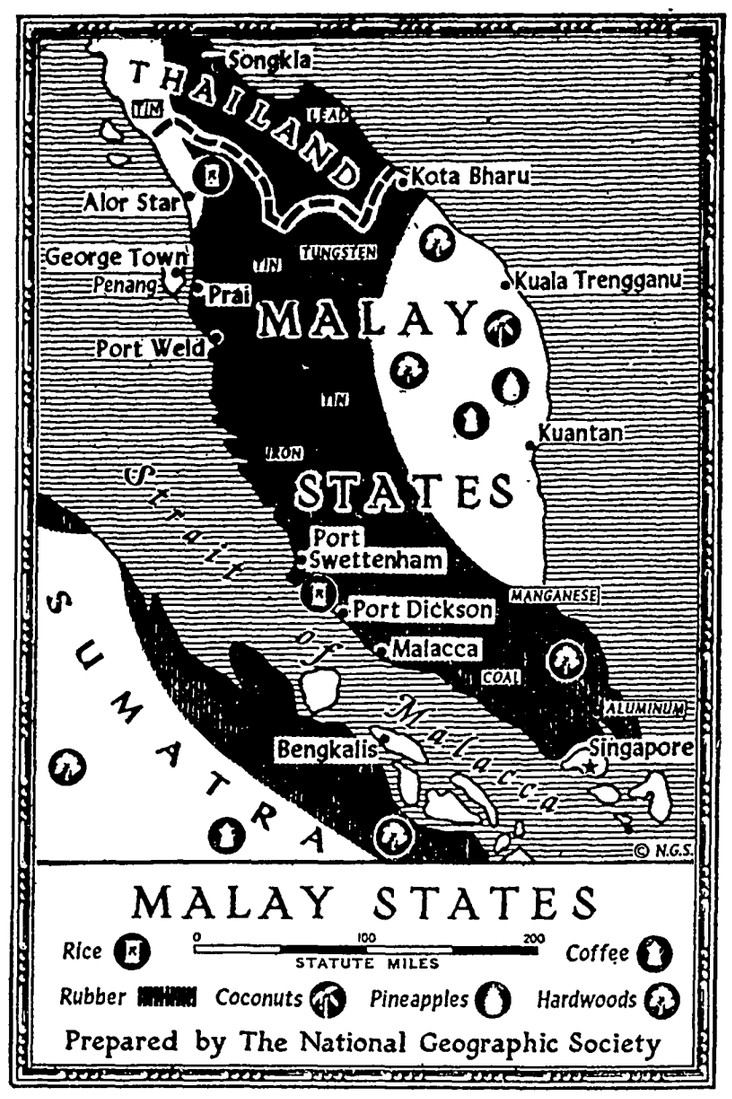
The first rubber plants were brought to the Malay States from Brazil about 60 years ago, and it soon became evident that they would grow well there. Now the Malay region far surpasses Brazil in rubber output, partly because its plantations are readily accessible to railroads and seaports, while Brazil's rubber trees are far inland in wild country.

It was no easy job to clear mile after mile of underbrush and 60-foot trees from the Malay jungles so that plantations could be developed. Snakes and wild animals—tigers, elephants, buffaloes, and rhinoceroses—were a constant menace, and aboriginal savages threw poisonous darts at the workers. Large jungle areas, however, never have been cleared; some parts have not even been explored.

Long before plantations were laid out to grow rubber, pineapples, and other tropical farm products, the Malay Peninsula was an important source of tin. From its mines still comes about a third of the world's tin supply. Some of the tin cans in your kitchen cupboard were made from this Malayan ore, for the United States mines virtually no tin.

Tin From Mountains.

The tin ore is found in the heavily wooded mountain ranges which rise like a backbone along the Malay Peninsula. The ore is dredged from tremendous open pits. Along with tin, miners dig for smaller amounts of gold, iron, manganese, lead and tungsten. The latter is vital for making the filament used in electric light bulbs.



The above map explains in detail the source of the important products obtained on the Malay peninsula. Most important of these supplies as indicated are, rubber, tin, pineapples and other tropical farm products. Japan, already entrenched in French Indo-China, reportedly could use many of the products now going to the United States and Great Britain.

The laborers who first mined the tin and who did much of the work of clearing the jungles were not the native Malays, but Chinese. The latter came to the region in large numbers, and now make up about two-fifths of the Malay States' population of some 4,000,000.

The Malays, short, brown-skinned and thick-set, with straight black hair, are a clever people, but like many residents of hot countries, they are not overly industrious. One reason is that food, clothing, and shelter are not hard to obtain. Many of the Malays wear only a jacket and a skirtlike sarong, live in clusters of bamboo or thatched huts built on piles, and eat little besides rice and fish.

British Development.

Development of the Malay States has been in the hands of the British ever since Sir Stamford Raffles, an Englishman who envisioned a great future for the region, founded the port of Singapore in 1819. Its site on an island at the southern tip of the peninsula was then part of the jungle, but now Singapore has grown into a colorful, cosmopolitan city, one of the world's leading ports.

Its importance as a shipping center is derived from its situation. Ships traveling between the Pacific and the Indian oceans pass it. Singapore's wharves handle not only Malay rubber and tin—the latter is smelted in the city—but the riches of the Netherlands Indies and Thailand. The British have fortified the port as their largest foreign naval base.

Fatal Horse Malady Studied for Effect On Human Beings

New fears that horse "sleeping sickness," which has already killed tens of thousands of American horses, may also be transmissible to human beings were indicated in reports of a recent study by the American Foundation for Animal Health.

The reports are based on deaths in Minnesota, Texas, and Eastern seaboard states, in areas where equine encephalomyelitis (sleeping sickness) has been prevalent. In one of the eastern states two individuals who were handling horses afflicted with sleeping sickness were stricken with a disease that was identified as human encephalomyelitis. One man died and the other recovered.

In 1938 a number of acute cases were reported among children along the East coast, with an extremely high rate of mortality. Examinations revealed the presence of a virus which was believed to be the "eastern" strain of horse sleeping sickness. This was followed in the same year by the discovery of human cases of equine encephalomyelitis in Minnesota. These, however, were traced to a different strain of the virus, the "western" strain. Still later, similar reports were received from the Pacific coast—and this year fresh reports of cases in human encephalitis have come from Minnesota, Texas, and other states.

As a result, authorities are warning that horse sleeping sickness may be transmissible to man, although they are unwilling to say that this is definitely the case. In fact, horse sleeping sickness is still a highly baffling disease. It kills thousands upon thousands of valuable horses every year, yet veterinary scientists are still not sure of the exact means by which it is transmitted. They believe it is passed on by the bites of mosquitoes and other insects. The only known protection for horses, to date, is by immunization. This year veterinarians are vaccinating horses against the disease with a new concentrated form of a vaccine developed from chick embryos, and report better than 95 per cent immunity in field usage. However, vaccination of this type should be done before a horse is stricken by the disease, it is said.

Authorities are urging that in areas where horse sleeping sickness is raging, persons working with horses should exercise care in handling the animals, and should be particularly watchful against mosquitoes and other biting insects.

Resources of Nature Offer Opportunity For 'Unlimited' Production in United States

By WHEELER McMILLEN

(Mr McMillen is president of the National Farm Chemurgic Council which has as its objective the advancement of the industrial use of American farm products through applied science. He explains below some of the principles of chemurgy in relation to the future of the United States.)

There is a single fact in science that has far reaching significance for the future of the United States. I refer to the fact that of the entire composition of nearly every plant growth, whether it be a pumpkin, an ear of corn, or a walnut tree, roughly 98 per cent of the substance is manufactured by nature from atmosphere and moisture. Only about 2 per cent, on the average, is actually extracted from the soil. In other words, the resources we say are derived from the soil are actually derived, by the miraculous action of sunshine, from the atmosphere and moisture.

Within the borders of the United States may be found nearly every known combination of the attributes of plant growth—of temperature, of soil characteristics, of rainfall and humidity, of altitude and length or intensity of sunlight.

We have air and rain and sunshine available in illimitable and inexhaustible quantities.

The significance of this fact is that there need be absolutely no upper limit to the potential production of the United States, except the limit imposed by human ignorance of how to take full advantage of the laws of nature. These superabundant possibilities for the production of raw materials from air, moisture, sunshine and soil, are unlike those of mineral production.

Conceivably the stores of wealth nature had deposited underground may in some distant century become exhausted, or become too inaccessible for economical use. Plant growth, on the other hand, is renewable, usually annually, with each cycle from seed to harvest.

Within the Twentieth century, two important new tools have been developed for the utilization of our plant raw materials.

The art of the organic chemist, a Twentieth century art, has added enormous importance to plant substances as industrial raw materials. With this art crops need no longer be regarded merely as sources of food, clothing and shelter. The chemical industries take the crops for their cellulose, proteins, starches, sugars, and oils, and convert these compounds into innumerable superior products for every-day use.

Alongside the organic chemist is the plant geneticist, with his art of improving plants for specific purposes. He has made it possible for the first time to grow crops to industrial specifications, as is actually being done with cotton, soybeans and other plants.

U. S. Woman Has a Job In Democratic World

COLUMBIA, MO.—U. S. women need better training for housewifely and motherly duties of tomorrow was the gist of the conclusions reached at a huge forum of sociologists, economists and feminine leaders held at Stephens college here.

Called at the suggestion of Dr. James Wood, president of the college, the forum decided that the salient points of training were health, character and finances. All of these, it was felt, are fields in which "our education system can contribute."

For twenty-nine years Dr. Wood has been a student of education's duties in helping women to understand their responsibilities toward democracy. Need for education to do something about this has been present since suffragist days, he believes, for since that time, the U. S. has emphasized women's opportunities in democracy rather than their responsibilities.

Camouflage Takes Shine From U. S. Army Truck

WASHINGTON —It's farewell to the shiny army truck. In fact, it's all right even to allow some dust to stay on the surface. Old army chauffeurs who spent hours brightening up paint until it glistened may think there's just a laxing of work, but the new system was developed for better camouflage. Lustreless paint now used on army vehicles makes it difficult to see a truck from the air or from distances on land.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

From James W. Barrett's book on Joseph Pulitzer, the great newspaper publisher: "A journalist in JP's (Pulitzer) conception, is a statesman as well as a writer . . . The basis of it was something more profound than persistent curiosity about people and things. JP, of course, was the most incorrigible busybody of his day and age. His habit of asking questions about everything under the sun and demanding accurate as well as immediate answers was an amusing and often annoying trait, but it was only a mechanism through which an eager, prehensile mind was kept supplied with working material. He had an objective which he refused to put aside. As long as he lived, he wanted to inform and mold public opinion—not just for the sake of profits, but for the sake of progress in the direction where he thought America ought to be heading."

Our Incorrigible Busybody Dep't.: Doesn't Army Intelligence think that Great Britain has a severe case of brass-hat poisoning? . . . Aren't the members of the Supreme Court now all pulling one way—at each other's hair? . . . Did you know that the President changed the nickname for Morgenthau to "Six Per Cent Henry"? . . . What two Cabinet officers are suffering from make-up poisoning? (Their friends make up the stories, and they do the poisoning) . . . What invention can drop a sandbag down a chimney at 20,000 feet? And what Sec'y of War would like to do it to what Washington columnist?

Why do the Supreme Court Justices call their edifice "the Mausoleum" when it isn't that lively? . . . Hasn't photography helped the British censors more than it has Hollywood? Wouldn't this be an aid to Britain: To mail the photostats to your friends and let His Majesty's gov't keep the originals? . . . What Canadian official, who believes the war can be won by lowering wages, will shortly be elevated by a kick in the tail light?

What size tank is giving the Generals a bigger headache than the Privates who steer them? . . . What Ambassador turned in an honest day's work recently? . . . For what Cabinet post are there more volunteers than for the Marine Corps? And which Sec'y of State is vastly amused? . . . Isn't it true that Jesse Jones loaned his brother $1.50? Anyway, isn't Jesse wearing his brother's gold watch? . . . Don't they call Sec'y Ickes "personality plus" since his secretary said good morning to him? . . . Who defined a liberal as a guy who will forgive anything but a contribution to his campaign? . . . Aren't the officers of the Pacific Fleet split squarely on the question of whether it will take three weeks or a month to "solve" the Jap navy? . . . What prominent Britishers have the jitters since the Gov't's inquiry into foreign-owned bonds. The only thing in which Noel Coward was small fry . . . And isn't it true that certain self-called Americans brag about their ancestors landing on Plymouth Rock—and act as though they had just crawled from under it?

Man About Town:

Memos of a Midnighter: Fishermen have told authorities that they've actually seen U-boats off the New England coast . . . That lovely Red Cross nurse in those new posters (she's marching with four men of the armed forces) is Hazel French of the Powers Pretty-Pretty Plantation. Hazel won the nod over all the models who wanted the assignment because of her beautiful brown orbs . . . So what happened? The artist painted her eyes blue . . . There have been five new ditties with the title of Zanuck's hit, all ending with: "How green was my valley—how blue was my heart."

That's going to be quite a scandal over the refugee racket, dearie . . . It'll involve naturalization and immigration high jinks which have a pretty terrible stench. It'll wreck some prominent politicos . . . Are the authorities following up the sensational charges about the Met-opera's new star, a woman? Allegedly quite friendly with Quisling, Goering, et al . . . How good's that talk about Marshall Field bidding for the Times and Post after his Chicago paper is launched? . . . Anything to the rumor about his PM taking ads, changing its format and price to 3c?

Chicagorillas, who were imported into Philly and N. Y. years ago to help in circulation wars—are now being recruited for action in Chicago—in case, etc. . . . Add comical ironics: A B'way guy who pulled almost every major sin on the statutes, and never served a single day—is now in the Bastille for getting caught in a floating crap game! . . . The colyum certainly hopes that Japan will select as her friend the Fleet-minded American Navy, instead of the fleet-footed Italian army.

NAZI INTRUDER

There is a German smuggler operating in the Caribbean off the coast of Mexico.

This was the inside reason for the President's sudden transfer of the entire coast guard to the navy—the coast guard's ships and planes are needed to track down the Nazi intruder.

Sensational feature about the smuggler is that she is a former U. S. vessel—the 800-ton Diesel-engined yacht that once belonged to A. Atwater Kent, Philadelphia radio magnate.

The one-time pleasure ship now is being operated under the Panamanian flag out of Vera Cruz, Mexico, by Nazi agents in that city, and is being used to transport high test gasoline and mercury to small Caribbean islands where Japanese ships collect the smuggled strategic supplies.

The yacht recently unloaded 1,000 flasks of mercury at an island which for military reasons must be nameless.

The former luxury craft came into possession of the Nazis by a circuitous route which intelligence experts uncovered only a few weeks ago. The purchase was made by a shipping company whose main office is in Vera Cruz and has a branch office in New Orleans, where transfer of title took place. The price was $18,000.

Fortunately for intelligence the payment was made in U. S. bills of $1,000 denomination. From the serial numbers, the bills were traced back to a Vera Cruz bank. There it was learned the money had been withdrawn from the account of the leading Nazi business house in Mexico, and turned over to the shipping company that bought the yacht.

Subsequent investigation revealed that all the stockholders of this company were Germans; also that the two top officers were Spaniards, one a naturalized Mexican and the other a naturalized American citizen.

Now, every movement of the yacht is watched, but there is nothing the United States can do about the ship unless she enters American waters. So far the vessel has been very careful to stay within Mexican territorial waters.

LEND-LEASE MILK EXPERT

The most novel type of lend-lease operation thus far was the lend-leasing of a man named Adolph. Adolph Eichhorn went over to help the British against Adolf Hitler.

The British are suffering from insufficient production of milk, because of diseased cattle, and Eichhorn is the man who knows all the cow cures. He is director of the animal disease station under the department of agriculture.

Three principal diseases afflict British cattle: tuberculosis, which makes the cattle lean; Bang's disease, which results in the loss of the calf; and mastitis.

Eichhorn was obliged to tell the British that tuberculosis, which afflicts 35 per cent of British cattle, cannot be cured during the course of the war, unless the war lasts for another generation. It took the United States 22 years to get the disease under control.

Bang's disease is more readily cured. By vaccination, a calf can be immunized so that its adult life will not be afflicted with the disease.

Meantime, the British are importing great quantities of dry and powdered milk from the United States. Fresh milk is worth a king's ransom.

RETURNED FAVOR

When Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts was elected Democratic floor leader of the house, one of his strongest and most unexpected supporters was Georgia's fiery New Deal-hating Gene Cox. Though the two men were poles apart on economic views, Cox nevertheless backed McCormack and did yeoman work for him.

Recently McCormack returned the favor. Before leaving on a trip to Massachusetts, McCormack named Cox floor leader during his absence. "There's one condition, however, Gene," he grinned. "You'll have to refrain from those hot one-minute speeches on the floor. I don't want my stand-in taking swings at the administration. It would look bad."

McCormack wished the Georgian luck and left the chamber. Hardly had he departed when Cox jumped up and asked permission to address the house for one minute. New Dealers held their breath, expecting him to uncork one of his scorching blasts.

But they relaxed with a sigh of relief when Cox launched into a terrific tirade against John L. Lewis.

What to give the men in Uncle Sam's services for Christmas is already solved for you by surveys made in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. Cigarettes and smoking tobacco head the list of gifts the men want most. This naturally places Camel Cigarettes and Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco in the forefront, since actual sales records from the service men's stores, afloat and ashore, show the favorite cigarette is Camel, and the big favorite among smoking tobaccos is Prince Albert, the National Joy Smoke. Dealers are already featuring "Send him a carton of Camels" or a "Pound tin of Prince Albert" for Christmas.—Adv.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

History in the News

Historic Operation

VIRGINIA is famous as the "Mother-of-Presidents," as the state which gave America some of her greatest soldiers and explorers as well as statesmen. But on November 11 this year she can take note of the fact that it was just 140 years ago that she gave to the nation a man who was destined to make medical history and whose name future generations of suffering Americans were to call blessed. For he was Ephraim McDowell.

McDowell was born in Rockbridge county November 11, 1771. At the age of 12 he was taken by his father to the frontier town of Danville in Kentucky. After a brief term in a Virginia seminary young McDowell began the study of medicine in a doctor's office in Staunton. Then he went to Scotland but returned to America after two years' study in the University of Edinburgh.

In 1795 he returned to Danville to begin practice. Within 10 years McDowell had become the best-known surgeon on the Kentucky frontier and whenever one of the settlers needed an operation that was beyond the skill of local doctors word was sent to Danville Then McDowell hastily crammed his drugs and his instruments into his saddle bags and set out along wilderness trails to the aid of the sufferer

In 1809 he was called upon to make such a call and the operation which he performed at that time is the one which made surgical history. The call came from the log cabin of Mrs. Jane Todd Crawford, near Greentown, known today as Greensburg, 60 miles from Danville In a letter which McDowell wrote to Robert Thompson, a medical student in Philadelphia years later, he gave this account of that operation:

"I was sent for in 1809 to deliver a Mrs. Crawford, living near Greentown, of twins, as the two attending physicians supposed. Upon examination, I soon ascertained that she was not pregnant, but had a large tumor in the abdomen which moved easily from side to side. I told the lady I could do her no good and candidly stated to her her deplorable situation; informed her that John Bell, Hunter, Hey and A. Wood, four of the first and most eminent surgeons in England and Scotland, had uniformly declared in their lectures that such was the temper of the peritoneal inflammation that opening the abdomen to extract the tumor was inevitable death. But, notwithstanding this, if she thought herself prepared to die, I would take the lump from her, if she would come to Danville. She came in a few days after my return home, and in six days I opened her side and extracted one of the ovaria . . . she was perfectly well in 25 days."

The doctor's laconic version of the historic incident leaves out all of the drama. For there was drama in it—the story of how word that McDowell was going to perform an operation which was almost certain to be fatal spread through the town, how one of the preachers devoted a sermon to the proposed "murder," how his fellow-townsmen threatened to lynch him if the operation failed, and how his nephew and partner, Dr. James McDowell, tried to dissuade him from going on with it.

Then there is the story of how he decided to operate on Christmas day when the prayers of all the world would help create a favorable atmosphere for the attempt; how Mrs. Crawford tried to forget the agony of the operation, performed without anesthetics, by singing hymns; how the mob outside the doctor's cabin, hearing her anguished voice, tried to break in the door and stop the operation and how, finally, when they were told that the operation was successful and the patient still lived, their anger turned to admiration for the heroic doctor and his equally heroic patient and "the air was riven by a cheer."

Mrs. Crawford lived for 33 years after the operation. Later she migrated to Indiana and is buried near Graysville. But today in McDowell park in Danville a monument, erected by the Kentucky Medical society and its women's auxiliary, stands near the towering shaft which was erected to the memory of her doctor by the Kentucky Medical society in 1879. The modern highway, bordered with dogwood, between Danville and Greensburg, called the Jane Todd Crawford Memorial Trail, also honors this pioneer heroine.

Jewels and Beads Glitter on Dresses for Every Occasion

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FLATTERING is the word for the charming dresses that are given a new loveliness with artful touches of gay embroidery and go glittering through the style parade with a wealth of nailheads, sequins, jewels and beadwork. Indeed, this is a season when it is every woman's duty to look her prettiest in gowns designed to "do something for you."

Now that sparkle for daytime frocks as well as evening gowns is the vogue the new fashions are playing up glitter for all it is worth. Every woman should yield to the call of black with a dash of color and the gleam of beadwork and jewels. A dress or suit of this description will prove your standby for almost every occasion. Pictured are several eye-appealing fashions selected from a collection of daytime modes designed and displayed by the style creators of Chicago at a recent winter preview.

The good looking black crepe tunic dress shown to the right emphasizes its molded shoulders and hipline by means of steel nailheads. Shown with it is a high and handsome hat of colorful feathers. You will make a well-dressed appearance in this dress wherever you go.

To the left a dressier type sparkles with rhinestones. The slim fitted jacket has rhinestone pockets and is worn over a dress with a sheer yoke outlined in rhinestones.

Speaking of sheer yokes, they are a new styling detail that is being worked in fascinating and versatile ways. The latest dresses have yokes of the sheerest black lace, and for extreme flattery designers are styling wools and crepes in black or browns or the new deep "black cherry" tones with pastel chiffon yokes, some of which are beaded in matching colors, while others are joined to the dress top and the seaming is concealed under sequin bands and bordering.

The figure seated in the center wears a dress of velvet trimmed with revers. There is a double peplum on the pert jacket. The dress is finished off at the neckline with a deep rhinestone necklace and a glittering rhinestone buckle fastens the jacket. Curly feathers cut out of black felt make the pompadour hat, which is graced with a floating veil.

The dainty young lady in the background to the right is wearing a delectable gown which follows the new trend toward colorful beadwork on black. You can get this model with light blue or dusty pink accents. Here is an apt illustration of the new trimming effect achieved with a bordering of embroidery outlining the seams of the sleeves, which have the new wide armholes The midriff belt in matched beadwork balances the color inserts.

Very smart dresses are shown with all-round pleated skirts, the bodice top being of the long-torso, fitted type with an all-over sprinkling of beads or sequins or tiny gold nailheads. The spray of flowers worked in metal threads and beads is placed so as to take the place of the usual bodice clip or ornament. Black jet beaded sweaters of the middy type are also in smart fashion.

Smartly Styled

Here is a perfect gown to wear under your winter coat. It gives you color. It gives you chic. And this slick town dress designed by Joseph Whitehead is in the best American tradition of perfect workmanship. It is of ravishingly colored striped wool with velveteen touches at neck and waist. The "pinch" beret has bright coq feathers.

Like a Cape

An English idea borrowed for our sport coats: Ribbon bands to slip your arms through when you just toss the coat over your shoulders, like a cape.

Wear a Scarf or Shawl Over Your Formal Gown

As an avenue for expression in romance and feminine allure, there is no accessory that surpasses the witchery of a picturesque scarf or dainty shawl. That is, perhaps, the reason for the preference this season for flattering scarf or lacy shawl instead of a bolero or jacket to wear with evening clothes. This new acceptance of evening shoulder covering is further noted in the capelet shawls of self fabric, or long tulle scarfs matched to the dress. The vogue also accounts for the appearance of ostrich neck ruffs in the formal evening picture.

'Down in Back' Hems Herald New Silhouette

In the very newest sophisticated dresses something happens to hemlines that give skirts an entirely new aspect. That "something" is that hemlines are made to plunge down in the back achieving a most graceful, pleasing new silhouette. For the most part the new "lines" are seen in slim black dresses for smart afternoon wear, and in narrow, seductive evening skirts. In the formal skirts the narrowness is relieved by a slit at the side that reveals your beautiful evening slippers.

Handkerchiefs

Fur fashions lead the way in novelty handkerchiefs with 22-inch chiffon squares bordered with genuine ermine. "Naughty Nineties" handkerchiefs are reminiscent of the era when every taffeta dress was the background for a big, bold cabbage rose. Brilliant colors and effusive floral patternings are featured in this group.

EXPLAINING THE PRICE RISES

("Retailers must explain to customers the reason for advancing prices. The public doesn't understand the situation."—Louis E. Kirstein, chairman of the American Retail federation.)

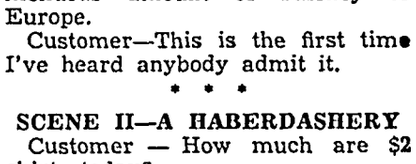
Customer—How much are fresh eggs today?

Retailer—Sixty-five cents a dozen.

Customer—I said a dozen, not two dozen.

Retailer—I heard you. Sixty-five cents a dozen. Five cents extra if I make an explanation.

Customer—How about storage eggs?



Retailer—Forty-two cents, and I'll make my explanation a cent cheaper.

* * *

Customer—Give me twenty cents' worth of eggs and one cent's worth of explanation. Why should eggs be up?"

Retailer—It's the defense program.

Customer—Are we sending eggs to Russia?

Retailer—No, but Europe is getting a lot of our hens. And you know about the straw shortage, don't you?

Customer—No.

Retailer—All the straw is being used for Gallup straw votes. And with so little straw in their nests the hens won't lay. Is it clear?

Customer—No. I'll take a loaf of bread. Is that up?

Retailer—Yes, and I'll explain that. The country is short of dough.

Customer—If it ain't it soon will be. How about baloney? There is no shortage of that, is there?

Retailer—No, but it's gone up in sympathy. Baloney is one of our most sympathetic products. And don't forget we are sending a tremendous amount of baloney to Europe.

Customer—This is the first time I've heard anybody admit it.

SCENE II—A HABERDASHERY

Customer — How much are $2 shirts today?

Retailer—Three dollars and fifty cents. And I'll throw in a full explanation.

Customer—Shirts aren't necessary to the defense, are they?

Retailer—Of course they are. Would you defend the American way without a shirt?

Customer—I may have to!

Retailer—Could you use some socks? They've only gone up fifteen cents a pair.

Customer—Is there a sock shortage?

Retailer—No, but it's harder for me to explain why they should cost more, so I charge extra.

* * *

SCENE III—A RESTAURANT

Customer—What would you suggest?

Waiter—Our 85-cent order of goulash is very good at $1.25 a plate.

Customer—Good heavens! Why should goulash be up?

Waiter—It's the OCCG. Office for the Control and Co-ordination of Goulash.

Customer—Must there be a federal board to control goulash?

Waiter—Sir, today there must be a federal board to control everything.

* * *

Customer—Bring me a ham sandwich. With mustard and a complete explanation why it should cost more.

Waiter—I'll be glad to explain everything. Do you understand inflation at all.

Customer—Not at all.

Waiter—Good! I'll explain it then.

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist today. Try one laxative combined with Syrup Pepsin for ease to your stomach, too.

CLEAR LAKE EDITOR WANTS LAKE COLORED BLUE

T J "Thornton" Farnan, editor of the Clear Lake Mirror, made a lot of fuss in his column "Reflections" last week about the changeable color of Clear Lake.

Farnan pointed out that on some days the water in the lake looks green, and on other days it looks dark and muddy, while on rare occasions it is a beautiful blue. It is the blue color that Farnan wants made permanent and he suggests that perhaps the State Conservation Commission might do something about it It might be a problem for the scientists to work on

Being somewhat familiar with Clear Lake, this writer can possibly enlighten Farnan regarding the causes of the lake changing colors. That dark muddy appearance is caused when this writer has had a successful day of fishing at the lake. Those big fish we catch thrash around so much that the mud in the whole lake is stirred up before we can land the monster We are really sorry about spoiling the looks of the lake.

The green color of the water always comes after the moon changes to full. It is generally agreed that the moon is made of green cheese, and it is the green-tinted moon-beams absorbed by the water that gives the lake a green appearance.

But, it is still a mystery what causes the lake to appear blue at times.

However, it can be made to appear a beautiful blue all summer if Farnan can convince the State Conservation Commission to seed the lake-bed with Kentucky Blue Grass. It would also provide hay for the carp'

CONTRIBUTES ROD TO THE GODDESS OF FISH

Not mentioning any names, but a certain pair of Klemme young men, one a carpenter and the other a bookkeeper, were conspicuous by their absence from Church last Sunday morning.

Later we learned that they went over to Clear Lake to fish on the last day of the open season, which was all very good.

You may recall the day was far from being warm, in fact it was a bit cold. and wet, but the fish were biting and the boys caught some nice walleye pike and a few large perch

About this time the cold was taking effect, lines were near the freezing point and the men were shivering like they had the jimjams. Their hands and fingers were numb and cold

Walt (pardon me) made another error—his hands were so cold his fingers slipped and he not only cast the plug, but the line, rod and reel went with it into the icy waters of the lake'

Another contribution to the lake.

AROUND THE TOWN ON A BIKE OR SOMETHING

The boys down at the Farmers Elevator deserve a hand, yes even a double applause, for the Christmas decorations they put up each year This year again they have a lighted star mounted high above the building. The star can be seen from a great distance

We observe that farmers are not the only ones who build silos!

And we have to hand it to Art Wellemeyer. This year he has his display windows decorated in holiday dress, but that is not what we were going to say. Art has a window display in which he did not use a rough box on which to place merchandise!

Which reminds us that we once saw a sign in a furniture dealer's window in which was displayed a bed room suite. The sign read, "We stand behind every bed we sell." Maybe you have heard it before.

And not long ago in the Clear Lake Reporter we read about the girl who liked to wear a tightly fitted knit sweater, for three reasons: First, it kept her warm. She also had two other good reasons!

So why not loosen up and buy stamps and bonds and "Keep 'em Flying."

Don't forget to buy Christmas Seals and help fight T. B.

FAVORITE NEWSPAPERS

A tin box in the cornerstone of the recently razed old Presbyterian Church at Coon Rapids contained nothing but two old newspapers one the Coon Rapids Enterprise, and the other the New York Evangelist, dated in September, 1886.

BELL RINGER

Waverly's oldest school janitor, John Mahnke, celebrated his 75th birthday anniversary the other day For thirty-four years John has rung a hand bell calling the youngsters in to class and he stimates that more than 1,000 different children have marched past him in that time.

Mr and Mrs. Stewart Hevilin entertained as their guests at a Thanksgiving day dinner the Art Kudje family; George Johnson and son, Eugene; Arthur Johnson; Joe

Sources of Vitamin A

Vitamin A is frequently associated with yellow color in foods. Thus sweet potato, squash, carrots, egg yolks and butter are excellent sources of this vitamin.

Food supplies available for consumption in the United States in 1941 are larger than they were in 1940.

Gas, Chemicals Effective As Mosquito Exterminator

Walk out on the lawn on a moist day or saunter among the shrubs and, presto! you may stir up a blitzkrieg

One hundred of the 150 varieties of the family culcidae—the hungry mosquito to you—will swarm to the attack You know the rest.

Hordes of them have been, are now and will continue to raise millions of welts on thousands of anatomies

The best systems of defense against mosquito fleets have been outlined by W. E. Dickinson, Milwaukee, Wis., curator of lower zoology at the museum.

In a special communique he gave directions for gas and chemical warfare to prevent the enemy from winning on the garden party and picnic front

"Spread small heaps of pyrethrum powder strategically over the field of action," his order reads. "Light the powder and gas the enemy. If you have no pyrethrum powder engage in chemical assault by spraying field of action with mixture of four ounces of creosol, one-third ounce of oil of mybrane and two quarts of kerosene."

In a second order he gives explicit rules for protecting the exposed flanks.

"Apply mixture of one ounce citronella, one ounce spirits of camphor and one-half ounce of oil of cedar, or mixture of equal parts of castor oil, alcohol and either oil of lavendar or oil of rose geranium."

In case of attack a third order decrees:

"Strike hard, smash the enemy."

• EDITORIAL

Basketball season is now in full swing Klemme's team has proved to have a good start by being victorious over Hayfield at the Jamboree and winning a hard-fought game over Belmond The night of December 2 the Klemme team meets Garner on the home floor

The team needs more support from the students The cheer leaders aren't the only ones that are to yell but they depend on the supporters of the team to help We're sure the more cheering our team gets, the better the boys will play It'll make them feel that they have someone boosting them along The band is playing at the games which adds to the spirit of Klemme The teams spirit is good but the cheer leaders need a lot more help

• MUSIC NEWS

The music project has been progressing A Christmas concert has been planned by this department The band has played for our assembly programs during the year

The Hobby Shops meet on Wednesdays at 3 09 These activities offer the people not in one of the other activities an opportunity to make something for his own use or as a gift

Physical Training is taken by all K H S Students

The members of the regular band played at the ball game Tuesday night Ed Grosshuesch played the bass horn and Harold Swalve who was in the band last year, played the cornet

The Music Club is selling candy at the basketball games.

• SPORTS FLASHES

The Shamrocks came through a very stiff test by defeating Belmond 19 to 17 on the home court Tuesday evening The game was very well played most of the way

Bock, Jacobs and Kaduce turned in a nice offensive game while Grosshuesch and Brinkman were playing a good defensive battle.

Belmond gave the Shamrocks trouble all the way and it was anyone's ball-game up until the final whistle. Belmond used a very tight defense and a fast elusive offense Loats and Dorr were outstanding for Belmond Both teams missed numerous set-up and close-in shots

On Friday, December 5, Klemme will meet Woden on the home floor Woden showed a very promising team at the Jamboree and will give any team a good game

• FRESHMAN CLASS NEWS

The Home Economics class treated the boys to a piece of cake Monday that we had made Tuesday we made butterscotch and banana pies We think making desserts is fun.

We are studying about light in general science. We had to perform an experiment to see how we depend on light for comfortable living.

The boys in Manual Training are making corner shelves, necktie racks, pipe holders, darts, wall-shelves, what-nots, and pencil holders

The sophomores gave two return plays for us Monday and Wednesday We thought they were both very good We wrote biographies this week in English class.

• SOPHOMORE CLASS NEWS

We've concluded our study of animals in biology and we're starting the chapters on plant life

The sophomores radio dramatizations were so good Miss Ott said we could present them to the freshmen So we gave them again this week

In agriculture the boys are now studying about Irish potatoes The girls wonder if they'll learn how to cook them too

The idea of two days Thanksgiving vacation inspired the sophomores so much that they've worked ambitiously the first part of the week

• JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

In English Literature the class is divided into four groups and are making dummy newspapers

In history we seem to be studying rather hard Even if we aren't studying we've made progress this week.

In typing we had certain exercises to be handed in by Wednesday They were supposed to be perfect, but

In bookkeeping they seem to be having SOME trouble with their sets

The report cards came out Wednesday and I'm sure not a Junior was anxious to see their's

• SENIOR CLASS NEWS

In American History we are starting a new chapter "Neutral Rights and Expansions of 1821" We were given a test over the preceding chapter and are to correct our mistakes after we have studied the material

Meet the Pot Roast—Juicy and Tender
(See Recipes Below)

Savory Meals

Pep up the personality of your meals by serving meats more often as the weather becomes frost-nipped and colder. Meats are synonymous with good, wholesome, hearty meals because they're satisfying and filling. Meat sets good tone to the meal and rounds it out to give you a sense of completeness when you've finished eating.

Meat is honest and straightforward both in flavor and purpose. Its abundance of vitamins and minerals really come through and give you sustaining energy. All in all meat contains nine out of the thirteen food essentials of a normal diet:

First is protein and meat's proteins are complete. They help to build or repair body tissues which you wear down every day and keep you on good maintenance level. It has iron the oxygen carrier, copper, iron's partner and the builder of hemoglobin.

Meat has phosphorus that helps calcium in building good teeth and bones and helps give you energy. Meat has fat, too, producer of more energy and heat.

As for vitamins, meat is an important source of four: vitamin A, the resistance and growth vitamin; thiamin (vitamin B1) which helps the body translate sugars and starches into energy; riboflavin, of which meat is the top source, that helps prevent nervous disorders, and finally nicotinic acid, which prevents a nervous digestive disorder known as pellagra.

Fortunately for economy's sake, the lower-priced cuts of meat are just as good for these minerals and vitamins as the higher-priced ones. Today's column gives you tricks and tips on how you can use them for savory meals and have them juicy, tender, and full of flavor. First call is for pot roast which you can make just as desirable as the best steaks and chops:

Pot Roast With Vegetables.

Wipe meat with a damp cloth. Brown in hot fat and add one or two small onions sliced to meat while it is browning. Season meat with salt and pepper. Combine ½ cup catsup with 1 cup hot water and add to meat. Place in a roaster or cast-iron skillet or pot, cover tightly, and allow to simmer gently 45 minutes to the pound. Add more water if necessary. Whole carrots and onions may be added to the meat and cooked with it the last 45 minutes of the cooking period.

LYNN SAYS:

You're going to sell nutrition to your family not just because of its virtues but by attractively garnished, well-cooked food. Here's how:

Whenever possible serve the vegetables with the meat, as browned potatoes, whole carrots, browned onions. These can be placed around the meat for effective coloring.

Radish roses with parsley brighten almost any kind of meat platter.

Spinach, chopped, seasoned and mixed with white sauce can be made into nests or mounds and served around meat.

Baby beets may be scooped and filled with green peas served around the meat or on a platter by themselves.

Ham can be scored in circles for a change by using a small cookie cutter and a maraschino cherry placed in each circle. Circles look best if they overlap.

Bananas or pineapple slices broiled make a tantalizing accompaniment to baked ham, roast beef or lamb chops.

Slices of orange topped with a smaller slice of jelly is excellent for meat platters.

Breaded Veal Cutlets.
(Serves 6)

2 pounds veal steak, cut in 6 pieces
1 egg
Cornflake crumbs
1 small onion, chopped
Salt and pepper
4 tablespoons lard
1 No. 2½ can of tomatoes

Dip pieces of meat into the egg and cornflake crumbs which have been seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown in hot lard on both sides, using a heavy frying pan or skillet. Add tomatoes and chopped onion, cover and cook slowly for 1 hour.

Variation Make as above omitting tomatoes and onion. Add 1 cup of sour cream after meat is browned and cook for 1 hour. Thicken the sour cream gravy with flour and water and serve

A cut which you may not have used is lamb shanks, but I assure you they are simply delicious when braised They'll be a good food dollar stretcher for you this season:

Braised Lamb Shanks.
(Serves 6)

6 lamb shanks
2 tablespoons lard
Salt and pepper
1 cup celery
1 cup carrots, cut fine, if desired
1 cup green beans, cut fine, if desired

Brown the lamb shanks in hot lard. Season with salt and pepper. If you're using vegetables, place them in the bottom of the casserole and add a small amount of water. Put in the lamb shanks. Cover and cook in a slow oven (300 degrees) 2 hours.

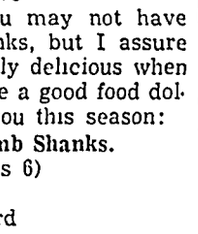
Kidneys are right up there among the top-notchers as a source or riboflavin, preventer of nervous digestive diseases. They're good broiled with bacon and good also in this delicious savory loaf·

Kidney Loaf.
(Serves 6)

1 pound of beef kidney
1 cup milk
8 slices bread
¼ cup bacon drippings
3 slices bacon
1 small can pimientoes
Salt and pepper
3 tablespoons grated onion
½ teaspoon powdered sage, if desired

Wash kidney in cold water. Drain well and grind, using internal fat. Pour milk over bread and soak. Combine all ingredients except bacon and mix thoroughly. Line bottom of pan with uncooked slices of bacon, add meat mixture and pack firmly. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1½ to 2 hours.

What could be better than spareribs with barbecue sauce as a tasty meat dish on a cold night? Bake the spareribs brown and crispy and brush them with the sauce for a dish you'll long remember and enjoy looking at:



Barbecued Spareribs.
(Serves 6)

5 pounds spareribs

Brown spareribs under broiler. Cover with the following sauce and bake about 2 hours in a covered pan in a slow (325 degrees) oven.

Barbecue Sauce.

1 small onion chopped
2 tablespoons lard
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup catsup
¾ cup water
Salt and pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
Dash of ground cloves and cinnamon

Brown onion in lard and add remaining ingredients. Brush over spareribs.

THE NATURE AND WORK OF THE CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2 41-47; Ephesians 4 11-16.

GOLDEN TEXT—Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it.—Ephesians 5 25

The church, which is so much the center of life for Christians, is not as well understood as it should be. We have come to regard it as just one organization among many competing for the attention and interest of men, when it is really a divine, living organism established by Christ as His Body and representing Him in this world Our lesson presents significant truth for both study and teaching. The church is

I. A Fellowship of Believers (Acts 2·41-47)

The church is made up of those who are saved (v 47), those who have received the Word by faith and witnessed a good confession of their faith in Christ (v. 41) This is a fact to be remembered in a time when there is so much laxness in receiving members into the church. It is not a religious or social club. It is not a rallying place for those who wish to work for some economic, political, or social project. It is not a gathering of good people who wish to share common interests.

The church needs to cleanse its rolls of all unbelievers, all hangers-on, and get back to the purity which it had when only those were received who were manifestly "added" by the Lord (v. 47).

Such folk have many interests which bind them together in fellowship, devotion, and service. The early church was interested in sound doctrinal teaching (v. 42), an excellent thing They had fellowship in prayer (v 42), we need that too. They had gladness of heart (v. 46); do we not need a renewal of the song of the Lord in our midst?

They had such fervent love for each other that they established a communal system of sharing with one another, something which God had never commanded and which apparently failed with them, for it was later abandoned. But the point is that they really did love each other and thus showed their true discipleship (see lesson of last Sunday).

II. A Center of Christian Ministry (Eph. 4:11).

The church is God's chosen depository for spiritual gifts, among them being the special ministries mentioned here. The Holy Spirit calls men as He chooses. Blessed is the church which recognizes His choice of teachers, evangelists, preachers, and leaders and gives them liberty to serve the Lord in their calling.

It is God who calls men for these various activities in His vineyard. Self-appointed or man-chosen leaders and preachers are destined to fail, but God's men may be assured of His blessing and power.

III. A Place of Spiritual Growth (Eph. 4.12-16).

The purpose of the gifts of the Spirit is the edifying and building up of believers. A church should always be evangelistic in its efforts. The pastor should be a soul-winner, but essentially his ministry is to so edify and instruct believers that they may go out and win others to Christ.

Verses 13 to 16 tell us how this "perfecting of the saints" moves forward. There is unity of the faith and a growth in knowledge, a steadiness which keeps believers from being led astray by error or the cleverness of men. Thus kept from drifting, and being steadily enriched in knowledge of the truth, the believer grows up to spiritual manhood.

Do not miss the beauty and helpfulness of verses 15 and 16. Like the body "fitly framed and knit together," the church of Christ is to be a perfectly co-ordinated organism, every member performing its perfect service in building up the body in love for the glory of its Head—Christ.

This figure of the Church as the body of Christ and the working together of the members for the glory of the Head is further developed in I Corinthians 12, which the reader is urged to consider, especially verses 12 to 27.

Watching to See

With the Christian who takes the deep true view of his religion as a guide in all earthly matters, material or spiritual, there is never any feverish, blind-alley skirmishing in the face of threatened ill He just waits vigilantly, trustfully, upon God, ready to do His will the moment it is made clear to him. "I will watch to see what He will say to me" Watching to see! In those telling words lies the whole secret of the thing that mystifies non-religious folk so completely—the inviolate calm and courage with which real Christians meet the worst adversities that can befall them in the world.

Household Hints

If food burns in a pan, shake a generous amount of soda into it, fill with cold water and let stand on back of stove until pan can be easily cleaned.

* * *

Crocheted bedspreads can be washed, but they should be carefully spread out on a clean sheet to dry and not hung on a line.

* * *

A teaspoon of baking powder in the water in which meat and vegetables are cooked will help make them tender.

* * *

When pressing men's suits always press over a damp cloth.

Often a coat of paint is saved by first washing the walls before repainting them. This removes the soil and stains and assures a better job and takes less paint.

* * *

Directly under the skin of potatoes is a valuable nutritional layer, so, whenever possible, cook potatoes in their jackets. The skin can then be peeled off easily without loss of food value.

It takes less sugar for stewed apples if sugar is added after cooking.

* * *

Leftover mashed potatoes can be fashioned into small cases and used for holding creamed foods, shaped into flat cakes and browned, or then can be used for covering meat, fish or vegetable "pies."

LaGuardia, Penniless, Came to the Right Place

A few years back, Fiorello LaGuardia, New York's peppery mayor, was addressing a group of Salvation Army workers before a large audience. The mayor gave a long and fiery speech in praise of the organization At the finish, the plate was passed When it came to LaGuardia, he reached into his pocket for money A blank look came into his face when he could not find any He fumbled desperately in all pockets.

Sensing his predicament, the commissioner of the Army said in a loud voice. "That's all right, the Salvation Army is the right place to come to when a man hasn't a nickel!"

Ed. Jacobs Begins Construction Of New Store Building

NEW BUILDING WILL BE CONSTRUCTED OF BRICK AND TILE

Excavation work has been completed and workmen are going to rush to completion a new building for E. F. Jacobs The new building, which will have a frontage of twenty-four ft., will be sixty ft. in length and is being built on the lot between the former Jacobs Hardware Store and the Larsen Locker Plant The lot has been owned by Mr Jacobs for some time.

The new buiding is being constructed of buiding tile and brick and will be modern throughout the height of the ceiling will be ten feet and a plate glass front will be installed

Mr Tageson, who has recently completed the buiding of a house for the Jacobs family, has the contract for the construction of Mr Jacobs' new store buiding

Work on the new building will be pushed as rapidly as possible so that the new store can be opened before February 1st

Has Future Building Plans

Mr Jacobs states that he expects to rebuild his larger store later and that he will do busines in the building now under construction while the other building is being constructed. The building now under construction will then be used as a store room and a display department for used and rebuilt articles such as ranges, stoves, washing machines, separaters, and other equipment.

Still Doing Business

Although the Jacobs Hardware Store has been destroyed by fire of unknown origin, Mr Jacobs is far from being out of business He has retained his help who have been busy every day on service work including the installation of heating and plumbing equipment and repair work. Sales are also being taken care of on major items of hardware and deliveries being made.

KLEMME SHAMROCKS WIN HARD TUSSLE FROM WODEN HERE

Little Shamrocks Drop Opener By Score Of 14 To 23

The Klemme high school split a pair of basket ball games here Friday night with Woden.

The Little Shamrocks, paced by Junky Melvin Coob, who dunked the ball for eight points lost in the opening game 14 to 23

The Shamrock varsity squad underestimated Woden who stepped out in front to lead 14 to 10 at the half and crowded their advantage in the third quarter to worry the Shamrocks

Jacobs put on a scoring spree in the second half to lead the Shamrocks to victory Jacobs found the loop twice in the first half and in the last half hit with five field goals and two charity tosses for a total of sixteen points To complete the scoring Kaduce counted 7, Garland Brinkman4, Bill Grosshuesch 3 and Bock and Klotzbach 2 each

For Woden Valley counted for 8 points, Isebrand and Schmidt each 6, Petersen 5 and Buns 2

The final score was Klemme 34, Woden 27

This was the first Seven Eagles Conference game for the Shamrocks In non-conference play they defeated Belmond and Garner

A GREAT PICTURE COMING TO AVERY THEATRE

In "You'll Never Get Rich," Fred Astaire is provided with a new dancing partner, Rita Hayworth, and what a combination that is!

Astaire again demonstrates his right to the position of the film's top dancing star, while Miss Hayworth clicks solidly in her numbers with Astaire.

Robert Benchley, seen as Broadway producer, Astaire is his aide and is inducted into the Army Benchley follows, only to stage a show for the draftees. With Cole Porter's songs in "You'll Never Get Rich" and the dancing of Astaire and Hayworth ranks the picture as one of the season's top cinemas.

This picture is at The Avery on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Government Urges Farmers To Get Machinery Repaired

ELEVEN YEARS OF SILENCE, CHURCH BELL RINGS AGAIN

When the present Methodist Church was built and dedicated about eleven years ago, no provision was made for the old bell that had called the faithful to worship for many years The new tower was constructed with the idea of some day having tubular chimes hung in place of the bell, and so the tower was too narrow to house the bell

Several weeks ago a group interested in preserving the old bell decided to do something about it, so they planned and had constructed a smaller tower connected to the church and in which the old bell was properly housed

Sunday morning at nine o'clock the bell again peeled forth it's call to worship and again at ten o'clock it sounded out the hour of service about to begin

COMMUNITY SING WILL BE SUNDAY EVE., DEC. 21

Local Auxiliary Tells Of Other Activities In These Notes

"Christmas" was the theme of the regular meeting of the Klemme Auxiliary Unit in December.

DEFENSE BOARD SENDS MACHINERY CHECK SHEETS TO FARM OPERATORS

A farm machinery check sheet to help farmers list the repair parts they will need to put their machinery in good condition for 1942 is being mailed to all farmers in the county this week by the Hancock County USDA Defense Board.

James M Townsend, chairman of the Defense Board, calls upon farmers to do these things at once.

1. Use the check sheets to list the repair parts needed.

2 Order the necessary parts at once from their implement dealers.

He suggested that particular attention be given to chains, belts, bearings, wheels, pulleys,, gears and sprockets, since these are the sources of most trouble with farm implements.

If dealers are unable to obtain repairs which farmers order, they are requested to notify the County Defense Board

Mr. Townsend also urges farmers to offer for sale all the scrap iron, old fencing, automobile bodies, and discarded machinery that they have around the farm Sale of this unused scrap iron will improve the appearance of the farmstead, help the national defense program by furnishing iron for steel manufacture, and furnish extra cash with which to buy machinery repair parts.

Before selling old machinery, however, farmers should salvage all parts which might come in useful for repair purposes later.

PREVENT DISEASE IN DAIRY HERD

Good Management, Feeding Will Reduce Losses.

By Dr. GEORGE TAYLOR
(Extension Dairyman, New Jersey College Of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Dairymen should think more in terms of herd health and disease prevention and less in terms of treatment and cures.

The value of any dairy animal is dependent primarily upon its health. Prevention of disease is far less costly than disease treatment, and good feeding and management practices can go a long way toward reducing annual losses in dairy herds due to disease.

The ration should supply the proper balance of protein, energy, minerals, and vitamins. Water is also needed.

Quality roughage, including hay, pasture and grass silage, is the most essential item of dairy feed. It is a fair source of calcium and practically the sole source of vitamins A and D in the dairy ration. Concentrates which must be fed to satisfy higher levels of production tend to be toxic to a dairy animal. This effect is largely overcome by the feeding of quality hay when pasture is not available. The long list of ailments in dairy cattle which can be avoided by good feeding includes goiter, bloat, impaction and loss of appetite.

Management ranks with feeding in importance in checking disease. Because the spread of disease is more rapid in large herds, the size of the milking unit should be limited to 50 cows or less. Separate quarters should also be provided for growing heifers and baby calves. Separate isolation and maternity quarters are also desirable.

Strict sanitation is a most important part of management. Regular systematic cleaning and disinfecting will aid materially in keeping down the causative organisms associated with disease.

Dairy animals should be allowed ample exercise under conditions where they may benefit from fresh air and exposure to sunshine.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Weed

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Peanuts for Oils

It took the circus to make the peanut into a national food, and it remained for a Negro scientist, Dr. George Washington Carver, to find scores of new uses for the lowly peanut and its shell.

Dr. Carver has developed a peanut milk, shampoo, vinegar, soap, cosmetics, ink powder, rubber and charcoal. Peanuts are used commercially in more than 300 products including shaving lotions, dyes, linoleum, axle grease and wood stains. Every part of the plant may be used to advantage. When properly cured, the peanut vines make edible hay for stock which compares favorably with clover and alfalfa. The shells have been crushed into insulating boards.

Co-operative Marketing associations of the peanut-growing states, have banded together in a National Peanut council which aims to increase the use of peanuts. About 200,000,000 pounds are made into peanut butter annually. Salted peanuts appeared first in 1887.

At the New Orleans region's research laboratory of the U. S. department of agriculture, scientists are working on the processes of extracting peanut oil and its use as a lubricant in the textile industry to replace imported olive and linseed oil. Shelled peanuts contain 40 to 50 per cent oil and this is often substituted for olive oil in food.

Largest Rural Network

What is believed to be the world's largest rural electrification network connects areas in the adjoining states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Iowa, according to Rural Electrification News. The generating plant of the Tri-State Power Co-operative—largest yet constructed in the REA program—is located near Genoa, Wis. It is serving 11 farmer-owned distribution co-operatives, and has an installed capacity of 8,000 kilowatts. Two additional turbo-generators, each with a capacity of 5,000 kilowatts, are to be installed. Its 400 miles of transmission lines, distributing electricity at 34,500 volts, branch out in all directions to large areas in the three states.

History in the News

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Reuben James, Forgotten

WHEN the radio flashed word recently that a ship of the United States navy had been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, it rescued from the obscurity which had engulfed it for more than a century the name of one of America's "forgotten heroes" and gave it world-wide fame. For the destroyer, which now rests on the bottom of the Atlantic with its crew of nearly 100 officers and men, victims of the modern "pirates," was named in honor of Reuben James, "common seaman," who once distinguished himself by an act of gallantry and self-sacrifice in a battle with the pirates of another era in the annals of the sea.

That was away back in the early days of the republic when we were at war with the Barbary pirates of the north coast of Africa who had been preying upon American commerce for years. On August 3, 1804, young Captain Stephen Decatur led his command of three gunboats into the harbor of Tripoli to attack some of the pirate ships which had taken refuge there.

Out to meet him came six enemy boats, all of them manned and armed twice as heavily as the American craft. Undaunted by the odds against him, Decatur urged his crews to grapple with the pirates and board their boats. The battle immediately resolved itself into a desperate hand-to-hand struggle in which the pikes, axes and cutlasses of the Americans were pitted against the scimitars and daggers of the corsairs.

Reuben James saves the life o Capt. Stephen Decatur. (Drawn from the famous painting by Chappel.)

Within a short time Decatur and the crew of the gunboat which he commanded personally had cleared the deck of the pirate ship. But bad luck had overtaken the captain's younger brother, James Decatur. The leader of the pirate boat which he boarded had pretended to surrender, then had shot James Decatur through the heart. Seeing this, Captain Decatur, mad with rage, shouted to some of his men to come with him in pursuit of the murderer. Another officer and 10 men responded to his call and within a few minutes they overtook the enemy's ship.

Led by Decatur, they sprang aboard and cut their way through the corsairs toward their leader. The captain, a giant of a man, swung savagely at the young American with a pike which he was using as a broadsword. Decatur, trying to cut the blade of the pike from the shaft, snapped his cutlass at the hilt. Dropping his useless weapon, he closed in, seized the pirate captain around the waist and back-heeled him for a heavy fall.

As the two struggling men went down on deck, one of the pirates rushed forward and raised his scimitar to deal the American captain a death blow. But before the weapon could descend, Reuben James, although badly wounded, sprang forward and threw himself across Decatur's shoulders. The keen blade of the long, curved sword slashed across James' head, inflicting a terrible wound. But he had saved his commander's life.

James eventually recovered. Later when asked to name his own reward, he is said to have scratched his scarred and battered head and murmured bashfully: "If it's all the same to you, Cap'n, let somebody else give out the hammicks. It's a business I don't like." And with that classic remark Reuben James steps off the page of history, his name to be all but forgotten until 137 years later when a German torpedo sent his namesake to its watery grave.

In a certain sense, Reuben James' heroic self-sacrifice was in vain. True he saved Stephen Decatur for even greater service to his country later. But it is also true that he saved his commander's life only to have him lose it as a victim to the code duello which Decatur hated but which he was not brave enough to disobey. So in 1820 when his erstwhile friend, Commodore James Barron, who believed that Decatur had slandered him, challenged him to a duel, Decatur met him on the "field of honor" and died from the wound received there.

BUILDING ANYTHING, MISTER?

SPAB has ruled that no new public or private building may be started unless it is essential to the health and safety of the country. Pop, there goes that idea of a new two-car garage!

* * *

The government must save all "critical material" for the war. Critical material is almost everything from the blueprint to the architect's bill.

* * *

The man who has just dug a cellar for anything may find he is just the custodian of a hole for the duration of the war.

* * *

Director Donald M. Nelson says that if you have a building partly finished he will try to take you out of your position in mid-air, but it is more than likely that the man with a house only 50 per cent finished will save himself a lot of trouble by just putting a sign "Opened By Mistake" on the whole project.

* * *

This is an all-out war and it appears to be leaving the building all out of most everything from cellar door hinges to lightning rods.

* * *

"Is the construction directly necessary for national defense, or for the health and safety of the civilian population?" This is the test question Washington asks. How are you going to make a new country home fit into that?

* * *

In fact, how are you going to make a garage fit?

* * *

Almost everything is necessary to defense, including those bronze door-knockers and the bathtub faucets.

* * *

"The House That Jack Built" is becoming the Bungalow That Nelson Stopped.

* * *

Mr. Nelson says the restrictions will halt "pork barrel" projects. The answer to that is "Wanna bet?"

* * *

He will have his work cut out for him trying to convince a congressman that the new power dam at Corncob Valley isn't essential to the safety of the country and that the de luxe post office in Cribbage Hollow isn't vital to the health of every politician involved.

* * *

Some questions and answers issued by the SPAB to explain the situation include:

Q.—If I were building a 10-story building and had four stories up could I get material to finish it?

A.—Very likely, yes.

Q.—If only an excavation existed?

A.—It would be a tossup.

* * *

And the builder would be "He who gets tossed."

AS MA GOOSE MIGHT PUT IT

This is the house that Jack built.

* * *

This is the architect that planned the house that Jack built.

* * *

This is the builder retained by the architect that planned the house that Jack built.

This is the stuff they needed for The cellar and the second floor.

This is the owner (oh, sad is he!)
Who got word from S.P.A.B.
He couldn't get stuff needed for
The cellar and the second floor.

You can go on from here. All it takes is imagination.

LINES ON LONGEVITY

(An average life span of 550 years is attainable if conditions in the body at the age of 10 years are retained, according to a professor in the Columbia university school of medicine.—News item.)

Consider, please, the child of ten,
Whose bodily condition's
A miracle to learned men,
Professors and physicians,

Who say that if we could retain
This stamina and vigor,
Five hundred years we might remain,
And somewhat more, they figure.

But I have watched a child at play,
From morning until night time,
And wearily I now must say
That threescore ten is quite time.
—Richard Armour.

There is a 5 per cent tax on all railroad, plane and boat tickets now, and one hesitates to think what this must mean to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Commuters are excepted. This is the first instance in history where a commuter got any consideration whatever.

Barnum Had Plugged Holes And Was in the Money

When P. T. Barnum, as a young man, left Danbury, Conn., to make his way in the world, he left numerous unpaid bills behind him. To one creditor the imaginative showman said with great intensity: "I'll pay you what I owe you as soon as I get rich."

The other laughed and eyed the youth disdainfully.

"That will be when a sieve holds water," he jeered.

But in a few years the master showman was well on the road to success, and with great satisfaction wrote the man the following note:

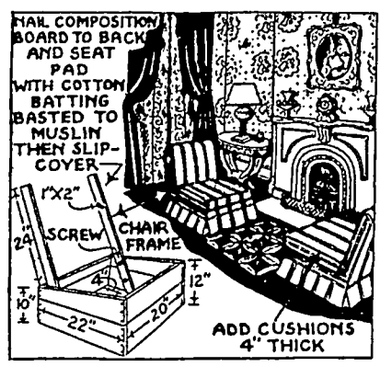
"Dear Sir: I have fixed that sieve."

Ideals as Stars

Ideals are like stars; you will not succeed in touching them with your hands, but like the seafaring man on the desert of waters, you choose them as your guides, and, following them, you reach your destiny.—Carl Schurz.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS



THESE conversation chairs so much at home in a Victorian setting would be just as smart in a modern room. They are comfortable too, and any man who can nail together a box of one-inch pine boards can make a frame for one. The lady with needle and thread then takes over. If ready made spring cushions are used it is best to buy them first and then plan the box base to fit. The dimensions in the diagram tilt the back and seat at comfortable angles. Domes of silence at the four corners of the base make the chair easy to move.

HIGHLIGHTS OF ARMY NEWS

With Uncle Sam's army at its peacetime peak size and with increasing activity in military developments many stories of wide interest develop in army camps throughout the nation. Herewith are presented a series of articles depicting various phases of army activity.

The army is in the junk business to save Uncle Sam millions of dollars.

In an out-of-way section of Philadelphia, a little group of men and women spend their work-days picking over a pile of woolen and cotton scraps. They are salvaging waste material from the cutting and piecing machines used in making millions of army uniforms. Saving these cloth scraps last year saved the government more than $1,500,000.

To provide uniforms for the army's million and a half soldiers, the quartermaster depot buys the uniform material, then sends it to manufacturers who have contracts with the army to make the soldiers' trousers, coats, shirts and other clothing. Scrap cloth that accumulates during the manufacturing process is returned to the depot, carefully sorted, baled and auctioned to the highest bidders.

The army knows to the penny how much scrap material is saved in the manufacture of each piece of clothing—coat, 10 cents' worth; overcoat, 14 cents; trousers, 5 cents; field jacket, 6 cents; field cap, .6 cent.

Army Musicians

Army musicians will soon be playing new Bell Lyra's, a variation of the glockenspiel popular in European military bands.

The instrument contains a keyboard similar to that of a piano, but is played by striking 22 metal bars with a small mallet. The tonal and harmonic effects have a tremendous carrying range and add possibilities for musical variations.

The Bell Lyra player carries the 10 by 22 inch instrument in an upright position by means of a shoulder strap. For concert work it may also be played from a stationary rack. The Bell Lyras will replace chromatic bells, now used in U. S. army bands. The new instrument can be played on the march.

Fashion Notes

Soldiers riding the iron steeds of the army's armored force are assured ample protection this winter for fingers and hands operating weapons and equipment.

A twin glove of wool and leather has just been perfected for the armored force by the quartermaster corps. The outer glove has leather palms and thumbs. An inner glove is fashioned of knitted wool. A strap fastens the twin glove's large gauntlet over overcoat sleeves to keep out cold air.

When necessary for the soldiers to adjust equipment, operate a radio or do anything which requires free movement of the fingers, the outer glove can be pulled off. The wool inner glove will still provide protection.

Motorcycle riders may soon have lambskin lined muffs fastened on their handlebars, into which they may slip their hands, if tests now under way by the quartermaster corps prove successful.

Portable Pipe Line

Portable pipe lines that can be readily moved for installation over difficult terrain to carry gasoline supplies to motorized units in the field, have been developed recently by the army.

The new pipe line comes in self-contained half-mile units, each complete with a centrifugal pump driven by a 20-horsepower gasoline engine, according to Army Motors, the publication of the motor transport school at the Holabird quartermaster depot, Baltimore, Md. Each half mile unit can be moved by cargo trucks and used independently of any other unit.

These self-contained sections, alone or in combinations, are said to be able to deliver gasoline through swamps and forests or over mountains at a rate of approximately 200 gallons per minute. The pipe can also be used to assist or even replace floating gasoline tanks for ship-to-shore operations.

Army Food Supply

During last summer's maneuvers in Louisiana, 40 freight cars daily were necessary to bring in rations at 12 railheads for the 123,000 men in the Second army. Here is what they ate each day.

270,300 pounds of beef
202,748 pounds of bacon
81,099 pounds of potatoes
275,737 eggs
13,517 pounds of coffee
167,605 bananas, apples, oranges

Horses, too, had healthy appetites. Cavalry units consumed 33 tons of oats and 39 tons of hay daily and as for motor vehicles—nearly eight gallons of gasoline were used in each during a day's operation.

More than 10 per cent of the men walked holes into the soles of their shoes by the time the final phase of the maneuvers was reached. An emergency supply of 30,000 new pairs of shoes was kept on hand for replacement.

Railroad Fares

Army personnel traveling by rail in uniform on official leave, furlough or pass at their own expense, will benefit from reduced fares for another year. The present reduced fare arrangements made last May and due to expire this month, have been extended to October 31, 1942, H. W. Siddall, chairman of the railroad interterritorial military committee representing all of the railroads in the United States, has notified the quartermaster general.

For U. S. Defense

ATLANTA, GA.—Margaret Mitchell, famed author of "Gone With the Wind," is shown purchasing a United States Defense Savings Bond. In a statement which she issued when buying her bond, Miss Mitchell said: "Whether we go into war or not, we must be prepared for war. It is only common sense that in times like these every nation must be able to defend itself. I want our country to have the best ships, planes, tanks and guns—and plenty of them. If I can help by buying Defense Bonds, I am glad to do so."

Set Up Job Plan to Aid Men on Leaving Service

WASHINGTON. — Selective service headquarters announced it had arranged for the classification of skilled workers now being discharged from the army so that they may be speedily employed.

Approximately 200,000 soldiers are to be returned to civilian life and other thousands will be released in the succeeding months provided the international situation does not compel their retention.

Blind People Can Now 'See' Plays Through Medium of Phonographic Discs

Broadway star recording play for the blind. Mady Christians, with Joseph Wolland and associate players, acting Hedda Gabler before the microphone at the sound studios of the American Foundation for the Blind, New York, N. Y., for the Talking Book production of the Ibsen play.

NEW YORK —It is not often that blind people have the advantage over the seeing. Usually it is the other way round The blind who live far away from Broadway, however, have a distinct edge on their seeing neighbors. As they cannot go to the theater, the theater now comes to them complete, with full sound effects and incidental music and acted by players from the Broadway stage.

The idea of giving to the many thousands of sightless citizens across the country the chance to hear the best that the contemporary theater has to offer, originated with the American Foundation for the Blind, New York city, which decided to utilize the "Talking Book" for this purpose. The book, designed to bring the best in inkprint books within reach of blind people, consists of long-playing phonographic discs on which trained readers record the works of the chosen authors. The discs are played on an electric reading machine resembling a portable phonograph.

For several years the Library of Congress has been co-operating with the foundation, and by using congressional appropriations, has met most of the cost of the majority of these recorded works, and places them in 27 regional public libraries across the country which operate departments for the blind

Theater Co-operative.

In launching its new venture of bringing acted plays to the blind, the Broadway theater was found eager to co-operate. A group of young players from contemporary successes formed the nucleus of a repertory company to which guest stars from time to time come to contribute their services. Among those whose work reaches the blind people of the country on the discs of the Talking Book are Dame Sybil Thorndike, Otis Skinner, Eva LeGallienne, Mady Christians, Hilda Spong, Bert Lytell, Whitford Kane, Selena Royle, Wesley Addy, Brenda Forbes, Edith Taliaferro, Joseph Holland and House Jameson.

To date no less than 44 plays have been acted onto the discs solely for the use of the blind—an impressive list of classic and contemporary drama which includes such plays as "Elizabeth the Queen," "Ah Wilderness," "Hedda Gabler," "King Richard II," "Our Town," "When Ladies Meet," "The Silver Box," "The Rivals," and "The Bat." The playing time of all these productions corresponds with the time the blind listener would spend in an actual theater.

The average modern play runs to four or five double-sided discs, or from two to two hours and a half of playing time. The older plays, which are given without cutting, run to almost double that number. Shakespeare's "Anthony and Cleopatro" takes up seven double-sided discs, or three hours and a half of playing time.

Thanks to all that has been accomplished to date, the theater now comes in this way to the blind. It comes to them, moreover, free of all charge. The blind individual who wishes to enjoy what Broadway has to offer without leaving his armchair has only to send a list of the plays he wishes to hear to the public library nearest him, and one by one these plays reach him, each with its individual enchantment. These plays even travel between library and reader postage free.

Priorities vs. Toys —And Johnie's Sock Comes Off 2nd Best

CHICAGO —When priorities clash with pop-guns, little Johnie and his Christmas stocking come off second best—that is if metal toys are being used to fill it this Christmas For while many department stores throughout the country were foresighted enough to make advance purchases of scooter cars, bicycles, all metal wheel goods, and defense toys including air guns, there does exist a shortage in these items for 1941 Christmas shopping.

'Priorities vs. Toys'

No child need be toy-hungry at Christmas, despite a 20-per cent increase in demand this year over last. It is expected that the nation's toy bill will reach an all-time high of a quarter of a billion dollars this year, according to a report of the Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Ill.

Reflecting our national armament program, military toys and games are more popular than ever, despite mass production handicaps Toyland arsenals include dive bombers, anti-aircraft guns, defense forts, Red Cross ambulances, trucks and airplanes of all varieties. Similarly slanted are many non-metal war games and books featuring life in army camps.

Manufacturers of miniature railroad trains and equipment, directly affected by priority rulings, report a 10 per cent increase in demand A record number of the nation's 150,000 perennial train hobbyists, anticipating shortages and substitutions are sending their old equipment back to the factory for re conditioning and repair.

Toys classified as educational are in sharp demand. Reproductions in miniature of the advancement in the home maker's art, science and engineering, are all in evidence on the nation's counters.

Notes of An Innocent Bystander:

The Wireless: All the grumbling you hear about the Army's morale being way down to here is German cooking. Gen'l Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, made that warning in his speech. Its all tricked up to disturb the soldiers' loved ones, and it's surefire with the stupider Congressmen . . . Clark Gable's nifty via a Red Cross show. "Our ancestors lived in log cabins and sod huts to establish a gov't based on the theory of 'We, the People,' and not 'I, the State' " . . . Many of the afternoon dramas contain some of the theater's best players. Why don't the sponsors also try to hire a better grade of writers? . . . One place where a writer is needed—but needed—is on the "single" shows. The patter the announcer and artist swap between numbers always sounds as if they'd lost the script and are covering up the wait . . . One headliner explained the reason he never used guest stars is because he's never met a star who knew how to behave like a guest.

The Story Tellers: Correspondent James Young, who was jailed by the Japs for reporting what he saw in China, gives them real reason to holler copper in a Reader's Digest hoticle. In "Japan Risks Destruction," Young should raise lots of blood pressure in Tokyo . . Clarke Robinson, profiling Admiral Harold R. Stark in World Digest, reports that the present Chief of Naval Operations made his first hit with FDR by defying him . . . No punch-puller is Time, which describes publisher Douglas M. Stewart of Commentator, to wit and to wow: "stocky, heavy-lidded Boston aesthete with a taste for antiques and Aryans" . . .. Collier's editorialist (is that you Maury?) for Nov. 13 has a punchy crack . . . He calls Nazi-occupied Yurrop: "The New Disorder."

When the news first came through that those 95 refugees from Nazi-land had been refused permission to land in Argentina, and faced the fate of being returned to concentration camps, Selwyn James, a scrappy Britisher on PM, boldly called Sir Gerald Campbell, chief of the British Press service. He urged him to have the refugees admitted to British Trinidad. It would be excellent publicity for the British, James said, aside from being a decent and not too unlikely act of humanity He got a polite brush-off . . . The gloomy ship started for Europe, and Rep. Sol Bloom rushed in protest to the British Embassy. He was turned down, too . . . When that happened, cocky newspaperman James got Campbell on the phone again, and ranted and roared for half an hour . . . It must have been tophole as far as accents and persuasion go . . . Because, finally, Campbell promised to have another go at the Embassy . . . Result: The refugee ship has changed course again, and British Trinidad will be at least a temporary haven for those ninety-five pushed-around outcasts.

Ed Howe, the late editor of an Atchison, Kansas, daily, was always envied for his serene outlook on life . . Celebrated writers read his stuff and wished they had his peace of mind . . . Now his son, Gene, writes in a magazine: "My father was the most wretchedly unhappy man I ever knew" . . . At the same time, H. L. Mencken, the Baltimore journalist, was hollering his head off. People were clucks, he yelped, and the world was a hoosegow . . . Now, in his fascinating memoirs, "Newspaper Days," Mencken confesses he was always as happy as a kid with his first long pants, all day long.

Midtown Vignette: The other middle-of-the-nightime, a Canadian soldier went into Hamburger Heaven and wolf'd about five hamburger sandwiches, so hungry was he . . . As he went to the cashier's desk, he was told: "Oh, I couldn't think of taking money from you. You're doing something to make it a better world, and all I can do is wish I could. Sorry, no money from a soldier. And whenever you are in the neighborhood again, please come here and eat all you want!" . . . The Canadian said he'd like it lots more if he could pay his way . . . "I have the money!" he said, displaying a wad . . . "Sorry," said the cashier, "wouldn't think of it!" . . The Canadian is one of the wealthiest men in the world. His name is Duncan McMartin. Has about 40 million smackers.

Typewriter Ribbons: Pete Smith's: An eye like a cafeteria cashier's . . . John Barrymore's: Happiness sneaks in through a door you didn't know you left open . . John Galsworth's: One's eyes are what one is, one's mouth is what one becomes . . . Ben Hecht's: His smile appeared to wear a little crutch . . . Elizabeth Curtis': He panthered up and down the room . . . Olin Miller's: A woman never knows what dress she doesn't want until she buys it.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

LITTLE BUSINESS

The President has on his desk a confidential report that would warm the heart of the defense-harried little business man if he could read it.

Submitted by Lowell Mellett, one of the "passion for anonymity" White House secretaries, following a careful survey in 35 states, the memorandum by inference severely criticizes OPM and war department handling of defense contracts.

Mellett found that little business generally is bitterly disgusted with the whole defense administration, is convinced that it is being run by big business and corporation lawyers, and is up in arms politically about the matter. Mellett warns that the administration had better do something about the situation and do it fast or it will be just too bad in next year's crucial congressional elections.

A long list of specific grievances are detailed in the report: Little firms are excluded from defense orders in favor of big competitors, even though there was no difference in their prices. Endless run-arounds from OPM and army brasshats because the little business men had no "in" with the big shots Small manufacturers put out of business by the priority system which enables big concerns with defense contracts to hog supplies of raw materials.

Mellett also implies that the Division of Contract Distribution, established several months ago to help little business, has so far accomplished very little in the way of results. Small business is still out in the cold when it comes to getting an equitable share of defense work.

The gist of the report is an old story to the President. For months others have been telling him the same thing, although not so comprehensively and effectively. The creation of SPAB and the Contract Distribution division was an effort to remedy the situation. But these agencies are manned with the same type of executives who have been running the defense program from the start—big business men.

There isn't one little business man among them.

Lone Refuge.

In fact, in all of Washington there is only one place where a little business man is functioning in behalf of small business.

That is in the justice department, where trust-busting Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold has set up a Small Business section and installed as its head a genuine little business man.

He is Guy Holcomb, a strapping, two-fisted Atlanta filling station operator, who has never had a public job before, hates redtape, and loves nothing better than to tangle with a brasshat who is pushing around a little fellow.

Operating from a cubby-hole office, with only a secretary as his assistant, and without fanfare and hoopla, Holcomb in the month he has been functioning already has chalked up an impressive record as a defender of little business men. He has got them contracts, supplies, and entry to official doors previously closed.

If you are a little business man and are having defense troubles, Holcomb is the one man in Washington to tell them to. He may not be able to help you, but he'll certainly try. There will be no complaint on that score.

HITLER CARVES TURKEY

The reported new French hookup with Hitler comes at an especially bad time for the British—which undoubtedly is why the Nazis put the screws on Vichy so vigorously. Under these circumstances the Nazi squeeze on Turkey can be expected to tighten almost momentarily.

In fact, the more the Nazi drive in Russia bogs down with weather, the more likely is Hitler to take the easier, warmer, short cut through Turkey toward the oil fields of the Caucasus—and also toward the British oil fields in Mosul and the Euphrates valley.

For months the Nazis have been bringing small boats down to the Aegean via the Balkan railroads and the Danube, and are reported almost ready for landing party attacks on coastal points in the Middle East.

Preparing to meet this, General Wavell has been sending a constant stream of reinforcements from India, most of them to Iran, Iraq and Palestine. The British say they are in fairly good shape—though still woefully weak in tanks.

Faced with this crisis, the Turks as unusual, continue to be the enigma of Europe. Diplomatic betting is they will bow to Hitler.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Bill Bullitt, former ambassador to France, was asked by photographers to pose with strip-tease queen Ann Corio, as the two happened to board the same plane in Hartford, Conn. Bullitt declined. Commented La Corio, "He'd better never run for office—my fans will snub him at the polls!"

A confidential commerce department report estimates that by the fall of 1942, 6,000,000 workers will be employed in defense industries. The number is now 1,500,000.

How to Get Defense Job Shown by New Booklet

WHAT are your chances for a defense job? Excellent! All sorts of free agencies have been set up to train and place workers for defense jobs. The labor shortage is acute in skilled and semi-skilled occupations for machine-shop, aircraft, shipbuilding and general metal work.

Christmas givers who want to be sure their gift is well received have been turning more and more to cigarettes and smoking tobacco as gifts most appreciated by any smoker. Their welcome is always far greater than the modest cost involved. Naturally, Camels, as America's favorite cigarette, and Prince Albert, the world's largest-selling pipe tobacco, head the smoker's gift list. Camels have two gift packages—the carton of ten packages of "20's" specially wrapped, and a gay package containing four "flat fifties." Prince Albert is featured in the pound tin and the pound glass humidor, both handsomely Christmas packed.—Adv.

Hancock County Board Proceedings

3RD ADJOURNED NOVEMBER MEETING

Garner, Iowa, December 2, 1941

The Hancock County, Iowa, Board of Supervisors met in session on above date with G. E. Klipping, F J. Schoun and Penn Eckels present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved as read.

In the matter of a lien in the sum of $339 63 for care of Hazel Jeanette Severson, as shown in the Auditor's ledger of State Institution Accounts for Hancock County, Iowa, as charged against lots 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, block 20, Anderson's Second Addition to the Town of Britt, Iowa, it appearing that Henry Severson, owner of the above described real estate, wishes to convey said property and has requested a release of the hereinbefore mentioned lien so far as lots, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, block 20, Anderson's Second Addition to the Town of Britt, Iowa, are concerned and has offered $100.00 in payment on account.

BE AND IT IS THEREFORE RESOLVED by the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Iowa, that the lien against lots 8 9, 10, 11 and 12, block 20, Anderson's Second Addition to the Town of Britt, Iowa, for the care of Hazel Jeanette Severson as shown in the Auditor's ledger of State Institution Accounts for Hancock County, Iowa, is hereby released, but such lien shall remain in full effect and force on any other property owned by Henry Severson in Hancock County, Iowa Receipt of a payment of $100.00 as a partial payment on account is hereby acknowledged.

The foregoing resolution was offered and read by Supervisor Schoun, who moved its adoption, seconded by Supervisor Klipping whereupon the Chairman placed the motion of its adoption and upon roll call the vote thereon is G E Klipping, F J Schoun and Penn Eckels, Aye Nays, None Whereupon the Chairman declared the resolution duly adopted

WHEREAS Hancock County, Iowa, did on the 22nd day of January, 1941, file claim in the amount of $450 87 in the Estate of Fairfield Dean, deceased, for the hospitalization of said decedent at the State Hospital at Cherokee, Iowa, from January 8, 1936 to September 30, 1939, and

WHEREAS, it is now the desire of the Administratrix of said estate and the heirs at law of said decedent to close said estate, and

WHEREAS, Hancock County, Iowa, through its Board of Supervisors, has agreed with said Administratrix and said heirs at law that said estate may be closed without the payment of said claim, provided, however, that said claim shall, until paid, remain and constitute a lien on the following described real estate of which decedent died seized, to-wit. The Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of Section 28, Township 94, Range 26, West of the 5th P M, Hancock County, Iowa.

NOW THEREFORE, Be It Resolved that Hancock County, Iowa, through its Board of Supervisors, does hereby consent to the closing of the estate of Fairfield Dean, deceased, Probate No. 2407, records of Hancock County, Iowa, and the Administratrix discharged, without the claim of said County in the amount of $450 87, being paid out of the personal property now on hand in said estate, upon the provision however, that said claim shall remain and constitute a lien upon the above described real estate until the same is paid in full

Be It Further Resolved that no interest shall be computed on said claim for any period

Be It Further Resolved that Chairman Penn Eckels and County Auditor Fred C Missal be and are hereby authorized to execute for and in behalf of said County its consent to the closing of said estate, a copy of such consent being hereto attached and made a part hereof as Exhibit "A"

The foregoing Resolution was offered by Supervisor Schoun and seconded by Supervisor Klipping, and after due deliberation the following vote was had Penn Eckels, G E Klipping and Frank Schoun Aye. Whereupon the Chairman Penn Eckels declared the Resolution duly adopted

In the matter of the Estate of Frank Quigley, Sr. Comes now the Board of Supervisors, George E Klipping, F J Schoun and Penn Eckels, Chairman, and expressly waive all costs, except those costs incurred through the publication of notices charged against and owing by the above captioned estate and by Thomas J. Quigley, Administrator of said Estate, for the reason that it affirmatively appears that said administrator has no funds in his hands with which to pay such costs for the reason that all real estate left by the decedent was subject to a mortgage which was foreclosed, and all personal property left by the decedent was subject to chattel mortgage.

On motion and second Contract Bond for the Concrete Products Corperation of Humboldt is approved.

On motion and second Insurance Policies No. 35203 and S5227 are approved.

Supervisor Klipping is appointed a committee to investigate and cause repairs to be made in D .D. No. 38.

Supervisor Schoun is appointed a committee to investigate and cause repairs to be made in D. D. No. 3 & 4, lateral No. 40.

Be It Resolved that Roy Railsback be and he is hereby awarded a contract to furnish piling for Hancock County and Chairman Penn Eckels is hereby authorized to execute said contract in behalf of Hancock County, Iowa.

WHEREAS, Chas. F. Merten has to report that Harry Rehm has completed his contract on section No. 3 to his entire satisfaction, and

WHEREAS, there is due a final estimate in the sum of $357 49 on said contract,

Be It Therefore Resolved, by the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Iowa, that the report of the Engineer be approved and the county auditor be and he is hereby directed to draw a warrant on the Construction Fund of Hancock County, Iowa, in favor of Harry Rehm, in the sum of $357 49, as a Final payment on said contract. All as provided for by law

Be It Resolved that the claims hereinafter set out be allowed in amounts designated thereon and the county auditor be and he is hereby ordered to draw warrants on the several funds of Hancock County, Iowa, in payment of such claims in amounts set opposite each claim:

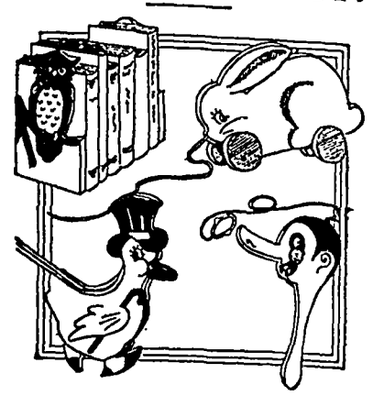
Cutout Toys to Make The Children Happy



No. Z9397

A WALKING duck, a hopping rabbit, clown ring toss toy and owl bookends—all come from your workshop to make some child happy. Each is traced to wood, cut out with jig, coping or keyhole saw and painted. Off center wheels make the rabbit hop merrily—feet on a disc turning inside make the resplendent duck walk when pushed. The clown's long nose is an excellent target for catching the ring on the end of the string.

Cigarettes and smoking tobacco have moved rapidly to the fore front as ideal Christmas gifts with Camels as America's favorite cigarette and Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco, the world's largest-selling smoking tobacco, well to the fore. The beauty of these gifts for smokers lies in the fact that their cost is modest and their welcome always assured. Local dealers have been featuring Camels in the carton of ten packs of "20's" and a special gift of four "flat fifties." Prince Albert is available in the humidor specially wrapped for Christmas giving.—Adv.

Relieves COLD DISCOMFORTS

● At the first sign of a cold, make up your mind to avoid as much of the sniffling, sneezing, soreness and stuffy condition of your nostrils as possible. Insert Mentholatum in each nostril. Also rub it vigorously on your chest. You'll be delighted with the way Mentholatum combats cold misery and helps restore comfort. Jars or tubes, 30c.

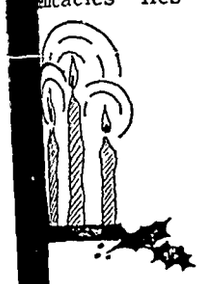
Christmas Baking Begins With Luscious Fruit Cake!
(See Recipes Below)

Holiday Fare

Christmas is something pretty pecial, I'm sure you'll agree, and s such deserves something pretty pecial in the way of food. To my otion the fruit cakes and plum pud-in's are that special something ith their handsome brown, fruity chness and delectable flavors.

The charm of both these kinds of elicacies lies in their ripened, mellowed flavors which comes only with proper aging when the spices, fruits, nuts and butter blend themselves into mysterious goodness. So bake the fruit cakes and puddings in ad-nce and give them a chance to quire their best in flavor.



While you're about the big busi-ss of making a fruit cake, bake veral small cakes in small glass pottery dishes to give as gifts. ily decorated with sprigs of holly d mistletoe and holiday ribbons y make a perfect gift.

Dark Fruit Cake.
(Yields 10 to 12 pounds)

12 eggs
4 cups sifted flour
2 cups butter
2 pound brown sugar
2 pounds raisins
2 pounds currants
1 pound pecans
1 pound citron
1 pound almonds
1 teaspoon each, nutmeg, cinnamon, mace
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup canned peach juice
1 ounce glass jelly (blackberry, currant or grape)
½ cup cream

Wash and dry raisins and cur-nts. Blanch almonds, drain and with pecans into quarters. Cut on into thin slices. Place fruit large mixing bowl. Sift flour, easure and sift with spices and with fruits until well-coated. eam butter and sugar, add beaten gs and jelly. Stir in flour and lt alternately with fruit juice first, cream.

ine pans with heavy waxed pa-and butter slightly. Fill pans ost to the top. Bake small loaf es 3 to 3½ hours at 275 degrees. e large loaf cakes 4 to 4½ hours 50 degrees. Cool.

ol cakes on a rack. When cool, p in heavy waxed paper and tightly.

you prefer the lighter fruit e, why not try this less rich just as elegant cousin of the Fruit Cake:

Light Fruit Cake.
(Makes 3½ to 4 pounds)

pounds mixed crystallized uits (cherries, pineapple, etc.)
ound mixed lemon, orange, iron peels pound blanched, chopped al-onds maraschino cherries up diced preserved ginger
cups flour
aspoon baking powder

LYNN SAYS:

istmas wouldn't be Christ-if you didn't have good like fruit cake and plum on hand. But since these lots of time to make, plan in the process of making for several days so one day tire you out.

uts and nuts can be cut and ed several days in advance they usually involve consid-time.

n putting the batter in the be sure that the corners ell filled with batter so get a nice looking cake or e.

the cake or pudding in a y place. Have it tightly preferably in a tin con-Sound apples may be kept container itself to keep pudding moist, but must ced if they become de-shriveled.

1 tablespoon lemon juice
Cut fruits and peels in thin slices
Mix cherries and ginger with 1 cup flour and toss lightly. Cream margarine with ½ cup sugar. Sift together flour baking powder and salt and beat into batter. Add floured fruits and nuts and mix thoroughly. Add lemon juice to egg whites and beat until stiff. Add remaining sugar and beat until smooth. Fold into batter. Turn into greased tube pans lined with waxed paper and bake in a slow (325 degree) oven for 3 hours.

To my mind there's nothing quite so festive as the plum pudding brought flaming to the table, and served with a rich sauce.

Plum Pudding.
(Makes 3½ pounds)

1 cup suet
1 cup molasses
2 cups bread crumbs
3 eggs, unbeaten
1 cup raisins
1 cup currants
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon each, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves
1 tablespoon flavoring
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon soda

Mix well the suet and molasses. Add bread crumbs and mix in eggs one at a time. Add raisins and currants mixed with the flour and spices, then flavoring. Mix in milk and soda dissolved in 1 cup boiling water. Grease mold, put in pudding ¾ full and seal tight. Place in kettle of boiling water on a trivet or a rack and have the water come half way around the mold. Steam for three hours. Serve hot.

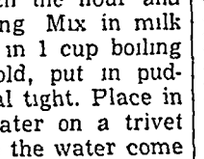
An excellent dessert for Christmas time or winter time is this old-fashioned suet pudding much akin to the plum pudding:

Suet Pudding.
(Serves 10)

1 cup suet, chopped fine
1 cup molasses
1 cup bread crumbs
¼ cup evaporated milk, mixed with
¼ cup water
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins or currants or preserved fruit

Mix all dry ingredients together, add fruit, then suet and milk. Turn into greased pudding mold, cups or cans, cover tightly with greased paper or fitted covers. Place on a rack in a kettle of boiling water which comes half way up to the molds. Cover kettle and steam 3 hours if in a mold, or 1 hour if in cups. Serve with hard sauce or Plum Pudding Sauce.

Sauce is to pudding as stuffing is to the turkey so make it good. For steamed puddings a hard sauce flavored with whatever you desire is excellent. If you'd like a hot, golden-hued sauce, meltingly delicious here's one that's tops:



Plum Pudding Sauce.

¼ cup butter
1 cup powdered sugar
2 tablespoons cider or
1 tablespoon other flavoring
2 eggs
½ cup rich milk

Cream butter and powdered sugar. Add cider or flavoring, then well-beaten egg yolks. When well mixed, stir in milk. Cook in double boiler until thick as custard, then gradually pour in beaten egg whites, beating constantly.

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

LESSON TEXT—II Corinthians 8 1-9; 9 6, 7

GOLDEN TEXT—It is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.—I Corinthians 4 2.

The Christmas season, when there is so much thought about gifts, is a most appropriate time for a lesson on Christian giving. Dr. John Willis Baer was once asked "How can we raise money for foreign missions?" Quick as a flash, he answered "Don't raise it, give it." "If all believers could come to a true knowledge of what the New Testament teaches regarding giving, and would seriously put this knowledge into practice, the Christian church could advance more in the next 10 years than it has advanced in any 50 years in its history" (Wilbur M. Smith).

I. An Example of Liberality (8:1-5).

For some reason people are overly sensitive when one speaks of money. The subject must be approached tactfully, so Paul skillfully directs the attention of the Corinthian church to their fellow Christians in Macedonia. They had been in great affliction and were in "deep poverty" (v. 2), but out of their sorrow and want they gave far above Paul's expectation (v. 5) and "beyond their power," and then pleaded with Paul that he should let them give more. The explanation is found in verse 5, where we learn that they had first given "their own selves to the Lord," and then in loving co-operation with Paul himself, as the Lord's agent, in this matter of the offering.

Is it not strange that those who suffer most for the gospel and have the least to give are the most generous in their giving. Those to whom the gospel has come easily, who bear no special burdens for Christ, and who are well situated financially, are commonly the most stingy with their money. Could it be that they have not really given themselves to the Lord? One wonders.

II. An Exhortation to Faithfulness (8:6-9).

Apparently the Corinthians had made a promise or pledge to give for the poor at Jerusalem, but had become a bit forgetful and negligent. It seems to be so easy to neglect to keep up a pledge for the Lord's work. Some folk even feel that they cannot make a pledge. They pledge to pay their rent, to make payments on a car, or a washing machine, but to the church they just can't pledge, or if they do, the promise is often neglected. Such things are dishonoring to the name of Christ.

As they abound in other graces (v. 7), Paul exhorts the Corinthians to abound in "this grace also." So giving is a Christian grace! And why not? Consider Christ (v. 9), who left the glory He had with the Father and came to the poverty of the One who had not where to lay His head, that we through Him might be eternally rich.

Christian friend, when that truth lays hold of your heart and life your purse strings will loosen, your check book will open more easily, you will gladly give—for Christ's sake.

III. A Principle of Christian Giving (9:6).

The harvest is always in proportion to the sowing of the seed. The man who is stingy with his seed at sowing time will reap that kind of a harvest. The opposite is also true.

It works in the field of business too. The merchant who gives the fullest return for one's money and the most liberal measure of service is bound to prosper, while the stingy one is left to lament the fact that his goods rot on his shelves.

In the spiritual realm it is even more true. But, someone may say, we ought not to do good that we may profit by it. No real Christian will give just that he may prosper, but, mark it well, if he does give for Christ's sake and His glory, God will prosper him. "You can't beat God giving."

IV. The Spirit of Christian Stewardship (9:7).

Our giving is to be done according to the purpose of our heart—not grudgingly, nor with grief, nor yet by compulsion, because someone put on pressure.

God loves a cheerful or (as it may be translated) hilarious giver. When done in the right spirit, giving for Christ can be one of the happiest experiences of the Christian life. Let's make offering time in our church services the most joyful time in the meeting. Then we shall be liberal as well as cheerful in this grace of stewardship.

Faith in Christ

"Martha said, 'Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.' Of all the true disciples of Christ this may with perfect confidence be said, 'He is here, therefore they shall not die.' Faith causes Christ to be present in the heart; and where Christ is, eternal death cannot be."—Dean Howson.

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

IF YOU have been admiring peasant frocks—here's one for fall which hits a new high in charm and smartness. The long bodice buttons up the front to a round, high neckline which is to be trimmed with bright colorful braid. Repeat the same on the three-quarter sleeves and around the top of the hem of the swirly skirt. And if you dare to wear red—it's a perfect style for this brilliant shade—or a bright green. Then it will be one of the most cheering-up dresses you have in your new season's wardrobe!

Farmer Needed No Help In Convincing Himself

Old Farmer Robinson broke his plow, so he decided to borrow one from Farmer Brown.

On the way to the Brown farm he started thinking: "I wonder if old Brown will let me take his plow."

As he got near to the neighboring farm he thought: "I doubt if he will lend me that plow."

Then as he knocked at the farmhouse door. "No, I'm certain he won't lend it to me."

Farmer Brown came to the door, smiled and asked, "Well, what can I do for you?"

"I just came to say," snorted Robinson, "that you can keep your bloomin' plow!"

THE YELLOW MENANCE STABS IN THE BACK

We are at war That fact was forcefully brought home to a nation of peace-loving Christians Sunday when the news that the Japs had bombed Pearl Harbor was flashed across the world.

Under a deceitful cloak of "peace negotiations" the Yellow Menance were getting their ships in location to strike suddenly and cowardly when a Christian people were worshipping their God!

That act will go down in history as the most savage, hideous crime ever committed by any nation. It has all the ear-marks of being the fiendish scheming of Hitler, the Devil's own ally.

Now that Japan has turned a deaf ear to our peace negotiations and has stabbed us in the back to strike a most cowardly blow, there is nothing for us to do but fight Japan and all other foes of liberty, democracy and Christianity to the bitter end.

Party lines must be forgotten, and we must all unite in a solid front behind President Roosevelt in this crisis, as we united behind President Wilson in the first World War.

The enemies of democracy must be crushed for all time if we are to have peace in this world.

In trying to bring peace we have been attacked by an insane, double-crossing savage nation.

We do not stand alone and it is encouraging to see how all other democratic and peace-loving nations are lining up with us. They also believe that right will win over the terrorism of Europe and the Yellow Menance.

We are at war and we must give our all for a lasting peace and victory for all time.

In his address before Congress Monday morning, President Roosevelt closed with these words, that will no doubt, go down in history "American righteous might will win through to absolute victory."

THE OLD BELL RINGS OUT AGAIN

Little did we think as we heard the old Methodist Church bell ring out Sunday morning after years of silence as it called peace-loving people to worship, that at that very moment an insane yellow people were stabbing us in the back and bombing Hawaii.

We hope that after long years of silence that the old bell was ringing out the victory cry That Sunday was the beginning of the end to terrorism, deceitfulness and the persecution of innocent and peace-loving people the world over.

Ring out, old bell, ring for the peace of the world to come!

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT GAINS HEADWAY IN KLEMME

More applauds go this week to the Christmas spirited fellows along west main street. Since the publication of the Times last week telling of the good job of decorating done by the boys at the Farmers Elevator, others in that neighborhood have fixed up nice outdoor decorations.

This week we hand our bouquet to the boys at the Creamery and to Lee Ridder. The Creamery has a simple but pretty lighted Christmas greeting extending across the front of the building Lee Ridder has an attractive lighting system on his building together with a lighted Christmas tree high above the side walk.

Other business places have confined most of their display to window and interior decorating

We fellows on the east end of the "Main Drag" are rather lagging this year when it comes to fixing up decorations for Christmas

Shame on us!

HELLO, FOLKS!

Mr and Mrs Alvin Thieman are the parents of a baby boy born to them Monday, December 15th, at the University hospital, Iowa City Mother and baby are reported as getting along fine.

WELLEMEYER BARN IS SCENE OF BLAZE MONDAY

A 16 by 24 barn at the rear of the Wellemeyer Store caught fire Monday afternoon Henry Lewis saw the blaze and turned in the alarm about 4 00 o'clock and the fire department arrived promptly and soon had the blaze under control Origin of the fire is not known

The barn was built 50 years ago by E. P Schaefer and formerly housed a team of western branded ponies, one cow, a top buggy and hay in the loft above

In more recent years the barn served as a garage for Wellemeyer's delivery truck and a storeage house for packing blankets, Xmas trees, packing boxes and various other items

It will be torn down and a regular garage will be built next to the tore building This arrangement will provide a long stretch of parking space at the rear of the store

A large crowd gathered to watch the fire department work on the blaze Mr Wellemeyer said that he did not regard the barn as a very great loss as he had intended to tear the building down anyway.

KLEMME STORES WILL BE OPEN NEXT WED. NIGHT

East Half Of County Must Raise $1300 For Red Cross Relief

EMPHASIZE URGENCY OF ORDERING REPAIRS FOR FARM MACHINERY

Hancock County farmers who have not yet checked their farm machinery and ordered the parts they will need during the coming year were requested this week by the Hancock County USD Defense Board to make this check immediately

In a letter sent to every farmer James M Townsend, chairman of the board said

"We cannot stress too strongly the extreme urgency of ordering farm machinery repair parts now. Your county USDA Defense Board wants to do everything in its power to help you maintain and increase production for 1942, but it cannot use its influence in obtaining priorities for farm machinery repair parts until the parts are actually ordered."

He again stressed the importance of farm machinery "ready to go" as an extremely important factor in meeting the "Food for Freedom" production goals, and emphasized that supplies of new machinery will be drastically reduced.

Because of the large number of farms that have adopted tractor farming in recent years, Townsend declared he believed many farmers now have on their farms good to fair horse-drawn equipment that is not being used

Farmers are being asked to report if they have this machinery and to list it with the board, since, Mr Townsend explained, there are many farmers who may be glad to buy it to use or as a source of repairs for similar equipment of their own

While making this check, too, he continued farmers will discover many old pieces of machinery no longer useful, and they are urged to collect this scrap iron and sell it to the junk dealers

PROMINENT GOODELL BUSINESS MAN DIES

John Savogue, 74, prominent Goodell business man, died Saturday at 8 00 p. m. at his home following a two week's illness, having suffered a stroke

Mr Savogue had operated a restaurant in Goodell the past fifty years, and served as school director, town clerk and assessor.

He leaves his wife, two sons, Arthur J, who has been employed with the Lyon-Healy Music Co in Chicago the past 20 years, and Harold, who has been assisting his parents in the cafe since finishing school.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at 2 00 p m at the Savogue home with the Rev H R Knight officiating. Burial was in the Amsterdam cemetery

FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS TO BE RAISED BY THE NATION FOR RED CROSS WORK

C. G. Waterman Appointed Local Chairman Of New Drive

Mrs Sumner Trumbell, chairman of the local Red Cross, called a meeting of volunteer workers to conduct a drive for funds for the Red Cross in the nation's appeal for fifty million dollars to be raised immediately Of this amount the east part of Hancock County MUST raise $1,300 immediately

Mrs Trumbell appointed the following for Klemme and community to raise the needed funds:-

C G. Waterman, Chairman
Dr. A H Dulmes
Walter Lemke
R A Jorgenson
Ira Overholt

A Red Cross Booth will be located at the Bank where contributions can be made. Women volunteers are wanted to stay in the booth two or three hours daily for the next week Those willing to work see Mr Waterman.

Leaders explained that this new drive is entirely different from the roll call completed Thanksgiving Day Any person from any place may contribute to the fund. No sum is too small to be given and the need is so great that an all-out canvass of the town to obtain every possible contribution may have to be made. We are at WAR and these funds MUST be raised The committee hope there may be a substantial list of donations ranging from $25 00 down. Every penny counts in this drive

Do your part. Leave your contribution at the First National or with any member on the committee.

Remember, we are at WAR!

Mr Waterman expresed his faith that Klemme and community will come through with flying colors

The drive at Goodell is in charge of Mrs. Lew Wesenberg.

Nurses Training Course

On the defense program Hancock County will conduct a training course for nurses in charge of Mrs. E. H Phillips of Garner, assisted by Mrs Tweed and Mrs N. E. Brear Any women interested should get in touch with any of the above named women

The next meeting will be held Jan 12th

PROCLAMATION

Whereas a state of war now exists between the government of the United States and the axis powers.

And, whereas, a state of war creates emergencies which do not exist in peace time

And, whereas the American Red Cross is the agency generally recognized in our country as the organization best prepared to alleviate suffering and distress caused by the disasters of war.

And, whereas Franklin D Roosevelt, president of the United States, has proclaimed that a period of time be immediately designated for conducting a campaign to raise funds necessary for carrying on Red Cross activities.

Therefore, I, Wm C Keraus, mayor of Klemme, Iowa, do hereby proclaim the period from Dec. 17 to 24 a period during which within Klemme every effort be put forth to raise our town's proportionate share of the $50,000,000, which is the national quota, and I also appeal to the good citizens of our community, asking that you support loyally both with money and your efforts this great humanitarian organization so that suffering and distress may, during this emergency, be kept at a minimum.

U. S. to Observe 150th Birthday of 'Bill of Rights'

WASHINGTON. — While armies are engaged in the death struggle to determine whether the democratic ideal or totalitarianism ultimately is to rule Europe and Asia, the American people are preparing to observe the 150th anniversary of the Magna Charta of their liberties—the Bill of Rights.

The Office of Civilian Defense, at the request of Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress, through its state and local defense councils throughout the land, and with the collaboration of national, state and local agencies, will lead the nation's observance of "Bill of Rights day" on December 15. As requested in a joint resolution of the senate and the house of representatives, President Roosevelt's proclamation fixing that day as the one on which the whole nation pays its respect to the source of its liberties—gives the event special significance.

In schools throughout the United States there will be exhibits demonstrating the participation of the school in the observance of the anniversary. Local celebrations are to be under the auspices of the local defense councils and will demonstrate that the ceremonies in commemoration of the ... rights guarantee ... of rights, preserved only in a free society. Library of Congress is preparing a syllabus telling of the origin of the Bill of Rights, defining the liberties it guarantees and contrasting the position of the American people with those of the occupied countries which once were democracies, as well as those in the totalitarian states.

Special Program Outlined.

Director F. H. LaGuardia of the Office of Civilian Defense has suggested that each local defense council initiate formation of Information committees, to get the facts about the total defense program; to develop local interpretation of the facts to make them more meaningful; to develop locally programs and campaigns important to defense, and to provide speakers on defense subjects for local organizations.

In his statement requesting the collaboration of the Office of Civilian Defense and local defense councils Mr. MacLeish said.

"The precise event signalized by these ceremonies will be the ratification of the Bill of Rights by the State of Virginia, whereby the assent of the necessary three-fourths of the States was secured; and whereby it became a part of the Constitution.

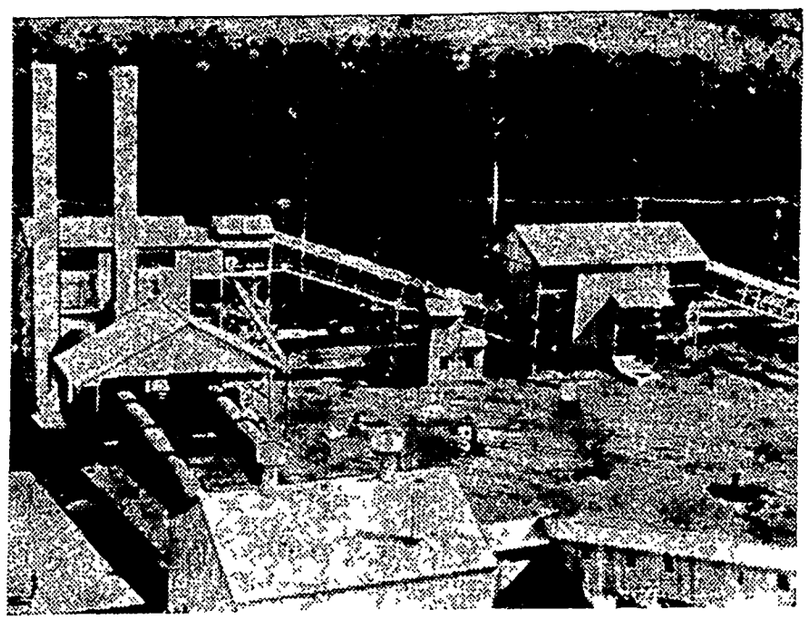
'The Constitution, written at the Federal convention in the summer

George Mason, the "Father of the Bill of Rights." Living in his home, Gunston Hall, only five miles below the home of his friend George Washington, he wrote the Virginia Bill of Rights and was largely responsible for the drafting of the national Bill of Rights.

of 1787, did not contain a specific declaration of individual rights. In the opinion of the delegates such a declaration was unnecessary; it would either reaffirm rights already existing, or it would merely prohibit the national government from interfering with them. Nevertheless, when the draft was submitted for adoption, it was discovered that many shared the view of Mr. Jefferson that "a bill of rights is what the people are entitled to against every government on earth, general or particular; and what no just government should refuse, or rest on inference." Massachusetts, Virginia, New York and other states ratified the Constitution, but with the recommendation that a Bill of Rights be added. This recommendation was accepted by the first congress in the form of 12 proposed amendments, which were passed on September 25, 1789. Of these, 10 were declared ratified on December 15, 1791.

"They relate to (1) the freedom of religion, speech, and the press; (2) the right to establish state militia; (3) the quartering of troops in private houses; (4) the security of persons against unwarrantable searches and seizures, (5) capital crime, (6) criminal prosecutions; (7) trial by jury in common-law cases, (8) bails, fines and punishments, (9) the relations of constitutional and "natural" rights, and (10) the powers reserved to the states. They are today "ingrained in our American natures."

Occupation of Dutch Guiana Strengthens Defense Bases



The picture shows one of the bauxite mines on the Surinam river which will be guarded by U. S. troops. Occupation of Dutch Guiana is now taking place, following the conclusion of an agreement with the Netherlands government and Brazil. Bauxite from these mines provides a large percentage of the aluminum needed for national defense.

NEW YORK.—As United States troops begin the occupation of Dutch Guiana, with the consent of the Netherlands government in exile and the co-operation of Brazil and Argentina, a question arises as to whether there is more to this new move to strengthen our hemisphere defenses than the protection of the rich bauxite deposits located along the Surinam river.

For the occupation of Dutch Guiana, like the occupation of Iceland and the acquisition of naval bases from Britain, fits into the plan to strengthen the links in the chain of defenses we have built to protect ourselves against the invasion of both men and propaganda. The invasion of men is still regarded by most people as only a remote possibility; the invasion of propaganda is already accepted as an accomplished fact.

Natal, lying to the south and east of Paramaribo, the capital and seaport of Dutch Guiana, and 1,620 miles from Dakar, is the South American terminus of the Italian airline, Lati, which is known to carry Nazi propaganda materials. French Guiana, to the esst of Dutch Guiana, has never repudiated its allegiance to the Vichy government.

At the moment, French Guiana needs and wants the economic benefits of American trade. And the presence of additional troops will be a moral as well as a physical support to our own troops stationed in British Guiana and a further assurance that we are on the alert. The occupation of Dutch Guiana can hardly be considered as an unfriendly act toward either French Guiana or Martinique, and we are not likely to have any interest in occupying either unless the Vichy government turns over everything to the Nazis.

African Events Important.

There is no evidence of any immediate danger of that, although the removal of General Weygand from his African command indicates an effort toward greater cooperation between Vichy and the Nazis. And if the British gain substantial French territory in Africa, the Nazis may put enough pressure on the Vichy government to bring it about. The existence of such a possibility is indicated by our promise of aid to the Free French forces in Africa under the terms of the lease-lend act, and such help may bring it about by giving the British and Free French an additional advantage. How much this advantage will amount to remains to be seen.

The Japanese are known to have an interest in the Dutch East Indies, and capture of those islands by the Japanese would have a diplomatic, and probably a demoralizing effect on Dutch Guiana. More important, however, would be a Japanese move to draw our attention into the Pacific, leaving the West Indies and the Panama canal open to attack from the south or east. Attack from land or sea would probably be a long time in coming, but attack from the air could be swift and terribly destructive. Puerto Rico, with well-equipped Borinquen field, serves as a lookout point. And our defenses in Dutch Guiana will place strong emphasis on anti-aircraft protection.

The fact that even a strong air base in Dutch Guiana would be, for the moment at least, of little more than defensive value, seems to indicate that defense is the immediate object of our occupation of Dutch Guiana. And that, of course, indicates that there is something there to defend, namely the bauxite mines.

It is undoubtedly important for us to protect the Surinam mines. Probably as much as 60 per cent of the bauxite used in the United States comes from Dutch Guiana. While we have deposits in this country, principally in Arkansas, Alabama, and Georgia, according to figures issued by the bureau of mines for 1939 (the latest available) our total production of bauxite for that year was only 375,301 tons, and four or five tons of bauxite are required to produce one ton of metallic aluminum. The Arkansas mines, the most productive in this country, apparently reached their maximum capacity in 1918.

Controls Rich Deposits.

Although aluminum is one of the most plentiful elements, it is found only in ores, from which it can be extracted only with considerable difficulty and expense. Bauxite, one of these ores, is acknowledged to be the best source of alumina, the aluminum oxide from which the metallic aluminum is extracted. Bauxite is found in most countries of the world, but the richest deposits have been found in Europe and in North and South America. Hitler now has access to the best of the European deposits, those in France, Hungary, Jugoslavia, Greece and Italy. The deposits in southern France, with those in the southern part of the United States, have yielded the largest total amount of bauxite.

While Germany has, perhaps, led the way, we have also been experimenting with other sources of alumina and with substitutes for aluminum. John H. Walthall, a research chemist for the Tennessee Valley authority, has developed a method for producing alumina from common clay, and in 1940 a pilot plant at the Muscle Shoals laboratory was turning out a ton of alumina daily.

Magnesium, aluminum's strongest commercial competitor, has met with firm opposition from the army because of its weaknesses, such as its susceptibility to corrosion. However, experiments have demonstrated that it can be made, by alloying, nearly as strong as aluminum, and it has the advantage of being about a third lighter.

Bauxite shipments recently have accounted for two-thirds of Surinam's exports. Sugar, bananas, rice, coffee, hard woods, rum, and molasses are the other leading products, coming chiefly from the lowlands near the 240-mile Atlantic coast. Much of this area is below sea level and has to be diked and artificially drained Gold once was the principal mineral product, but the accessible deposits have been quite thoroughly worked.

The conquest of the Netherlands by Germany in 1940 lessened Surinam's ties with the mother land and increased her commercial relationships with the United States. Air service is maintained between the country and the United States.

Almost five times as large as the Netherlands, Surinam is about the size of Arkansas, North Carolina, or Iowa Its history is intertwined with that of the United States, for in 1667 the British traded the South American colony, which they then owned for New Amsterdam, where New York city now stands

Christmas Trees Pay for College

ITHACA, N. Y. — Home-grown Christmas trees and boys hired as "sandwich men" to advertise them have helped a former New York state 4-H club member to finance his college education at Cornell university.

The sale of Christmas trees takes care of half the expenses of Gene Hanson, now a sophomore at the New York state college of agriculture. In the past three seasons he has harvested trees, which sold for $456, from his plantation started nine years ago. This December another $75 will go into his till Gene credits his success to a local market near his home, to satisfied customers who come back year after year and pay fancy prices for extra-special trees, and to advertising, including the "sandwich man" stunt at basketball games in which he played. He also points out that his trees were set on good land and were cultivated the first two years.

4-H Club Start.

The youthful forester got his start in the spring of 1932 as a 4-H club member Through his club agent, co-operating with the state conservation department, Gene received free 1,000 trees which he set out three feet apart in good soil. Half the transplants he planted were four year-old Scotch pine, and the other 500 trees were three-year-old Norway spruce Because of this close spacing, it was necessary to move a number of the trees as the side branches closed in, but 800 trees survived

BRITISH DIPLOMACY

The British barring of Russian Ambassador Litvinoff from an airplane en route to the U.S.A. has increased Washington whispers that it is about time the British did something to clean up their moribund diplomatic service and cut out snubs to people who are trying to help them.

It has long been the belief of Americans, too polite to mention it, that the British embassy in Washington can make more mistakes to the square inch even than Mr. Hull's state department—and many of the state department's mistakes come from trying so ardently to ape the British.

For years the British embassy has sat on its hilltop, well removed from the bustle of Washington, and looked with slightly disdainful amusement upon the hoi polloi of congress. An invitation to the British embassy in those good old days was considered by the dowagers as better than an invitation to the White House.

But those good old days, unfortunately both for the dowagers and the embassy, are gone, never to return. However, the embassy appears completely unaware of that fact. And its charming young men go their charming way, saying sometimes too audibly: "We must be nice to Americans"; while the real work of defending Britain takes place in the British Purchasing commission, largely under the direction of hard-boiled Canadians and Australians.

Viscount Halifax is one of the most delightful and genteel persons ever to grace the embassy. He tries hard. But hard as he tries, he cannot overcome the bubbling Charles Peake, who minces around him as if his lordship still were viceroy of India with white and crimson-costumed Sikhs mounted on black chargers outside his palace, in Calcutta, instead of being in a city where politics are very earthy and where the congressman's wife from Keokuk has a lot more influence than the pink tea protocol experts usually seen at the British embassy.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington is a city where debate may rage furiously on the floor of the senate, but simmer down to friendly story-telling in the anteroom or around the dinner table afterward. This is not always the case, however, and sometimes Washington society becomes so aroused that it is dangerous to invite certain strong-minded people to dinner.

This was true during the fight over Roosevelt's Supreme court bill; and during the Roosevelt-Willkie election campaign; and it is somewhat true during the neutrality controversies today. Old hands at the game of controversy, however, manage to keep their tempers. For instance, seated near each other at dinner the other night were Sen. Burt Wheeler, than whom there is no more energetic isolationist, and Undersecretary of the Navy Forrestal, just as energetically interventionist.

Wheeler was talking about the recent neutrality debate, telling how Roosevelt forces influenced votes by promising jobs and dishing out patronage. Interrupted Undersecretary Forrestal:

"Senator, did the neutrality fight reach the depths of your fight to pass the Wheeler-Rayburn act?" (The Holding Corporation act.)

"No," shot back Senator Wheeler, "I didn't have the patronage."

The two men continued a good-natured discussion of neutrality, Wheeler maintaining that time would prove that his anti-war stand was right. After the war, he contended, history would reverse the present tide of war sentiment and there would be a revulsion of feeling if not a virtual French revolution.

"And when the guillotine ax begins to fall, senator," said Forrestal as he departed, "will you be my attorney?"

FINNS VS. NAZIS

Intelligence reports from Europe for the first time indicate friction between German and Finnish troops on the eastern fronts. The Finns are sore because the Nazis have been living off the country and have not been at all scrupulous in paying Finnish peasants for pigs, cows and chickens.

On top of this, the Nazis recently ousted Finnish children from an orphanage at Rovaninemi and used it for the general staff. This made the Finns boil with anger.

CAPITAL CHAFF

The government is paying out more money than ever before in history for use of the wires and ether. Even with reduced rates for official messages, the tolls for telegraph, telephone, cable and radio are tremendous

Every time a government official picks up the telephone to make an outside call, Uncle Sam pays three cents, the wholesale rate. In telegraph messages the government gets a 40 per cent discount, though there is a minimum charge of 20 cents.

Private Papers of a Cub Reporter:

Thornton Wilder was recently recalling his last visit to London . . . After a luncheon at Barrie's flat, the exquisite little genius, Max Beerbohm, said: "Mr. Wilder, you haven't remarked on the view of the Thames from here" . . . Wilder replied to the general effect that nothing adequate had occurred to him . . . Whereupon Beerbohm said: "People usually do, you know. Only last week, for instance, Mr. Gene Tunney, the fighter, was here and admired it tremendously. As a matter of fact, he spoke of it with such eloquence and such sensitiveness that, really, I felt quite coarse."

The FBI is more interested in a prominent Chicago psychiatrist, who obtained an appointment to The Morale Board of the Col. Donovan Office . . . This doctor, a Hungarian who recently became a citizen, was given a routine check by the G-Men . . . When an agent called at his home, he spotted a large framed portrait of Mussolini, affectionately inscribed . . . That made it more than a routine investigation and led to the fact that Fritz Horvath, Hungarian Nazi leader, is a frequent guest at the Dr's house . . . And at conferences in a hideaway in Chicago . . . Horvath has definite Berlin connections—and the doctor may learn for the first time—that he is not going to be accepted for that swell job with Col. Donovan.

The Women's Business and Professional Group annual Friendship Dinner took place the other night . . . They had previously announced that they would make known at this dinner—the ten big, important women chosen to represent the U. S. . . . To inspect civilian defense in England . . . The list was prepared and sent to Mrs. Roosevelt for her okay . . . The names submitted did not measure up to her requirements, and dissension grew to such a pitch that the idea has been temporarily deferred and possibly shelved.

A vet Broadwayite recalls when Chinatown was big news every night . . . And how an assistant district attorney was phoned out of a sound slumber one wee hour with the news of a massacre in a Chinatown dive . . . When he got there, still fastening his clothes, he found the joint deep in blood, and bodies on the floor—the hatchets and knives still in 'em . . . The bartender was moaning and weeping noisily . . . "What happened?" the d. a. shouted.

"What happened?" was the reply, as the tears dangled from his mustache. "Every customer ran out without paying his check!"

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Networkers: Dinah Shore sings the blues on her new solo Sunday spot and relieves you of yours . . . Frank Black's classic renditions via NBC's "American Melody Hour" are something to hug . . . Take big-time talents like Paul Muni, Judith Anderson, Raymond Massey, Ruth Gordon, mix with a top-notch script, and you have that Red Cross program—good as the cause . . . Betty Hutton is a zippy person, welcome to the Bob Hope bill. He said "vitamin pills take her!" . . . You don't wonder, hearing Richard Crooks sing, why he is with the Met—but you wonder why James Melton, who precedes him on the same station, isn't . . . Everybody was that surprised when the N. Y. Times succumbed to radio. It is only adding a voice to the ribbon that unwinds the flashes around the Times Bldg.

The Story Tellers: C. V. R. Thompson is selling his favorite old story again—Cafe Society—this time to Click. Amazing how interesting Thompson can make them seem in print. In reality they are as dull as a blank wall . . . "How to Be Cole Porter" is the caption of a Look article about the composer. It's good advice if you happen to be Porter, but late even for him . . . Movie-Radio-Guide starts a two-instalment expose on this column's favorite news commentator in the current issue . . . The fallacy that the Middle West is isolationist—is exploded by Time, which points out that polls have proved otherwise. "The so-called isolationist Midwest," it says in part, "exists only in the minds of congressmen who have failed to keep abreast of a great surge of public opinion during recent months" . . . Some people, it seems, mistake the Chicago Tribune for the mid-West.

The Press Box: Another correspondent with a good book is Raymond Daniell — "Civilians Must Fight." Daniell, who covered the London raids, reports a failure to chase his office boy to cover when the bombers came. The kid squawked the underground hideouts were too risky. The last time he went down, he lost $10 playing cards . . . Somerset Maugham, in a foreword to the Daniell volume, explains news censors as "more anxious not to do the wrong thing than to do the right one."

"DR. BROADWAY" opens with a scene on a narrow ledge, supposedly 40 feet above the real Broadway. A girl, played by Jean Phillips, is pretending to be crazy, and is about to commit suicide. A man, played by Macdonald Carey, pretends that he also is crazy, in order to get her off the ledge. In the middle of the scene each discovers that the other is sane. And when Miss Phillips and Mr. Carey met for the first time, on the ledge, with cameras pointed at them, they discovered that they both hail from Sioux City, Iowa.

Elaborate Applique Shown on Daytime and Evening Styles

ROSES are red on the superbly beautiful white gown centered in the group. The flair for white for party wear and also for youthful "date" dresses is important fashion news. College girls and teen-agers are simply thrilled with the idea of "winter white" for dine-and-dance wear. For these, fancy runs mostly to white crepes, wools and jersey, some trimmed with gold accents and others gay with appliqued floral patterns or bright yarn embroidery.

The lovely white party dress pictured to the right above is made of soft white crepe which molds itself to the figure of the wearer. Attention is drawn to the tunic and shoulder drape which is gathered from a V-neckline. Great lovely roses in crimson red crepe are appliqued to form a border on the tunic and a corsage cluster at the left shoulder.

In the stunning afternoon model to the right below one senses the fact that applique design is as gracious and effective for daytime modes as for formal evening gowns. Black and pink, a flattering color combination widely featured this season, distinguishes this ensemble. The black dress is styled with the new drop shoulder, while the sprightly peplum is encrusted with an applique of pink braid in a floral motif. The pillbox hat is black felt with a bow of black veiling.

The sophisticated evening gown to the left in the background is of black marquisette worn over a nude-pink slip. The call for black on black • dramatically answered in the bold leaf design in black velvet which is artfully applied on the shoulders and at the waist.

The applique theme is being worked out stunningly for simple wool daytime dresses and suits. The flower applique is self fabric which traces its way along lapels, sleeve tops and often over the entire front of the bodice or blouse.

In connection with the vogue for gay and festive trimming accents in the way of beadwork and embroidery, it is interesting to note the glitter of sequins, rhinestones or nailheads, as well as a definite revival of applique design. This form of handcraft is very smart, and in featuring it, designers have tapped a wellspring of inspiration which is pouring forth a wealth of ideas in endless procession.

Applique design offers a technique which is being successfully employed for both day and evening modes with the utmost simplicity or in the most elaborate motifs to fit the occasion. Consequently, there are going to be all types of applique this season, from the simple single bouquet effect on a blouse or bodice to take the place of a corsage or glittering spray clip, all the way to elaborate designs. Also, we may expect to see a tremendous amount of applique used on the sports clothes for resort wear.

Many of the "dressy" clothes for winter are so beautifully embellished they are veritable works of art. See this demonstrated in the lovely gown pictured to the left below in the illustration. For this applique the artist designer has taken morning glories for her theme, translating them into handmade fabric flowers that bloom in all their deep purples, wines, brilliant pink and azure blue. Leaves and stems and tendrils of green go cascading from shoulder to hem down the side front of this stately, sleekly fitted, black crepe dinner gown. It is said that many women of discriminating taste are turning to fabric applique as a welcome change from too much glitter of sequins and colorful stones.

Color Contrast

Daring, but as fascinating as daring, are the color schemes designers devise this season. Using color in striking contrast is a new styling method that has developed into a favorite fashion formula. In the picture, cloud blue forms the front of a brown crepe dress. The color scheme is unusual and is made more so by the cardinal red felt hat which tops milady's smartly coiffed head—which goes to show most anything can happen in the way of color schemes nowadays. When all is said and done, the effect comes out a hundred per cent eye-satisfying. The new color freedom is indeed a revelation.

Jacket Is Favorite Theme of Designers

Suits of gay plaids or colorful tweeds have held good right through the fall and will continue to do so during the winter. Already resort fashions have emphasized the supremacy of jacket suits in the mode. Two features of the newer suits are the continued use of pleated skirts and the emphasis on beautiful wools in charming colors for the new jacket suits. For climates that call for warmth, these pastel and richly colorful tailored wools are trimmed with fur.

Winter Sport Clothes Rival Those for Beach

It used to be that resort clothes for winter vacationists were designed only for sunny southern climes. Now the program has to cover all types of winter sports as well. Winter activities now include skating, skiing, tobogganing, and bowling, as well as swimming and sun bathing for those who go south or west. Sports costumes must be practical and comfortable, and one that fulfills these requirements is a bowling dress just made for action.

White 'Bunny' Wrap Is The Delight of the 'Teens

The vogue for white this winter is creating no end of excitement in the younger set which simply dotes on the new white jersey or crepe or corduroy "date" dress. With these they wear cunning "comfy" white bunny jackets. Sometimes these are bordered down the front opening with vividly gay peasant yarn embroidery.

THE COMING OF GOD'S SON

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 9:6, 7; John 1:1-4, 10-14; I John 4:9-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world.—I John 4:14.

Christmas again! How shall we keep it in a world torn by strife and poisoned by man's bitterness against man? Let us keep it with all the joy and gladness at our command. Let us make this the best Christmas we and our families have ever had. How? By giving more and richer gifts? No—although they have their place when rightly given and received. By feasting and merrymaking? No—although they too have their place when carried on in the true spirit of love and friendship. What then? Let us make this an outstanding Christmas by centering our thoughts, our affections, our joys—yes, and our gifts of self and substance—around God's Son, whose "birthday" we celebrate.

May Christmas, 1941, be the best you have ever spent. This is the writer's sincere wish for you. One way to make it just that is to diligently study our lesson for this next Sunday, which tells of the coming of God's Son.

I. His Coming and Character Prophesied (Isa. 9:6, 7).

God who was to send His Son into the world to become the Saviour of sinful man fittingly made known His coming through Isaiah (and others) 800 years before it took place. This greatest event in all history was the subject of exact and detailed prophecy, which was completely fulfilled. Although Isaiah calls Him "a child" (as indeed He was), he saw Him as the divine One whose glory and power is revealed in the magnificent array of names found in verse 6.

"Wonderful," a much abused and misused word, found its real meaning in Him—He really is wonderful in every way. "Counsellor!" He does not need or seek the counsel of others—He is the Counsellor. Have you sought His counsel? "The Mighty God"—not a mere man, but God unlimited in power. "The Everlasting Father," which is really the "Father of eternity," the One to whom eternity owes its existence. "The Prince of Peace," who will one day bring peace to the earth when He comes to reign; something we need not expect before that blessed day.

Little wonder that "the government shall be upon his shoulders" (v. 6), and that He shall reign on the throne of David forever. That is prophecy yet to be fulfilled, but it will be, even as the others, for "the zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this."

II. His Incarnation and Redemption Completed (John 1:1-4, 10-14).

The Eternal One—who was in the beginning with the Father, He who was God and who made all things, this One who was the life and the light of men—humbled Himself and took upon Himself the likeness of sinful man. He was "made flesh and dwelt among us," revealing the grace and glory of God. The incarnation of Christ is a truth the greatness and glory of which we cannot fully understand, but we know that it was for us that He came—for our redemption.

The world—His own world—received Him not. "But"—and thank God for that blessed "but!"—"as many as received him, to them gave he the power (or better, 'the right,' as in R.V.) to become the children of God." Redemption is by a new birth, a divine birth, "not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man." It is a complete redemption by faith in Him who revealed the grace of God to man. This is the great message of Christmas. Let us not miss it.

But there is another word for this precious and blessed season—it is that of love.

III. His Love and Our Love Manifested (I John 4:9-11).

The love of God has been expressed in many precious ways, but the full and final manifestation was in the sending of His only begotten Son into the world that we might have life through Him. This is love supreme, that God loved us when we did not love Him, the altogether lovely One giving His best and dearest in loving sacrifice for the altogether unlovely ones.

Such love in making the unspeakable gift to us must of necessity call forth from us not only love toward Him, but also for one another. Christmas is an excellent time to deepen and sweeten the love which exists between Christian brethren. We need to be drawn very close to one another for mutual encouragement, strengthening of our faith, and for the effective outreach of Christ's love to the whole world through us.

The eternal, glorious Christ came. He wrought out redemption full and free. He revealed God's great love to us—and to all the world. What a delightful Christmas message that is. Let us receive it and declare it.

ALT SCHLAWIN'S HENS OUT TO LICK THE JAPS

Art Schlawin has a flock of White Leghorn hens who evidently read about the war and are increasing production to help lick the Japs.

One hen in particular, decided that an egg would not speed matters any, so she has gone in for bigger eggs.

In fact she is doing that line of business, and is producing cucumbers, around 8 3/4 inches around the middle and weighs over 6 pounds!

Art is behind the idea of all-out production, but his gun powder and shells are mixed grenades!

HE'S NOT FEARED JAPS BUT HE'S AFRAID OF CLAUS

Gene Hutchison of Virginia and Miss Betty Bell were nearly an hour late for their appointment at The Times office with the license that they had heard upon that the Japs had captured Santa Claus.

Upon the boys' return somewhat relieved and changed the subject with a piece of candy.

Gene was greatly relieved when we told him we would have Jr. and some of the other boys fly over and bring Santa back!

Yes, Graydon we have good news! The soldiers flew over to Japan Saturday night and Santa Claus is now safely at home and will make his trip as usual this Christmas so all you boys and girls hang up your stockings.

KLEMME BEAUTIFULLY DECORATED FOR XMAS

During the past week many citizens have caught the holiday spirit and many more homes and business places have decorated for Christmas.

Several homes in Klemme have their outdoor lighted decorations. All deserve an applause!

THIS AND THAT

This year why not send at least a Christmas card to every Klemme young man who is serving with the armed forces? It is the least we can do to help bring them cheer on Christmas day.

Hunting licenses this year are good for Jap (rabbits) too.

You will miss something if you don't take a look at Walt Kimball's Christmas window display.

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY

Don't look for flaws as you go thru life
And even though you find them,
Be wise and kind and somewhat blind
And look for virtues behind them
Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Correction does much but encouragement does more Encouragement after censure is as the sun after a shower Goethe

There is not a moment without some duty Cicero

Thursday Miss Grabow of the Bureau of Dental Hygiene of the University of Iowa and State Department of Health gave us a very interesting lecture on dental care She showed us some slides of actual conditions of poor teeth construction and care of teeth

It made plain to us how much better a good set of teeth do make the appearance and health of an individual She explained to us the fact that its much cheaper and easier to eat the right food and visit the dentist regularly

HOW DO YOU STUDY?

Good work habits are quite as important as the actual subject matter You should have a definite time and place to study each subject every day It helps a great deal in your studying if you have a quiet room not too warm good light, and a straight chair and a table By doing your own work and asking help only when it is absolutely necessary is a good way to develop the ability to think for oneself be self reliant and have will power which are all essential for success Take notes during class so you are sure of the assignment If you have material that is to be understood and digested first go over the whole thing then study each section separately, then the whole thing again You must use your judgment as much as memory Always be sure to use all the small aids for study such as the index, appendix, notes, vocabulary and maps

One should concentrate on his work so that nothing of what is going on around bothers you

Thus our aim should be to do the job in less time and yet do it better

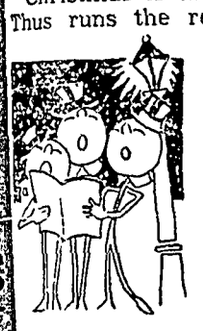
Make Merry With Cookies and Candies!
(See Recipes Below)

Xmas Gift Boxes

Christmas is the time for giving! Thus runs the refrain during this festive season. And what could be more appropriate, more welcome than gaily wrapped boxes packed right in your own kitchen—boxes full of sweet, crunchy cookies warm and fresh from the oven, candies, tempting tidbits of sweetness made with spices and nuts.



Cookies and candies wrapped with waxed paper in small tin boxes will delight the heart of that boy you may have sent to camp, your daughter away at school, or a neighbor.

Bran Filled Hermits.

(Makes 45 medium-sized cookies)

⅔ cup butter or margarine
1⅓ cups sugar
2 eggs
⅓ cup milk
¾ cup all-bran
3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup mincemeat or preserves

Cream shortening, add sugar and eggs and beat well. Add milk and all-bran. Sift flour with remaining dry ingredients and add to first mixture. Mix well and chill. Roll dough to an eighth of an inch thickness on lightly floured board. Cut into rounds. Place 1 teaspoon mincemeat on one-half the rounds and top with remaining rounds. Crimp edges with a fork. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet in fairly hot oven (400 degrees) for 12 to 15 minutes.

Cookies right in tune with the Christmas season are these with red and green sugar sifted on them. Bake them in fancy Christmas trees, Santa Claus and wreath shapes with a cookie cutter. Use butter and a really good flavor, cut them thin and chill well before cutting.

Christmas Butter Cookies.

(Makes 6 dozen small)

½ pound butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon almond extract
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 to 2½ cups flour

Cream butter and sugar. Combine beaten eggs and flavoring with creamed mixture. Add flour and salt. Mix well and chill. Roll thin, cut into shapes. Dust with colored sugar. Bake on a sheet about 15 minutes or until light brown, in a moderate (400 degrees) oven.

Make your cookie and candy boxes decorative with tiny squares of delicious penuche. These boxes can be dressed up in individual wrappings of gold, silver, green or yellow gift paper.

LYNN SAYS:

Now is the time to make your selection of gifts: perhaps you'd like to give away some of that lightly colored jelly or jam you put up last fall. Wrap it in gay paper, and tie it with a bit of silver and blue ribbon. Bring out your fruit cake and plum pudding, and someone will be mighty proud to receive them, too.

When packing cookies and candies for gift boxes you can make the box more attractive by alternating the kinds of cookies and candies used. To assure freshness use waxed paper between the layers.

Gift Box Suggestions
*Bran Filled Hermits
*Christmas Cookies
*Brazilian Penuche
*Popcorn Brittle
*Popcorn Fudge
*Recipes Given

Brazilian Penuche.

2 cups brown sugar (packed firmly)
¾ cup top milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup chopped Brazil nuts
Dash of salt

Combine sugar, salt and milk. Cook, stirring constantly over low heat until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Cook until a small amount forms a soft ball when dropped into cold water (238 degrees). Remove from heat. Add vanilla and butter without stirring. Cool until lukewarm and beat hard until creamy. Add nuts and turn into greased pan. Sprinkle with sliced nuts. Cut into squares.

An old favorite, popcorn, is featured in a new role in these candy recipes. If you don't want to go through the business of popping the corn yourself, you can get along nicely by using the popcorn that comes tightly sealed in tin cans. It's as fresh and nice as if you made it yourself.

Popcorn Fudge.

2 cups brown sugar
1 cup thin cream
1 tablespoon butter
2 cups popcorn
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar with cream and stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Cook until the soft ball stage (238 degrees) or until it forms a soft ball in cold water. Remove from heat and let stand in cold water until cool. Add butter, popcorn, and vanilla. Beat until creamy. Pour into buttered plate and cut.

Popcorn Brittle.

2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup dark corn syrup
½ cup water
1 quart popcorn (slightly salted)
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons soda

Cook sugar, syrup and water in a heavy skillet. Stir until sugar is dissolved, then boil until mixture will crackle when dropped into cold water. Remove from fire, add vanilla and popcorn. Add soda and mix well. Pour into shallow, buttered pan. When cold, break into pieces.

No Christmas box of cookies would be complete without the delicately flavored Swedish Sprits cookies:

Swedish Sprits.

(Makes 4 dozen)

1½ cups butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon almond extract
3½ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder

Cream butter and sugar thoroughly, add egg and flavorings. Beat well. Blend in dry ingredients until mixture is smooth. Press through cookie press into various shapes and decorate with candied fruit, if desired. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) 8 to 10 minutes.

Cookies hard to make? Not if you use this recipe.

Krispie Marshmallow Stars.

(Makes 16 to 18 stars)

⅓ cup butter
½ pound marshmallows
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 package oven-popped rice cereal
4 ounces semi-sweet chocolate, melted

Melt butter and marshmallows in double boiler. Add vanilla and chocolate and beat thoroughly. Put cereal in a large buttered bowl and pour in first mixture, stirring briskly. Put in a shallow buttered pan and allow to cool. Cut into stars or circles with a cutter. (Note: this cookie is not baked.)

'Spirit of '76'

This famous painting, in which the artist caught the spirit of the patriots who "fifed and drummed it," was sketched and later painted by Archibald M. Willard. The artist, who lived through four of America's wars (1836-1918), was the creator of "Puck" comics after the Civil war. He originally made a humorous sketch for the opening of the Centennial exposition at Philadelphia in 1876.

A serious attempt to portray early American patriotism followed the cartoon, and the original now hangs in Abbott Hall library, in Marblehead, Mass.

There's always a Cousin Joe from Kokomo on your Christmas list. You'd like to send him more than a card, but you can't afford an expensive gift. Send him a carton of cigarettes or a pound tin of smoking tobacco. The cost is moderate and it's a gift any smoker welcomes. More smokers prefer Camels than any other cigarette and, of the smoking tobaccos, the National Joy Smoke is Prince Albert. Local dealers are featuring gift-wrapped Camel cartons and a novel package of four "flat fifties." Also Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco in pound tins and pound glass humidors handsomely wrapped for giving.—Adv.

Jap Reporters 'Cover'

How Japanese newspapers cover big stories was illustrated recently in Tokyo when the palace announced that a statesman was to form a new cabinet, says Collier's. Within an hour, his estate appeared to have been taken over by an army. Each paper had sent at least 50 reporters, equipped with tents, beds, cookstoves, radio outfits, cameras, pigeons, stepladders and other paraphernalia for any emergency.

It's not how much you pay, but how well it is received, that makes a Christmas gift welcome. That's why Camel Cigarettes and Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco make such ideal gifts. The cost is modest, the welcome assured. For Camel is America's favorite cigarette, and Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco is the National Joy Smoke. Local dealers are featuring Camels in your choice of two handsome gift packages — the Camel carton of ten packages and a gay package of four "flat fifties." Prince Albert is featured in the pound tin and the pound glass humidor in specially designed Christmas gift wrappings.—Adv.

Kipling Found His Anger Was Profitable—to Another

A bus driver once crashed his vehicle into one of the trees outside the home of Rudyard Kipling. The author wrote the man demanding reparation. The driver ignored the complaint and sold the letter to a friend for 10 shillings.

Not receiving an answer, Kipling penned another note threatening legal action. This scathing letter the driver also ignored—and sold.

Finally losing patience, Kipling called on the man and angrily demanded an explanation.

"I was hoping that you would write me some more letters. Selling them is most profitable," replied the man.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist today. Try one laxative combined with Syrup Pepsin for ease to your stomach, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Overholt returned Sunday from their visit in California. Mrs. Overholt spent a couple of months visiting with her daughter at Southgate, while Mr. Overholt had been in California for a couple of weeks. They had the experience of hearing sirens warn of enemy aircraft, and blackouts. Ira stated that it was no fun and that war conditions are really brought home under such conditions as are now being experienced on the west coast.

Strong Defense of Far-Flung Outposts Is Important in U. S. Military Strategy

WASHINGTON.—In the first onslaught of the war, our outposts nearest to Japan were the first to be attacked. But the declaration of war on the United States by Germany and Italy automatically increased the possibilities of war in the Atlantic as well as in the Pacific. That war might take the form of attacks on the Panama canal or the West Indies. Or, the war in the Pacific might be extended to Alaska, which lies only a few hundred miles from Asia. Control of Alaska would make it possible for Japan to seriously menace our shipments of supplies to Russia and China. And it would give Japan a stronghold on the continent.

This is a war of strategy, a war in which it is of the utmost importance to keep the enemy from coming within striking distance. It is also a war of surprises. A strong fortification can often be captured or destroyed if taken sufficiently by surprise. The French built the Maginot line to protect themselves from German attack by land. But the Germans came by air instead.

Position, then, is important. But strength is essential to maintain it. Although not entirely unprotected, our outposts are nevertheless highly vulnerable. Puerto Rico has a well-equipped air base at Borinquen Field, but is short of heavy artillery and long range guns. Puerto Rico's function at the moment is that of a lookout post, and as such it serves as an advance guard for the Panama canal.

Shipping Restricted.

Shipping in the Canal has been limited to the daylight hours, and air service from Balboa to Cristobal has been suspended, as the air route between those two points lies directly over the Canal. Whether the Axis will strike next in the Caribbean remains only a guess on the part of the prophets. It is not impossible. President Camacho of Mexico, while not asking for a declaration of war, has pledged his support and has warned his people that Mexico is in grave peril.

Our bases in South America help to guard the Canal and also to prevent attack from the south and east. Now that Germany and Italy have joined Japan in declaring war on the United States, the threat from Africa should be taken into consideration. The Vichy government has already conceded the Nazis additional land in Africa, and Dakar is only 1,620 miles from Natal, the nearest point in South America, which lies just to the south and east of Paramaribo, the capital and seaport of Dutch Guiana. Africa may seem a long way off, but it is well to remember that only a short time ago a clipper left this country on its first scheduled flight to Africa. If we can fly one way there is nothing but our own vigilance to keep our enemies from flying the other.

Alaska Important.

To many, Alaska also seems so remote as to be hardly worthy of any deep concern. But here again, strategy is involved. Located almost due north of the Hawaiian islands and scarcely more than a good sleeper jump by plane, about 800 miles, from the nearest point in Asia, Alaska can be completely isolated from the United States.

The war might suspend shipping to Alaska, and Alaskans maintain that if that happens, they are "through." It is, then, important for us to keep open the shipping lanes to Alaska. There is, of course, the skyway across Canada from Edmonton to White Horse. But the ease with which bombers can be sent to Alaska by that route should make it clear that planes, not our own, can fly from Alaska to the United States equally successfully, thus exposing the central part of the continent to attack.

Alaska's strategic position lends more importance than would normally be given to the recent reports of fires along the coast, particularly at Sitka. What happens along the coast in Alaska is also important to the safety of her population, some 90 per cent of which is concentrated along the coast. It is no secret that the U. S. government has been fortifying the mainland of Alaska, as well as the Aleutian islands off the coast. But what these fortifications amount to is still a matter of conjecture, as their construction has been kept a reasonably well-guarded secret.

On the Saturday night before the Sunday on which the attacks on Hawaii and the Philippines began, a drill barge burned at Sitka. That, in itself, would not be significant. Fire is a common hazard where construction is under way and especially where dynamite is used. And the significance of the Sitka fires may be exaggerated by rumor. But it is at least interesting to keep in mind that this particular fire was only one of several in recent months. In one case, dynamite sticks were stored in one shed. As a precautionary measure, the detonating caps which set them off were stored in another, and both sheds were carefully watched. Both sheds burned.

Pearl Harbor Bombing.

The Hawaiian islands were believed to be virtually impregnable, but Japan succeeded in bombing Pearl Harbor. In a war of strategy you must be everywhere at once. In that fact lies the importance of our outposts and military bases. It is important for us to have a foothold in Bermuda, Dutch Guiana, the Panama canal Zone or Alaska, but it is equally important for us to keep someone else from gaining a foothold there.

In the case of Bermuda, Dutch Guiana and other places where our bases supplement those of the British, we are helping our allies as well as ourselves by being there. And we need our allies to win this war. How well we know that was demonstrated by the fact that, in spite of protest, congress passed the lend-lease act and revised the neutrality act. The capture of Manila, for instance, would endanger Singapore. The capture of Singapore would cripple the British fleet in the Pacific and deprive us of its assistance.

Japan's Oil Supply Is Vulnerable Item

Among other serious considerations Japan had to deal with in beginning its war with the United States was the fact that conflict meant the definite and continued cutting off of two-thirds of the nation's oil supply. For that is the amount of oil that the United States had been supplying to Japan up until shortly before the start of the war.

Another fourth of Japan's supply of this highly important commodity came from the Dutch East Indies.

Only a tenth of Japan's normal requirements of oil comes from its own fields and from wells in Manchukuo and Sakhalin.

For many years, of course, Japan busied herself building up large reserves of crude and fuel oil for war use. Though the total amount stored is a military secret, it is known to be large. Especially large is the supply of crude and fuel oil for the navy. Gasoline is not as plentiful.

'Incidents' Leading To Japanese War Have Long History

Back of the present war between the United States and Japan lies a series of "incidents" based on the modern technique of "undeclared war." The first of the series was the Mukden incident of 1931, and the others are like it in that they all represent aggression under the guise of self-defense.

July 7, 1937—Beginning of the present Sino-Japanese war with an incident outside Peking.

July 16, 1937—Secretary of State Cordell Hull announced the 14 points which have since been the basis of our negotiations with Japan.

December 12, 1937 — Japanese planes sank the U.S.S. Panay in the Yangtze river. Two lives were lost.

December 30, 1938—The United States protest to Japan warned against interference with American rights in China and opened the way for a conference to help settle Asiatic issues.

September 27, 1940—Japan joined the Axis.

July 25, 1941—The United States froze Japanese assets here.

July 28, 1941—Japanese troops began the occupation of French Indo-China.

August 28, 1941 — Negotiations were resumed after President Roosevelt received a peace appeal from Premier Konoye of Japan.

November 15, 1941—Saburo Kurusu arrived from Japan as a special envoy to aid Ambassador Nomura in conference at Washington.

November 25, 1941—The United States received reports of Japanese troop concentrations in Indo-China, with indications that Thailand might be attacked.

December 2, 1941—The state department, at the request of President Roosevelt, made formal inquiries of Japan regarding her intentions and purposes in concentrating troops in Indo-China.

December 7, 1941 — Japanese planes bombed the American naval base at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu.

December 8, 1941 — Congress passed a joint resolution declaring the United States at war with Japan.

U. S. Acts to Save Rubber, Tin Supply

A report from the Office for Emergency Management indicates that the United States has taken the necessary steps to build up a reserve supply of tin, rubber, manganese, chromite and tungsten to combat the possible shortage threatened by the cessation of supplies from the Orient. The first of these steps was the suspension of production of automobile tires and other accessories not considered essential

FARM TOPICS

DIET OF LEGUME IS VITAL FACTOR

Can Detect Distress Signs When Food Is Lacking.

By E. E. DE TURK
(Professor of Soil Fertility, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.)

Legumes, like other crops, fly unmistakable distress signals when their diet lacks important plant food elements, observations made in the past cropping season indicate. Yet they frequently show these nutritional deficiencies by slow growth, rather than by any specific abnormalities of form or color. They are likely to produce undersized plants which are normal in appearance otherwise.

Ordinarily the early symptoms of plant food hunger take the form of changes in color. The most common color symptom results from chlorosis—or loss of the green color. This may be followed by the death of the affected area. The chlorosis may consist of paling of the ordinary green color, or the appearance of various shades of yellow or even white dots and patches.

In general the lack of one or more of the three major plant food elements—nitrogen, phosphorus and potash—will result in ill health for the crop.

Nitrogen deficiency results in slow growth of the legumes, a decrease in the branching of the plants and smaller plants at maturity. These may occur without the appearance of specific symptoms and have little value to the farmer or agronomist attempting a diagnosis. Severe nitrogen deficiency often causes mild chlorosis in which the leaves gradually become pale green with a yellowish tinge rather than distinctly yellow. The chlorosis usually spreads evenly over the entire leaf surface.

A lack of phosphorus manifests itself in slow growth. The legume plants remain small and undeveloped. Flowering and seed production tend to be delayed and a bluish-green tinge may develop in the leaves. But there are no specific symptoms that can be used with assurance for purposes of detecting phosphorus deficiency.

Of all the symptoms observable in legumes, those of potash hunger are probably the most outstanding and easily recognized.

Broad-leaved legumes such as the soybean show evidence of insufficient potash by irregular yellow mottling around the edges of the leaflets. The discolored areas soon merge, forming a continuous yellow border around the tip and along the sides, but rarely around the base. Death of the chlorotic area that first became mottled follows promptly along with a downward cupping of the leaf edges. Then the dead tissue falls out, giving the leaflet a ragged appearance.

Dairy Production

The "all-out" dairy production program for defense needs and higher returns to the dairymen should be tempered with careful feeding and management practices, believes C. S. Rhode, extension dairy specialist of the University of Illinois college of agriculture. Overfeeding on high protein rations, short dry periods and failure to supply adequate amounts of minerals are some of the things to be avoided. Balancing the grain mixture to fit the kind and quality of available roughage, the use of bone meal in the ration when needed and a dry period of a month to six weeks are some of the points that should receive attention.

Good Care of Soil Aids Defense Plans

Contour farming, strip cropping and terracing can help in increasing yields to meet the needs of the national food for defense program, says Lindley G. Cook, extension soil conservationist at Rutgers university. This is the time to make plans for 1942, he reminds farmers.

"American farmers will be asked to produce greater quantities of food than ever before in the history of the country," Cook reports. "Farmers are fast finding out, by means of research and experience on their own farms, that conservation practices play a definite part in increasing yields.

"This is the time to begin planning the farm program for next season in such a way that record production can be obtained without the wasteful practices of the last war."

'Lines' Bending

Swinging round the circle to see where soil conservation is working and where farmers are still losing too much of the soil that they might be saving, Dr. H. H. Bennett of the U. S. department of agriculture found that out in "the region of straight line plowing," the contour method is making progress. More than half the corn in the typical Corn Belt county of Montgomery, in Iowa, was planted on contour this year. None was continued in 1937

LEAVES from Uncle Sam's Notebook

(WNU Service) by HARRIET MAY WILSON

New Ways With Nuts

As all housekeepers know, nuts show a decided tendency to become rancid, and this rancidity may develop not only in shelled nuts, but even in those still protected by their shells, if they have been kept for some time.

In order to prevent such spoilage, and also in order to have the nuts always ready for use at a moment's notice, it is quite practicable to sterilize them and store in vacuum-packed containers.

For such a process, select fresh, firm nut kernels, newly shelled, and free from any bits of shell. Sterilize pint or half pint jars, and allow them to dry. Then fill the jars with the shelled nuts, and partly seal them. Place the jars in a hot-water bath deep enough to come up about two inches on the jars and boil for a half hour. Then complete the sealing of the jars, cool them, and store in a cool, dark place.

MAKING NUT BUTTERS

The ingredients for making a half-pound of such butter are: 1 tablespoon of bland table oil, one-half teaspoon of salt, and 2 cups of blanched and roasted nuts. Grind the nuts in the food-chopper, using the finest grinding plate; repeat at least once, and, if necessary, twice, tightening the grinder each time until it is hard to turn. Add the oil and salt, mix thoroughly and pack in cans with lids that can be closed tightly.

Note: The nuts may be blanched and roasted for this purpose as follows: For the almonds, pour boiling water over them and simmer at boiling temperature for about three minutes. Pour off the water and the skins will slip off readily. Peanuts require no blanching. To roast the nuts, for a half pound of nuts, shelled and blanched, put a quart of fresh cooking oil into a kettle suited to deep-fat frying. Heat the fat to 300 degrees F., or until a cube of bread dropped into it will brown in about five or six minutes. Put the nut kernels into a sieve that is deep enough so they can not float out over its top and lower them into the hot fat. Leave them there until they are a light brown, which will require six or seven minutes. Remove and pat gently with absorbent paper until they are freed from fat.

NUT LOAVES

In making a nut loaf remember to have, among the vegetables commonly used in the mixture, either celery, green peppers, or carrots, in order to secure a crisp texture. For croquettes, it is necessary to have a soft mixture. To secure such consistency, use mashed potatoes, bean pulp or a cooked cereal.

Almost everyone knows that chestnuts may be used to advantage in dressings for fowls, but many cooks do not know that various other nuts may be so used. A very good stuffing for fowl, or for pork chops, is made as follows:

In 2 tablespoons of melted butter or other fat, cook, for a few minutes, 2 tablespoons of finely chopped onion, 1 tablespoon of chopped green pepper and 1 cup of cut celery. Add 2 cups of cooked brown rice or wild rice, ¼ teaspoon of salt and ⅛ teaspoon of pepper. Stir the whole until it is well mixed and hot, then add a half cup of chopped hazelnuts and the stuffing is ready to use. This quantity is sufficient for a half dozen pork chops.

Concerning the food value of nuts, it should be noted that, whereas many people suppose them to be rich enough in protein to serve as a meat substitute, this notion is erroneous. The chief food value of nuts lies in their fat content which ranges from 35 per cent for cocoanuts to 70 per cent for pecans. Peanuts and cashews average about 40 per cent fat and English walnuts, hickory nuts and filberts about 60 per cent. The protein content of nuts is much less, ranging from 5 to 25 per cent; carbohydrate value is less than 25 per cent except in the chestnut which is very starchy.

But nuts have other food values, not so well known. Most of them are rich in phosphorus; the almond, pecan, hickory nut, walnut and hazelnut are good sources of iron; the pecan is a good source of vitamin A, said to be so valuable for those afflicted with night blindness; peanuts, pecans, chestnuts, almonds, English walnuts, filberts and Brazil nuts all yield a considerable quantity of vitamin B.

For further information and many recipes for the use of nuts, send five cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Miscellaneous Publications No. 302 of the Department of Agriculture.

MAKING SAUERKRAUT

Use four-gallon to six-gallon stone jars. Select sound cabbages and, after removing outer leaves quarter the heads, slice off the core, and shred. One pound of salt for each 40 pounds of cabbage makes the proper strength of brine. Pack the cabbage and salt, well-mixed, in the jars, cover with a clean cloth and a plate, weighting the plate so that the brine will come up over the cabbage. At 86 degrees Fahrenheit, fermentation should be completed in 10 days.

Story From a Diplomat; —One Day Before a War

Correspondent Presents His 'Washington Diary' Telling of Last Interview With 'Peace' Envoy Before War's Beginning.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

Here in Washington where we feel the repercussions of the war more deeply than anywhere in the country except coast cities where enemy planes threaten, and even the thoughts we had last week seem very far away.

To me an even greater gulf seems to exist between Friday and Saturday, between peacetime and wartime. On Saturday, December 5, I sat in the drawing room of the Japanese embassy talking with the embassy's first secretary. His card which he gave me as I left it on the desk as I write. "Hidenari Terasaki, first secretary of the Japanese embassy, Washington," the engraved script reads.

With us was Saburo Kurusu, the man who was supposed to be planning a peaceful settlement of Japanese-American relations at the very moment when Japanese bombers and battleships were already on their way to Pearl Harbor. I did not know it then, but I was the last American reporter — perhaps the only one—to interview him.

Washington Diary

The next afternoon just as I was starting out to take a walk in Rock Creek park, the news of the astounding attack on Hawaii reached me. From then on radio and news reporters have been pretty busy. But I took time out to jot down the events of Saturday that were a tragically stupid prelude to war. I am now offering this record (in part) as a sort of "Washington Diary":—

Saturday, December 6: Spent the whole day preparing for a special Far Eastern broadcast, a pick-up of Far Eastern capitals, London and Washington. Went first to call on "X" whom I knew would be informed as well as anyone on the negotiations. We sat in his beautiful library. The ancient books, the mellow leathered chairs all gave the place an atmosphere of dignity and solidarity that seemed far away from the little Saturday afternoon world. Mr. "X" suggested two phrases of which I made mental note. First: "Kurusu is still here." The second: "The center of gravity has shifted from the state department to the navy department." Since Kurusu was still here it was explained, the situation had not changed. But the next move was decidedly Japan's; the state department had probably said its last word. Mr. "X" was of the opinion that it was still possible that some face-saving method would be worked out to permit the military element to accede to our demands and thus "keep Japan from committing suicide." His impression was that nothing would happen before Tuesday when he thought Kurusu would hand Secretary Hull Japan's answer to the state department's note.

Next Stop—The Embassy

As I was leaving, a memorandum was handed in saying that Kurusu would receive me at the Japanese embassy immediately. I had been trying very hard to get that appointment and after two days' negotiating, my assistant had finally succeeded.

I was first shown through the busy chancery of the Japanese embassy to the office of First Secretary Terasaki, a smiling little brown man with eyes that came as near to slanting as any oriental's do. He warned me that I could not quote Mr. Kurusu nor was I to mention my visit at all for a week or so as others would demand interviews.

Terasaki said he would give me some background.

When we were settled he told me a sort of parable. He said:

"Suppose a man has been fighting for four days and four nights in the street. Another man who has been sitting in his comfortable chair every evening wants to do something. Should man in arm chair come to fighting man and talk about principles, about Confucius and Aristotle?"

He paused a moment and stared at me steadily with brown eyes that looked as solid as bullets.

"No, I think," he went on, "man in armchair should approach man who is fighting with tact and sympathy."

He paused again to see how I was taking it. I dropped my eyes to the notes I was making and he seemed satisfied. He concluded: "Japan has been fighting four years. Must talk facts, must be realistic and talk principles afterward."

Chinese Duplicity Argument

There was more of the often-heard argument about Chinese duplicity.

"If United States wants war, it can have war. If it wants peace, can have peace. And Japan can be much more than a friend to America You can beat us in the end but it will be no push-over."

He was friendliness itself. Having spoken his piece he made a telephone call and led me from the chancery into the embassy which it adjoins.

I was impressed as I was the first time I walked down the long reception hall, with the delicate beauty of the setting The priceless paintings on the walls with their weird and elusive charm of oriental art, the graceful furniture, the gentle blending of tints in wall decorations and wainscoting.

"This room is too large for conversation," said Mr Terasaki, indicating the main reception room So he took me to a smaller one and we sat down for a moment. Almost immediately "Good-will" Ambassador Kurusu appeared, a little man dressed in an expensive tweed suit. He had a small, close-cropped mustache and wore spectacles His face was long and under a hurried glance he might pass as an American

Terasaki bowed low from the hips, but Kurusu took my hand informally when I was presented

Terasaki opened the conversation by saying that I had said as long as Kurusu was still here no news was good news. Kurusu either misunderstood Terasaki or chose to ignore his remark. We sat down and Kurusu repeated in less formal phraseology the general argument which Terasaki had offered.

Kurusu Presents Japan's Case

The two nations could agree on principles with lengthy and leisurely discussion—but now an emergency existed. Japan was in a position where she was forced to take certain steps for her survival. The United States would have to agree to the discussion of realistic issues first and leave the principles to later discussion.

Unless that happened no progress could be made.

"Of course we are hopeful," he said, rather hopelessly, I thought. On the whole his attitude seemed to confirm what Mr. "X" had said, that Japanese-American relations were in status quo—that Japan was playing for time.

When I left I made a remark to the effect that I was glad to see Ambassador Kurusu had provided himself with a heavy suit, that evidently he was prepared to stay all winter. At that remark he saw fit to laugh heartily.

As I went out through the chancery, escorted by one of the idol-faced clerks, I asked if they were always as busy as that on a Saturday afternoon.

"Oh, no," he answered, "only these days."

That concludes my "diary" for December 6.

As I read it over in the light of what happened within less than 24 hours after I rode away from the Japanese embassy in a cab which had just brought one of the staff to the door with luggage and golf bags, some of the words spoken there took on a new meaning.

I had a close-up of one phase of what is probably the world's greatest achievement in diplomatic duplicity. Mr. Kurusu, I believe, has not been available for interviews since.

In Jones county, Mississippi, 60 farmers needed workstock They pitched in together, bought 60 mules in one lot at a nice price. To save a little more money the farmers, all of them borrowers from the department of agriculture, went one step farther, put in a co-operative order for plow gear. Their county purchasing association, sponsored by the Farm Security administration, bought 60 complete sets of harness from a local dealer, assembled them at the mule barn. Savings on this deal ran into $125. The mule dealer fitted the gear on the animals at no extra cost, assured perfect harness fittings.

The Greatest Scout

SPEAK of a "great scout, guide and Indian fighter" and the average American will think immediately of "Buffalo Bill" Cody. But old timers will tell you that there were probably a dozen men on the Western frontier who were Cody's equals, or even his superiors, in any of those three roles. If you press them to name "the greatest of them all," the chances are they'll reply "Frank Grouard"

FRANK GROUARD

When Gen. George Crook started on his expedition against the hostile Sioux and Cheyennes in the spring of 1876, Grouard went along as a scout and made himself so valuable to Crook that this famous Indian fighter once said, "I would sooner lose a third of my command than to lose Frank Grouard"

In the early '90s he was living in Sheridan, Wyo., and there a young fellow from Wisconsin, who had gone west to practice dentistry, met Grouard and a number of other famous frontier characters. This "tenderfoot" was Dr. Will Frackelton, and his recently published book, "Sagebrush Dentist," (A. C. McClurg and Company, Chicago), written in collaboration with Herman Gastrell Seely, a Chicago newspaper man, is a notable addition to the literature of the Old West. In it, "Doc" Frackelton tells several hitherto-unpublished stories about this great scout.

Dr. Frackelton

One of these is particularly interesting because the incident involves both Grouard and "Buffalo Bill."

"Frank Grouard was as taciturn as Cody was loquacious. Grouard was modest, Cody liked the limelight, and there was no love lost between them. I suspect that Grouard resented the publicity given Buffalo Bill's exploits, many of which were of doubtful authenticity, and the deference paid him by some of the army officers," writes Frackelton.

"They met one night in the Sheridan inn barroom and it was Cody who came off second best. Buffalo Bill was wearing his show clothes—beaded buckskin coat and jacket and enormous hat—and was swaggeringly convivial. It required little urging to have him tell his favorite story of the killing of the Cheyenne chief, Yellow Hand. He jumped on a stool, head thrown back and long hair falling about his shoulders, while we gathered around.

"Grouard walked in with quiet, catlike tread and asked for some cigars. Cody paused in the middle of his story.

" 'Go on, go on,' we shouted.

" 'No,' said Cody a little thickly. 'Here is my old friend, Frank Grouard. I'll now buy the drinks.'

"Grouard was not a drinking man. Buffalo Bill grew more insistent. 'Come on. Everybody belly up to the bar and drink with me.'

"Grouard shook his head. Infuriated, Cody blustered: 'Hey, you, belly up there! Can't you hear?'

"Grouard stepped forward and the men faced each other. Cody, in his show clothes, weighed about 195 pounds and Grouard, in his inconspicuous civilians, about 220. They were of equal height but Grouard's tremendous breadth of shoulder made him seem the shorter.

"Grouard's eyes sent cold chills down my spine. Quietly, and in that deep, determined voice of his he said: 'You are nothing but a picture book scout and a picture book showman. That's all you ever were and that's all you ever will be.'

"Then Grouard's voice dropped into a line of personal profanity, very emphatic but too low for us to hear. Cody straightened up, and for a moment it looked like a fight. Grouard eyed him, then walked over got his cigars and left the hotel."

While living in Sheridan Grouard met Joe de Barthe, correspondent of the New York Sun, who urged him to tell the story of his life. "What good'll that do?" asked Grouard, "People won't believe it." But de Barthe was insistent and the scout finally consented to dictate it to the newspaper man. The result was the volume "Life and Adventures of Frank Grouard," first published in St. Joseph, Mo., in 1894. It is now one of the rarities of Western Americana and a first edition of it—if you can find one—sells for anywhere from $35 to $50 a copy!

THE SYNOPTIC GOSPELS: MATTHEW, MARK, LUKE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 1:1, 17; Mark 1 1, 14, 15, Luke 1:1-4; Acts 1-1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—I Timothy 1:15.

A new year of God-given opportunity with the assurance of His grace and strength for our daily need Such is the precious gift we hold in our hands as we enter on A D 1942.

With the new year, we enter upon a new course of study—carefully planned ahead through 1947, if the Lord tarries. We begin very appropriately with a study of the life of Christ as presented in the first three Gospels, known as the Synoptic Gospels.

"Synoptic" is a combination of two words, meaning "a view together," and refers to the fact that Matthew, Mark, and Luke give us the same general view of Christ, although differing somewhat in their emphasis.

Matthew, writing his Gospel especially to the Jews, presents Christ as King. Mark, for the Romans, presents the Servant. Luke presents to the Greeks the Son of Man—the perfect Man, and John, for the Christian church, reveals the Son of God. But note that all the Gospels are for us, and in them we find the fourfold picture which presents the many-sided glory and beauty of our Lord. Turning to our scriptures we see—

I. The King (Matt. 1:1, 17).

These verses come at the beginning and end of the kingly genealogy of Jesus. It is important that the descent of a king be carefully recorded and studied, for it alone can prove his right to the throne. We know that Israel rejected Jesus as King, but we also know what prophecy reveals that He will one day take the throne of David and reign. Does He have that right?

In Matthew 1:1-17, we have His national and royal descent. Being son of both David and Abraham, He is heir to both the promise and the throne. As King of Israel, there was no need to trace His lineage back further than Abraham through David, but we find that in Luke (2; 23-28) the Son of Man is traced back to Adam. Mark has no genealogy for reasons noted below, and John also has none, for the Son of God is eternal, infinite, without need of genealogy.

Turning now to Mark, we find Him presented as

II. The Servant (Mark 1:1, 14, 15).

A servant needs no genealogy, he needs only to be able and ready to work, and that is just what we find in Mark. The account plunges at once into the story of "the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God," who is ready to serve—by life or by death—yes, even by the death of the cross.

The forerunner, John the Baptist, bears his witness. Jesus is baptized. John is imprisoned, and immediately Jesus begins to preach, "Repent ye, and believe the gospel." The key verse of Mark is 10:45: "For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." The characteristic words are "straightway," "forthwith," and "immediately." The Greek word thus translated appears about 40 times in the book. The Servant of God went quickly about the Father's business. Christians, can we say the same for ourselves?

III. The Son of Man (Luke 1:1-4).

Luke undertakes to write, under the control of the Holy Spirit, a careful account of the saving work of Christ, but he makes it doubly clear that he writes from firsthand knowledge. "Eyewitnesses" means those who made a personal investigation, hence, those who knew Christ as the Son of Man, the One who became flesh and dwelt among us. "Ministers" means literally those who served under Jesus, His personal assistants; again emphasizing His personal ministry as "the Son of man who is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (as Luke 19:10, the key verse of this Gospel, expresses it).

IV. The Risen and Ascended Lord (Acts 1:1-5).

Christ who was crucified arose a Victor over death and the grave, and ascended to the Father, where He now appears as our Advocate. That does not mean that His work on earth terminated, for we have in Acts what Dr. Morgan fittingly calls "the book of the continued doing and teaching of the living Christ by the Holy Spirit through His body, which is the church."

The Gospels (Acts 1:1) told only that "Jesus began to do and to teach." Acts continues, but does not complete the story. Christ is working today in and through surrendered believers. Will He have liberty to work through you and through me this year of 1942? If so, it is sure to be a happy—yes, a blessed—New Year.

Congressional Elections

According to the Constitution of the United States, the President has no power to control, directly or indirectly, the holding of congressional elections. Neither does he have the right to prorogue congress or to suspend the Constitution of the United States or any part of it.

The election of members of the house of representatives is mandatory every two years, and "each state by the legislature thereof" prescribes "the times, places, and both senators and representatives."

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

SECOND ANNUAL COMMUNITY SING HELD SUNDAY EVE

The second annual Community Sing and Christmas Party was held at the Community Hall Sunday evening and the hall was packed

The gathering was sponsored by the Klemme Legion and Auxiliary and Dr D P Anderson Post Commander of the Legion was master of ceremonies and introduced the various speakers and entertainers.

The Christmas program was of a patriotic nature throughout and a good patriotic address was delivered by Mayor Wm C Kraus in which he stressed the seriousness of conditions brought on by the war and urged unity and all-out support by every one in this community in stepping up farm production buying of bonds and defense stamps and liberal support of the Red Cross

R R Reece, president of the Civic Club, represented the business men in extending greetings

The balance of the program consisted of singing and the accompaniment was provided by Ernest Gerardi and his accordion Special musical numbers were provided by high school students.

After the program Santa Claus came on the scene and treated all the children to candy

SUGGESTION

J J Tyler of near Malcom has suggested that people save tin cans for possible use in defense, or in making automobile licenses. For years, Tyler says, he has been saving the cans, cutting out both ends and hammering them flat, for use in fills and other uses around his farm

DUPLICATED

In 1941, Mrs. Lula B Griffith of Bedford has used the license number 87-337 on her automobile When she obtained her license for the coming year, she was again the recipient of 87-337. Mrs Griffith had not asked to have the same number, but took the one in her turn at the county treasurer's office.

Small Towns Stage Real Comeback With Decentralization of Industries

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Young Tom Jones graduated from the state university last spring. He'd intended looking for a job in the city, like fellows from his home town have been doing ever since the World war. But a startling thing happened, and Tom came home instead.

That same startling thing is happening all over America. Small towns, which economists have for years been consigning to oblivion, are staging a spectacular comeback.

Actually this trend has been underway for a decade, as the economists learned with a start when the 1940 census returns began rolling in. The growth rate of metropolitan cities—which reached a level of 27 per cent in the years between 1920 and 1930—slowed down to a meager 8 per cent during the 1930-40 decade. Meanwhile the rate of increase for rural and small town areas jumped from 4 per cent in the former decade to 6 per cent in the last 10 years. A small gain, admittedly, but an encouraging picture for Main Street.

However, it took something more concrete than census statistics to convince young Tom Jones. He'd been reading the papers.

The papers said those millions of dollars in defense contracts were going to be spread out over the country, not concentrated in big cities. Decentralization was the keynote, not only because scattered factories make a tougher target for bombers but also because science and industry see a better future in nonmetropolitan areas. Laboratory technicians have been pointing to farm and forest for tomorrow's raw materials. Moreover, huge water power projects like Grand Coulee, TVA and Boulder dam have beckoned to the industrialist. Tom Jones figured that America's future lies away from the big cities.

Around the Nation.

Here's a bird's-eye, 30-second Cook's tour of America to show you just a part of what's happening. "Way down south," where they used to concentrate on tobacco, cotton and sugar, paper mills are going up to utilize southern pulpwood. The chemical industry and the closely allied synthetic fiber industry is expanding, and TVA has changed the Tennessee-Alabama territory into one of the nation's foremost steel and aluminum processing areas.

The Southwest, top boom area of the nation, is pouring out oil and sulphur, and is making soda ash, acids, solvents and plastics. Shipyards on the coast, zinc in Missouri and oil in Texas and Oklahoma—these, coupled with the best all-year climate in the country for training an army, are beckoning thousands of new pioneers.

California, where industry has followed a population increase, is concentrating on ships and airplanes. Farther north, in the Pacific northwest, Bonneville and Grand Coulee are making possible the processing of bauxite and magnesium. A linen industry, replacing former imports, is growing in Oregon and Washington.

Hundreds of small town factories in the Middle West, darkened since 1929, are going at top speed again to augment the productive facilities of larger national defense plants. This is especially true in Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana. The latter state boasts two well-defined production areas, one across the northern counties and another down south along the Ohio river.

The immediate effect of this resurgence to the small town has been somewhat chaotic, for housing and trade and recreational facilities have not been available to take care of the unexpected influx. But leading business men and economists are optimistic For example, Col. Charles P. Wood wrote in Nation's Business recently that the widespread diffusion of defense contracts will "exert a powerful decentralizing influence far beyond the immediate effect of the defense program."

Decentralization Practical.

The factors that make decentralization practical are easy to list. First, better highways and trains, air travel and radio have made our land more compact. Second, costs are lower in the small town, away from the economically destructive burden of ever-increasing metropolitan taxes. Third, and probably most important, the small town gives employees a greater opportunity to enjoy a healthy and prosperous life.

Examples of the latter benefit are afforded by such firms as Hormel Packing company at Austin, Minn., Hamilton Manufacturing company at Two Rivers, Wis., and Schenley Distillers corporation, which recently reported on a survey of personnel at its plants in Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Frankfort, Ky. According to Lewis S. Rosenstiel, chairman of the board of the Schenley company, an increasing number of employees at these plants are building new homes on small farms within easy driving distance of work.

"This movement may well develop into the greatest revolution in American living conditions that we've experienced since the metropolitan city began coming into its own," Mr. Rosenstiel says. Defense plants, he predicts, will be converted to peacetime production under the stimulus of a "more productive era" into which we will move at the close of the war.

Lewis Rosenstiel

Henry Ford was one of the first of the nation's leading industrialists to recognize the value of decentralizing industry. "Beyond the immediate benefits and advantages accruing to the employer and the employed from industrial decentralization," according to W. J. Cameron of the Ford Motor company, "there are the wider implications of its communal and national social and economic significance. In more than one instance during the depression years the establishing of a little Ford industry in a Michigan town has been the economic salvation of that town. At the same time this action has the effect of relieving, however slightly, the human congestion of our overcrowded industrial centers."

The trend away from the established centers of industrial activity is not confined to the United States, says Clark H. Minor, president of the International General Electric company, who recently predicted a worldwide shift in the national industry centers as a result of the present war and the economic realignments that will follow.

That decentralization spells gloom for big cities is readily admitted by metropolitan real estate officials, whose property is already beginning to lay idle as factory after factory moves to greener pastures. In Chicago the Urban Land institute reports that the 45-square-mile central area has lost 165,000 population in the last 20 years. Meanwhile the volume of total Chicago shopping handled in the downtown "Loop" area shrank from 29 per cent in 1926 to only 17 per cent 10 years later

The city, it appears, has reached its peak and is now heading downward. It's beginning to look like Main Street, not Wall Street, will be tomorrow's avenue of progress!

Main Street, center of community life in thousands of small towns throughout America, is shown, top photo, as it looks in Ridgewood, N. J. Viewing latest census figures which show that cities are settling down into "old age" while rural communities are growing faster than ever, economists say that Main Street, instead of Wall Street, is the avenue of opportunity for today's young business men. Lower photo shows one of the many factories going up in rural areas—the 300,000-pound-a-day smokeless-powder plant near Radford, Va., being built on farmland.

'Composite' Soldier Described by Army

WASHINGTON. — The average young man starting service in the United States army is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 144 pounds, has a chest measurement of 33¼ inches, a 31-inch waistline, wears a 9½-D shoe and a size 7 hat, according to figures compiled by the war department. The data are based on records of the army quartermaster corps, which has directed the measuring and clothing of more than 1,500,000 men.

After a few months in the army, however, the recruit has gained in weight on army food, wears shoes one-half size larger and has an expanded chest measurement.

To keep this average soldier in fighting trim for the first year, the quartermaster corps spends $404.65, of which $175.20 is for his food; $162.05 for clothing; $15.79 for individual equipment; and $51.61 for barracks equipment. Weapons, ammunition, pay and other expenses incurred are not included.

Uncle Sam spends about 48 cents a day, or $175.20 a year, to feed the average enlisted man.

The American soldier eats at the finest army mess in the world. On a weekly basis his garrison, or peacetime ration consists of the following average quantities of basic foods: 4 pounds, 6 ounces of fresh beef; 14 ounces of chicken; 1 pound, 12 ounces of fresh pork; 7 eggs; 9 pounds, 3 ounces of fresh and canned vegetables; a little over 1 pound of cereals and dry vegetables; about 2 pounds of fresh and canned fruits; 14 ounces of coffee, 4 pounds, 6 ounces of potatoes; and 4 pounds of fresh and evaporated milk.

Clothing Costs.

Clothing needed to outfit the enlisted man when he begins duty costs the government $107.89. Maintenance cost of clothing for a year is $54.16.

Clothing issued to the soldier includes: 8 pairs of shorts (either cotton or woolen); 8 undershirts (usually cotton, but 2 may be woolen); 9 pairs of socks; 3 pairs of shoes—2 pairs high brown service shoes and 1 pair low dress oxfords; 6 pairs of trousers—4 cotton khaki and 2 woolen; 6 shirts—4 cotton khaki and 2 flannel, woolen, or O.D.; 1 woolen overcoat; 1 cotton field jacket with woolen lining; 3 herringbone cotton twill jackets (to soldiers not issued one-piece work suits); 3 pairs of herringbone twill trousers to go with jackets; 2 pairs of canvas leggings (when not issued boots); 4 neckties—2 black woolen and 2 cotton khaki, 1 herringbone twill hat to go with suit of similar material; 2 caps—1 woolen, 1 cotton khaki (except in tropics); 1 woolen or serge coat; 1 cotton khaki web waist belt; 1 pair of woolen, O.D. gloves; 6 white cotton handkerchiefs; and 1 steel helmet.

When he enters the service the enlisted man receives 1 toilet set containing shaving brush, tooth brush, comb, safety razor with 5 blades, 1 pair of suspenders; 2 identification discs with one yard of tape; 2 hand towels; 1 bath towel, 2 barrack bags; 1 canvas field bag, 1 cartridge belt (if armed with rifle); 1 pistol belt (if armed with pistol), 1 mess kit, 1 canteen and cover; 1 pack carrier; 1 cup, 1 fork, 1 spoon; 1 knife; 1 haversack (or not issued field bag); 1 web pocket (if armed with pistol); 1 first aid pouch.

Champion Farmers Hold Third Reunion

CHICAGO —Included in the special activities of agricultural groups in Chicago at the time of the International Live Stock exposition this year was the third reunion of the Champion Farmers' association.

This group of over 100 farmers, each of whom has achieved prominence in his particular phase of farming, spent two days of sightseeing, banquets, luncheons and attendance at the feature events of the exposition as guests of the Firestone Tire & Rubber company A highlight of the reunion was the "Christmas" banquet at the Congress hotel, with Leonard K Firestone playing host.

Pursuits of these Champion Farmers are widely scattered in the field of agriculture. Some are famed for livestock production, crop production, soil conservation, introduction of new products and as outstanding breeders of better seeds.

Man About Town:

The Story Tellers: The Dec. 2nd Look has this observation by S. Spewack: That the bombings of Britain accomplished this much, at least: The British people realized that property rights aren't as important as human rights . . . Perhaps Life magazine is a jinx. First it went all-out for a baseball rookie who never lived up to their sugary words about him. Then Life threw a book of pretty orchids at a football team in Texas which got licked and went right into a losing streak. Now Life hangs a blue ribbon around a show whose star has become very ill and forced the play's postponement . . . Jim Young's piece in Flying and Popular Aviation is eye-arresting.

The Front Pages: Mr. Woollcott got a little originality into his back-from-Europe interview. He recalled that the funniest thing said in the Old Country during his sojourn was a little ad lib of his own—"Oh, to be in England now that Averell is here!" . . . He also declined to be quoted on something he could sell—which is a line from his character in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" . . . A local copy-reader has a scrap-book of editorials walloping FDR for allegedly muzzling the press. His title for the collection is "In Defense of Hysteria" . . . In "The Chuckling Fingers," (a whale of a crime yarn) the author reports news photogs setting up their tripods. What kinda torpedoes have they out West, holding still for portraiture?

They had a horrible time over at Pathe trying to do a newsreel on "Young America Wants to Help" . . . Commentator Tex McCrary was there as were some American kids, Mrs. Roosevelt and an English youngster, who had been evacuated . . . Despair was rampant. Tex was tearing his hair, and cameramen were miserable because the English lad (used once before when he arrived) had acquired full-flowering Brooklynese in a Brooklyn school. He had shown up completely minus his immaculate British accent, and they simply could not get him to say "bawth-room"!

Innocent Bystander:

Mrs. Roosevelt tells this story about Bunker Hill Monument, of which all New England is proud . . . When it was nearing completion there was difficulty in raising $20,000 which was needed . . A Mr. Laurence of Massachusetts gave $10,000, saying other New Englanders would surely help . . . But the other $10,000 came not from New Englanders, but from Judah Touro, a Jewish merchant of New Orleans . . . Mrs. Roosevelt likes to tell the story, she explains, "because it is the only piece of American history I ever told my husband that he didn't know before."

John Hearst, the newspaperman's boy, met a fellow in Reuben's the other middle-of-the-night, who once trimmed him with an old racket . . . The chap had given him a tip on a horse race, and not only wasn't there such a horse—or race—but there wasn't even such a town! . . . Hearst simply had to let him know that he was hep to him . . . "Eight years ago," he said, "when you swindled me out of that money, I was awfully mad at you. I wish I could make up my mind what to do to you right now."

"I understand," was the retort, "you haven't played a horse tip since. You should thank me—for teaching you a lesson!"

"Prince" Mike Romanoff, who never posed as a lily, went under the microscopic examination of a magazine several years ago . . . He went through the wringer and managed to survive it . . . The editor of the wallopings, it appears, invested a goodly sum in a Hollywood restaurant, and it became the movietown's most prosperous rendezvous . . . Romanoff, with the support of friends, opened a restaurant in the same sector, and he was the one who was most amazed when it turned into a gold mine . . . Recently the editor's place discovered that its clientele was thinning . . . Major air lines which paid a fancy fee to have the editor's sideline prepare the luncheon boxes for its passengers, cancelled its orders . . . The business was turned over to Mike's place . . . Many of the patrons, who stopped going to the other spot, are now patronizing Romanoff's . . . Revenge, as the saying goes, is saccharine . . . Moral: Never kick an underdog when he's down. He may become your most aggravating competitor.

When the alarm was given after a Local Loan Company on 7th Avenue and 41st Street was held up recently, a radio police car sirened up to the door . . . Out jumped Officer Wallace of the 14th Precinct, who rushed in yelling: "What's the matter?" . . . "What's the matter?" shouted the cashier. "Well, you know that lonely cowboy bandit who's been holding up everybody lately? I just passed out $600 in cash to him!"

"What!" wisecracked the cop "Without a co-maker?"

HIDDEN TREASURE

With American industries crying for war materials, the government has finally got around to seizing a giant horde of semi-manufactured war materials originally intended for the conquered countries.

Tons upon tons of steel bars, steel rods, steel sheets, ship plates, tin plate, copper wire were ordered by Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Holland and Belgium, some of it three years ago. It has been in warehouses and idle freight cars ever since, despite the scarcity of raw materials and despite the fact that some industries are even closing for lack of them.

Why this horde of priceless material remained untouched for so long is a mystery. But the secret is first, government red tape and bureaucracy; second, the fact that owners of these materials, who were holding them for higher prices, did not want to sell.

The old Export Control board under Gen. Russell Maxwell, who is now devoting his abilities to the Near East, did nothing about this treasure horde. But now Henry Wallace's Economic Defense board is finally moving in.

A small haul was made earlier this year in Hoboken, N. J., of aluminum and other materials, but the coming seizures are on a far greater scale. Of one commodity alone, tin plate, there will be 100,000 cases, or 15,000 tons, taken from three areas, New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore.

The total haul of all commodities will be between 20 and 25 thousand carloads, which, at an average of 50 tons to the car, means over a million tons.

The Economic Defense board will use only $200,000 to finance the requisitioning of all this material, the value of which runs into many millions. Most of it will be seized and sold again on the same day, so the $200,000 will be merely a revolving fund.

INTERNED ITALIANS

One of the Italian ship officers in detention at Fort Missoula, Mont., wrote his wife in Italy a letter which U. S. officials are sure will never reach her.

The letter will get to Italy, all right. Mail is still being exchanged regularly between the two countries. But authorities are certain that the officer's letter will not get by Il Duce's censors, for, in hungry, battered, war-weary Italy this poignant message would not be "good propaganda."

This is the reason:

"We left Philadelphia for the city of Missoula," wrote the husband. "The journey lasted three days and three nights on a train and was a real pleasure. We did not lack a thing because we traveled in a Pullman. At meal times we turned it into a dining room and at night into a dormitory. The meals were magnificent.

"I can tell you that for me the journey was one I had dreamed of for years and then, in an extraordinary way, it came true. As I said before, this place is beautiful, all green with woods and surrounded by hills. The air is fine and healthy, my appetite very good and the food abundant and exquisite.

"We do not lack milk, butter, meat, bread, vegetables, fruit, sugar or coffee. When I am eating I always think of you, who are perhaps without food. No one can complain about the guards. They treat us with every respect and consideration."

Note: To Americans the effusive description of the food as "abundant and exquisite" is interesting, because the alien prisoners at Fort Missoula are fed straight army fare. In quality and quantity their rations are exactly the same as those of U. S. soldiers.

SCRAP IRON TO JAPAN

For years, the heaviest foreign buyer of U. S. scrap iron was Japan. Despite much public protesting, the state department permitted Nipponese militarists to import huge quantities of this vital strategic material. Now appeasement chickens are coming home to roost.

With defense production swinging into full tide, the U. S. suddenly is confronted with a serious scrap shortage. For various reasons, defense chiefs are saying nothing about the situation. But it is very acute. A number of steel makers have privately reported curtailed production schedules in the offing because of inability to obtain needed supplies of scrap.

One important plant executive went so far as to describe his condition as "almost desperate."

Changes Are Proposed In U. S. Sugar Quotas

Administration Holds That Revision of Present Arrangement Would Represent a Slap at America's Good Neighbor Policy.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

Sugar Quota And 'Good Neighbors'

In 1934 "after long and extensive hearings," as the Congressional Record puts it, a sugar law was passed. The law stabilized the sugar industry by establishing quotas to be raised, imported and refined and provided for benefit payments to growers for following certain agricultural and labor practices. Again, in 1937, after long and extensive hearings it was renewed. Behind that phrase "long and extensive" lies the story of a ferocious battle on the part of the sugar interests to defeat the administration measure. Each time they failed, but early this month in 40 minutes and in the teeth of the state department, the department of interior, the department of agriculture and the White House, the law was so rewritten by the house of representatives as to amount to defeat of administration wishes.

The senate is as yet to act, after studying reports from the above named departments. The bill as originally written authorized the secretary of agriculture to estimate the amount of sugar required by American consumers for a definite period. Then, according to a prescribed scale, it apportioned quotas among the producers of continental United States, Puerto Rico, the Hawaiian Islands, Cuba and other foreign countries.

As passed by the house, the present measure would increase the amount of sugar purchased from the beet and cane sugar growers on the mainland and reduce the amount of raw and refined sugar purchased from other growers.

This step, if finally enacted into law, says the administration, would be a slap in the face of good-neighborship: Cuba alone would have her quota cut by 50,000 tons of raw and 75,000 tons of refined sugar. And it would completely dislocate the computations of Secretary Wickard who thinks that the sugar quotas and benefit payments for certain practices have kept the sugar situation pretty well in hand.

The only lobby I ever heard the President mention by name is the "sugar lobby." It is one of the most powerful pressure groups in the capital.

Speaker Rayburn Has Power, Energy

I looked down from the radio gallery of the house of representatives the other afternoon on a large pink globule in the well of the chamber. Every eye in the house was centered on it. It seemed to glow, to radiate power and energy as well as a roseate hue.

It was the all but hairless head of Speaker Sam Rayburn, and out of that head came the energy which directed the action which saved from defeat the administration's measure to revise the neutrality law. It was that energy which jammed through the Security Exchange law against stone wall opposition. It was that energy which carried out an idea starting in that same head when it was on callow shoulders and finally made him speaker of the United States house of representatives.

A barefoot boy curled up in the corner reading biographies of the country's great men was the avatar of this congressman. And he was still a schoolboy when he announced the fact that he was going to run for the state legislature as soon as he finished his law course, that he was going to be speaker some day and after that run for congress. And that's just what he did. And all he had to start with was $25 and his father's blessing.

Young Sam Rayburn was 1 of 11 children, whose forbears came by way of Tennessee from Virginia to a borderline county in Texas (he was born in Bonham) and there turned the virgin furrows in a neighborhood that still wins its bread from the soil.

The country schoolhouse was the community center of the times and here on many a festal day the Rayburn buggy was tied while the whole family heard the local politician's oratory, or attended the recitations or spelling-bees and discussed the latest news in the weekly editions of the Courier-Journal.

When Sam had absorbed all that the country school had to offer either in its regular sessions or when some visiting pundit proclaimed his views, he went to his father and said he had to go to college. The father was in favor of the motion but regretfully explained that there was nothing in the till for racoon-skin coats or flivvers or the local equivalent of the day. He did, however, present his ambitious son with $25 in coin of the realm and escorted him to the station on the branch line that was to take him to the Texas normal college

The boy was a good student, bright and determined to learn all that there was taught him. But when he finished his course and since he was, as we have noted, already on his way to congress, the next step was naturally the State university law school.

His shingle was hardly floating on the Bonham breezes when he was already ready for the legislature. At 24 he was elected He was a member for four years and then, as per schedule, was elected speaker and served in that capacity for two more Meanwhile in the summers he practiced law. Then one day in 1912 the county paper announced in blackfaced headlines:

"Stores Closed All Day and Everybody Out to Hear Fannin County's Gifted Son Who Is Candidate for Congress"

Just how this specialist in measures dealing with some of the most intricate and abstruse principles of political economy translates his record into votes for his constituents would seem difficult to fathom. His purely agricultural district is far more interested in stock with four legs and a moo than it is in a stock exchange, and a transportation act to them is chiefly the act of transporting a bale of cotton from hither to hence But he gets things done for the folks and they seem to take him and his other achievements at their face value.

Written in large letters of achievement against his name are the Securities Exchange act, the Holding Company act and the Rural Electrification act, all, and especially the first two, representing long and bitter battles

The pressure exerted on Representative Rayburn during the battle for the securities and holding company laws was terrific. The President knew this would be the case and that was the reason the Texan was chosen to handle them. Everybody knew that once he got his teeth into the measures neither fine words nor offered favors nor threats would make him let go.

It is still Sam Rayburn—now stepping down from the speaker's rostrum—who is picked to lead some of the President's biggest battles on Capitol Hill.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Plan For U. S. 'Farmerettes'

You can take the city girl out of the city but can you take the city out of the girl?

That will be the problem of the Office of Civilian Defense if Mrs. Roosevelt's idea, which she discussed at one of her recent press conferences, goes through.

The idea is to create a "land army" of women to help the farmers handle their crops next year when male hands will probably be scarce. If an unpaid land army of volunteer women workers is created, Mrs Roosevelt's idea is that the Physical Training division of the Civilian Defense organization undertake the training of the "farmerettes." This division is headed by the famous athlete, former Olympic scull star, John Kelly. Obviously skull practice is necessary for contestants on an agricultural team. Mr. Kelly has as his assistants Alice Marble and Mary Brown, tennis stars, to say nothing of the advice and counsel of former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey and the famous sports writer, Grantland Rice.

Undoubtedly Mr. Dempsey, who has tossed many a haymaker in his day, would be an excellent trainer for the ladies who hope to emulate Maude Muller. Grantland Rice knows his baseball. It seems logical that if you can criticize the way a man pitches a ball you ought to qualify to coach a lady pitching fertilizer.

BRIEFS . . . By Baukhage

¶ Since sound sleep is insurance for good drill results, more than 41,000,000 pieces of equipment and supplies are needed by the army to give a comfortable night's rest to every soldier. Accordingly, the quartermaster corps provides each man with a bed, mattress, two pillows, three mattress covers, four pillow cases, six wool blankets and nine cotton sheets.

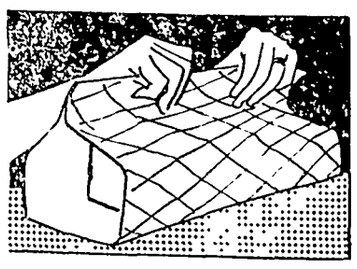
¶ A bill for further pensions for World war veterans' dependents is before congress. The government is still paying one pension to a "dependent" of the war of 1812. William Hassett, now secretary to the President, when he was a young newspaper man in Vermont, wrote the story of the death of the last pensioner of the War of the Revolution.

Neat Wrapping Aids Appearance Of Holiday Gifts

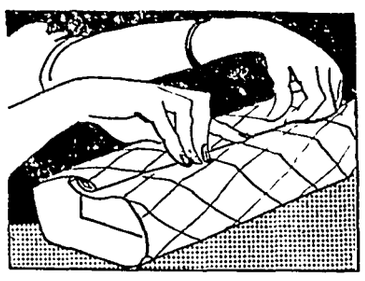
Men are seldom noted for their daintiness, especially around Christmastime. But they aren't the only ones whose gifts present a sorry sight with bulgy paper covering and loose string that portends early disintegration of the wrapping Even some women confess that they wrap their gifts several times before their appearance is satisfactory.

The best of "wrappers" are only amateurs, however, compared with the girls in large department stores who "gift wrap" all day long

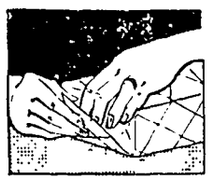
For most articles whose shapes make wrapping difficult they have an effective solution "Corrugate it." This means that the bundle is wrapped lengthwise and sidewise in corrugated paper before putting fancy Christmas paper around it. "Corrugation will cover a multitude of shapes," they explain. They suggest five steps when wrapping simple packages



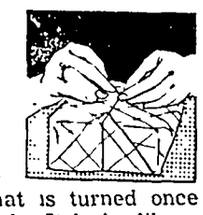
1. Fold the paper over the bundle. Line up the two open sides, then fold them back two or three inches to prevent paper cuts by getting the sharp edge of the paper out of the way.



2 Draw folded paper snug The paper should be made to rest tightly around the lengthwise section of the bundle.

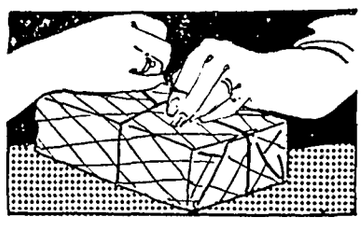


3. Fold in the ends. Holding the package as shown in drawing number 2, turn the corners diagonally inward. The pointed section that remains is then folded back against the side of the package



4. Wind string around package. First wind the string around the bundle lengthwise and then make a "figure 8" knot. This is an ordinary slip knot that is turned once before it is slipped It looks like a figure 8 when tied and makes a perfect slip knot.

5. Tie the string. After the string is run through the figure 8 knot lengthwise, simply continue the string around the bundle sidewise, and tie the ends of the string.



Extra care in wrapping will make even the most inexpensive gifts more presentable.

Cleveland Sells Stocks To Buy Community Tree

Sale of stock certificates unparalleled in history brought America's first community Christmas tree to Cleveland, Ohio, in 1912

To raise money for a community tree, preferred stock was sold in "Cleveland, the City of Good Will (Unlimited), Incorporated" It was listed at the head of other securities on the Cleveland Stock exchange. Although no personal solicitations were allowed, more than $12,000 was realized from the sale. A community celebration was held around the 70-foot, illuminated tree that was erected in the public square.

The next Christmas brought a veritable avalanche of community Christmas trees throughout the country. The idea has become almost a national custom, with more than 15,000 American cities and towns setting up their own community trees during the Christmas season.

Over 300 Years Ago

The hymn "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," was written in 1739 by one of the greatest hymn writers, Charles Wesley, brother of John, the founder of Methodism. The music to the hymn is a chorale from Mendelssohn's beautiful cantata, "Gott Ist Licht."

The hymn "Adeste Fideles" ("Oh Come All Ye Faithful") has been translated into 76 languages. The words are sometimes ascribed to St. Bonaventura, bishop of Albanno in the Thirteenth century.

Santa's Troubles

Our mechanized age certainly puts Santa at a disadvantage, because his reindeer never had troubles like this. Several inches of snow prove too much for his modern carriage, so Santa Claus has to wield a snow shovel in front of a New York store to free it. (Editor's note: Wonder what he does at the North pole where the snow is really deep.)

Christmas Marked In Early Colonies By Jollity, Feasting

Early American colonies along the Atlantic seaboard could have been located on different continents, so far as their Christmas celebrations were concerned

Many of the customs of England were followed by the southern colonies of Georgia, Carolina, Maryland and Virginia Here the Christmas season was a holiday in the true sense of the word. Feasting and merrymaking were common, but religious worship and prayer were not forgotten

In sharp contrast to this happy celebration was the manner in which Christmas was marked in New England. Puritan leaders did their best to create a different conception of the day Celebrations were declared pagan in origin, and it was believed such rites were out of keeping with the true spirit of the day. Their efforts were overcome after a number of years and New England yuletides gradually assumed a character more like those of old England.

Christmas in the middle colonies of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware was celebrated in the manner that the colonists followed in their countries of origin In addition to England, these colonies were populated by people from Germany, Holland and Sweden The Germans, for example, brought to America the custom of using the Christmas tree, but the Quakers of Philadelphia limited their observance to religious ceremonies.

Family reunions marked the season in both the middle and southern colonies. Houses were crowded with welcome guests who were treated to the best of fowls, wines and sweetmeats.

Along the frontier Christmas was a season of active merrymaking which in places verged on rowdyism.

As time went on, Christmas in the various sections of the colonies became fused until there is today a considerable similarity of practices throughout the United States.

St. Nicholas Loved For Piety, Grace

The name of Santa Claus is merely slurring the Dutch San Nicholas, which is, of course, Saint Nicholas American children are probably the only ones who say it exactly that way.

Nicholas was an actual person. He was Bishop of Myra, in Lycia, Asia Minor, in the first part of the Fourth century, A. D. He was also the youngest bishop in the history of the church

From the day of his birth Nicholas revealed his piety and grace He refused on fast days to take the natural nourishment of a child.

But Nicholas was not a barefoot recluse vowed to poverty. His father was a wealthy merchant, and his riches enabled him to be a dispenser of the good things in life.

The feast of Saint Nicholas was originally celebrated on December 6. Later when church people in the late Middle ages tried to suppress the festivities which grew up around the Boy Saint's day, his festival came to be associated with Christmas day

Christmas Celebrated in 98

Tradition says that Christmas was first celebrated in A D 98. It was ordered to be held as a solemn feast by Pope Telesphorus in A. D 137. There is no record of any commemoration during the life of Christ.

About A D 340, St. Cyril made careful investigation as to the actual date of Christ's birth and reported December 25 as the most nearly correct date. Pope Julius accepted this and established the festival at Rome on this date, which was accepted by every nation in Christendom.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE

LESSON TEXT—John 14:1-6, Revelation 22 1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—In my Father's house are many mansions.—John 14:2.

Hope is something this world desperately needs, and which it has all but abandoned. Little wonder when one recalls that the usual meaning of hope is hardly more than "wishful thinking" without any real confidence—and that such hope as men have, has been only in their fellowmen, who have so often grievously failed them.

The Christian's hope—ah, that is something quite different. To him hope is certain expectation resting on the assured Word of God. Such a light only shines brighter as the darkness deepens As the lights of men's promises and purposes flicker and die out, the hope of God's people shines like a beacon in a dark and stormy night.

How appropriate that we should use the last Sunday of this year to remind one another of that hope, to trim the lamp, as it were, for even brighter shining, as we cast its beams out into the unknown year just ahead. There are three great and helpful things in this lesson.

I. A Sure Promise of Heaven (John 14:1-3).

We are not forgetting that for us who love the Lord there is the blessed hope of His return. He is coming again (v. 3). But whether we have the joy of being caught up to be with Him ,or go by way of death, we have a sure promise of the eternal dwelling place which He has prepared for us.

"Let not your heart be troubled"—the very words come like the balm of Gilead upon our restless, troubled lives. Faith in God and in Christ—there we have the sure anchor of the soul. He has promised. We may count on His fulfillment. We show our faith in our fellowmen by trusting their word, even though they often fail us. Shall we not then fully trust the omnipotent, never-failing God?

II. A Safe Way to Heaven (John 14:4-6).

Our Saviour has not just gone before us and bade us follow as best we may, but He is Himself the Way. Having Christ, we have the way. Observe that He does not say that He is the "way-shower," as one religious system names Him. He is not just an example, or the master-teacher, or a martyr to a holy cause. He is "the way, the truth, and the life."

Note, too, that no man comes to the Father but by Christ. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith points out that "the apostle Paul in his epistles constantly emphasizes the truth that we have access to the Father only through the Lord Jesus Christ (Rom. 5:2; Eph. 2:13, 18; 3:15; Heb. 7:25; 10:19-21). Jesus is not one way to God, He is the only way to God. Men cannot come to God through anyone, but only through Christ."

Someone may say, "That's very true, and wonderful. I am a Christian, and I have Christ who is the way. But what is heaven like?

III. A Symbolic Picture of Heaven (Rev. 22:1-5).

First of all there is "life"—the river of life, the water of life. In heaven there is no death, but only eternal life, blessing, peace, and joy. In this world man lives under the constant shadow of death as the enemy which hurts, destroys, and reminds him of sin. But in heaven all is life through eternity.

"When we've been there ten thousand years
Bright shining as the sun,
We've no less days to sing God's praise
Than when we first begun"

Then we have what Dr. A. C. Gaebelein calls "the seven glories of the redeemed" (vv. 3-5). Let us enumerate them. (1) "No curse"—perfect sinlessness. (2) "The throne of God and of the Lamb shall be therein"—giving perfect and blessed government forever. (3) "His servants shall serve him"—in perfect, unhindered, untiring service. Heaven will not be idleness (perish the thought!), but blessed and happy service for God (4) "They shall see his face"—an eternal, undimmed vision of God. (5) "His name shall be on their foreheads"—speaking of eternal ownership and possession. (6) "There shall be night no more"—God is the light throughout eternity. No more darkness to fear. (7) "They shall reign forever and ever" Few of us would care to reign in this world, for that brings only sorrow and trouble, but to reign with Him, that indeed will be eternal blessedness

So then we have—a sure promsie of a heaven to which we have a safe way, and concerning which we have such blessed knowledge. But what good is the promise if we do not accept it? What good is the way if we do not receive Him? What good is there in knowing about heaven unless we are going there? "Everybody talks about heaven, ain't going there" sings the folk song. Are you? Or are you only going to talk about it?

Complete Life

In the mind of him who is pure and good will be found neither corruption nor defilement nor any malignant taint. Unlike the actor who leaves the stage before his part is played, the life of such a man is complete whenever death may come. He is neither cowardly nor presuming; not enslaved to life nor indifferent to its duties; and in him is found nothing worthy of condemnation nor that which putteth to shame. —Marcus Aurelius.

WHEN SANTA CLAUS COMES TO TOWN

In making the rounds our "newshound" sort of looked around to see what Santa Claus should put in the socks of the boys along the Main Drag

Because Uncle Sam has said, "You must quit making rubber balls and tennis balls because of the scarcity of rubber" Doc Dulmes Art Kudje Ole Wellemeyer and a few other golf addicts are peeved with golf

J. J. Jacobs wants Santa to bring his store full of merchandise that got shot was lost in the big fire (Santa has already promised Skip Ed got started in business again)

Harvey Barz and Bing Reece want Santa to bring each a book on "How to Quit Eating"

Will Lemke want another pipe with a hole in it so he can inhale the smoke out of the pipe bowl

Herman Paul want Santa to keep his mother off the firing station drive-way this winter

Art Wellemeyer wants Santa to make the Editor quit razzing him about using tough boxes on which to place display in his show windows

Fred J. Arnold wants Santa to bring him some more help so he can stay home and play with his brother-in-law's new electric train

Marshall George Buseman says he wants Santa Claus to bring him a new whistle

"Happy" Johnson has asked Mr S Claus to bring him some bear fur to put in the peanut barrel to keep a few town pirates from eating all the profits at the Klemme Food Market

Bawly Kluckhohn wants Santa to bring him a girdle to hide that extremely Milwaukee front he has developed

Heinie Lewis says he can use a good bird dog to go out and round up chickens when business is dull

Clay Kilgore and Hank Jost want Santa Claus to bring them some decent coal-selling weather

"Skeeter" Albertson and "Jergie" Jorgenson have written Santa to bring them a hatful of fairy tales the preacher will believe after these men have put in a Sunday morning fishing, come next summer.

Ed Thompson says he can now use less mice and more steel for the mouse trap factory.

Jim and Don, the barbers want Santa to bring every man in the community a bottle of hair grower and a bottle of whisker stimulater

The property owners in Klemme want Santa to be sure to bring some oil for the streets next year

The Red Cross wants Santa to loosen up the purse strings of those who still won't believe we are at war.

John Day and Milo Patet want a pair of roller skates so they can get around faster at the Christmas rush at the post office next year

Wallace Pavey wants Santa to bring him some new jokes to tell.

And what we want to know is: Where did the decorating committee steal the Christmas tree this year for Main Street?

The Lau Bros want Santa to bring them pink ribbons to tie around their dog's neck while he sits in their show window.

Mrs. Thada and Ernie Geradi want Santa Claus to take the screen doors off their places of business The flys have all gone South for the winter

Oofie Lau wants Santa to bring him some decent pin-setters at the bowling alley so he can get more strikes

Jack Etchen wants Santa to be sure to send him a new batch of men to argue with Jack can also use a box of chewing cigars

John Clements wants Santa to bring him a chin strap so it will keep his tongue inside his face when he works at the Implement Shop

Ira Overholt still wants Santa to bring him a farm in Wisconsin where the work is light and fishing is heavy.

Coonie Quandt wants a tandem bicycle so he can wheel up north with his wife next summer in case there should be a ban on gas.

Ole Ramsay wants an electric train so he can keep in practice at the depot waiting for the next (?) train to arrive.

"Stub" Lewis wants a shipment of aluminum tub Maytags for his store.

The preachers want young lovelorn couples to stay here and get hitched.

And everybody wants Santa to make this a Merry Christmas!

IT HAPPENED AT THE COMMUNITY SING

We have just found out why all the giggling after Rev. Harvey had finished singing a bass solo at the Community Sing Sunday night.

After Rev. Harvey had finished his song was the que for Santa to make his appearance. In order to keep the audience from seeing Santa come up on the stage. one of the Legion men pushed a screen across the hallway.

The amusing part of it was that Rev. Harvey had just completed his song as the screen was pushed along. On the screen appeared a sign which read "NO PROFANITY."

THE DOC SHOULD SHOOT HIS OWN ROOSTER

It was Sunday. Time noon. The scene Company for dinner at the Dr. Dulmes home.

So far, so good, but we must go back a few days with this story.

Doc had won a rooster at the Legion feather part and had Henry Lewis keep his prize at the poultry station until needed.

Come Saturday morning and the Doc came for the rooster, got it out of the crate and started for his car The rooster flapped his silly wings and Doc lost his hold The rooster ran away and started to crow about his escape. Doc chased the rooster, to no avail.

A council of war was held and Henry says "Shoot the rooster."

That let Doc out and Henry claimed poor eye-sight, so a local Daniel Boone was pressed into service and killed the rooster with a bast of fine shot.

Doc took the remains home.

Doc said nothing to his wife about having the rooster shot.

Everything was Jake at the dinner until the Missus bit into a lead pellet and says, "Doc, how come this rooster has all the ingredients of a wild pheasant?"

Was Doc's face red when he had to fess up how the rooster got away and it was shot down in cold blood.

Oh, well!

Yeast feeds which are recommended for faster gains on hogs are not worth the money they cost according to recent experiments at the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station.

Iowa farmers who have expanded their industry to help meet Uncle Sam's request for 18 per cent more poultry products must consider that increased production brings added problems in sanitation, housing and feeding.

The true meaning of Christmas is to celebrate the birth of our Saviour

Many people forget the real meaning and think merely as a time when they receive pretty gifts Children often lack the knowledge of the birthday of Jesus and think only of St Nick They should be taught the real meaning as well as receiving gifts.

This is the time of the year to show our gratitude to our friends We give to the poor so they will not be so unfortunate as to find an empty stocking

We should remember it is not how much we give, but it is the desire we have in our hearts to share with others

On Chdistmas eve many churches have beautiful programs The smaller children recite pieces and sing Christmas hymns to the Lord

Considering the condition our country is in and the occasion, let us sing, "Glory to God in the Highest peace on Earth, Good Will toward Men"

Mr Charles Hokonson from the Cornell College of Mount Vernon Iowa, spoke to the seniors Wednesday on the subject of "Higher Education" He gave us a few suggestions on choosing colleges and also pointed out some of the advantages of a college education

It seems there were quite a number of seniors interested in college

The King's Motto

Some hundreds of years ago, in Merry Old England, the King asked his wise men to help select a motto which would be good and applicable for all time

Many Mottos were submitted, and after due deliberations, the kindly King chose these words

"THIS TOO WILL PASS AWAY"

The King had these words engraved on a large signet ring, and whenever he signed his name he also affixed the motto with sealing wax

Even today, in this world so torn with hatred, strife and confusion, whenever we think of

The wicked career of Herr Hitler,
The Japanese hornet's nest,
And the selfish demands of Labor Unions, let us remember the King's motto

"THIS TOO WILL PASS AWAY"

In a Spiritual way, however there is one thing which will never pass away The teachings of Jesus Christ will live through the ages, and shining through the murk of war, the brilliant beam of Christ's life offers hope and comfort

May this Christmas Season bring to each of you this hope and comfort.

Household Hints

Linoleum floors can be kept fresh and bright with regular coats of varnish. Moreover, varnishing much-used linoleum about twice a year preserves the colors and prevents the grinding in of dirt.

* * *

Casserole dishes made of meat, vegetables or fish can be cooked in the morning and reheated just before they are to be served.

Potatoes bake more quickly if placed on the broiler instead of the floor of the gas oven, and the flavor will be much improved by quick baking.

* * *

Remove the little black line in shrimps before using them. The line is the intestinal tract.

* * *

Dry atmosphere and high temperature are the two biggest difficulties in growing house plants. Unless you have a good heating system, which gives you air-conditioning, it's necessary to put evaporating pans on the radiators to increase the humidity in the house, so that plants will do their best.

*Sweet French Dressing
*Baked Ham *Holiday Sauce
*Virginia Cranberry Mold
*Sweet Potato Pone
*Green Peas With Beets
Crescent Rolls
Olives Jelly
Celery Sauce Coffee
Plum Pudding with
*Recipes Given

There's a touch of the traditional in the menu in the baked ham and sweet potato pone, topped off with the plum pudding, and then there's a dash of newness in the cranberry mold, the salad and its perky dressing and the holiday sauce

Whether you're welcoming your sons from camp, your daughters from college, make this their gala feast, for Christmas dinners are something to cherish and remember.

Grapefruit-Persimmon Salad.

Be versatile with your grapefruit. Peel, separate into sections, then slip the thin peeling off the sections being careful to leave the section whole. Alternate the sections of grapefruit with thin slices of persimmon, having the outside sections on top so the fruit together gives the appearance of a mound. Use three sections of grapefruit per serving. Lay this on a crisp bed of lettuce and serve with dressing. Avocado and pink grapefruit sections may also be used in this way.

Sweet French Dressing.
(For fruit salads)

9 tablespoons oil
3½ tablespoons powdered sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons paprika
½ teaspoon worcestershire sauce
4 tablespoons lemon juice

Set all ingredients in icebox for three hours before mixing. Combine in order given, blending thoroughly. Chill again in mason jar. Before using, let melt, then beat until thick with wooden spoon.

Virginia Cranberry Mold.

You'll want something tantalizingly tart as foil to the bland sweetness of the ham. Here it is:

1 17-ounce can cranberry sauce
Juice of two oranges
Grated rind of 1 orange
1 cup hot water
3 packages gelatin

Mash cranberry sauce fine; add rind and orange juice. Dissolve gelatin in hot water and add to first mixture. Pour into molds and put in cool place to set.

Sweet Potato Pone.
(Serves 6 to 8)

Delicately spiced, heart-warming and gracious accompaniment to your dinner is this sweet potato pone Satisfy your desire for sweet potatoes with ham this new-old way. It's like grandmother used to make, homey, tasty, just wonderful food!

2½ cups grated raw sweet potato
½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon powdered ginger
¼ teaspoon mace
Grated rind of 1 orange

Blend sugar and butter. Add sweet potato and milk. Beat well, then add spices and orange rind. Bake in a shallow, buttered casserole in a moderate (350 degrees) oven, 30 to 35 minutes.

Baked Ham.

You can depend upon your holiday dinner to go over if you serve a ham, glistening and shimmering, baked in sweet, spicy juices. Wrap the ham in clean wrapping paper. Place fat side up on a rack in an open pan. Use no water. Bake in a slow oven. Hams weighing 16 to 18 pounds require 4 to 4½ hours baking; 12 to 15 pounds, 3½ to 4 hours; 10 to 12 pounds, 3 to 3½ hours; and 8 to 10 pounds, 2¾ to 3 hours.

Remove paper and all rind Cover with a glaze of pickled peach juice or 1 cup honey and ½ cup orange marmalade, or 1 cup pureed apricots for extra special goodness. To make stars, cut slices of pineapple and form into a star. Use a maraschino cherry in center. Bake until brown (about 15 minutes) in a hot (400 degrees) oven.

Holiday Sauce.

For your masterpiece, the ham, serve a sauce that's rich and jewel-red. Ladle it over the ham generously to bring out the best in the meat Like all good things, the sauce is a simple, good-tasting combination. Melt 1 small glass of currant jelly in double boiler, add 3 tablespoons chili sauce, blend, and serve hot.

Green Peas With Beets.

Bright red and green touch in the best tradition of Christmas is your beet and green peas vegetable combination. Boil the beets with two inches of their tops left on until tender, 25 to 35 minutes depending on age and size. Plunge into cold water and remove skins. Scoop out center, add salt and butter. Just before serving, heat beets, fill centers with cooked, seasoned green peas, heated piping hot.

Don't forget the big, overflowing bowls of fruits and nuts for the family to nibble on during Christmas day. Cluster raisins, apples, yellow, supple bananas, and nuts in the shell—all these the family will want to make their festivities complete. The children will give you three cheers if you string red cranberries and popcorn on a string and hang on the tree or in their stockings.

Steaming the Pudding.

Plum puddings are best when served piping hot. This means they should be steamed for at least 1½-2 hours before serving. If the pudding is in a mold cover with a lid or with heavy waxed paper. Place on a rack in a large kettle. Have about 2 inches of water in the bottom of the kettle, and have this water boiling all the while. More water may be added if necessary. A double boiler or a pressure cooker may also be used to good advantage for steaming.

To serve, unmold the pudding and garnish the platter with holly or other leaves and bright berries.

LYNN SAYS:

Few holidays can offer you the same decorative possibilities as Christmas season, so make the most of the evergreens, berries, cones, candles, ornaments, and rich colors.

Here are some centerpiece ideas which would be effective:

Use a green wreath on a mirror and fill with evergreen branches dipped or sprayed with white paint and place brightly colored ornaments or fruits among the branches.

Surround candles with pine branches and cones and have several small silver bells around the base of the centerpiece as though they came out of the branches.

Make a gingerbread house, frost with a thin powdered sugar icing and sprinkle with silver snow. Set this on a mirror or surround with spruce or pine branches and cones.

IF THAT TAX-DEDUCTION FROM PAY ENVELOPES IDEA GOES FURTHER

Boss—You say you might take a job with us?

Applicant—I think so What is the pay?

Boss—It's fifty minus

Applicant—Minus what?

Boss—Minus what the government doesn't take out of your envelope.

* * *

Applicant—I'd have to get more money than that.

Boss—More money than what?

Applicant — More than there wouldn't be left out of what I don't get.

* * *

Boss—Let's be practical. How much money do you want?

Applicant—Well, on my last job I got $55 if.

Boss—If what?

Applicant — If the government didn't get there first. And I know right now where I can go to work on a salary of sixty provided.

Boss—Provided?

Applicant—Yes, provided not too much is extracted.

* * *

Boss—Come, come, exactly how much do you want to go to work for me?

Applicant — I'll take fifty eight E.U.

Boss—What's E.U. stand for?

Applicant—Envelope untouched!

* * *

Boss—I can't do that. The best I can do is to put you on at a salary of fifty-seven S.F.A.W.K.

Applicant—S.F.A.W.K.?

Boss—Yeah. That stands for So-Far-As-We-Know.

Applicant—That means my salary is S.T.W.W.W. or Subject To Washington Weekly Whims. I can't run my house according to whims. I've got to know how much I am going to get each week.

Boss—You can solve that by buying groceries and paying rent on the Federal I.Y.H.A.L., or If-You-Have-Anything-Left plan.

* * *

Applicant—No. You see, what I want is to know how I stand at the end of each week.

Boss—I have the same dream, mister. There's nothing in it.

Applicant—But ain't a man entitled to know from week to week how he stands financially?

Boss—Don't talk like a reactionary! Listen, this is my last proposition. I'll give you fifty-seven dollars and a half S.T.R. & M.

Applicant—S.T.R. & M.?

Boss—Subject to Roosevelt and Morgenthau.

* * *

Applicant — No, thanks. But I know a feller who might work for you. He's a beginner. What do you pay a beginner?

Boss—We pay ten dollars minus to begin with. At the end of a year if he makes good we advance him to fifteen dollars minus.

Applicant—That leaves him owing both you and the government money.

Boss—Yes.

Applicant—I can see there's no future in working

Boss—Nonsense. One of our best men here started with us on one dollar a week and worked it up to a mere pittance.

Applicant—That's an exceptional case.

Boss—Not at all. Look at me. When I began here I worked for nothing Now my salary has grown to such proportions that everything I get goes to the government.

Applicant—In other words, you still get nothing

Boss—Yes, but if I work hard I can double it

(Curtain with a thud.)

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

HOW would you like to be introduced to a pretty girl and, two minutes, later have to throw a glass of water into her face? Barry Nelson knows how it feels to do exactly that. The girl was Laraine Day; Nelson, discovered by Metro on the University of California campus, had to throw the water because William Seitz, directing "China Caravan," liked the idea.

Nelson wants to play tough roles; according to Spencer Tracy, he's a "sterling actor," so he should be able to. The role in "China Caravan" is his fourth in pictures, but throwing that water was almost too much for him; he'd rather be tough some other way!

Ann Sheridan and Madeleine Carroll probably didn't know it, but for three weeks they ran neck and neck with Lana Turner in an election. The boys at Forts Hancock and Tilden were voting to choose "The Sweetheart of Harbor Defenses." Lana won the title.

—:—

If Joan Fontaine needed to make sure of her laurels as an actress, she's certainly accomplished it in "Susipicion," the new Alfred Hitchcock thriller Her performance is superb. RKO provided an excellent cast, which includes Cary Grant, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Dame May Whitty, Nigel Bruce and Heather Angel. You can see what an actress Miss Fontaine is, to stand out in such a cast.

—:—

Clyde Cook, who has a bit part in "Suspicion," directed Hitchcock in an English film in the days before the mystery director won his spurs. Incidentally, if you read that thriller, "Before the Fact," don't expect this picture version to resemble it too closely

—:—

"I guess the hair-dresser just doesn't like Joan Crawford," remarked a friend of mine after seeing "When Ladies Meet." "And maybe the costume designer felt the same way," she added. Certainly Greer Garson's hair was more becomingly done, and her clothes were prettier than Miss Crawford's. But hair-do's and clothes must be an old story to the Crawford girl, who could give a good performance if she had to wear a sugar sack and have her hair shaved tight to her head. Robert Taylor ought to make new friends in this one, too.

—:—

Rosalind Russell and her bridegroom drove to New Orleans after their marriage, went by boat to Cuba, flew to Jacksonville and took a train to New York. After a brief stay there she had to rush back to Hollywood for wardrobe tests for "Take a Letter, Darling," in which she plays a bachelor girl. Frances Farmer, who's been co-starring with Tyrone Power in "Son of Fury," is cast as her rival.

—:—

Richard Arlen wants to go to China to make a picture, when he finishes "Wildcat," which he's to start about the first of the year. Says it would take about three months to shoot exteriors there, then the troupe would come home to make the rest of it.

—:—

A miniature Big Town has been built by a New Orleans man who visualized the imaginary city after listening to Edward G. Robinson's CBS show, which has been on the air for four years; he wants to give it to Robinson, who hesitates—he'd need a special building to house it.

—:—

ODDS AND ENDS—Herbert Marshall became an actor because he couldn't add or subtract readily enough to hold a position as a clerk . . . Raymond Gram Swing's vacation begins Christmas Day . . . John Gunther will substitute for him during his three weeks' absence . . . Jerry Colonna, Allan Jones and a few buddies have the difficult task of concealing the fact that Judy Canova is a stowaway in their army camp in "True to the Army" . . . Columbia may finally screen its long-postponed "Life of Chopin," with Glenn Ford as the composer . . . The famous "Thin Man" is wearing thinner than ever, yet "Shadow of the Thin Man" is amusing.

PATTERNS

SEWING CIRCLE

HERE'S good news for belles-on-a-budget who yearn for the smooth smartness of a two-piece frock! Pattern No. 1485-B offers a streamline version—sleek, simple to make with a three button cardigan neck topper, a skirt with a front pleat and a dickey collar which gives a trim touch of white in a flattering line next to the face.

We easily can see the advantages of a suit of this type. The jacket emphasizing width at the shoulders and fitting smoothly over the hips helps the average figure achieve youthful slenderness—the skirt is comfortable to wear for walking, standing and sitting, the dickey provides a note of freshness for this costume so that it is always attractive to wear Make it now for yourself in gabardine, twills, plaids, novelty rayons or serge.

Kenneth Le Roy Kluckhohn, son of Frank Kluckhohn of Klemme, has enlisted in the naval reserve as machinist's mate.

Kenneth left Monday from Mason City with 28 other North Iowa young men on a special train for Des Moines, from which they will be sent to a naval training station, probably Great Lakes, for their seamanship training.

LOTS OF SNOW IN NORTH IOWA CHRISTMAS NIGHT

Christmas got off to a poor start as far as snow was concern- but wound up with North Iowa under a nine inch blanket of snow by Christmas night.

Snow started falling in North Iowa late Christmas afternoon.

The snow was preceded by rain and sleet which made driving hazardous, but few accidents were reported as autoists drove carefully

Winter is really here and along with the snow we also have had below zero temperatures.

Iowa produces more corn than any other state or foreign nation..

KLEMME MAN FILES DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST LAKE MILLS MAN FOR $262.68

Carold Larson of Klemme has filed a suit in Hancock County District Court against the Lanesboro Produce Co and Melvin Ludwig of Lake Mills for damages in the amount of $262 68. which he claims to have suffered when the car he was driving collided with the defendant's truck on highway 69 near the Butz service station just west of Garner The accident occurred on the evening of Oct 1

The plaintiff alleges in his petition that the defendant pulled into the station directly in front of the plaintiff's oncoming car, making the accident unavoidable on the part of the plaintiff

Larson's car was badly damaged in the accident.

TRACKING DOWN CASES OF TUBERCULOSIS

Calls upon physcians and patients in the Hancock County program for the discovery of unknown cases of tuberculosis are being made at the present time by Miss Flossie M. McBride public health nurse

The present survey is a continuation of the work done a year ago If annual check-up of suspected cases is made fewer cases would reach far advanced stages before visiting their physcian

According to Miss McBride the work is being concentrated upon persons who have had known, intimate contact with a case of tuberculosis, as shown by tuberculosis cases and deaths reported to the State Department of Health

The Hancock County Medical Society and the Hancock County Christmas Seal Committee are cooperating with the State Department of Health in conducting this program

LICENSE PLATES

Iowa residents have been "turning to with a will" in turning in old license plates when they secured new ones. H. W. Waddingham of Meservey turned in eighty plates, dating back to 1919, and others of older age containing no dates. W. J Rickena of Wellsburg took to his county treasurer a license plate issued in 1911. Heiko J Miller of Grundy Center also produced a 1911 license purchased for his $1100 Overland.

SURVEY SHOWS FARMERS ARE SET TO INCREASE PRODUCTION IN 1942

99 Per Cent Of Farmers Answered Defense Board Questionaire

The Farm Defense Canvas was conducted through the AAA Committeemen and the Defense Board of Hancock County and showed that over 99 per cent of the farmers cooperated and gave the information that was requested, and the tabulation of this survey shows that Hancock County farmers intend to produce in 1942 about 11 per cent more milk, 10 per cent more eggs, 15 per cent more hogs, 7 per cent more beef cattle and calves, and an increase of about 66 per cent on soy beans for grain

This report is very important at this time as it gives the people of the U. S A. assurance that farmers are going to produce the things needed in our "Food For Freedom" program as food is of paramount importance if we are to win the war

The USDA Defense Board and the Department of Agriculture will serve as the food administration for World War II and through the experience of the Farm Program during the last eight years Agriculture has been able to meet every emergency through the medium of the National Farm Program and this will be no exception.

SACKS WANTED

The Humboldt and Dakota City Chamber of Commerce looked high and low before they found enough sacks to use for their gifts of candy, oranges and peanut for the Christmas treats for the kiddies Members even thought of asking youngsters to furnish their own containers, but thought better of that when they remembered what might be brought, such as washtub etc

LIBERTY AND KLEMME MEN PLAN MEETING JAN. 6

The men of the Klemme and Liberty Methodist churche will meet in Klemme on January 6th for a Supper Program beginning at 7 00 p m sharp. The sponsors hope to have one hundred men present at the meeting to talk over plans for a Brotherhood

A program of unusual talent has been arranged The Booster Male Quartet from Clarion will give us a mixed program of popular, spirituals and sacred songs The quartet has appeared on several radio programs and has been in great demand by Brotherhoods and other organizations. They satisfy the audience with the best in song.

The WSCS will serve the supper The two lay leaders and the charge lay leader, namely, Herman Gast, Tom C Nelson and Emil Beier are the committee on arrangements.

Strong Defense of Far-Flung Outposts Is Important in U. S. Military Strategy

WASHINGTON.—In the first onslaught of the war, our outposts nearest to Japan were the first to be attacked. But the declaration of war on the United States by Germany and Italy automatically increased the possibilities of war in the Atlantic as well as in the Pacific. That war might take the form of attacks on the Panama canal or the West Indies. Or, the war in the Pacific might be extended to Alaska, which lies only a few hundred miles from Asia. Control of Alaska would make it possible for Japan to seriously menace our shipments of supplies to Russia and China. And it would give Japan a stronghold on the continent.

This is a war of strategy, a war in which it is of the utmost importance to keep the enemy from coming within striking distance. It is also a war of surprises. A strong fortification can often be captured or destroyed if taken sufficiently by surprise. The French built the Maginot line to protect themselves from German attack by land. But the Germans came by air instead.

Position, then, is important. But strength is essential to maintain it. Although not entirely unprotected, our outposts are nevertheless highly vulnerable. Puerto Rico has a well-equipped air base at Borinquen Field, but is short of heavy artillery and long range guns. Puerto Rico's function at the moment is that of a lookout post, and as such it serves as an advance guard for the Panama canal.

Shipping Restricted.

Shipping in the Canal has been limited to the daylight hours, and air service from Balboa to Cristobal has been suspended, as the air route between those two points lies directly over the Canal. Whether the Axis will strike next in the Caribbean remains only a guess on the part of the prophets. It is not impossible. President Camacho of Mexico, while not asking for a declaration of war, has pledged his support and has warned his people that Mexico is in grave peril.

Our bases in South America help to guard the Canal and also to prevent attack from the south and east. Now that Germany and Italy have joined Japan in declaring war on the United States, the threat from Africa should be taken into consideration. The Vichy government has already conceded the Nazis additional land in Africa, and Dakar is only 1,620 miles from Natal, the nearest point in South America, which lies just to the south and east of Paramaribo, the capital and seaport of Dutch Guiana. Africa may seem a long way off, but it is well to remember that only a short time ago a clipper left this country on its first scheduled flight to Africa. If we can fly one way there is nothing but our own vigilance to keep our enemies from flying the other.

Alaska Important.

To many, Alaska also seems so remote as to be hardly worthy of any deep concern. But here again, strategy is involved. Located almost due north of the Hawaiian islands and scarcely more than a good sleeper jump by plane, about 800 miles, from the nearest point in Asia, Alaska can be completely isolated from the United States.

The war might suspend shipping to Alaska, and Alaskans maintain that if that happens, they are "through." It is, then, important for us to keep open the shipping lanes to Alaska. There is, of course, the skyway across Canada from Edmonton to White Horse. But the ease with which bombers can be sent to Alaska by that route should make it clear that planes, not our own, can fly from Alaska to the United States equally successfully, thus exposing the central part of the continent to attack.

Alaska's strategic position lends more importance than would normally be given to the recent reports of fires along the coast, particularly at Sitka. What happens along the coast in Alaska is also important to the safety of her population, some 90 per cent of which is concentrated along the coast. It is no secret that the U. S. government has been fortifying the mainland of Alaska, as well as the Aleutian islands off the coast. But what these fortifications amount to is still a matter of conjecture, as their construction has been kept a reasonably well-guarded secret.

On the Saturday night before the Sunday on which the attacks on Hawaii and the Philippines began, a drill barge burned at Sitka. That, in itself, would not be significant. Fire is a common hazard where construction is under way and especially where dynamite is used. And the significance of the Sitka fires may be exaggerated by rumor. But it is at least interesting to keep in mind that this particular fire was only one of several in recent months. In one case, dynamite sticks were stored in one shed. As a precautionary measure, the detonating caps which set them off were stored in another, and both sheds were carefully watched. Both sheds burned.

Pearl Harbor Bombing.

The Hawaiian islands were believed to be virtually impregnable, but Japan succeeded in bombing Pearl Harbor. In a war of strategy you must be everywhere at once. In that fact lies the importance of our outposts and military bases. It is important for us to have a foothold in Bermuda, Dutch Guiana, the Panama canal Zone or Alaska, but it is equally important for us to keep someone else from gaining a foothold there.

In the case of Bermuda, Dutch Guiana and other places where our bases supplement those of the British, we are helping our allies as well as ourselves by being there. And we need our allies to win this war. How well we know that was demonstrated by the fact that, in spite of protest, congress passed the lend-lease act and revised the neutrality act. The capture of Manila, for instance, would endanger Singapore. The capture of Singapore would cripple the British fleet in the Pacific and deprive us of its assistance.

'Incidents' Leading To Japanese War Have Long History

Back of the present war between the United States and Japan lies a series of "incidents" based on the modern technique of "undeclared war." The first of the series was the Mukden incident of 1931, and the others are like it in that they all represent aggression under the guise of self-defense.

July 7, 1937—Beginning of the present Sino-Japanese war with an incident outside Peking.

July 16, 1937—Secretary of State Cordell Hull announced the 14 points which have since been the basis of our negotiations with Japan.

December 12, 1937 — Japanese planes sank the U.S.S. Panay in the Yangtze river. Two lives were lost.

December 30, 1938—The United States protest to Japan warned against interference with American rights in China and opened the way for a conference to help settle Asiatic issues.

September 27, 1940—Japan joined the Axis.

July 25, 1941—The United States froze Japanese assets here.

July 28, 1941—Japanese troops began the occupation of French Indo-China.

August 28, 1941 — Negotiations were resumed after President Roosevelt received a peace appeal from Premier Konoye of Japan.

November 15, 1941—Saburo Kurusu arrived from Japan as a special envoy to aid Ambassador Nomura in conference at Washington.

November 25, 1941—The United States received reports of Japanese troop concentrations in Indo-China, with indications that Thailand might be attacked.

December 2, 1941—The state department, at the request of President Roosevelt, made formal inquiries of Japan regarding her intentions and purposes in concentrating troops in Indo-China.

December 7, 1941 — Japanese planes bombed the American naval base at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu.

December 8, 1941 — Congress passed a joint resolution declaring the United States at war with Japan.

Japan's Oil Supply Is Vulnerable Item

Among other serious considerations Japan had to deal with in beginning its war with the United States was the fact that conflict meant the definite and continued cutting off of two-thirds of the nation's oil supply. For that is the amount of oil that the United States had been supplying to Japan up until shortly before the start of the war.

Another fourth of Japan's supply of this highly important commodity came from the Dutch East Indies.

Only a tenth of Japan's normal requirements of oil comes from its own fields and from wells in Manchukuo and Sakhalin.

For many years, of course, Japan busied herself building up large reserves of crude and fuel oil for war use. Though the total amount stored is a military secret, it is known to be large. Especially large is the supply of crude and fuel oil for the navy. Gasoline is not as plentiful.

U. S. Acts to Save Rubber, Tin Supply

A report from the Office for Emergency Management indicates that the United States has taken the necessary steps to build up a reserve supply of tin, rubber, manganese, chromite and tungsten to combat the possible shortage threatened by the cessation of supplies from the Orient. The first of these steps was the suspension of production of automobile tires and other accessories not considered essential

DIET OF LEGUME IS VITAL FACTOR

Can Detect Distress Signs When Food Is Lacking.

By E. E. DE TURK
(Professor of Soil Fertility, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.)

Legumes, like other crops, fly unmistakable distress signals when their diet lacks important plant food elements, observations made in the past cropping season indicate. Yet they frequently show these nutritional deficiencies by slow growth, rather than by any specific abnormalities of form or color. They are likely to produce undersized plants which are normal in appearance otherwise.

Ordinarily the early symptoms of plant food hunger take the form of changes in color. The most common color symptom results from chlorosis—or loss of the green color. This may be followed by the death of the affected area. The chlorosis may consist of paling of the ordinary green color, or the appearance of various shades of yellow or even white dots and patches.

In general the lack of one or more of the three major plant food elements—nitrogen, phosphorus and potash—will result in ill health for the crop.

Nitrogen deficiency results in slow growth of the legumes, a decrease in the branching of the plants and smaller plants at maturity. These may occur without the appearance of specific symptoms and have little value to the farmer or agronomist attempting a diagnosis. Severe nitrogen deficiency often causes mild chlorosis in which the leaves gradually become pale green with a yellowish tinge rather than distinctly yellow. The chlorosis usually spreads evenly over the entire leaf surface.

A lack of phosphorus manifests itself in slow growth. The legume plants remain small and undeveloped. Flowering and seed production tend to be delayed and a bluish-green tinge may develop in the leaves. But there are no specific symptoms that can be used with assurance for purposes of detecting phosphorus deficiency.

Of all the symptoms observable in legumes, those of potash hunger are probably the most outstanding and easily recognized.

Broad-leaved legumes such as the soybean show evidence of insufficient potash by irregular yellow mottling around the edges of the leaflets. The discolored areas soon merge, forming a continuous yellow border around the tip and along the sides, but rarely around the base. Death of the chlorotic area that first became mottled follows promptly along with a downward cupping of the leaf edges. Then the dead tissue falls out, giving the leaflet a ragged appearance.

Dairy Production

The "all-out" dairy production program for defense needs and higher returns to the dairymen should be tempered with careful feeding and management practices, believes C. S. Rhode, extension dairy specialist of the University of Illinois college of agriculture. Overfeeding on high protein rations, short dry periods and failure to supply adequate amounts of minerals are some of the things to be avoided. Balancing the grain mixture to fit the kind and quality of available roughage, the use of bone meal in the ration when needed and a dry period of a month to six weeks are some of the points that should receive attention.

Good Care of Soil Aids Defense Plans

Contour farming, strip cropping and terracing can help in increasing yields to meet the needs of the national food for defense program, says Lindley G. Cook, extension soil conservationist at Rutgers university. This is the time to make plans for 1942, he reminds farmers.

"American farmers will be asked to produce greater quantities of food than ever before in the history of the country," Cook reports. "Farmers are fast finding out, by means of research and experience on their own farms, that conservation practices play a definite part in increasing yields.

"This is the time to begin planning the farm program for next season in such a way that record production can be obtained without the wasteful practices of the last war."

'Lines' Bending

Swinging round the circle to see where soil conservation is working and where farmers are still losing too much of the soil that they might be saving, Dr. H. H. Bennett of the U. S. department of agriculture found that out in "the region of straight line plowing," the contour method is making progress. More than half the corn in the typical Corn Belt county of Montgomery, in Iowa, was planted on contour this year. None was continued in 1937

New Ways With Nuts

As all housekeepers know, nuts show a decided tendency to become rancid, and this rancidity may develop not only in shelled nuts, but even in those still protected by their shells, if they have been kept for some time.

In order to prevent such spoilage, and also in order to have the nuts always ready for use at a moment's notice, it is quite practicable to sterilize them and store in vacuum-packed containers.

For such a process, select fresh, firm nut kernels, newly shelled, and free from any bits of shell. Sterilize pint or half pint jars, and allow them to dry. Then fill the jars with the shelled nuts, and partly seal them. Place the jars in a hot-water bath deep enough to come up about two inches on the jars and boil for a half hour. Then complete the sealing of the jars, cool them, and store in a cool, dark place.

MAKING NUT BUTTERS

The ingredients for making a half-pound of such butter are: 1 tablespoon of bland table oil, one-half teaspoon of salt, and 2 cups of blanched and roasted nuts. Grind the nuts in the food-chopper, using the finest grinding plate; repeat at least once, and, if necessary, twice, tightening the grinder each time until it is hard to turn. Add the oil and salt, mix thoroughly and pack in cans with lids that can be closed tightly.

Note: The nuts may be blanched and roasted for this purpose as follows: For the almonds, pour boiling water over them and simmer at boiling temperature for about three minutes. Pour off the water and the skins will slip off readily. Peanuts require no blanching. To roast the nuts, for a half pound of nuts, shelled and blanched, put a quart of fresh cooking oil into a kettle suited to deep-fat frying. Heat the fat to 300 degrees F., or until a cube of bread dropped into it will brown in about five or six minutes. Put the nut kernels into a sieve that is deep enough so they can not float out over its top and lower them into the hot fat. Leave them there until they are a light brown, which will require six or seven minutes. Remove and pat gently with absorbent paper until they are freed from fat.

NUT LOAVES

In making a nut loaf remember to have, among the vegetables commonly used in the mixture, either celery, green peppers, or carrots, in order to secure a crisp texture. For croquettes, it is necessary to have a soft mixture. To secure such consistency, use mashed potatoes, bean pulp or a cooked cereal.

Almost everyone knows that chestnuts may be used to advantage in dressings for fowls, but many cooks do not know that various other nuts may be so used. A very good stuffing for fowl, or for pork chops, is made as follows:

In 2 tablespoons of melted butter or other fat, cook, for a few minutes, 2 tablespoons of finely chopped onion, 1 tablespoon of chopped green pepper and 1 cup of cut celery. Add 2 cups of cooked brown rice or wild rice, ¼ teaspoon of salt and ⅛ teaspoon of pepper. Stir the whole until it is well mixed and hot, then add a half cup of chopped hazelnuts and the stuffing is ready to use. This quantity is sufficient for a half dozen pork chops.

Concerning the food value of nuts, it should be noted that, whereas many people suppose them to be rich enough in protein to serve as a meat substitute, this notion is erroneous. The chief food value of nuts lies in their fat content which ranges from 35 per cent for cocoanuts to 70 per cent for pecans. Peanuts and cashews average about 40 per cent fat and English walnuts, hickory nuts and filberts about 60 per cent. The protein content of nuts is much less, ranging from 5 to 25 per cent; carbohydrate value is less than 25 per cent except in the chestnut which is very starchy.

But nuts have other food values, not so well known. Most of them are rich in phosphorus; the almond, pecan, hickory nut, walnut and hazelnut are good sources of iron; the pecan is a good source of vitamin A, said to be so valuable for those afflicted with night blindness; peanuts, pecans, chestnuts, almonds, English walnuts, filberts and Brazil nuts all yield a considerable quantity of vitamin B.

For further information and many recipes for the use of nuts, send five cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Miscellaneous Publications No. 302 of the Department of Agriculture.

MAKING SAUERKRAUT

Use four-gallon to six-gallon stone jars. Select sound cabbages and, after removing outer leaves quarter the heads, slice off the core, and shred. One pound of salt for each 40 pounds of cabbage makes the proper strength of brine. Pack the cabbage and salt, well-mixed, in the jars, cover with a clean cloth and a plate, weighting the plate so that the brine will come up over the cabbage. At 86 degrees Fahrenheit, fermentation should be completed in 10 days.

JAPANESE SPIES

Last summer Congressman Mart Dies had investigators make a th ough survey of Japanese activiti along the West coast. The resu eventually were suppressed by t state department and the Preside himself, but a brief summary them indicates that some parts the United States face a dangero problem when it comes to fifth c umn activity.

Hitler had many agents plant through Norway, France and t Low Countries when he attacke but the Japanese, according to t Dies report, start out with 150,0 of their countrymen in the Unite States. These are all Japanese cit zens, and do not include 50,000 se ond generation Japanese born in t United States. The Dies repor shows that 200 key Japanese ha been decorated by the emperor du ing the past two years and th many Japanese are in close co-o eration with the homeland throu the Central Japanese associati which has been directed by cons lates in California.

Dies agents have collected pho graphs of various Japanese tru gardens operated alongside oil tan and strategic railroads. Story From a Diplomat; —One Day Before a War

Correspondent Presents His 'Washington Diary' Telling of Last Interview With 'Peace' Envoy Before War's Beginning.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

Here in Washington where we feel the repercussions of the war more deeply than anywhere in the country except coast cities where enemy planes threaten, and even the thoughts we had last week seem very far away.

To me an even greater gulf seems to exist between Friday and Saturday, between peacetime and wartime. On Saturday, December 5, I sat in the drawing room of the Japanese embassy talking with the embassy's first secretary. His card which he gave me as I left it on the desk as I write. "Hidenari Terasaki, first secretary of the Japanese embassy, Washington," the engraved script reads.

With us was Saburo Kurusu, the man who was supposed to be planning a peaceful settlement of Japanese-American relations at the very moment when Japanese bombers and battleships were already on their way to Pearl Harbor. I did not know it then, but I was the last American reporter — perhaps the only one—to interview him.

Washington Diary

The next afternoon just as I was starting out to take a walk in Rock Creek park, the news of the astounding attack on Hawaii reached me. From then on radio and news reporters have been pretty busy. But I took time out to jot down the events of Saturday that were a tragically stupid prelude to war. I am now offering this record (in part) as a sort of "Washington Diary":—

Saturday, December 6: Spent the whole day preparing for a special Far Eastern broadcast, a pick-up of Far Eastern capitals, London and Washington. Went first to call on "X" whom I knew would be informed as well as anyone on the negotiations. We sat in his beautiful library. The ancient books, the mellow leathered chairs all gave the place an atmosphere of dignity and solidarity that seemed far away from the little Saturday afternoon world. Mr. "X" suggested two phrases of which I made mental note. First: "Kurusu is still here." The second: "The center of gravity has shifted from the state department to the navy department." Since Kurusu was still here it was explained, the situation had not changed. But the next move was decidedly Japan's; the state department had probably said its last word. Mr. "X" was of the opinion that it was still possible that some face-saving method would be worked out to permit the military element to accede to our demands and thus "keep Japan from committing suicide." His impression was that nothing would happen before Tuesday when he thought Kurusu would hand Secretary Hull Japan's answer to the state department's note.

Next Stop—The Embassy

As I was leaving, a memorandum was handed in saying that Kurusu would receive me at the Japanese embassy immediately. I had been trying very hard to get that appointment and after two days' negotiating, my assistant had finally succeeded.

I was first shown through the busy chancery of the Japanese embassy to the office of First Secretary Terasaki, a smiling little brown man with eyes that came as near to slanting as any oriental's do. He warned me that I could not quote Mr. Kurusu nor was I to mention my visit at all for a week or so as others would demand interviews.

Terasaki said he would give me some background.

When we were settled he told me a sort of parable. He said:

"Suppose a man has been fighting for four days and four nights in the street. Another man who has been sitting in his comfortable chair every evening wants to do something. Should man in arm chair come to fighting man and talk about principles, about Confucius and Aristotle?"

He paused a moment and stared at me steadily with brown eyes that looked as solid as bullets.

"No, I think," he went on, "man in armchair should approach man who is fighting with tact and sympathy."

He paused again to see how I was taking it. I dropped my eyes to the notes I was making and he seemed satisfied. He concluded: "Japan has been fighting four years. Must talk facts, must be realistic and talk principles afterward."

Chinese Duplicity Argument

There was more of the often-heard argument about Chinese duplicity.

"If United States wants war, it can have war. If it wants peace, can have peace. And Japan can be much more than a friend to America. You can beat us in the end but it will be no push-over."

He was friendliness itself Having spoken his piece he made a telephone call and led me from the chancery into the embassy which it adjoins.

I was impressed as I was the first time I walked down the long reception hall, with the delicate beauty of the setting. The priceless paintings on the walls with their weird and elusive charm of oriental art, the graceful furniture, the gentle blending of tints in wall decorations and wainscoting.

"This room is too large for conversation," said Mr Terasaki, indicating the main reception room. So he took me to a smaller one and we sat down for a moment. Almost immediately "Good-will" Ambassador Kurusu appeared, a little man dressed in an expensive tweed suit. He had a small, close-cropped mustache and wore spectacles. His face was long and under a hurried glance he might pass as an American.

Terasaki bowed low from the hips, but Kurusu took my hand informally when I was presented.

Terasaki opened the conversation by saying that I had said as long as Kurusu was still here no news was good news. Kurusu either misunderstood Terasaki or chose to ignore his remark. We sat down and Kurusu repeated in less formal phraseology the general argument which Terasaki had offered.

Kurusu Presents Japan's Case

The two nations could agree on principles with lengthy and leisurely discussion—but now an emergency existed. Japan was in a position where she was forced to take certain steps for her survival. The United States would have to agree to the discussion of realistic issues first and leave the principles to later discussion.

Unless that happened no progress could be made.

"Of course we are hopeful," he said, rather hopelessly, I thought. On the whole his attitude seemed to confirm what Mr. "X" had said, that Japanese-American relations were in status quo—that Japan was playing for time.

When I left I made a remark to the effect that I was glad to see Ambassador Kurusu had provided himself with a heavy suit, that evidently he was prepared to stay all winter. At that remark he saw fit to laugh heartily.

As I went out through the chancery, escorted by one of the idol-faced clerks, I asked if they were always as busy as that on a Saturday afternoon.

"Oh, no," he answered, "only these days."

That concludes my "diary" for December 6.

As I read it over in the light of what happened within less than 24 hours after I rode away from the Japanese embassy in a cab which had just brought one of the staff to the door with luggage and golf bags, some of the words spoken there took on a new meaning.

I had a close-up of one phase of what is probably the world's greatest achievement in diplomatic duplicity. Mr. Kurusu, I believe, has not been available for interviews since.

In Jones county, Mississippi, 60 farmers needed workstock They pitched in together, bought 60 mules in one lot at a nice price. To save a little more money the farmers, all of them borrowers from the department of agriculture, went one step farther, put in a co-operative order for plow gear. Their county purchasing association, sponsored by the Farm Security administration, bought 60 complete sets of harness from a local dealer, assembled them at the mule barn. Savings on this deal ran into $125. The mule dealer fitted the gear on the animals at no extra cost, assured perfect harness fittings.

The Greatest Scout

SPEAK of a "great scout, guide and Indian fighter" and the average American will think immediately of "Buffalo Bill" Cody. But old timers will tell you that there were probably a dozen men on the Western frontier who were Cody's equals, or even his superiors, in any of those three roles. If you press them to name "the greatest of them all," the chances are they'll reply "Frank Grouard."

FRANK GROUARD

When Gen. George Crook started on his expedition against the hostile Sioux and Cheyennes in the spring of 1876, Grouard went along as a scout and made himself so valuable to Crook that this famous Indian fighter once said, "I would sooner lose a third of my command than to lose Frank Grouard."

In the early '90s he was living in Sheridan, Wyo., and there a young fellow from Wisconsin, who had gone west to practice dentistry, met Grouard and a number of other famous frontier characters. This "tenderfoot" was Dr. Will Frackelton, and his recently published book, "Sagebrush Dentist," (A. C. McClurg and Company, Chicago), written in collaboration with Herman Gastrell Seely, a Chicago newspaper man, is a notable addition to the literature of the Old West In it, "Doc" Frackelton tells several hitherto-unpublished stories about this great scout.

Dr. Frackelton

One of these is particularly interesting because the incident involves both Grouard and "Buffalo Bill."

"Frank Grouard was as taciturn as Cody was loquacious Grouard was modest, Cody liked the limelight, and there was no love lost between them I suspect that Grouard resented the publicity given Buffalo Bill's exploits, many of which were of doubtful authenticity, and the deference paid him by some of the army officers," writes Frackelton.

"They met one night in the Sheridan inn barroom and it was Cody who came off second best. Buffalo Bill was wearing his show clothes—beaded buckskin coat and jacket and enormous hat—and was swaggeringly convivial. It required little urging to have him tell his favorite story of the killing of the Cheyenne chief, Yellow Hand. He jumped on a stool, head thrown back and long hair falling about his shoulders, while we gathered around.

"Grouard walked in with quiet, catlike tread and asked for some cigars. Cody paused in the middle of his story.

" 'Go on, go on,' we shouted.

" 'No,' said Cody a little thickly. 'Here is my old friend, Frank Grouard. I'll now buy the drinks.'

"Grouard was not a drinking man. Buffalo Bill grew more insistent. 'Come on. Everybody belly up to the bar and drink with me.'

"Grouard shook his head. Infuriated, Cody blustered· 'Hey, you, belly up there! Can't you hear?'

"Grouard stepped forward and the men faced each other. Cody, in his show clothes, weighed about 195 pounds and Grouard, in his inconspicuous civilians, about 220. They were of equal height but Grouard's tremendous breadth of shoulder made him seem the shorter.

"Grouard's eyes sent cold chills down my spine. Quietly, and in that deep, determined voice of his he said: 'You are nothing but a picture book scout and a picture book showman. That's all you ever were and that's all you ever will be.'

"Then Grouard's voice dropped into a line of personal profanity, very emphatic but too low for us to hear. Cody straightened up, and for a moment it looked like a fight. Grouard eyed him, then walked over got his cigars and left the hotel."

While living in Sheridan Grouard met Joe de Barthe, correspondent of the New York Sun, who urged him to tell the story of his life. "What good'll that do?" asked Grouard, "People won't believe it." But de Barthe was insistent and the scout finally consented to dictate it to the newspaper man. The result was the volume "Life and Adventures of Frank Grouard," first published in St. Joseph, Mo., in 1894. It is now one of the rarities of Western Americana and a first edition of it—if you can find one—sells for anywhere from $35 to $50 a copy!

THE SYNOPTIC GOSPELS: MATTHEW, MARK, LUKE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 1:1, 17; Mark 1.1, 14, 15; Luke 1:1-4; Acts 1:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—I Timothy 1:15.

A new year of God-given opportunity with the assurance of His grace and strength for our daily need. Such is the precious gift we hold in our hands as we enter on A D. 1942

With the new year, we enter upon a new course of study—carefully planned ahead through 1947, if the Lord tarries We begin very appropriately with a study of the life of Christ as presented in the first three Gospels, known as the Synoptic Gospels.

"Synoptic" is a combination of two words, meaning "a view together," and refers to the fact that Matthew, Mark, and Luke give us the same general view of Christ, although differing somewhat in their emphasis.

Matthew, writing his Gospel especially to the Jews, presents Christ as King. Mark, for the Romans, presents the Servant. Luke presents to the Greeks the Son of Man—the perfect Man, and John, for the Christian church, reveals the Son of God. But note that all the Gospels are for us, and in them we find the fourfold picture which presents the many-sided glory and beauty of our Lord. Turning to our scriptures we see—

I. The King (Matt. 1:1, 17).

These verses come at the beginning and end of the kingly genealogy of Jesus. It is important that the descent of a king be carefully recorded and studied, for it alone can prove his right to the throne. We know that Israel rejected Jesus as King, but we also know what prophecy reveals that He will one day take the throne of David and reign. Does He have that right?

In Matthew 1:1-17, we have His national and royal descent. Being son of both David and Abraham, He is heir to both the promise and the throne. As King of Israel, there was no need to trace His lineage back further than Abraham through David, but we find that in Luke (2; 23-28) the Son of Man is traced back to Adam. Mark has no genealogy for reasons noted below, and John also has none, for the Son of God is eternal, infinite, without need of genealogy.

Turning now to Mark, we find Him presented as

II. The Servant (Mark 1:1, 14, 15).

A servant needs no genealogy, he needs only to be able and ready to work, and that is just what we find in Mark. The account plunges at once into the story of "the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God," who is ready to serve—by life or by death—yes, even by the death of the cross.

The forerunner, John the Baptist, bears his witness. Jesus is baptized. John is imprisoned, and immediately Jesus begins to preach, "Repent ye, and believe the gospel." The key verse of Mark is 10·45: "For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister" The characteristic words are "straightway," "forthwith," and "immediately." The Greek word thus translated appears about 40 times in the book. The Servant of God went quickly about the Father's business. Christians, can we say the same for ourselves?

III. The Son of Man (Luke 1:1-4).

Luke undertakes to write, under the control of the Holy Spirit, a careful account of the saving work of Christ, but he makes it doubly clear that he writes from firsthand knowledge. "Eyewitnesses" means those who made a personal investigation, hence, those who knew Christ as the Son of Man, the One who became flesh and dwelt among us. "Ministers" means literally those who served under Jesus, His personal assistants; again emphasizing His personal ministry as "the Son of man who is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (as Luke 19:10, the key verse of this Gospel, expresses it).

IV. The Risen and Ascended Lord (Acts 1:1-5).

Christ who was crucified arose a Victor over death and the grave, and ascended to the Father, where He now appears as our Advocate. That does not mean that His work on earth terminated, for we have in Acts what Dr. Morgan fittingly calls "the book of the continued doing and teaching of the living Christ by the Holy Spirit through His body, which is the church."

The Gospels (Acts 1:1) told only that "Jesus began to do and to teach." Acts continues, but does not complete the story. Christ is working today in and through surrendered believers. Will He have liberty to work through you and through me this year of 1942? If so, it is sure to be a happy—yes, a blessed—New Year.

The Questions

1. How many times was William Jennings Bryan defeated for the presidency of the United States?
2. Members of the Caterpillar club are what?
3. What is the weight of a baseball?
4. The word Bible is derived from Greek and Latin words meaning what?
5. How many rooms are there in the White House?
6. What is the meaning of riposte?

The Answers

1. Three times.
2. Aviators who saved their lives by parachute leaps.
3. A standard baseball weighs five ounces.
4. Books (Biblia, after the Phoenician city Byblos, whence papyrus was exported).
5. About 50 rooms, counting kitchens, valet bedrooms and corridors used as sitting rooms.
6. A quick, sharp retort.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Be sure to arrange the dishes cooking in your oven so that there is plenty of space between them and the food will brown evenly.

* * *

Picture frames should be selected to harmonize with the pictures for which they are intended.

* * *

If you like a faint flavor of onion rub a slice of onion around your salad bowl or serving dish. The resulting flavor is light, but satisfactory. Garlic, used in the same manner, requires much more careful handling, since fewer people enjoy a garlic taste.

* * *

A termite shield must be made of some material that ants cannot work through. Metal is the best one, because ant-tight joints can be made in metals.

* * *

Celery leaves, sprigs of parsley and slices of onion may be used effectively and economically to season soups. Add the seasoning to the soup while it is cooking and strain it before it is served.

* * *

An ordinary blackboard eraser is an excellent polisher for window panes.

* * *

Lipstick stains on linens and cotton can nearly always be removed by the use of warm water and mild soapsuds.

* * *

Cigarette ashes, put on potted plants, will kill the insects that often infest them.

* * *

In mixing flour and water for gravies, use a fork or egg beater to make it smooth and free from lumps.

* * *

A teaspoon of salt added to the water in which eggs are boiled makes them easier to remove from the shells.

Congressional Elections

According to the Constitution of the United States, the President has no power to control, directly or indirectly, the holding of congressional elections. Neither does he have the right to prorogue congress or to suspend the Constitution of the United States or any part of it.

The election of members of the house of representatives is mandatory every two years, and "each state by the legislature thereof" prescribes "the times, places, and both senators and representatives."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

HIGH PRICES

Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay.

Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what, you are getting more for your money—more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.

LW YEAR RESOLUTIONS FCR 1942

Th Sribe never could see very u h sense in making New Year .e o u' ons as 101 per cent of them a:e usually broken before the little New Year Cherub has had h s pants changed the first time.

But we do not like to throw co d water cn an old custom so we will jot down a few Resolutions that will be made around town.

The Editor for the 27th time is again swearing off on smoking. We also resolve to go to church every Sunday and never to again go fishing and hunting on Sunday - unless we have a good alibi, and we will think up some come next Summer.

We also resolve not to play any pool in Klemme except on round pool tables.

Thore will be plenty of Resolutions to break in one year.

John Day, Uncle Sam's Jim Farley of Klemme had a swell Resolution all written up before Santa Claus came around John had resolved to quit smoking. But after he counted up the one hundred and ten cigars he got for Christmas, well, the deal was off!

Herman Paul has resolved to join the Republican Party. Oh, Yeah! To this list we can add the names of Bill Keraus, John N. Day and . . . well the rest of the Democrats have climbed back over the fence again.

Ernie Henschen, Dwight Hummel George and Oofie Lau, Fred Henschen Kermie Koerner, Alvin Koerner Vilo Patet, Roland Runge, Bernard Smid and Tiny Kluckhohn have all resolved that they will again renew their memberships and pay up past dues in the Bachelor's Club for another year These men don't want any wimmen hanging onto them if and when they go to the army They'd rather fight the Japs than females would these confirmed Klemme men of the single blessedness realm Their motto is We'll mend our own socks and will wear the pants."

The Russian Bear has resolved to keep on chasing the Hitler Hound Dawg and keep on snapping and bite him, in the ned

Uncle Sam has resolved to send the navy out with a lot of Flit to knock out those yellow hornets who are stinging our Eastern neighbors.

To the Japanese Navy we sincerely offer this toast for the New Year "Bottoms Up!"

KLEMME COMES THROUGH ONCE AGAIN

Klemme and community has again demonstrated that they can "come through" when an emergency arises for help.

When the local Red Cross books were closed Saturday afternoon Klemme and community had subscribed a total of $308.75 for War Relief That sum was raised entirely voluntarily and without any one soliciting for funds. The drive was to be voluntary and it was conducted that way here People contributed without being asked.

Mrs Sumner Trumbell, Klemme Red Cross Chairman, and Mr. C G Waterman, chairman of the Relief Drive had set a goal of $350 for Klemme. Contributions are still coming in and they hope that goal will be reached.

This immediate community now has approximately 35 young men in the armed forces of the United States. The goal was set at $10 for each man in service.

Remember Pearl Harbor!

SAVE YOUR OLD MAGAZINES, NEWSPAPERS, BOXES

Don't throw away or destroy your old newspapers, magazines or paper boxes!

There is a serious shortage in paper for making boxes and packing material to be used in war supplies.

The Klemme Boy Scouts are gathering waste paper If you will in town call any Boy Scout or the Scoutmaster, Ernest Gerardi and a Scout will come to your home for the paper.

If you live in the country, we understand you can leave your paper with any Klemme merchant and the Scouts will pick it up.

Save your waste paper!

ATTEST: Fred C. Missal, County Auditor, Penn Eckels, Chairman.

It's An Ill Wind

Adverse winds are blowing these days; "Ill Winds Which Blow No Man Good." These winds blow us many headaches as well as many heartaches. They bring demands that our young manhood mass themselves for our Country's protection. We miss them at our firesides; from our farms and factories; from business; from institutions of learning; from churches; and from society in general. Yes, we miss our Soldier Boys.

These winds blow to demand that we share our incomes with our Government for the building of machines to protect our Democracy.

We must each and every one of us watch our step financially so that when this storm is past and the Ill Wind ceases to blow, we will have the strength in a financial way to carry on and rebuild our fortunes anew.

Lucky is the family who have all of their store debts paid when the next depression hits.

Many of our most thrifty families have paid up completely during 1941, for prices on farm products have indeed been very good.

We can safely predict that prices will continue to be good during 1942, and we do want every customer to pay up every old store debt in 1942.

No man knows what this "Ill Wind" will bring us in 1943, and those who don't pay off debts in 1942 may go broke in 1943.

Lets all be thrifty, in this rich farming community, pay all possible debts in 1942, and face the next post war depression with strength.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

In this, our New Year's greeting to our friends, we would capture, if we could, some of the merriment of the days when sleigh-bells jingled on the frosty air.

As true merriment is an affair of the heart, and not of season, that is the kind of joy we are wishing for you now. Loads of good luck, loads of good cheer, and good health to you all.

IMAGINARY CHRISTMAS COLUMN

("Mrs. Roosevelt says she believes in telling children there is a Santa Claus. 'Let them have the joy of believing that Santa Claus does come and that he is such a jolly old saint,' she writes."—News item.

Yes, there is a Santa Claus. I sometimes hear people say there is not but yesterday we had quite a few friends over to luncheon and they all quite willingly came out for his existence. Last night I motored to Westbrook. A motorcycle policeman held me up. He wanted to talk about the red light but I got him to talk about Kris Kringle. I told him there really was a Santa Claus and in a very few moments he caught the spirit of the whole thing and told me to drive on.

Today I am attending two luncheons and I shall bring up the matter of Santa and ask for a more universal emphasis. There is so much every one of us can do about it if we only try. It is always hard for me to understand people who say there is no Santa Claus, but I suppose there will always be people of that kind. I get around quite a bit and I find the belief in the jolly saint rather general this time of year. Chicago, Kansas City, Dubuque, Poughkeepsie, Nyack, Los Angeles, Houston—everywhere one finds this true. I have also noticed it in New York, Haverstraw, Chicopee Falls, Cleveland, Brooklyn and Golden Beach.

I also think Santa Claus exists in a very real way in radio. Indeed, it is in a broadcasting station that he seems especially tangible to me. I never look at a microphone without seeing a little red hat on it and long white whiskers.

* * *

I think newspapers are full of Santa Clauses, too. Whenever I think of a managing editor I seem to imagine him in a sleigh crying "On Donder, On Prancer, On Cupid, On Vixen" to eight tiny reindeer.

* * *

Yes, Santa is very real. Very, very real. I would be the last to doubt it. I believed in him as a little girl, but he has never seemed so genuine to me as now. Some of my associates do not believe in him, I regret to say. Westbrook Pegler, for example, thinks he is a fake and I hear he may expose him. I trust not.

* * *

After all we are all little children, some more so than others. I sometimes wonder if the kiddies are not smarter than the grown-ups. So let us make this a land of children and childish illusions. Until the last decade not much was done about Santa, in an aggressive way I mean. It all seemed so ineffectual. There was no government interest. But now Santa has the federal government behind him and he is a different person.

* * *

Tomorrow I drive to Carson City where there will be a council meeting for Better Santas and the next day I go to Oil City, Pa., to help launch the Women's Federation for the Standardization of Artificial Snow Flakes. If anybody asks me if there is a Santa Claus I shall not mince words.

WANNA BET?

The Society of Restaurateurs reports that a poll of patrons on the question of what to do to solve the problem of serving adequate meals in the crisis shows that 8 per cent favored a charge for butter and butter and 8 per cent favored charging extra for coffee or tea with dinners.

Well, we just don't believe it. We have never yet encountered anyone who didn't fume over a separate charge for bread and butter. Only nothing makes the average patron as sore as the 35-cent pot of tepid coffee.

* * *

If the gas crisis gets as bad as predicted we may yet see a few cars with a half-pint of gasoline trying to get a garage to open up to let them have enough automobile for a little fun.

'HOW'S THE HOUSE COMING?'

Among the more irascible citizens of the moment are those who are unfortunate enough to begin building or remodeling a house this summer. We know a man who has been a victim of so many priority lists that he is naming his new mansion Priorities Manor."

"I can't get any plumbing, shingle nails, gutters, radiators or door knobs," he wailed yesterday. "Even me, did Japan get all our door knobs and keyholes, too?'

(WNU Service)

Portrait of a Hero:

One of the unsolved mysteries of history is how Custer hurdled the military promotion system and overnight rose from a mere lieutenant to a general . . . All anyone knows is that he returned to headquarters one day after being out on a mission, and chums greeted him as "General" . . . Custer thought they were kidding, because he always boasted that he'd be a general before the war was over, and he was all set to start punching. One of his friends grabbed him by the arm and took him to his tent where he found an envelope containing his commission addressed to "Brigadier General George Armstrong Custer" . . . Custer, who was only 23 years old, turned pale and passed out cold.

—Buy Defense Bonds—

Custer is the man who turned the tide of the Civil war by saving the Union army from defeat at Gettysburg. At the time of the Battle of Gettysburg he was about 15 miles away. His brigade had been ordered (along with the rest of the cavalry) to wait at Big Roundtop, where Jeb Stuart and his Confederates were expected to attack . . . Stuart fooled the Yankees by attacking from the opposite direction instead . . . Hearing Stuart's gunfire, Custer disobeyed the orders he had received, headed straight toward the sound of the guns and, charging four times, stopped the Confederate forces dead in their tracks . . . But for Custer's trigger thinking, the Union armies would have been routed at Gettysburg . . . The bitter irony is that the man who was defeated (because of Custer's coup) was Fitzhugh Lee, the divisional commander of the Confederate attack. Lee was the instructor who had saved Custer from being expelled from West Point by reducing his demerits.

—Buy Defense Bonds—

One of the greatest military wizards of all time, Custer was almost expelled from West Point "for having the worst record" of any student there . . . Any cadet who gets 100 demerits (over a period of six months) is automatically tossed out of the military academy. During his first half year at West Point Custer piled up 129 demerits. (He was saved by a sympathetic instructor who reduced them) . . . In his studies he was at the bottom of his class, and probably the only reason he was graduated was that the Civil war started and the Union army needed officers.

—Buy Defense Bonds—

Custer always believed in fighting an enemy when he saw one, without stopping to consider the cost . . . When he was a kid, he once attended a dance and noticed one of his enemies poking fun at him outside by making faces and gestures through the window . . . Custer rushed up to the window and pushed his fist right through the pane into the guy's snoot.

—Buy Defense Bonds—

Custer was a showman who knew how to do things in a manner that hit people between the eyes. At the end of the Civil war, the army paraded in review before the President and other dignitaries in front of the White House . . . Just as he approached the reviewing stand, his horse reared and started to run away . . . With a flourish, Custer mastered it and onlookers cheered wildly as Custer galloped back into his place in line and passed the reviewing stand a second time . . . He insisted it was an accident, but rivals argued that his horse never acted up before or after that parade.

—Buy Defense Bonds—

It took a month to make Custer's last stand for the film, "They Died With Their Boots On" . . . Historians believe the actual battle couldn't have lasted more than from half to three-quarters of an hour, Custer's men were so hopelessly outnumbered . . . Although Sitting Bull is usually credited with having been in charge of the massacre, actually he was as far away from the battle as his horse could get him. As soon as he heard of Custer's defeat, Sitting Bull returned, claiming that he had been in the hills using his power with the Indian gods to bring about victory . . . The Indians didn't know until after the battle that it was Custer they had been fighting.

—Buy Defense Bonds—

In the picture this repartee gets a howl . . . The commandant at West Point summons Custer and (threatening to expel him for having a fist fight with a fellow cadet) asks him if he has anything to say . . . "I didn't know," says Custer, "that you could get fired from the army for fighting."

—Buy Defense Bonds—

Custer was nuts about onions and ate them as though they were apples. The last gift he received from his wife before he died was a sack of onions . . . Whenever he was away from his wife, he'd sit up until all hours of the night writing long letters to her. During one expedition, he wrote her a letter 80 pages long . . . When Custer died at Little Big Horn, the Indians who killed him paid him a tribute that showed the respect even his enemies had for him. Every man killed in that battle was scalped—except Custer.

Ring in the New Year—Buffet Style

(See Recipes Below)

New Year Patterns

Brand new ideas for a brand New Year! What better way to usher in the year than a table laden with something really new, provocative and colorful? So here's the menu and here are the recipes each with a new slant that will put you as a hostess in the higher brackets for smart entertaining

Whether the buffet is planned for the eve before or the day itself, this menu is designed to give you as little last-minute bustling as possible Just see that your table's set properly and the food cooked beforehand. The combination will do its stuff

Two meats that lend themselves especially for good-looking platters are tongue and corned beef. Because of their color, flavor and texture they can't be too highly recommended for a platter such as I've suggested. Here's how you prepare them:

Beef Tongue.

1 smoked tongue
Cold water to cover
4 bay leaves
4 peppercorns
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 onion

Wash tongue and if salty let stand in cold water overnight. Place in kettle with seasonings and let simmer slowly until tender, from 3 to 5 hours. Remove brine, pull off outer skin, cut off root. Let cool in brine. Serve thinly sliced, either hot or cold.

Corned Beef.

4 pounds corned beef
Clove of garlic
Paprika

Wash the meat in cold water. Soak an hour in cold water if salty, then drain. Place in a kettle and cover with water. Cook slowly 3 to 5 hours. When thoroughly cooked, cool, rub with garlic and paprika. Heat thoroughly in oven before serving. Slice thin and serve on platter with beef tongue.

Crisp and chewy cabbage done up as a cole slaw is a good accompaniment for the tongue and corned beef platter. To make your table really attractive, serve in a red cabbage scooped out and filled with the creamy mixture of cole slaw.

Cole Slaw.
(Serves 8)

4 cups finely shredded cabbage
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
¼ cup finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ cup sour cream or mayonnaise

Combine vegetables, seasonings and sour cream or mayonnaise. Fill scooped out red cabbage and serve at once.

Fruit molds lend tone to a buffet table besides giving the guests a sweeter type salad and thus satisfying their appetite for fruit. Here's a truly delectable combination:

Apricot-Strawberry Gelatin Mold.
(Serves 8)

2 packages strawberry-flavored gelatin
1 No. 2 can apricot halves
1 No. 2 can pineapple pieces
4 cups water (juice from fruit to make up part of this amount)

Heat 2 cups water and pour over gelatin. Stir thoroughly, then add remaining water. Pour part of gelatin mixture over apricots laid at the bottom of a mold. Let jell. Mix pineapple with remaining gelatin mixture and pour over first layer in mold Let jell until firm. Unmold and serve on crisp lettuce with sweet french dressing or mayonnaise combined with whipped cream sweetened with honey.

The dessert problem for this type of buffet is easily solved by a light, delicate cake frosted with chocolate and decorated with numerals to carry out the theme of the New Year:

Fortune Cake.

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 cups cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
4 egg yolks
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

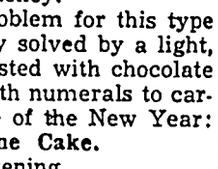
Cream shortening, add sugar, then beaten egg yolks. Whip until light and fluffy with Dover egg beater. Add flavoring, then flour sifted with baking powder, alternating the adding of the flour with the milk. Beat well, place in greased and floured layer-cake pans. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 35 to 40 minutes.

Surprise item in this cake is its custard filling:

2½ tablespoons flour
¼ cup sugar
Pinch of salt
1 cup milk, scalded
1 slightly beaten egg
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix flour, sugar and salt. Stir in milk. Cook in double boiler until thick (about 15 minutes). Add hot mixture to egg slowly, then cook about 2 minutes longer. Cool, add vanilla and spread between layers of cake.

You'll need a whizz of an icing to do justice to Fortune cake. Take 2 cups of confectioners' sugar and blend in 4 tablespoons butter. Add 2 ounces unsweetened chocolate which have been melted over hot water. Then mix enough hot milk into the icing to smooth it out, flavor with 1 teaspoon vanilla and spread cake.



Team up the Fortune cake with a really good cup of coffee and you'll have a perfect close to the buffet supper. Use one well-rounded tablespoon of drip grind decaffeinated coffee for each cup of boiling water. Pre-heat drip coffee pot. Put coffee in upper compartment of pot Pour fresh, briskly boiling water over it. Cover and let stand in a warm place until all the water has dripped through once. Remove upper compartment and cover pot. Serve.

Setting the Table.

The table is the high note of any buffet, so if you want yours to be the topic of conversation do it this way: Set the two largest platters (your nicest and most important, the meat platter and the salad molds) at either end. Have plates, silverware and napkins off to one side and rolls, butter, and relishes on the other side. Plates of nuts and mints may be near a centerpiece of two candelabra with evergreen and silver bells at their base.

LYNN SAYS:

If you're in the mood for resolutions here are some pointers that will help you make this New Year a year for more delectable food, better meals, and more attractive platters:

Season food carefully to bring out its hidden possibilities. Rub roasts with garlic or onion, and salt before roasting. Melt butter for vegetables and stir it throughout before serving.

Hot foods should be served as hot as possible and cold foods as cold as possible.

Foods should be good to look at because the eye takes them in first, so arrange platters neatly and use parsley or fruit or vegetables in garnishing their respective platters.

Heavy meals call for light desserts, light meals for more filling desserts. Make use of contrast in texture, color and flavor when planning menus.

You can stretch that food dollar by planning two or three days' meals in advance and thus save duplication of foods too often.

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

IT IS difficult to know what to say about the National Legion of Decency's banning of Greta Garbo's new picture, "Two-Faced Woman," with Archbishop Spellman also condemning it, and various cities banning it as well. The plot, that of the woman who poses as her twin sister to prove to her husband that she is glamorous, has been used in Hollywood over and over. Will H. Hays' office had passed the picture. There is hardly a picture-goer who hasn't seen things on the screen that shocked him But since "Two-Faced Woman" was banned, there must have been some excellent reason for it.

Do you remember that delightful story, "The Constant Nymph"? It will be made again by Warner Brothers, with Charles Boyer and

CHARLES BOYER

Joan Fontaine—who can have practically anything she wants these days—in the principal roles.

Bob Hope and Victor Moore are to be teamed in Paramount's version of "Ready Money," the farce about a young man who becomes a financier by mistake. Last time it was filmed was in 1914, after it had been a successful stage production.

Barbara Stanwyck may have contributed a new slang phrase to our language. During the making of "Ball of Fire" she happened along when Director Howard Hawks and the picture's authors were trying to think of something slightly slangy for her to say when she walked up to some men she didn't know very well, in a night club.

"That's easy," said Barbara. "I'll say 'What's buzzin', cousin?' That's what we used to say in Brooklyn."

"For Whom the Bell Tolls" is under way even though the cast isn't complete. More than 120 technicians and actors left Hollywood recently for the loftiest location site in film history—a spot 9,300 feet up in the Sierra Nevada mountains. Technicolor and long shots had to be made now because of favorable snow conditions, similar to those in the book.

Donivee Purkey knew what she wanted years ago; now she's got it. She wanted to get into the movies; she worked hard in high school and college dramatics, for four years, and a Paramount talent scout plucked her out of a college play and sent her to Hollywood for a screen test. You'll see her, probably, in "The Fleet's In." Oh yes—she changed that name to Laura Lee.

When Gilbert Roland, Philip Reed, Errol Flynn and other Hollywoodites who like tennis enter the annual motion picture tournament next spring they're likely to rue the day that Paramount signed up Jim Brown, who's now playing the romantic lead in "Out of the Frying Pan." Brown is Texas tennis champion.

Radio's "Woman of Courage" has two leading women who made names for themselves in the movies in the days when radio was a lot of strange machinery and a couple of ear phones. They are Esther Ralston, one of the most beautiful blondes of that day, and Enid Markey, one of the most striking brunettes.

If you're a star of "Meet the People" you're destined for Hollywood fame, apparently. First Virginia O'Brien, then William Orr, signed up for the movies. The third member of the cast to face the cameras is Betty Wells, who was nabbed by Metro.

ODDS AND ENDS—It's rumored about that Errol Flynn succeeded in making himself exceedingly unpopular with the newspaper photographers of New York recently . . . President Roosevelt will be heard over the Mutual chain December 24 during the ceremonies at the annual lighting of the National Christmas tree . . . The actor-raven of "Treat to the Army" has been offered to the U. S. army signal corps, to co-operate with the army's carrier pigeons . . . Bob Hope and Rita Hayworth have been selected by the news cameramen assigned to Hollywood as "the most photogenerous stars of 1941."

PATTERNS

SEWING CIRCLE

BRAVO for the new silhouette—shaped by this long, torso-molding top, low waistline and full, swirling skirt! If you are out to get the world by the tail you simply must have one of these dirndl frocks—and it is typical of the young spirit of the times that you'll probably be your own dressmaker and turn out this style perfectly for yourself! Pattern No. 1479-B offers nothing fancy—merely that perfect button-front top with its immaculate, snowy white collar, short sleeves set in with a smooth straight shoulder line and a skirt gathered on at a slinkily low waist.

It's a dress for stiff fabrics, faille, taffeta or moire if you desire swish. Or, if you prefer flaming colors, make it in a soft wool crepe.

Perhaps Official Wasn't Very Good at History

A famous alienist met a certain prominent official. After some discussion on the mentally unsound, the official asked:

"Doctor, how do you really tell if a person is insane?"

"Oh, we merely ask a few ordinary questions which ordinary people can answer correctly."

"What type of questions?"

"Well," replied the alienist, "this sort of thing: Captain Cook made three voyages around the world and died on one of them. Which was it?"

"Oh, I say," objected the official, "I'm afraid I've forgotten which one it was."

YOU ARE AN INFLUENTIAL PERSON

The merchant who advertises must treat you better than the merchant who does not. He must treat you as though you were the most influential person in town.

As a matter of cold fact you are. You hold the destiny of his business in your hands. He knows it. He shows it. And you benefit by good service, by courteous treatment, by good value—and by lower prices.

A TOAST TO OUR FRIENDS

Now—when that priceless thing called Time occupies the spotlight, we pause to consider that priceless thing called Friendship. In our business we could not be without it, and because we value it so highly we are determined, during 1942, to take still further steps to merit your continued friendship and loyalty to us.

May the sands of the hourglass bring you many golden hours of happiness in the year to come.

MR. AND MRS. OTTO LEHMAN — GARNER, IOWA

THERE are many words in the dictionary . . . big words and little words . . . words with the splendor of royalty, words with the brilliance of diamonds, words as pretentious as the sweep of a peacock's train.

There are homely words, too, and between home folks like ourselves these are the ones we choose to carry our simple New Year message to you. Many thanks for your kindness, and every good wish for a Happy New Year.
